St. Hilaire News

University Lyceum Course

St. Hilaire is to be favored with a University Lyceum course this coming autumn and winter. Commencing Oct. 7 the University Lyceum players will present a series of well known playlets. On Dec. 4, Clarence Bungderfer, the man of many faces will appear. His impersonation of an "Old Maid" is said to be perfect. On Jan. 18, Charles A. Payne, university lecturer for the University of Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, will deliver one of his famous lectures. The last number coming Feb. 6, will be one of the strongest numbers of the course. It consists of the Potter-Depew trio, who will give their musical entertainment that night.

This lecture course will undoubtedly bring a better grade of talent to St. Hilaire than has been seen or heard in this town for many years. Being under the auspices of the university should be a guarantee of its high standard. Season tickets will be offered soon at reasonable rates. Watch for posters.

NOTICE OF SALE IN DITCH PROCEEDINGS

Notice is hereby given, that on the 14th day of September 1916, at 2:00 o'clock p. m. at the County Auditor's office in the city of Thief River Falls, Minn., I will sell the jobs and let the contracts for repairing the ditch No. 32 of Pennington County, ordered by the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, State of Minnesota, by their order bearing date June 26th, 1916, viz: In one job and contract or in sections of 100 feet each, each of said sections to be known and numbered by stakes, as shown by the report of the engineer in said matter, commencing at the one including the outlet, and from thence, successively, up stream to the one including the source; which ditch contains the approximate amount of work following, viz.: 3711.0 cubic yards and the estimated cost of which ditch is Nine Hundred Twenty-Seven and 75-100 dollars to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, and that bids are invited for said work as one job, and also for any one or more sections thereof; said work to be completed within the time required, and in the manner specified, in said Engineer's report. And no bid will be entertained which exceeds more than thirty (30) per cent over and above the estimated cost of the construction of the part of said work covered by such bid; and the successful bidder will be required to give a satisfactory bond in a sum not less than the contract price, to be approved by the Auditor of said county, with two freehold sureties, for the faithful performance and fulfillment of his contract, and to pay all damages that may accrue by reason of his failure to complete the job within the time required in the contract. The said order and estimates and profile are on file, and may be seen at my office.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check payable to the Auditor of said county, for not less than ten per cent of the amount of each bid.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

Dated August 23rd, 1916.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to Iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A.D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 193 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

Dated August 30th, 1916.

Rev. G. O. Parish, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church passed Wednesday at Lancaster. where he conducted the fourth quarterly conference of the M. E. church at that place. During the afternoon all present enjoyed a picnic dinner in a grove south of the church. Rev. Parish returned in the evening.

John McKinnon, Miss Harriet Mc Kinnon, Mrs. Geo. Casper, Ross Chesterman, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Robert autoed to this city from Crookston the latter part of last week for a brief visit with friends. On the return trip they were accompanied by Miss Florence Loftus, who had been visiting with relatives here.

The Minnesota Northwestern electric railway has commenced the erection of a freight warehouse at Mavie station. This action on the part of the company was brought about by the activity of the Cloverleaf Farmer's club, members of which have for some time been requesting that such action be taken.

Frank Stacey, postmaster at America, Minn., located a short way from Warroad, spent Saturday in Thief River Falls while enroute to his home after having returned from Williston, N. D., where he had taken his little daughter for a visit. Mr. Stacey also is a proprietor of a general store at America.

Miss Alice Bakke arrived in the city Tuesday evening from St. Paul to accept the position of trimmer in the millinery department of the store of Sapero company. Miss Bakke comes to Thief River Falls highly recommended and will undoubtedly make the millinery department one of the best in the popular Sapero store.

Rev. G. O. Parish, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church returned Saturday evening from Cass Lake where he had spent two weeks visiting at the home of his wife's parents. Rev. Parish, who was on a three weeks vacation, returned to this city three weeks ago to preach a sermon and the following Monday was taken ill with quincy. Mrs. Parish was absent on a visit at that time so the best thing Rev. Parish could do was to hie himself off to Cass Lake. He has now fully recovered from the attack.

In another column will be found the interesting announcement of the Warroad Townsite company. This concern will on Sept. 28, auction off a number of choice lots at Warroad. These lots are located in Moody's addition, facing Moody park and within half a block of the river. These pieces of property will be sold for what they will bring and the sale offers a splendid opportunity for anyone to get in on the ground floor and escure a piece of property that is bound to increase enormously in value. Miss Clara Bjoland, formerly employed at the Thief River Falls Grocery company as bookkeeper, who returned to this city about four weeks ago from Chicago, where she had spent two and one-half years studying in a bible school, took her departure last Saturday afternoon for India, where she will engage in the missionary work. Miss Bjoland left this city for Seattle from which port she will sail September 1 in company with three additional missionaries, some having had previous experience in missionary work in the far East. A large number of Miss Bjoland's friends gathered at the G. N. station to bid her farewell and bid her Godspeed on her trip.

W. E. Weisenberger of Minneapolis, advance man for the American Lyceum bureau, which opens for a four-day engagement here on Friday, Sept. 8, was in the city today making the preliminary survey for his company. Mr. Weisenberger says that one of the most successful Chautauqua seasons in the history of the country is now drawing to a close and that his company has been appearing before splendid audiences all through the summer. He naturally claims that his organization is one of the best going and the press notices from the cities in which these artists have appeared seem to bear him out.

TO RUSH REPAIR WORK TO LIMIT

for the mill is predicted within a month. The plant supplying power to the city is located below this point and will be thus out of commission until the repair work on the west end of the dam has been completed.

To Work Night and Day

If it is found practicable, night and day crews will be employed on the job. One crew was put to work Monday morning, but things have not yet progressed sufficiently to make a night shift feasible. The new work will be put in place as fast as the old is torn out and every precaution taken against having delays occur. It was the intention to use steel piling, but because of the threatened railroad strike and the inability of the steel mills to make definite promises of delivery this has been abandoned and wooden piles will be used.

Will be No Lagging

Mr. Schreiter says that the people of the city need be under no apprehension that the work will be allowed to lag. He realizes fully that more power for lights must be provided before the winter months arrive, and the company promises to do its utmost to provide it. He adds that his concern is somewhat interested in having the dam in shape to furnish power as no revenue is being derived from it in its present condition.

BACKE CHARGES FRAUD INTENT

Brings Suit Against J. P. Curtis For Recovery of $3,990, Alleging Fraudulent Practice

ENDORSED GESELL CHECKS

Claim is Put Forward That Defendant Knew Transactions Were Illegal and That He Profited by Lending His Endorsement

A rather interesting and somewhat sensational aftermath to the spectacular financial career of Howard E. Gesell, which was brought to a close in this city about a year ago, came to light this week when Lars Backe filed the papers in a suit against J. P. Curtis and said Gesell for the recovery of $3,390. This sum is claimed to have been furnished by the plaintiff out of his own funds in order to save from ruin the Farmers State bank of Holt, the embarrassment of the financial institution being caused by the high-finance of Gesell while he was engaged in business in this city under the name of the Stageburg Furniture company. Of these operations the complaint charges that Curtis not only had full knowledge, but that he aided and abbeted the head of the "Stageburg Furniture company" by lending his endorsement to checks issued by Gesell on the Farmers State bank of Holt and other banks in this section. The suit is brought against Curtis, Gesell's name being employed as one of the defendants simply as a matter of form.

Total Amount $3,390

There are six checks upon which recovery is sought, issued in amounts from $590, which was the sum payable on the one first issued, bearing date August 6, 1915, and dropping by ten dollar stages to $530, which is the smallest amount involved. These checks were all endorsed by J. P. Curtis of Thief River Falls, and paid by the Farmers State bank of Holt, at which bank Gesell, in the name of the Stageburg Furniture company, at that time had an apparent account of over $2,000. This would have been sufficient to cover all outstanding checks of the Stageburg company, according to the complaint, had the account been genuine. The complaint goes on to allege that the account of said Gesell consisted in checks on on other banks deposited just previ-

THIEF LAKE NOW BEING DRAINED

Thief Lake, a body of water five miles long and three wide, will soon be drained and its bed will be occupied by fine farms. The work of derdging, which has been going on for a year, has been completed, and the first of the drainage waters reached here sometime last night. Red Lake river at this point is considerable higher and very muddy as a result.

A rather unusual condition was encountered in this drainage project. Thief Lake is the outlet for the Moose river flowing from the east, and the bed of this stream is considerably lower than the bed of the lake. It was therefore necessary to run a canal of the same depth as the river through the center of the lake to the outlet, which is the source of the Thief river. There is also considerable of a ridge at this point, and it was necessary to cut through this in order to get to a level with the bottom of the canal. The work was done by the Kohler Contracting company, having a sub-contract from the Northwestern Drainage company of this city.

Hunting Ground Gone.

The drainage of Thief lake will destroy the finest duck and goose hunting section in the north. The region has been a sportsman paradise since the days when the Indian was monarch of all he surveyed and strong protests were filed against the project for this reason. Drying up the lake will, however, make available for cultivation one of the most fertile sections of land in the state and is justified from every point of view.

Awaiting Engine's Arrival

The work on the new dam has progressed to the pile driving stage. The donkey engine telegraphed for last week did not arrive this morning as expected but Superintendent Hedlund says it will surely be here today. The work of driving the piles for the coffer dam will be begun upon its arrival and the work rushed to an early completion. It has not been definitely decided whether or not it will be feasible to work two crews, but the scheme will be tried out as soon as the coffer dam is in place and work on the main structure is begun.

Masons Had Good Time.

The joint picnic given by the Masonic and Eastern Star lodges at Squaw point on Labor day was well attended and everybody had a good time. There were several competitive contests between the boys and girls attending and a ladies' base ball game which furnished a lot of amusement. The big feature of the gathering, however, was the lunch, which was both delicious and elaborate. Autos volunteered by the members furnished transportation for those attending and everything was done to make the outing enjoyable.

WATER IN SECOND WELL AT 130 FEET

Quality Not Satisfactory, However, and Drillers Decide to Continue in Same Place.

The drillers at work on the city wells, on Monday struck a vein of water at a depth of 130 feet in the second well, which is being driven next to the electric power station. The quality, however, proved unsatisfactory, being heavily charged with gas. Contractor. L. S. Nelson is therefore continuing operations in the same place, but has not gotten much below the level at which the water was found. Stone was encountered and after this had been broken up the pieces kept wedging the drill. The apparatus is again in operation, however, and will be continued to a much lower level before all hope of getting good water at this location is given up.

The sample secured from the first well drilled has been sent to the state university for analyysis and a report is daily expected.

APPRAISERS NAMED IN RAILROAD CASE

Three Citizens Appointed to Decide on Amount of Damage Done to Property.

Judge Andrew Grindeland last Thursday appointed the appraisers to decide the amount of damage sustained by property owners on Davis avenue between Third and Eighth streets by reason of the laying of the tracks of the Minnesota Northwestern railway along that thoroughfare. The appointees are W. E. Wood, farmer, Smiley township; George A. Stevens, farmer, Rocksbury township; K. O. Gigstad, real estate, St. Hilaire. Objection was interposed by the property owners to anyone regularly riding on the railroad and to anyone residing in the city acting as appraisers.

There are 30 lots along this right-of-way, but in the case of 18 of these easements have already been secured by the company, leaving but twelve for which the damages must be fixed.

The appraisers met on Tuesday for the purpose of organization, after which an adjuornment mas taken until Sept 20. when all parties interested will be given a chance to be heard.

BELIEVES THIS GREATEST OF ALL DAIRY SECTIONS

Iowa Farmer Enthusiastic Over Opportunities Here and Will Return Next Spring.

W. J. Danley of [illegible], Iowa, was in the city last week looking after business matters. Mr. Danley was joint owner with C. M. Showers of this county in a threshing rig and disposed of his equity in this machinery to his partner here.

In common with nearly all other farmers coming from more southern sections, Mr. Danley is enthusiastic over the outlook here, especially as regards the dairying industry. He believes this to be the greatest grass region in the entire country and predicts for it a great future. It is his intention to return in the spring for the purpose of securing a farm and going into dairying on an xtensive scale.

Mr. Danley says that the outlook is good for a bumper corn crop in his home state and that other conditions are very much the same as in Minnesota. He believes that there will be a large number of Iowa farmers come to Minnesota during the next few years, particularly from the renter class, as it is a hard matter to any longer make the high priced lands of that section grow crops that will earn a profit on the investment.

SPECIAL OFFERS BY MERCHANTS

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16

In this issue of The Times, the double page advertisement of the twenty-eight progressive merchants who are backing the Farmers Market Day plan of the Commercial club appears and readers of this paper will do well to consult this page very carefully. It is intended especially for the benefit of the country visitors who are expected here on Saturday, September 16, the date set for the free auction and Market Day, but local people will have opportunity, to profit by the bargains in honest merchandising offered on that day.

General Bargains.

With prices in all commodities fluctuating feverishly and in almost every instance on the rise instead of going lower, the conservative shopper finds it to his advantage to profit by every cut in honest merchandise offered, and the merchants of this city have in every instance made this possible for Market Day shoppers.

The object, naturally, is to encourage the county trade this city is entitled to by reasons of its being the natural trading center of northern Minnesota. The commercial club is financing a free auction for the farmers and any personal effects, odds and ends from the farm, machinery, harness, live stock—in fact anything the farmer wishes to convert into ready cash—will be sold at public auction at the corner of La Bree avenue and Fourth street at 1:00 p. m. Jesse La Bree will act as auctioneer.

Lunch at Noon.

The merchants whose names appear in the Market Day advertising pages have also arranged a free lunch to be served at the commercial club rooms from 11:30 to 12:30. They will be provided with tickets and no one will be served who has not a lunch ticket. All that is necesssary for the country visitor to do is to call on his merchant and be provided with a ticket. They will be distributed only to the visiting farmers; all local men who take lunch at the commercial club at noon, and there will be a number, will be asked to pay 25 cents for the lunch. The expense at the best is heavy and with the free auction, lunch and general expenses of the Market Day this is necessary. The farmers are being entertained, and local people are invited to lunch with them and assist in entertaining them.

Open House.

The Commercial club will keep open house all day and farmers are invited to make the club rooms their headquarters and to feel perfectly at home in the use of the same and enjoyment of its privileges.. It has been the aim of the club to encourage a spirit of co-operation between the farmers and business men and within a year much has been done to bring this about. Many meetings for farmers have been held in the club rooms and they have found members anxious and ready to assist them in organization work and in all that will go to better the interests of Pennington county as a farming country second to none in the state. Business men are proud of their club rooms and their organization and they are throwing the doors wide open to their neighbors on the farm for Market Day, Sept. 16.

Short Program.

Mayor Gambell will address the visiting farmers at the noon lunch and a short program of music and addresses will be given. Professor Henry Werner of the agricultural department of the high school and chairman of the Commercial club industrial committees, will be master of ceremonies during the noon hour and will be in charge of the arrangements for entertaining the visitors.

Every farmer in the county who can possibly be present should come to Thief River Falls on Sept 16, for this first Market Day of the early fall is certain to afford a big opportunity in the purchase of seasonable goods and one in which many things not needed on one individual's farm can be sold to another and converted into ready cash, while the purchaser secures a desirable article at a nominal price.

Read the Ads.

The Market Day page should be carefully read and notations made of the offerings whether it be a discount on all goods for that day or some special offering by which the farmer can save a dollar and at the same time secure honest goods—not "seconds" or small-size packages as is too often the case when he sends his dollar away from home and pays the freight on his purchases.

Remember the day Saturday, September 16, at Thief River Falls and bring the family; a cordial greeting and welcome to everyone and a profitable day in every respect.

"Gloria's Romance" Delayed

The second installment of "Gloria's Romance," now running as a serial in The Thief River Falls Times and being shown on the screen at the Princess theatre, failed to arrive in time for this issue. In order to keep all the chapters in their proper order, however, we will print the second and third installments next week. The second episode will be shown at the Princess on Saturday as per arrangements made. We regret this occurence but the mistake was made at the other end and we are not to blame.

COUNTY VALUATION

ILL DISTRIBUTE SOIL SURVEY MAPS

County Auditor T. P. Anderson has is week received a large supply of ports of the soils survey of Pen- ngton conty, issued by the government under date of July 15, 1916. he document is sent out under the ank of Senator Nelson and is for ee distribution. The report was ade by William G. Smith, N. Kirk d Freeman Ward under the direc- credits amount to $587,030. Last year the total was $4,770,575, an increase $670,161 of which $384,669 represents the raise in real estate.

The personal property was assesed at $667,336 in 1915, the increase for the present year being $192,267, while monies and credits amounted to $493,405 in 1915, an increase of $93,525 for the present year.

The assessment will now be sent to the state-tax commission for final approval.

TREE SAVES AUTO FROM BAD PLUNGE

Baugh Car Is Badly Damaged in Accident Near Sauk Center—Were Enroute To This City.

Two sturdy oak trees growing along side an incline road leading out of Sauk Center Minn., saved the Baugh car from a total wreck and without a doubt saved the lives of the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baugh, and daughter, Margaret, age one year, Mrs. Dahl, of Ada, and Miss Hoagland, of Foley, Minn., last Friday, when the car was on the verge of toppling down a steep embankment after the front wheel had been broken off as the result of having struck a rock in the road, six and one half miles from the above mentioned town.

Mr. and Mrs. Baugh were returning to their home in this city from Minneapolis, where they had been on a visit, and were enroute to Long Prairie when the accident happened. They were driving down a hill when a rut was struck and threw the car ahead, striking a rock, which broke the axle. The car then tumbled sideways. At this point two trees of good size had grown and as good luck was with them, the machine fell against the sturdy oaks, blocking which would probably have been a fatal fall to all concerned.

Mrs. Baugh who was seated in the back received a slight jar when the auto lodged against the trees. All the members declare positively that had the car fallen down hill it would have meant death.

The car was taken to Sauk Center for repairs.

SCHOOLS OPEN FOR NINE-MONTH TERM

All Institutions Are Crowded to Their Capacity On Opening—More Coming Later.

The total attendance on Tuesday in the four schools was 1276. Attendance last year was 1254, and in 1914, 1233, on opening dates.

Forty-two more students enrolled in high school on first day than in 1915.

There were 167 "baby" beginners.

Primary and high school rooms art badly crowded.

Allbasement rooms in use.

There are forty-five instructors employed, besides Supt. J. H. Hay.

The doors of the Thief River Falls schools were thrown open Tuesday morning for the usual nine month's term, after three months of vacation. Everything was in spick and span condition, the schools having undergone a complete cleaning and repairing during the summer months. All the rooms and high school departments are crowded to their capacity. A normal department is being conducted in the basement of the old library room at the Auditorium, owing to crowded conditions. The gymnasium in the same building will be utilized shortly for the little ones and will be known as a practice room.

All students who fall behind in their work are permitted to return at 4:45 p. m. and have a private conference with the instructors to help them along in their work. At the Central school there are 9 teachers to 8 rooms, in the Knox 9 instructors to 8 rooms and in the Washington there are 11 teachers to 10 rooms, which goes to show the crowded conditions. In the agriculture, science and mathematics departments room shortage is great. The commercial departments are overwhelmingly crowded. There are 27 students entered in normal training, this class being stationed at the Auditorium.

FIVE BIG DAYS OF VARIED PROGRAMS

Instruction and Amusement For Old and Young in The Varied Program Selected.

The people of Thief River Falls and vicinity will be allowed to witness a Chautauqua attraction of unusual merit for four days beginning Friday forenoon. A particularly well-balanced program has been selected, there being some feature to appeal to every taste in amusement as well as to those who prefer to hear the graver subjects discussed at meetings of this kind. The tents will be erected at the corner of LaBree avenue and Fourth street.

Scandinavian Artists.

Every number on the program will be a treat but attention is particularly called to two artists in this splendid company of talent whose work will beof special interest to the people of this community. They are Mme. Florence Bodinhoff and Miss Ranghild Holmquist. Mme. Bodinhoff is a famous mezzo-soprano, a member of the Royal Opera of Copenhagen, and sings in five languages. Her singing of the national songs of European peoples, particularly those of Scandinavia, is said to be marvellous. The San Francisco Call reports her as having "thrilled" her audience, when she sang before 4000 people at Festival Hall during the Great Exposition.

Miss Holmquist is justly considered the greatest interpreter of Swedish, Norwegian and Danish music in the West. She sings the home songs and the folk songs of the people of these countries in costume and with a depth of power and understanding that is wonderful. She is a niece of Gustav Holmquist, the eminent basso of Chicago, and a pupil of Oscar Seagle of London. These two artists have met with pronounced success wherever they have been and should not be missed.

Those who like drama and elocution can be assured that there are few finer companies now traveling than the Chautauqua Players, appearing on the third day. Lovers of instrumental music will find Hjalma's Band to be a delight. It is an organization of great merit.

The program for Sunday will be one in every way befitting the day and will consist of a lecture along religious lines, songs and readings. Nothing will be permitted to intrude itself that can in any way be objected to and it is the intention of the management to make this one of the really successful days of the series.

PART OF RED LAKE TIMBER TO BE SOLD BEFORE WINTER

Congressman Steenerson Informs The Times That Man Has Been Sent Out to Make Arrangements.

AGENT IS NOW ON THE GROUND

E. B. Meritt, Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Sends Notice of Preparations.

OF MUCH INTEREST HERE

Marketing of Timber Will in All Probability Mean Resumption of Saw Mill Operations at Thief River Falls Next Summer

TELEGRAM

R. H. Ross, Publisher,
Thief River Falls Times,
Thief River Falls, Minn

Commissioner of Indian Affairs informs me this morning that a representative of his Office left Washington last evening for Red Lake Agency in order that plans may be perfected for sale of some of the timeber on Red Lake Reservation before winter. Letter follows.

HALVOR STEENERSON M. C.

That a part of the timber on the Red Lake Indian reservation will be placed on the market this fall is now a certainty. Knowing the interest of the people of Thief River Falls in this matter, the publisher of The Times addressed an inquiry to Congressman Steenerson. In reply he received the assurance of Mr. Steenerson that it was the intention to place some of the timber on sale in time to permit of its being logged this coming winter. The congressman also inclosed a letter from E. B. Meritt, assistant commisioner of Indian affairs, to whom the original inquiry was referred, the letter being as follows:

"Department of the Interior; Office of Indian Affairs. Washington, Aug. 31, 1916. My Dear Mr. Steenerson—Reference is made to your letter of August 30, 1916, enclosing a letter from R. H. Ross, publisher of the Thief River Falls Times, asking when the timber on the Red Lake Indian reservation will be sold. In this connection I have the honor to advise you that regulations for the sale of timber on that reservation have not been formulated. A representative of this office left Washington today to visit the Red Lake Agency in order that plans may be perfected for the sale of some of the timber before winter. As soon as plans are definitely worked out for the sale of some of the timber I will take pleasure in advising you of the same.

E. B. MERITT
Assistant Commissioner

Passed Last Spring.

The bill providing for the sale of the matured and decaying timber on the Red Lake Indian reservation passed congress as an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill on May 13.

Outside Forest Reserve.

It is estimated that there are 300,000,000 feet of pine, spruce and tamarack still standing on the reservation. Much of this, however, is in the forest reserve and must be administered under the rules pertaining to timber of this character. There is a great deal of very valuable timber outside of this reserve, however, and it is to this that the Steenerson amendment has reference.

People Here Interested.

Much of the timber to be placed on sale under the provisions of this bill is located so as to make Thief River Falls the logical point at which to have it sawed. Logs can be floated down the Red Lake river at far less expense than they can be taken by rail to any other point, and the mills are already here, fully equipped.

All Estimates Made.

The Indian department now has a very thorough estimate of the amount of timber covered by the provision of congress, and the surveys have also been made. All that remains necessary is for the government to work out some of the details for its sale. With an experienced man on the ground this is not expected to take long, after which the exact date of the sale will be made know.
the sale will be made known.

APPRAISERS NAMED IN RAILROAD CASE

Three Citizens Appointed to Decide on Amount of Damage Done to Property.

Judge Andrew Grindeland last Thursday appointed the appraisers to decide the amount of damage sustained by property owners on Davis avenue between Third and Eighth streets by reason of the laying of the tracks of the Minnesota Northwestern railway along that thoroughfare. The appointees are W. E. Wood, farmer, Smiley township; George A. Stevens, farmer, Rocksbury township; K. O. Gigstad, real estate, St. Hilaire. Objection was interposed by the property owners to anyone regularly riding on the railroad and to anyone residing in the city acting as appraisers.

There are 30 lots along this right-of-way, but in the case of 18 of these easements have already been secured by the company, leaving but twelve for which the damages must be fixed.

The appraisers met on Tuesday for the purpose of organization, after which an adjuornment mas taken until Sept 20. when all parties interested will be given a chance to be heard.

BELIEVES THIS GREATEST OF ALL DAIRY SECTIONS

Iowa Farmer Enthusiastic Over Opportunities Here and Will Return Next Spring.

W. J. Danley of Swan, Iowa, was in the city last week looking after business matters. Mr. Danley was joint owner with C. M. Showers of this county in a threshing rig and disposed of his equity in this machinery to his partner here.

In common with nearly all other farmers coming from more southern sections, Mr. Danley is enthusiastic over the outlook here, especially as regards the dairying industry. He believes this to be the greatest grass region in the entire country and predicts for it a great future. It is his intention to return in the spring for the purpose of securing a farm and going into dairying on an xtensive scale.

Mr. Danley says that the outlook is good for a bumper corn crop in his home state and that other conditions are very much the same as in Minnesota. He believes that there will be a large number of Iowa farmers come to Minnesota during the next few years, particularly from the renter class, as it is a hard matter to any longer make the high priced lands of that section grow crops that will earn a profit on the investment.

SPECIAL OFFERS BY MERCHANTS

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16

In this issue of The Times, the double page advertisement of the twenty-eight progressive merchants who are backing the Farmers Market Day plan of the Commercial club appears and readers of this paper will do well to consult this page very carefully. It is intended especially for the benefit of the country visitors who are expected here on Saturday, September 16, the date set for the free auction and Market Day, but local people will have opportunity, to profit by the bargains in honest merchandising offered on that day.

General Bargains.

With prices in all commodities fluctuating feverishly and in almost every instance on the rise instead of going lower, the conservative shopper finds it to his advantage to profit by every cut in honest merchandise offered, and the merchants of this city have in every instance made this possible for Market Day shoppers.

The object, naturally, is to encourage the county trade this city is entitled to by reasons of its being the natural trading center of northern Minnesota. The commercial club is financing a free auction for the farmers and any personal effects, odds and ends from the farm, machinery, harness, live stock—in fact anything the farmer wishes to convert into ready cash—will be sold at public auction at the corner of La Bree avenue and Fourth street at 1:00 p. m. Jesse La Bree will act as auctioneer.

Lunch at Noon.

The merchants whose names appear in the Market Day advertising pages have also arranged a free lunch to be served at the commercial club rooms from 11:30 to 12:30. They will be provided with tickets and no one will be served who has not a lunch ticket. All that is necesssary for the country visitor to do is to call on his merchant and be provided with a ticket. They will be distributed only to the visiting farmers; all local men who take lunch at the commercial club at noon, and there will be a number, will be asked to pay 25 cents for the lunch. The expense at the best is heavy and with the free auction, lunch and general expenses of the Market Day this is necessary. The farmers are being entertained, and local people are invited to lunch with them and assist in entertaining them.

Open House.

The Commercial club will keep open house all day and farmers are invited to make the club rooms their headquarters and to feel perfectly at home in the use of the same and enjoyment of its privileges.. It has been the aim of the club to encourage a spirit of co-operation between the farmers and business men and within a year much has been done to bring this about. Many meetings for farmers have been held in the club rooms and they have found members anxious and ready to assist them in organization work and in all that will go to better the interests of Pennington county as a farming country second to none in the state. Business men are proud of their club rooms and their organization and they are throwing the doors wide open to their neighbors on the farm for Market Day, Sept. 16.

Short Program.

Mayor Gambell will address the visiting farmers at the noon lunch and a short program of music and addresses will be given. Professor Henry Werner of the agricultural department of the high school and chairman of the Commercial club industrial committees, will be master of ceremonies during the noon hour and will be in charge of the arrangements for entertaining the visitors.

Every farmer in the county who can possibly be present should come to Thief River Falls on Sept 16, for this first Market Day of the early fall is certain to afford a big opportunity in the purchase of seasonable goods and one in which many things not needed on one individual's farm can be sold to another and converted into ready cash, while the purchaser secures a desirable article at a nominal price.

Read the Ads.

The Market Day page should be carefully read and notations made of the offerings whether it be a discount on all goods for that day or some special offering by which the farmer can save a dollar and at the same time secure honest goods—not "seconds" or small-size packages as is too often the case when he sends his dollar away from home and pays the freight on his purchases.

Remember the day Saturday, September 16, at Thief River Falls and bring the family; a cordial greeting and welcome to everyone and a profitable day in every respect.

"Gloria's Romance" Delayed

The second installment of "Gloria's Romance," now running as a serial in The Thief River Falls Times and being shown on the screen at the Princess theatre, failed to arrive in time for this issue. In order to keep all the chapters in their proper order, however, we will print the second and third installments next week. The second episode will be shown at the Princess on Saturday as per arrangements made. We regret this occurence but the mistake was made at the other end and we are not to blame.

credits amount to $587,030. Last year the total was $4,770,575, an increase $670,161 of which $384,669 represents the raise in real estate.

The personal property was assesed at $667,336 in 1915, the increase for the present year being $192,267, while monies and credits amounted to $493,405 in 1915, an increase of $93,525 for the present year.

The assessment will now be sent to the state tax commission for final approval.

TREE SAVES AUTO FROM BAD PLUNGE

Two sturdy oak trees growing along side an incline road leading out of Sauk Center Minn., saved the Baugh car from a total wreck and without a doubt saved the lives of the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baugh, and daughter, Margaret, age one year, Mrs. Dahl, of Ada, and Miss Hoagland, of Foley, Minn., last Friday, when the car was on the verge of toppling down a steep embankment after the front wheel had been broken off as the result of having struck a rock in the road, six and one half miles from the above mentioned town.

Mr. and Mrs. Baugh were returning to their home in this city from Minneapolis, where they had been on a visit, and were enroute to Long Prairie when the accident happened. They were driving down a hill when a rut was struck and threw the car ahead, striking a rock, which broke the axle. The car then tumbled sideways. At this point two trees of good size had grown and as good luck was with them, the machine fell against the sturdy oaks, blocking which would probably have been a fatal fall to all concerned.

Mrs. Baugh who was seated in the back received a slight jar when the auto lodged against the trees. All the members declare positively that had the car fallen down hill it would have meant death.

The car was taken to Sauk Center for repairs.

SCHOOLS OPEN FOR NINE-MONTH TERM

All Institutions Are Crowded to Their Capacity On Opening—More Coming Later.

The total attendance on Tuesday in the four schools was 1276. Attendance last year was 1254, and in 1914, 1233, on opening dates.

Forty-two more students enrolled in high school on first day than in 1915.

There were 167 "baby" beginners.

Primary and high school rooms art badly crowded.

Allbasement rooms in use.

There are forty-five instructors employed, besides Supt. J. H. Hay.

The doors of the Thief River Falls schools were thrown open Tuesday morning for the usual nine month's term, after three months of vacation. Everything was in spick and span condition, the schools having undergone a complete cleaning and repairing during the summer months. All the rooms and high school departments are crowded to their capacity. A normal department is being conducted in the basement of the old library room at the Auditorium, owing to crowded conditions. The gymnasium in the same building will be utilized shortly for the little ones and will be known as a practice room.

All students who fall behind in their work are permitted to return at 4:45 p. m. and have a private conference with the instructors to help them along in their work. At the Central school there are 9 teachers to 8 rooms, in the Knox 9 instructors to 8 rooms and in the Washington there are 11 teachers to 10 rooms, which goes to show the crowded conditions. In the agriculture, science and mathematics departments room shortage is great. The commercial departments are overwhelmingly crowded. There are 27 students entered in normal training, this class being stationed at the Auditorium.

FIVE BIG DAYS OF VARIED PROGRAMS

Instruction and Amusement For Old and Young in The Varied Program Selected.

The people of Thief River Falls and vicinity will be allowed to witness a Chautauqua attraction of unusual merit for four days beginning Friday forenoon. A particularly well-balanced program has been selected, there being some feature to appeal to every taste in amusement as well as to those who prefer to hear the graver subjects discussed at meetings of this kind. The tents will be erected at the corner of LaBree avenue and Fourth street.

Scandinavian Artists.

Every number on the program will be a treat but attention is particularly called to two artists in this splendid company of talent whose work will beof special interest to the people of this community. They are Mme. Florence Bodinhoff and Miss Ranghild Holmquist. Mme. Bodinhoff is a famous mezzo-soprano, a member of the Royal Opera of Copenhagen, and sings in five languages. Her singing of the national songs of European peoples, particularly those of Scandinavia, is said to be marvellous. The San Francisco Call reports her as having "thrilled" her audience, when she sang before 4000 people at Festival Hall during the Great Exposition.

Miss Holmquist is justly considered the greatest interpreter of Swedish, Norwegian and Danish music in the West. She sings the home songs and the folk songs of the people of these countries in costume and with a depth of power and understanding that is wonderful. She is a niece of Gustav Holmquist, the eminent basso of Chicago, and a pupil of Oscar Seagle of London. These two artists have met with pronounced success wherever they have been and should not be missed.

Those who like drama and elocution can be assured that there are few finer companies now traveling than the Chautauqua Players, appearing on the third day. Lovers of instrumental music will find Hjalma's Band to be a delight. It is an organization of great merit.

The program for Sunday will be one in every way befitting the day and will consist of a lecture along religious lines, songs and readings. Nothing will be permitted to intrude itself that can in any way be objected to and it is the intention of the management to make this one of the really successful days of the series.

PART OF RED LAKE TIMBER TO BE SOLD BEFORE WINTER

Congressman Steenerson Informs The Times That Man Has Been Sent Out to Make Arrangements.

AGENT IS NOW ON THE GROUND

E. B. Meritt, Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Sends Notice of Preparations.

OF MUCH INTEREST HERE

Marketing of Timber Will in All Probability Mean Resumption of Saw Mill Operations at Thief River Falls Next Summer

TELEGRAM

R. H. Ross, Publisher,
Thief River Falls Times,
Thief River Falls, Minn

Commissioner of Indian Affairs informs me this morning that a representative of his Office left Washington last evening for Red Lake Agency in order that plans may be perfected for sale of some of the timeber on Red Lake Reservation before winter. Letter follows.

HALVOR STEENERSON M. C.

That a part of the timber on the Red Lake Indian reservation will be placed on the market this fall is now a certainty. Knowing the interest of the people of Thief River Falls in this matter, the publisher of The Times addressed an inquiry to Congressman Steenerson. In reply he received the assurance of Mr. Steenerson that it was the intention to place some of the timber on sale in time to permit of its being logged this coming winter. The congressman also inclosed a letter from E. B. Meritt, assistant commisioner of Indian affairs, to whom the original inquiry was referred, the letter being as follows:

"Department of the Interior; Office of Indian Affairs. Washington, Aug. 31, 1916. My Dear Mr. Steenerson—Reference is made to your letter of August 30, 1916, enclosing a letter from R. H. Ross, publisher of the Thief River Falls Times, asking when the timber on the Red Lake Indian reservation will be sold. In this connection I have the honor to advise you that regulations for the sale of timber on that reservation have not been formulated. A representative of this office left Washington today to visit the Red Lake Agency in order that plans may be perfected for the sale of some of the timber before winter. As soon as plans are definitely worked out for the sale of some of the timber I will take pleasure in advising you of the same.

E. B. MERITT
Assistant Commissioner

Passed Last Spring.

The bill providing for the sale of the matured and decaying timber on the Red Lake Indian reservation passed congress as an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill on May 13.

Outside Forest Reserve.

It is estimated that there are 300,000,000 feet of pine, spruce and tamarack still standing on the reservation. Much of this, however, is in the forest reserve and must be administered under the rules pertaining to timber of this character. There is a great deal of very valuable timber outside of this reserve, however, and it is to this that the Steenerson amendment has reference.

People Here Interested.

Much of the timber to be placed on sale under the provisions of this bill is located so as to make Thief River Falls the logical point at which to have it sawed. Logs can be floated down the Red Lake river at far less expense than they can be taken by rail to any other point, and the mills are already here, fully equipped.

All Estimates Made.

The Indian department now has a very thorough estimate of the amount of timber covered by the provision of congress, and the surveys have also been made. All that remains necessary is for the government to work out some of the details for its sale. With an experienced man on the ground this is not expected to take long, after which the exact date of the sale will be made know.
the sale will be made known.

An Unsatisfactory Solution

It is doubtful if the outcome of the controversy between the railroads and the brotherhoods is satisfactory to either side. The general public may experience some sense of relief because of the fact that their transportation facilities are guaranteed intact for some months, but the settlement leaves everyone with a feeling of insecurity.

Nothing, in fact, has been settled. The brotherhoods have gained the eight hour working day, but the matter of time and a half for all hours over eight is left for future decision. The question of whether or not the demands made by the men were just and reasonable has not been answered, and this is the important question involved. The only good purpose apparently served by the threatened outbreak is that an investigation of conditions by an impartial tribunal will be forced. Compulsory arbitration of any future difficulty of a similar nature is also practically assured This will be the most valuable result.

One thing is certain: Congress will take such steps as are necessary to prevent a recurrence of the episode. The transportation facilities of the country are of too great importance to the people as a whole to be placed in jeopardy by unreasonable demands on the part of the men or stubborn opposition to reasonable demands on the part of the railroads.

Both sides claim that they want nothing but what is right and just. In that case neither should have any hesitancy in submitting their differences to arbitration.

A Banner Year.

A well-posted citizen said the other day that he considered last year's bumper wheat crop in the light of a set-back for northwestern Minnesota. Nearly everybody sowed wheat last spring in the hope that another such crop would be the result. This, with the high prices prevailing, would mean a very profitable year.

Many of the farmers who this year went heavily into this cereal did so on last year's showing. Large numbers of them had been gradually getting away from the grain crop idea and were devoting their fields to clover and fodder corn. The temptation was too great, however, because wheat looked more than ever like "easy money." This retarded the progress of dairying and diversified farming to some extent, but the result will only give these industries an added impetus.

This is not because the wheat crop this year is a failure. It is not a failure and the average throughout the northwest will be very fair. Compared with last year the yield is small but the chances are that for a five-year period it would about average up.

Farmers are not complaining. They do not find themselves in any manner embarrassed by the low wheat yield, other crops having been rather better than normal. Hundreds of them have decided, however, that they will no longer place their dependence in wheat. The chances for disappointment are too great. Cows and clover have never yet failed, but a large number of northwestern farmers seem only now to have come to a full realization of the fact. If they will act intelligently on the knowledge they possess 1916 will prove a vastly more important and profitable year than did 1915.

The vote in congress on the eight hour proposition for railroad men took the politics pretty much out of the question, whatever else may be said for it All the Minnesota congressmen who voted at all voted for the president's measure. They seem to have realized that a serious crisis confronted the nation and took the only way to avert it.

Remember that September 19th is Market Day in Thief River Falls. On that day the merchants will have something special to offer those who will be the guests of the Commercial club. But even if you do not want what the merchants are offering at this time, come in to lunch, attend the free auction and then stick around and listen to the band play. Droy in anyway. Everybody will be glad to see you and will try to make you welcome.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN MODEL LAUNDRY

New Machinery and Important Alterations and Improvements Made

Bjorkman & Johnson, proprietors of the Model Steam Laundry, have just completed improvements in their plant which make it one of the most complete and up-to-date in northern Minnesota. A twenty horse power steam engine has been substituted for the electric motor formerly used and a new boiler has also been installed. This boiler is provided with a four-foot combustion chamber which consumes all gas generated and permits white smoke to escape throught the stack.

The engine is of the horizontal Corliss type and will furnish ample power for all the machinery. The pipes are so arranged that the exhaust will be used for heating the building in cold weather. All intake pipes have been changed from three-quarter inch to one and one-half inch and are of the best galvanized material. New laundry equipment has also been added, putting the plant in shape to take care of any kind of work. The managers say that there is now absolutely no excuse for anyone sending their laundry work out of the city, although a few still persist in doing this.

GRAND FORKS TRIP VERY ENJOYABLE

Local Masons Attend Banquet and Assist in Degree Work at Neighboring City.

About 20 members of Northern Lodge, A. F. & A. M. attended a meeting of the order at Grand Forks on Friday, making the trip by automobile. Work in the third degree was the business of the evening and there were nine candidates. Masons from many nearby cities were present, a total of 270 sitting down to the banquet provided.

The cars left Thief River Falls at 3:30 o'clock, arriving at their destination at 5:45. The roads were somewhat rough in places because of the recent rains, but for the greater part of the distance good time could be made. Thomas Morris of Crookston, past grand master of Minnesota, was present and assisted in the work. It was a very enjoyable trip and the local masons are high in their praise of the manner in which Grand Forks lodge had provided for visitors.

Those attending from Thief River were: Ohle hle, C. W. Ackerman, Joseph Strubeck, L. W. Manther, C. R. Stowell, Dr. C. R. Crandall, W. E. Monks, John Cronkhite, William Korstad, Fred Haug, H. Hermanson, John Carlson, George Walker, Walter Smith and George Sterns. Besides these there were present two or three members of the local lodge now residing at Gonvick.

Ole Ihle motored to Grand Forks last Friday afternoon to attend the third degree exercises of the Masonic lodge. Mr. Ihle is a member of the local lodge No. 232 and was among the many who attended. He was accompanied by Fred Haug. The trip was made in the big Reo Six, which was damaged July 18, when a Great Northern caboose hit the car at the railroad crossing. The machine has been repaired with a new body and is now in as good condition as when purchased.

PAY RESPECTS TO FATHER DINGMAN

Expressions of Esteem and Appreciation Feature Dinner in His Honor on Thursday.

D. P. O'NIELL IS SPOKESMAN

About 350 people gathered at the assembly hall of St. Barnard's Catholic church on Thursday evening of last week to pay their respects and offer their well-wishes to Rev. Father Adolph Dingman, who has been the priest in charge during the past twelve years. The large majority of those present were members or attendants of the church, but there were also a number of people of other denominations who took this opportunity to testify to their high regard for the departing pastor, who leaves in a few days to take over the charge at Park Rapids.

The supper was in the nature of a suprise party on Father Dingman, and was arranged by the ladies of the parish, who had spared neither pains nor expense to make it the best and most elaborate affair of its kind ever seen at a similar function in this city.

Presented With Purse

At the close of the meal Senator D. P. O'Neill, on behalf of the people of the congregation, presented Father Dingman with a purse containing $345.00 in gold. In making the presentation, Senator O'Neill said:

"Father Adolph: Your friends and neighbors, residing in Thief River Falls and vicinity, are assembled here this evening as a common citizenship, regardless of nationality or religious belief, to pay their respects to you whose brain planned this beautiful edifice, dedicated to the worship of God, and provided us with this dining hall in order that we might meet in social intercourse and enjoy ourselves in harmless amusements.

"But our hearts are heavy this evening at the thought of your departure from among us. Even the children's laughter does not seem to have the same merry ring.

Worked For All.

"During the many years of your pastorate among us you have endeared yourself to us all—not only as a kind and indulgent priest, but also through your generous devotion to duty and the upbuilding of the parish and city along commercial as well as religious lines. As treasurer of this parish for the past five or six years, and having held the same position in other parishes, I can truthfully say that I have never met a pastor who could do so much and accomplish such results in such a barren field as you found upon your arrival here. From a small church located on the outskirts of the city(as tho we were ashamed to be seen up town) we have grown until we now find ourselves in possession of a most valuable church property located in the very heart of the city

All Would Retain Him.

"I feel certain that I am voicing the sentiments of all when I say that there is not a man, woman or child in the entire parish but who would keep you among us in order that you might enjoy the fruit of your hard labor, were this possible But the Catholic church, like all permanent institutions, has its rules and regulations and we, as dutiful children, find ourselves in the position of the Light Brigade at Balaklava—"tis not for us to reason why;" 'tis but for us to regret that circumstances makes your removal from among us seem wise to those to whose authority we bow.

"While I am on my feet I want to also say that, next to yourself, Father, we will all miss your estimable niece, who by her kind words and pleasant greetings, her patience in answering inquiries and skill in planning amusements for us has endeared herself to all with whom she has come in contact.

"And now, in behalf of your many friends, permit me to present to you a small token of the respect and esteem in which you are held by all classes of our citizens. We hope and pray that your health and strength may be spared to you for many years to come in order that the good work in which you are engaged may be continued with unabated vigor."

Senator O'Neill, always a booster, could not even allow this occasion to pass by without a deviation in this direction. He said that there was one consolation, namely, that the Jefferson highway would pass through Park Rapids as well as Thief River Falls and that when this is completed many of our people would take the opportunity to visit their former pastor.

Recipient Deeply Moved.

It was with some difficulty that Father Dingman found words in which to make a suitable reply to the presentation address. That he was deeply moved by the evidence of affection manifested on every hand was very apparent. He did not attempt to conceal the fact that the change to be made in his location was not of his own choosing. Everyone realized that he would much rather remain where so many years of his life as a priest has been spent and where the evidences of his work are so apparent to everyone. Men of his calling, however, early learn to think of themselves and of their own conveniences and desires as being of but minor importance in the great work to which they have dedicated their lives. Their superiors order and are obeyed. No objection is raised, no suggestion advanced. In his address Senator O'Neill compared the congregation to the six hundred at Balaklava, but the priest's position is even in greater degree similar to that of those who on that occasion unquestioningly obeyed the mandate of a higher authority. A priest is commanded to take up his work among strange surroundings and begin all over again the struggle brought tc a successful conclusion in another parish. If at times his gaze turns longingly backwards to the field he has left no one ever knows of it—he hardly admits it himself. His work has been laid out for him and he attacks it cheerfully and with enthusiasm.

Held in High Esteem.

The success which has attended Father Dingman's work in this community has perhaps not been due so much to his office as a priest as it has to his status as a man. Courteous, kindly, considerate, he has embodied all the traits of character with which a people love to acredit their pastor. Considering it as by no means beneath him, he has taken an active interest in the upbuilding of the city. His voice and influence have always been at the command of his fellow-citizens in any worthy cause and his purse strings have always been open to aid those who for any reason were unable to aid themselves. Many are the stories told of his benefactions. He never told them himself and would doubtless be greatly vexed should anyone else attempt to do so. These things are all in a day's work for a conscientious priest and he never asks nor expects any credit for them.

The sincere well-wishes of every man, woman and child in the community will follow "Father Adolph" to his new field of labor. His work here will remain as a monument to his worth for years to come, while his nobility of character and kindliness of heart will not be forgotten by any of those whose privilege it was to know him during the twelve years of his pastorate.

BILLIE BURKE IN GREAT PHOTO PLAY

Times Free Matinee Packs Princess Theatre to the Doors on Saturday Afternoon

If the favor with which the opening chapters of "Gloria's Romance" was received in Thief River Falls is any criterion of its future success, the film will prove the greatest drawing card of any photo play ever put on by a local theatre. The first reels of this serial were presented on Saturday afternoon at a free matinee given under the auspices of The Times. The house was packed to the doors Manager Seitzler stating that the total admissions for the afternoon and evening footed up over 1,200. As the capacity of the house is only 400 this means that the capacity was tested and that this play was given a reception never accorded any other production in this city. The innovation of a free matinee proved a decided success and The Times may follow up with others when productions of particular merit are presented.

To judge by the opening chapters "Gloria's Romance" will prove fully up to the expectations. Billie Burke is without doubt the most fascinating young actress on the American stage, and her career in moving pictures has but added to that already gained in regular theatrical work. "Gloria's Romance" was written especially for her and with particular reference to her capabilities, style and temperament. The play itself, the balance of the cast, the costuming and accessories generally were selected with a view to making this one of the really great screen productions in the history of the art.

The second installment of this remarkable play will be found in this issue of The Times and the episode will be seen at the Princess Saturday afternoon and evening. Theatres in the larger cities have been charging 50 cents and a dollar to see this feature, but the Princess prices will remain the same as for other performances—five and ten cents.

PEAT LANDS DISCUSSION AT COMMERCIAL CLUB

State Expert Will Explain Best System Found For Their Profitable Cultivation

The Thief River Falls Commercial club will take up the matter of reclaiming the peat land areas of this section in earnest during the coming fall and winter. There are large sections of land of this character in Northwestern Minnesota and it has been demonstrated that these will bear excellent crops if given the proper treatment. Experts at the state agricultural college have for some time past been giving particular attention to this question, and it is the intention to have one or more of these on hand to address the farmers and others interested. Secretary Lincoln says that the first meeting for the purpose will likely be held early in October and that the amount of interest evinced at that time will largely determine whether or not other meetings of a similar nature will be attempted.

Peat land cultivation is one of the really important subjects to be discussed by the people of this section. These lands are in their present state practically worthless but can be made most productive if the proper method is used in their cultivation.

If the plans now under consideration work out as they are expected to there will be a farmer's meeting at the club rooms once a month during the winter. At these meetings it will be the intention to take up such subjects as are of general or special interest to our agricultural population. The best authorities procurable will deliver addresses, a lunch will be provided and a general farmer's club function aimed at. The details have not all been worked out as yet, but it is the intention of the club to hereafter pay more attention to matters of this kind than has been the case in the past.

Are in No Hurry

Newfolden Review.— Someone causally remarked that Pennington longs for a hunk of Marshall county, and in this desired portion Newfolden is located. Well, we might get into worse company. But how about the political problems and positions. We'll just wait a few days, anyhow.

HIGHWAY IN FAIR SHAPE SOUTHWARD

Little Falls Banker Makes Trip Over Jefferson Road—Should Put Up Markers.

J. K. Martin, cashier of the First National bank of Little Falls came up over the Jefferson highway and spent Friday night in the city, being accompanied by his wife and children. The trip was taken merely as an outing and the purpose of seeing just what kind of country the highway is scheduled to go through. The party found the roads in fairly good shape, with the people of every county striving to make them better. There are some rough spots and some are very heavy, but the only really bad section is a piece in Clearwater county. Mr. Martin was assured that this would be fixed before long and that the county's entire quota would be taken care of before another season of auto travel rolled around.

The lack of proper markings to indicate the highway is the greatest drawback to easy and rapid travel at this time according to Mr. Martin. This defect also is being attended to by the different counties as fast as the highway boosters can get to it. The party had a very pleasant trip, and left on their return journey Saturday morning.

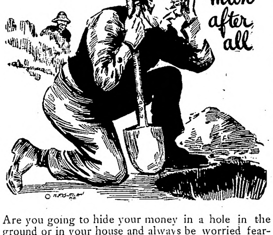
WILL DISTRIBUTE SOIL SURVEY MAPS

County Auditor T. P. Anderson has this week received a large supply of reports of the soils survey of Pennington conty, issued by the government under date of July 15, 1916. The document is sent out under the frank of Senator Nelson and is for free distribution. The report was made by William G. Smith, N. Kirk and Freeman Ward under the direction of the bureau of soils. Pennington is the seventh county in the state for which such survey has been made, the others being Blue Earth, Rice, Goodhue, Polk and portions of Lyon and Carlton.

The report contains a discription of the soil, climate, and drainage conditions of the county, a statement of the precipitation and temperature and a table giving the yield of the different products for the year 1910.

The most valuable part of the document is the soil map. This being a large plate in colors and very complete. Different tints are used to designate the different kind of soils to be found while marginal legends make their explanation easy to understand.

The pamphlets are absolutely free and Auditor Anderson will be pleased to hand them to anyone asking for them.



My money is gone!!
I was not a careful man after all

Are you going to hide your money in a hole in the ground or in your house and always be worried fearing that you may be watched by a robber?

No.

It is the robber's business to learn who keeps money hidden; and he will kill you, if he must, to steal.

Be a careful man.

SATISFY!
—what does that mean?

It means that NEW quality, in a cigarette, that does for your smoking exactly what a drink of cold water does for your thirst!

To satisfy, a cigarette must do far more than just "please" you—it must let you know you've been smoking.

That's what Chesterfields do—they satisfy! And yet they're MILD!

For the first time in the history of cigarettes, here's a cigarette that satisfies and yet is mild! Chesterfields!

Other cigarettes may be mild, but they don't satisfy.

BUT, Chesterfields satisfy—yet they're mild!

Why?

Physicians Hospital. Thief River Falls

HAS EXCELLENT YEAR'S RECORD

Physician's Hospital, During First Twelve Months, Proves Its Value to Community

ADMIT OVER 300 PATIENTS

On September 1 the Physician's hospital in this city had been open to the public just one year. The success which has attended the work of the institution in that time has more than justified the expectations of the people, while the patronage has been such as to greatly encourage the doctors who assumed the responsibility of its maintenance.

Nearly One Every Day.

There were 325 patients admitted to the hospital during the year. If Sundays are excluded this is better than average of one every twenty-four hours. The city of Thief River Falls and Pennington county have naturally furnished the majority of these patients, but many have come from surrounding sections of the country. The fame of the hospital has gradually spread until now the territory served extends from the Canadian border to the Polk county line.

Much Surgical Work.

There have been over 200 operations performed at the hospital during its first year. Of this number 125 were of a major character, the majority being appendicitis cases. Others of fully as serious nature were also successfully performed, however, and with a lower percentage of unsuccessful cases than most hospitals can point to.

The number of minor operations totaled 75. Under this head come all cases of the more common order, such as the removal of adenoids, tonsils, etc., all of which have been successful. In the department of diagnosis and medicine the same good fortune has attended the work of the doctors, and they may be pardoned for looking back at their first year with some pride in their achievements.

Demand Steadily Increased

When the hospital was opened a year ago one nurse took care of all the patients. Now there are five nurses and two more will have to be added at once. As the excellent service of the institution has become more widely known the district served has steadily widened, the hospital having many times been taxed to its capacity. It has proven a boon to those taken sick or injured within its radius of operation, there being no similar institution for miles in either direction.

No drawbacks in Building.

Having passed through one severe winter the building and appointments have been thoroughly tested as to their ability to meet the demands made upon them. The heating plant was found ample for all needs, and the water supply, the patented ventilating system and all the other accessories to which such particular care must be given in a building of this kind, were found adequate and dependable. It has been the aim of the hospital company to at all time procure the best qualified and most dependable nurses and they have been most fortunate in this respect. In fact, every division and appointment in any way pertaining to the institution has been kept up to the very highest degree of efficiency, and the result shows that this fact is being appreciated.

Its Commercial Importance

The location of this hospital here means more to our business men than most people have any idea of. The management procures everything possible right here in the city, and this in itself is quite an item. Patients and convalescents also require certain things not ordinarily furnished by hospitals and these are procured from our merchants. The fees received by the doctors are in turn naturally paid out right here for the ordinary expenses of life—the entire amount aggregating a very considerable sum. The hospital is worthy of every encouragement and entitled to the support of all our people.

The Staff

The members of the Physician's Hospital company are: Doctors J. E. Douglass, H. W. Froehlich, F. H. Gambell, H. G. Heiber and O. F. Melby.

G. N. LINE TO PENSION VETERAN RAILWAY MEN

$1,000,000 to be Set Aside For Employees With Road 20 Years or More

According to W. J. McMillan, president of the Great Northern Railway Company Veteran's association, the sum of $1,000,000 will be set aside to establish and maintain the pension fund for veteran employees and officers of the G. N. railway.

In case the income from the fund at any time is insufficient to pay the pensions due, the board of directors will pay the deficit out of the roads funds and charge the same to operating expenses.

All the employees who have attained the age of 70 years, and all officers, except those holding executive positions shall be retired and all officers and employees who shall have attained the age of 65 years may be retired, provided they have been in the employ of the railroad for 20 continuous years.

An allowance of 1 per cent of the average monthly pay received for the 10 years next preceding retirement shall be paid for each year of service.

Work Train Ties Up.—Soo Fireman Joe Holmes returned to his home north of the round house last Friday after having spent the past two months firing on a Winnipeg Division worktrain. Work of graveling the tracks has been completed and the train has "tied up."

Back From Brainerd—Sam Lind, machinist at the Soo round house, returned last Thursday evening from a fifteen day vacation spent visiting with his mother at Brainerd. He also spent a short time at the Twin Cities. Mr. Lind reported for duty, Friday, September 1.

From Glenwood.—Adolph Larson, formerly employed at the Soo ronud house in this city, came up from Glenwood Friday for a short visit. Young Larson is on the Soo's steam shovel at Glenwood.

Bryant on leave.—Phil Bryant, dispatcher at the Soo offices, is off from duty at present taking a brief vacation.

Miss Boyce Returns.—After an enjoyable visit with her parents at Glencoe, Minn., Miss Eleanor Boyce, stenographer in Supt. Barnard's office, returned last Thursday evening. She also visited at Alexandria while enroute.

Sunday in Minneapolis.— Mrs. Woodcock, stenographer at the Soo division offices, spent Sunday in Minneapolis visiting with friends. She left Saturday evening and returned Monday morning. Mrs. Woodcock was accompanied by her daughter, Irene.

New Operator.—M. H. Maroney, was checked in as telegraph operator at Fordville, N. D., the latter part of last week.

Back From Lake.—E. K. Engbretson, Soo agent at Lancaster, returned Saturday from Shovel Lake, Minn., last Saturday, after having spent a short time at the bedside of his mother, who was seriously ill. A. Field, who relieved Engbretson, has been transferred to Fordville, N. D.

Roadmaster Here.—G. Eliason, Soo roadmaster who is stationed at Detroit, was a visitor in Thief River Falls last Friday evening on business matters connected with his position.

Detroit Agent Here.—F. E. Chafee, Soo agent at Detroit, was a visitor in the city last Friday evening.

Agent Pays Visit.—O. F. Ehlers; agent for the Soo Line at Alexandria, was a caller at the division offices last Friday evening.

Operator on Visit.—W. E. Nash, Soo telegraph operator at Plummer, spent Friday in Thief River Falls circulating among his railroad friends. He returned in the evening to resume his duties.

Barnette Back.—Soo Line Conductor J. S. Barnette returned Saturday evening from Minneapolis, where he had attended a convention of trainmen.

On Rip Track.—James Johnson went to work as car repairer on the rip track, Monday, August 28.

BRAKEMAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

B. E. Robinson, Soo brakeman, is in the Physician's hospital with his left leg broken in two places and two broken ribs on his left side besides suffering injuries to his left knee, as a result of having been knocked down in the center of a track by a box car and having three pairs of trucks pass over him. The accident occured Saturday morning at 4:30 as a freight train was being made up in the switch yards. He is at present resting and is improving as well as can be expected.

The engine had sent a string of cars down track 4 and then transferred to track 5, making a quick run down the same. When the engine stopped Robinson and Clark jumped off to give signals, and walked towards track 4 with Clark on his right side. He failed to see the string of box cars coming, and was knocked down in the center of the track. The first truck is believed to have struck his leg, breaking the bone in two places. When one car had passed over him and the second had gone half over, Robinson grabbed the truss rod and clung to it, dragging him at least three car lengths. On seeing Robinson fall between the tracks Clark climbed to the top of the cars and set the brakes, releasing the brakeman. He was rushed to the hospital immediately.

Soo Agent Here.—Agent Kreuger, who is stationed at Plummer was a visitor in Thief River Falls Monday evening for a few hours on business.

Engineer Russell Leaves.

Soo Line Engineer C. E. Russell, accompanied by his wife and little daughter, left this morning for Superior, Wisconsin, where they will make their future home, Mr. Russell having been transferred to that place after residing in this city for eight continuous years. Mr. Russell has been working out of Superior during the past summer and arrived in Thief River Falls last Saturday to prepare for the removal of his family. During their residence here they have made a large circle of friends all of whom regret to see them leave.

To Rollette.—Sidney Ahlborn left Monday for Rollette, where he has accepted a position as warehouse helper. Young Ahlborn graduated from the Lincoln high school with the '16 class.

To Exposition.—John Linde, car repairer at the Soo yards, left Tuesday evening for Minneapolis to attend the state fair. He was accompanied by his daughter, Clara.

Fireman to Fair.—T. C. Orm, Soo fireman, departed Tuesday evening for Minneapolis to attend the state fair. Mr. Orm has been firing on the Minneapolis local.

Smith on Visit.—Frank Smith, Soo Line fireman, left Tuesday evening for the home of his parents at St. Peter, Minn. for a visit. Fireman Smith has been working out on the Wheatline of late between Overly and Adams, N. D. He is at present taking a forced vacation as a result of having injured his foot by stepping on a nail.

Carlson to Cities.—John Carlson, foreman of bridges and buildings on the Peg division, left for Minneapolis Tuesday evening to attend the big fair, and visit with his friends. Mr. Carlson formerly resided in the Mill City.

Hawes in City.—G. W. Hawes, traveling freight agent for the Soo with offices at Alexandria, was a visitor in the city Wednesday attending to matters connected with his position. Mr. Hawes formerly resided in Thief River Falls.

Returns From Vacation.— Emil Rausch, car repairer at the Soo yards, accompanied by his wife, returned yesterday morning from a two week's trip spent visiting with friends and relatives in southern Minnesota and points in Iowa. Returning to this city they spent a day at Milwaukee and Chicago.

Wreck At Conway.

Three Soo box cars and the engine tank went off the track into the ditch at Conway, N. D., Monday morning at 2:30, at the intersection of the Great Northern and Soo tracks. The engine was derailed but failed to topple into the ditch. Trouble with the brakes is said to have been the cause. A call was sent to this city for the wrecker and it immediately proceeded to the scene. Passenger service on the Wheatline was delayed while the cars were taken from the ditch, the 8:15 morning train leaving here at 2:30 p. m. The evening passenger arrived at 10:20.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of them in Thief River Falls and Good Reason For it.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, after years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, the distress of urinary troubles, when she finds freedom. Many readers will profit by the following.

Mrs. A. Lindblad, 319 Knight Ave., S. Thief River Falls, says: "I suffered from backache and lameness across my loins for years. Whenever I caught cold, I was worse. It may have been lifting that affected my kidneys and made my back so weak. Besides this, my kidneys didn't act right and I felt languid and tired. I used two boxes of Doan's Pills and was relieved in every way. My back stopped hurting and I felt stronger and better. My kidneys also became normal and I haven't had any trouble since."

ous to the presentation of the checks payable to Curtis, thus at all times leaving an apparent balance to the credit of Gesell.

Circle of Worthless Paper.

The claim is set up that Gesell used three banks in his operations, depositing the checks issued on one of these to his credit in the other bank in time in time to meet the checks when they came in. It is further alleged that the entire deposit consisted of these fictitious checks, but that so cleverly was the system worked that the Farmers State bank, at least, did not become cognizant of what was going on until one of the other banks, becoming suspicious, refused longer to honor the Stageburg paper. This brought down the entire fabric.

Where Curtis Comes In

The suit against Curtis is brought because of the alleged fact that he endorsed the checks issued by Gesell in the name of the Stageburg Furniture company, knowing them to be fraudulent. The charge is further made that Curtiss accepted the checks of Gesell, endorsed them and presented them for deposit to the credit of Gesell at another bank, first "deducting from said checks a portion thereof, which portion said defendant Curtis kept and converted to his own use, and which represented in part the profit or share of said Curtis in such fradulent scheme."

Conspiracy is Charged

The complaint goes on to say that "it was necessary in order that said fraudulent scheme and conspiracy might be operated, that Gesell receive credit for such fictitious checks and deposits, and that Curtis agreed and undertook, to provide and furnish Gesell such credit at the bank by endorsing all checks deposited therein and lending his name and personal credit to such fictitious and fraudulent checks, although he knew them to be worthless, and that Curtiss intended thereby to aid, assist and abett Gesell in defrauding the Farmers State bank by creating an apparent balance in favor of said Gesell in said bank by means of such worthless and fictitious checks."

Charges Conspiracy.

When the crash came the Farmers State bank at Holt was caught with about $4,000 worth of these checks. It is alleged in the complaint that the capital of the bank thereby became impaired and that in order to save the bank Mr. Backe, who was its president, advanced the full amount of the worthless checks issued by Gesell and endorsed by Curtis, becoming the owner of the cause of action now brought against them.

COFFEE

The coffee you buy can be no better than that selected by the merchant in the first place. Nothing he can do will improve it in any way. It is therefore very important that the grocer knows what he is buying. We have handled coffee for years, both as a wholesale salesman and retail grocer, and are placing our knowledge and experience at your service.

Our Market Day Special, as will be seen in the advertisements referring to this event on another page, will be a high-grade 35 cent coffee at per pound................ 25c

No matter what you have been paying for your coffee heretofore, we KNOW that our's at the same price is better.

What 1000 Cars a Day Make Possible

THESE two latest Overland developments again emphasize the enormous economy of enormous production.

1000 a day of cars of this size and class is more than double the production of any other manufacturer.

1000 cars a day make possible better, larger, much more comfortable cars than have ever before been possible at anywhere near these prices.

This newest Overland is the largest Four ever offered for so low a price.

True—it is perfected even more and now it is a fitting climax of the experience obtained from a quarter of a million of these Overland motors in daily use.

The gasoline tank placed in the rear is another improvement. The vacuum system insuring a steady, even gasoline flow at all times is still another improvement.

Yet the price of this, our greatest four cylinder value, is less than any car of its size ever sold for before—$795.

No less a pace-maker is the newest Overland Six.

Here is the Six of Sixes! A snappy five passenger, long stroke 40 horsepower model—easy to handle, light, economical, mighty comfortable, having all the advantages of higher priced sixes, yet it comes absolutely complete at a lower price than any other Six of its size.

And the motor! This will warm the heart of every six cylinder enthusiast in the country.

You've heard all about fast get-aways — smoothness — crawling and climbing on high. This Six does all that and then some!

The wheel base is 116 inches. It has the cantilever springs and even-flow vacuum system with the gas tank in rear.

The tires are four-inch. It has the complete Auto-Lite electric starting and lighting equipment with all switches on the steering column.

Some Six! Yet the price is lower than any other six of its size—$925.

But come in and see these new models. Go over them—note all the very real and important improvements.

We are ready to make demonstrations of both models now.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnerota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to Iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A.D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 193 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that sealed proposals for the drilling and casing of a deep well in connection with the tuberculosis sanatorium for the counties of Marshal, Roseau and Pennington will be received by the State Board of control, State Capitol, St. Paul, Minn., until the hour of 2 p. m. on the 12th day of September, 1916.

All bids must be in strict accordance with the specifications prepared by Sund & Dunham, Architects, Minneapolis, Minnesota, which may be seen at the office of the architects or upon application to the Builders' Exchange of Minneapolis, St. Paul, or Duluth. Also at the office of Dr. O. F. Mellby, Thief River Falls, Minn.

A certified check for $100.00, made payable to the order of the State Board of Control, must accompany each bid as a guarantee, the same to be returned to unsuccessful bidders immediately on letting the contract. The successful bidder will be required to give a surety bond in amount not to exceed $1,000. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

The property to be disposed of will include 4 horses, ranging from 7 to 10 years in age, all weighing 1300 pounds; 6 head of cattle; a large amount of farm machinery, household goods and other articles. Usual auction sale terms will prevail. W. J. LaBree will act as auctioneer and Citizens State bank, clerk. Free lunch at noon.

DOES THIEF RIVER FALLS LAG BACK?

That such is not the case will be satisfactorily proven by the following:

Within the past few weeks Crookston, International Falls and Moorhead have inaugurated a free "movie day" at the leading picture houses of these cities. This means that the people have an opportunity to see the best shows absolutely free of charge. They obtain tickets for the show from the merchantile establishments of their city on making cash purchases.

Mr. Seitzler, manager of the Princess theatre, having heard of the success and popularity with which these "movie days" are being received in other towns, got into touch with the Pilot Amusement company of Sedalia, Mo., the community amusement promoters who started these "movie days," and succeeded in bringing Mr. Pila here personally to start the same in our city. The people of Thief River Falls and surrounding country will now have an opportunity to see the best in Movies free at the home of better pictures—the Princess theatre—every Saturday and Wednesday afternoon. Tickets for these performances will be given with cash purchases by the majority of the progressive merchants of the city.

Mr. Seitzler promises to have something of an unusual order to offer the people on the afternoon of Market Day.

For further details, also the names of the merchants who will give out these tickets watch this paper next week.

RULES ARE ALL COMPLIED WITH

Division of Gross Earnings Taxes Cannot be Made Before Regular Tax Division.

ATTEMPT MADE TO MISLEAD

Statement That County Auditor is at Fault Because Division is Not Made is Known by Its Authors to Be False.

Last week the following article appeared in the columns of a local publication. It is so palpably unfair, unjust and malicious, that The Times deems it a duty to set its readers right concerning matters that the article attempts to discuss. The very headlines are misleading as the evident intention is to create the impression that the gross earnings of the Minnesota Northwestern railroad have not yet been paid:

ELECTRIC LINE TAXES
NOT YET PAID TO CITY

Still Lie Dormant in State Treasury For Want of Proper Distribution By County Auditor.

"The city of Thief River Falls and the towns of North, Silverton Cloverleaf and Goodridge have quite a little chunk of money coming from the state from the gross earnings of the Minnesota Northwestern Electric railway company. These taxes are for the years of 1914 and 1915. The primary distribution of these taxes has been made by the tax commission for both years, there being $256.79 for 1914 and $1,767.16 for 1915, and all of this money is in the state treasury awaiting the distribution by the county auditor. The city's share of the 1915 taxes is $728.95 and it is also entitled to its pro rata share of the 1914 taxes.

"Before this money is distributed to the city and the various towns through which the road passes it is required that the county auditor submit to the state auditor a statement showing what proportion is due each.

"Up to the present time this statement has not been submitted for either of these years."

The facts in the case.

Had the person writing the above cared anything about the facts, he would have found them to be as follows: On August 23 the report of the Minnesota Tax commission with regard to the gross earnings tax of the Minnesota Northwestern railway was received for filing in the office of County Auditor T. P. Anderson. Under date of August 26, Mr. Anderson wrote to State Auditor Preuss as follows:

"Hon. J. A. O. Preuss, State Auditor, St. Paul, Minn. Dear Sir:

"Inclosed herewith find certified statement of state rate in several taxing districts in Pennington county through which the Minnesota Northwestern Electric railway is operating.

"If inclosed statement is in accordance with the instructions, kindly forward such money as may be due the several taxing districts for the two years 1914 and 1915. Yours truly,

T. P. ANDERSON,
County Auditor.

Not Yet Received

When the money is received it will be placed in the bank to the credit of Pennington county. It will not be delivered to the city or the several townships until at the time of the regular distribution of tax monies in November. This is the usual proceedure.

Same as Other Taxes

This gross earnings tax is handled just the same as any other class of taxation. The state will first deduct the portion to which it is entitled, after which the different subdivisions will get the balance. The cities, villages, townships and school districts through which the road passes will all share in the distribution, and not alone the city and towns.

These different divisions would receive no benefit from this money until after the November apportionment no matter when it is received from the state treasurer. Upon its arrival it will be placed in the bank to the credit of Pennington county, and the only loss anyone is sustaining by reason of its not being here earlier is the interest the county would draw on the sum if it were sooner deposited. The money cannot begin to draw interest until it is placed in the bank by the auditor, and the auditor cannot so place it until after it has been received by him from the state.

Any sensible person knows that it is impossible for the auditor to make a distribution of funds every time a few dollars in taxes is paid, and the law specifically establishes the periods for such distribution. The whole thing is only another of those miserable, dirty little attempts to discredit the auditor's office, and the people have learned to accept these at their true value.

The Style Show.

Loken Brother's big style show will be seen at the Auditorium on the evening of Sept. 20. This will be the most elaborate affair of its kind ever attempted in Thief River Falls and there is much interest already shown in the event. Besides the goods handled by the Loken store there will be displayed millinery from the shops of Mrs. B. E. Dalquist and the Johnson sisters. The advertisement on Page 3 of this issue gives the full details of this style show.

TRADE EXTENSION AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Thief River Falls Commercial Club Will Make Circuit Including All Nearby Towns.

J. H. McKinney, chairman of the automobile committee of the Thief River Falls Commerical club, is busy establishing the itinerary and making arrangements for a trade extension auto run to be held about the first of October. This will be a purely business trip and will be in a nature of a friendly visit to the citizens of the towns east and south of the city. There are a large number of people residing in the rural districts for which this city forms the natural trading center and our merchants and wholesalers are anxious to establish relations with them.

The trip will not be so much for the purpose of drumming up retail trade. The idea is rather to try and convince the dealers in the smaller towns that they can save money by getting their supplies here. Many of these stores are now being supplied by our wholesalers and it is thought that a better understanding of what this city has to offer in practically every line of merchandise will greatly increase this business.

Mr. McKinney has not given out the itinerary of of the trip, but places to the south and east as can be reached in a day's journey will be visited. Starting southward, the following towns will be made: Hazel, St. Hilaire, Wylie, Plummer, Brooks, Oklee, Garnes, Rhoda, Trail, Gully, Clearbrook, Wanke, Ruddell, Torgerson, and Grygla, returning by way of Goodridge and Mavie.

ARE DRIVING PILES FOR COFFER DAM

Expected That This Important Part of the Work Will be Completed Next Week.

Work on the construction of the coffer dam which is to be put in as a temporary structure at the site of the Kretzschmar dam for the purpose of deflecting the water during the construction of the dam proper was begun Monday. The new engine is in working order and the driving of the piles is progressing rapidly. John Hedlund, in charge of the work, says that this part of the job will be completed next week. The piles are 24 feet in length and are driven into the bed of the river from seven to nine feet. As soon as this work has progressed to the point where part of the water is forced to flow through the Hanson & Barzen mill flume and the greater part of the balance diverted over the apron at the eastern end of the dam, the work of placing the concrete will be begun on the west side.

Mr. Hedlund says that as soon as the coffer dam is completed it will be posible to use two crews and from that time on the work will be rushed without delay until the structure is in shape to furnish power.

WHEAT IS ARRIVING; QUALITY IS POOR

The wheat movement from the west has begun, there being an average of 75 cars per day passing through Thief River Falls at the present time. Inspector P. J. Keating says that the quality of the grain thus far received is very poor, running anywhere from 35 to 50 pounds to the measured bushel.

The rye and barley thus far coming underhis inspection have been very good. Reports are also to the effect that the flax seed crop will be much better than usual. This last commodity does not begin to move eastward much before the first of October, however.

All wheat thus far inspected has been shipped from points considerably farther to the wast, very little of the northwestern Minnesota crop having as yet put in an appearance.

FURNISHED FREE TO THE FARMERS

Dinner to Cost Them Nothing and Their Goods Will be Auctioned Off Gratis.

MANY BARGAINS OFFERED

Dealers in Every Line of Merchandise Will Make Big Reductions For This Occasion—Addresses and Music at Noon.

Plans are about completed for the big Market Day and Free Auction for the benefit of country trade, and Saturday, September, 16, promises to be a lively day in Thief River Falls, providing the weather is favorable. The event has been liberally advertised and a double page of advertising in the local papers gave the public an idea of the splendid bargains merchants backing the plan are to offer.

The Commercial club is fathering the plan and doing the work and the several committees have been very busy in their respective duties. It is a conservative estimate to place the number of farmers expected here on Saturday at from 200 to 500, and lunch tickets have been issued to the merchants who took ads in the Market Day page and they will see that tickets go to the right parties. These tickets will be honored at the Commercial club, but local business and professional men will be asked to pay a nominal sum for the lunch.

To Entertain Farmers

The plan is to make the day one of entertainment and pleasure as well as a big shopping day for the farmers. The commercial club rooms will be open to them and during the noon hour the band will give a short program. Mayor Gambell will make a brief address and there will be musical numbers, vocal and instrumental, to help entertain the visitors. Every business man of the city and all interested in the work of promoting the good feeling between city and country residents should make it a point to take lunch at the club rooms at noon. Those who remain away, unless it is impossible to be present, indicate their lack of appreciation of the opportunity and the spirit of the day and the committee urges a large attendance of business and professional men.

The Auction.

The auction will be held at 1 p. m. or as near that hour as possible at the corner of LaBree avenue and Fourth street north. W. J. LaBree will act as auctioneer and the goods the farmers bring in to be disposed of will be auctioned off free of charge to the owner, and a competent clerk will be in attendance to list goods and record sales.

The Lunch

The lunch will be served from 11:30 to 12:30 and will consist of hot roast beef with brown gravy, mashed potatoes (Korstad-Stowell kind) cream, home-made bread, (Thief River Falls bakers' best) and a salad. There will be plenty to eat and every holder of a ticket will be accomodated. Local business men should take advantage of this opportunity to take lunch with their friends from the country and make arrangements to remain down town during the noon hour. The wife will not mind it if she is not called upon to get up a noon-time lunch for this day.

Shop Early.

Shoppers are invited to secure a copy of the local papers of last week and read the bargain offers. Local people will also find this a splendid opportunity to stock up on bargains in staple commodities. That there will be a big trade locally goes without saying. Merchants are preparing to give every customer prompt service and will be busy during the day. The Thief River Falls band will be out during the noon hour and will play a program of numbers at the club rooms. With co-operation on the part of local business and professional men, Market Day is bound to be a big success.

PENNINGTON COUNTY BOY WINNER IN PIG CONTEST

Roland Paulson of Thief River Falls, Wins Second Prize For Bacon Type.

The Thief River Falls schools have developed another prize winner. He is Roland Paulson, residing about four miles east of town, and his speciality is pigs. He won the second prize at the state fair for the best bacon type hog in the Boy's and Girls' Pig contest. There were 45 entries in this division and the only exhibitor having a better pig of this type than the Pennington county candidate was Melvil Sausness of Farewell.

This same pig was adjudged the best in Pennington county by the judges at the county fair. It was farrowed on April 1, and weighed 178 pounds on the first of September. The animal is pure bred Yorkshire and is said to be one of the finest specimens ever raised in this section. Young Paulson has taken care of this pig himself, it being one of the conditions that all the work connected with the feeding and care of the hog should be done by the boy or girl making the entry.

There will be an industrial fair held here during the first week in October, at which school exhibits will figure prominently. This pig will again be on exhibition at that time and it is expected that other products in which the extension division of the state university has attempted to interest the boys and girls will be displayed. These products include corn, calves and potatoes, besides pigs.

SCHOOLS WILL BAR GOODRIDGE PUPILS

Those Attending in This City Must Not Visit Homes in Infected Village.

The school authorities of the city of Thief River Falls have ordered all pupils attending from the village of Goodridge to remain from their homes at night and over Sunday or further attendance at school will be denied them. There is an outbreak of scarlet fever in the village at the east end of the county and the health authorities are trying by every means in their power to prevent its spread.

The schools at Goodridge were closed about two weeks ago when it was found that scarlet fever had broken out among the members of two different families. There has already been one death reported from the disease while there are about a half dozen other cases under treatment.

There have been but two cases of scarlet fever reported in this city during a period covering many years, and every step is being taken by the health and school authorities to prevent its securing a foothold now. If the children attending school from Goodridge are kept from going into the infected district it is thought that there will be no trouble.

Western Visitors Here.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bohr, of Riverside, California, were visitors in Thief River Falls Tuesday. They arrived here from a trip up the Pacific coast and through the Canadian rockies. Mr. Bohr owns several sections of land near Viking, and it was for the purpose of looking over his holdings here that he made the trip. He stated that the country looked mighty good to him and expected to purchase one or two more sections before he departed for California. They will leave by the southern route. While in the city Tuesday Mr. Rohr had his name added to the Times mailing list so that he might be kept posted on all the news of Pennington county.

TODAY'S ADVERTISERS

Look over the offerings of the advertisers in this issue of The Times. Advertised goods are the best and most reliable. This is proven by the standing of the merchants represented in the columns of a newspaper. They are the leaders in their respective lines in any community. Tell them you saw their goods advertised. You will be doing the merchant and the publisher a favor and assuring yourself of the best treatment.

G.O.P. ORGANIZE FOR CAMPAIGN

The Pennington County Republican Committee Starts Out to Take Active Part.

DR. HEIBER IS CHAIRMAN

Committeemen For Each of Five Commissioner Districts Appointed as a Central County Organization.

At a gathering of representative Republicans which nearly filled the court room in this city on Tuesday afternoon the first steps necessary for forming an energetic and aggressive county organization for the handling of the coming campaign was taken. The meeting was called to order by Dr. H. G. Hieber, chairman of the committee during the past two years. He read a letter from State Chairman Thornton in which was set forth tentative plans for the forming of an organization, and these plans will be generally followed. Dr. Hieber's reference to the result in the state of Maine brough forth a cheer from the crowd, this, by the way, being about the only manifestation of enthusiasm that any political party has been able to register thus far during the present campaign.

Officers Elected.

Andrew Trovatin was elected temporary chairman of the meeting, and after the addition of Lars Backe as treasurer, this organization was made permanent.

It was decided to select a committeeman from each of the five commissioner districts, this central committee to choose the township and precinct chairmen. The following were chosen, the selection being by acclamation in each case: First district, J. P. Jensen, Goodridge; Second district, R. H. Ross, Thief River Falls; Third district, Emil Larson, Wylie; Fourth district, Dr. C. Swanson, St. Hilaire; Fifth district, Jonas Larson, Hazel.

An Aggressive Campaign.

A meeting of the county central committee will be called within a few days and a general plan for carrying on the work in an energetic manner from now until election day will be formulated. The campaign thus far has without doubt been the most quiet and uninteresting of any during a presidential election year in the history of the country, but from now on things promise to hum. The Maine result is expected to have the effect of spuring both sides to action, and while it is doubtful if the regular old-time scenes will be witnessed, yet things promise to be far from slow.

The Central committee selected for Pennington county is a good one and every member may be depended on to do his full share toward seeing that Minnesota returns a regular old-fashioned Republican majority for both the national and state tickets.

Organized in Polk.

John J. Kelley, chairman of the Polk county committee, was in the city to see how the new organization started out. A club was formed at Crookston the day previous, the officers, besides Mr. Kelley being Archie Crawford, secretary, and Sam C. Erickson, treasurer.

Building West of Town.

G. W. Schnabel, who last spring came up from Iowa and bought a farm just west of Thief River Falls, was in the city Saturday. He says that he will soon begin the erection of a new residence and barn on his place, not having had the time heretofore. Most of the summer he has devoted to plowing, getting here too late in the spring to put in a crop. He has broken up 70 acres, all of which he will devote to flax next year. As soon as the necessary buildings are erected on his place he is going to go extensively into the dairying and cattle industry, believing that this is ily will move shortly. There is nothing in that neighborhood to indicate a shortage of anything—and this includes cash.

ANOTHER SCHOOL BUILDING MUST BE ERECTED AT ONCE

Present Conditions Such That Children Are Denied Their Rights Under Laws of The State.

STATE AID NOW IS JEOPARDIZED

Overcrowding of Rooms Makes It Impossible to Comply With the Requirments.

KINDERGARTNERS REFUSED

No Room Available For Pupils Under Six Years—Same Condition Prevail Clear to High School Class Rooms.

There is not the slightest question in the world but that the people of Thief River Falls will face a loss of about $14,000 a year in their school revenues unless another school building is erected at once. Were it not for the fact that the state board understands the situation very well and realizes fully that the city has been growing so fast that it has been almost impossible for the local school authorities to keep up with the demand made upon them for room, it is likely that this result would have been arrived at some time ago. That the requirements are not being met is admitted by everyone and that something will have to be done is so apparent that any delay is inexcusable.

Every Room Crowded.

The "School Notes" editor of The Times furnishes the reader of the paper with a very good idea of the conditions in the different buildings at this time. That no makeshift policy will longer stave off the erection of new buildings will be apparent to anyone who will take the trouble to look into the matter. "School Notes" says:

"That one cannot anticipate the future in school affairs in this city, even to the extent of six months, is plainly evident from the enrollment this week. The high school and grades were crowded last year—in some places badly crowded—but today there are enrolled 58 more pupils in high school than on the same date in 1915. In brief, the conditions today are as follows: Mr. Johnson, in the science department, needs another room. So does Mr. Werner in the agricultural department. The commercial department is overwhelmed with students enrolled for the full four year course and ought to have two teachers now instead of one. Many high school classes are larger—much larger—than is safe or in compliance with the state department's requirements. The two assembly rooms are filled with desks and a number of pupils have no seats, there being no room to place them anywhere, and, as is well known, the two normal rooms are housed in the basement of the Auditorium building.

Grades Just as Bad

"In the grades the conditions are similar. The Washington has eleven teachers occupying ten rooms. Miss Johnston has 49 pupils; Miss Lynch has 45 beginners; Miss SinClair, 38. The other rooms are well filled.

"At the Knox there are nine teachers in eight rooms, and in addition Miss Ingebretson has 46 pupils enrolled, Miss Doyle 38, and the other rooms filled. At the Central, there are nine teachers in eight rooms. Miss Trogen, second grade, has 47; Miss Cook, first grade, 44; Miss Batten 41, Miss Byrnes 40, and Miss Holmes also first grade, has 40, and all the other rooms are well filled.

"A sufficient number of children from five to five and one-half years of age to start another room have been denied admission. It is understood that 35 children constitute a full room and every one enrolled above that decreases the service to which every child is entitled. A teacher with 45 pupils is not teaching school, she is merely keeping school.

"The above are simply the outstanding features of the conditions today and do not include many other matters which are worthy of correction. The "Washington" plan of working program is caring for upper grade classes, but will not meet the demands in the other grades. The writer of School Notes believes that pub-

Give Them a Chance.

It is a pretty hard matter to convince people that they are not justified in buying their supplies wherever they can secure them the cheapest. Particularly is this true at this time, when the prices of necessities are practically at an unheard of level and when every indication points to their going higher still. Even the well-to-do are feeling the strain and are as anxious to find a means of reducing the cost of living as are those less fortunately situated. And even under normal circumstances there would not be a great deal to say against the buyer who carefully investigates before buying and then gives his business to the party supplying his demands at the lowest prices

Any man or woman, however, who sends out of town for goods before giving the home merchant an opportunity to name his price on the aritcle wanted is working against the community and is not giving the home merchandiser a square deal. If this same customer had a job of carpenter work or painting or plastering to give out he would surely ask what it would cost to have it done by the mechanics of his home town before sending for someone at a distance to do it. If the parties engaged in furnishing this service in his neighborhood charged an exhorbitant price no one could very well blame him if he gave the job to an outsider. But he would assuredly take the trouble to find out before making this latter ararangement.

And this is the trouble with many people who send away for their goods. They do not go to the home merchant and ask him what his charges will be for the same goods or service. They take it for granted that someone in Chicago can send out salesmen, spend thousands of dollars in advertising and incurr all the expense incident to selling goods by this plan and still make a price lower than the home dealer. They give their order to the first glib stranger who comes along, secure in the knowledge that they have saved money—until the purchases arrive, or fail to arrive.

This section was recently invaded by a whole batallion of grocery salesmen, claiming to represent a large wholesale house in Chicago. There scheme was as follows: By ordering goods amounting to $20.00 from the published catalogue, the buyer would be entitled to 100 pounds of sugar for $5.00. The prices on the goods covered by the other $15 were very much the same as those for which the local grocers were selling them, but this bait of cheap sugar was too much and a large number of people bit on it. When the order came it was found that "owing to the unprecedented demand the house had been unable to keep up its sugar supply and this item would be sent later." And that was the last of the transaction. These people paid a good price for other things in order to get the sugar, and then did not get it.

These same people could have gone to their home grocer with the same amount of money and gotten the same or better prices on the same bill of goods, exclusive of the sugar.

It is the same way in nearly every line. Clothing merchants are constantly up against similar propositions. Hardware men warn the people against giving their order to peddlers before finding out what their money will buy at home. Clothiers ask for an opportunity to show their goods and prices. Insurance men request that they be given a chance to place the risks on property of their neighbors. Home photographers are willing to prove to your entire satisfaction that their work is far superior to that done by itinerant picture fakers. Everyone simply asks that they be given an chance to make their prices and goods known before you send away for them.

If you find that you can do so much better elsewhere, no one will greatly blame you for sending away for your goods, but you owe it to the home merchant to at least give him a chance.

A Serious Condition.

There is absolutely no sense in attempting to escape the fact any longer. Thief River Falls must have another school building, and considerable of a building at that, or some of the children in the city will be denied the educational advantages to which they are entitled and which the state law says they shall have.

This question has been handled as if it were of no great moment. Differences within the school board have been permitted to take on an importance by no means warranted by the issues involved.

The people want another school. They realize that they must have one and are willing to pay the necessary price. While many of them may have a preference as to who shall be the architect in charge of the building, this is a matter of but minor consideration so long as a competent man is engaged.

On the first page of this issue of The Times will be found an article explaining the situation in detail. It is a report by a person in a position to know absolutely what he is talking about and there is no doubt as to the correctness of the figures he presents. It discloses a deplorable condition and one that must be remedied at once. To continue as at present will surely entail the loss to the schools of the sum received every year as aid from the state, which at present amounts to over $14,000.

Serious as this loss would be, however, it is small when compared with that caused by the impaired efficiency and the lower general standard of the schools. Instructors are handicapped and pupils are defrauded under present conditions, and there is a general demand that something be done about it. There isonlyone "something" to do and that is to provide more buildings.

The present system of running two sets of scholars in a single room by lengthening the hours of attendance at each end of the day pulled the city through a part of last season without disaster. Everyone realized that the system was only a makeshift which might be utilized to help out an unavoidable condition. No one expected to see it carried on permanently. The idea worked out well enough, but with the still greater enrollment this year it has about reached the end of its usefulness.

Further postponement is impossible. More school room is needed and if it is not provided, consequences of the most serious nature are sure to follow.

One Merchant's View.

The president of one of the largest merchandising houses in Thief River Falls does not regard the wheat failure this year as an unmixed evil In fact, he is rather of the opinion that another season just like it might prove a good thing. And there will be such other seasons, according to his way of thinking, until the farmers learn that this particular section is not a wheat producer in the same sense as the prairie lands of the Dakotas and Western Canada.

"During the past twenty-five years," said this merchant, "the seasons in which corn has been a good crop have been more numerous than the wheat years. A corn crop is never a total failure. Last year came the nearest to it of any since I have lived here, and that happened to be an abnormal wheat season. You always get something out of corn. If the ears do not rippen you still have the green fodder for ensilage. Feed this to the cattle and the revenue is steady and growing all the time.

"A few years ago the conditions now confronting the northwest would have spelled ruin to many farmers Now you seldom hear a complaint. They have learned that wheat is not to be depended on and have provided against a poor crop. It will take some time yet to break away from the old idea entirely, but it is surely coming."

And he is right. Go out into the country and the farmers you meet will admit that their wheat crop did not turn out well, but they will tell you so in such a way as to make you feel that it is not a matter of very great importance to them. Other more interesting and more profitable lines of work are taking up their attention and with many wheat is no longer the most important factor.

You can hear more pessimistic conversation in ten minutes on the streets of the city than you would run against in a week's travel among the farmers.

The article appearing exclusively in the Times last week announcing that there are splendid prospects that a portion of the pine on the Red Lake Indian reservation will be sold this fall has had the effect of cheering up everybody in this section. The business men are particularly pleased, realizing that the sale of this timber will undoubtedly mean the operating of the saw mills in this city before the end of another summer.

ANNUAL ELECTION OF LIBRARY BOARD

Mrs. F. H. Gambell is Again Chosen President, and H. C. Rowberg Secretary-Treasurer.

At the annual meeting of the library board held last week the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. F. H. Gambell; vice president, Mrs. Emil Zeh; secretary-treasurer, H. C. Rowberg.

The secretary reported that about $200 had been received as rent for the use of the basement during the past season and that this had been applied toward the purchase of books.

The report of the librarian, Miss Emma Backe, showed a very satisfactory increase in the number of patrons at the library, the interest shown in the institution being greater than at any time since its establishment. Miss Backe also made a report of the work done at the recent convention of state libraians at Virginia, to which she was a delegate.

BIG INDIAN FAIR SEPT. 21, 22, 23

Annual Exhibition at Red Lake Agency Will be the Best Ever Held There.

Anyone who is interested in the progress being made by the Indians at the Red Lake Agency, particularly as regards education, agriculture and industrial pursuits, should attend the big fair to be held at Red Lake on September 21, 22 and 23. The committee having the exhibition in charge states that this year's show will be larger, more diversified and on a vastly greater scale than any heretofore attempted.

Among the features of particular interest are a big bouncing baby show, a prize live stock exhibition and a record breaking crop display. In the departments of art work, cooking and household articles, the displays are said to be such as to furnish a great suprise to white visitors.

Music will be furnished by the Red Lake Inidan band, one of the best organizations of its kind in the country.

Saturday, Sept. 23, will be Children's day at this novel fair and it is expected that there will be excursionists from every point within reaching distance at Red Lake for this event. The progress being made by the Indians, and especially by the children, is marvellous, and a day could be not be spent to greater profit and advantage than for a person to go and see for himself just what is being done for and by the wards of the government.

Representative Candidate Here

John A. Duffy, of Red Lake Falls, candidate for representative for the 65th legislative district, comprising Clearwater, Pennington, and Red Lake counties, motored up from his home Tuesday morning to spend the day in the interests of his candidacy. Mr. Duffy had contemplated on making a trip to Goodridge and surrounding country but was not able to on account of the bad roads due to the rain Saturday evening.

Time of Hearing Extended.

Clerk of Court H. E. Ives this week received notification from Judge Andrew Grindeland to the effect that the time during which applications for naturlization papers might be accepted had been extended to Dec. 28. The hearing on these applications will be held on March 28, it being required that three months elapse between the filing of the application and the hearing. Mr. Ives says that thus far none have signified their intention of becoming citizens at the next term of court.

Attorneys Rowe and Grady, acby Everett and Clarion Grady, returned to their home at Crookston, the latter part of last week after a brief hunting trip near this city.

FOOTBALL BOYS BEGIN TRAINING

GOOD MATERIAL ON HAND

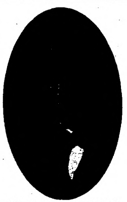
Several of Last Year's Championship Team Veterans Are Back To Fill Old Positions On Eleven—Game This Month.

Coach Albert Johnson, of the Thief River Falls high school, issued his call for football men, who will try-out for places on the 1916 fighting machine, last Friday afternoon. The call was met with favorably and fourteen men responded for the initial practice of the year.

The football situation at the high school as it appears at present looks as if Coach Johnson will turn out one of the fastest little teams in the district, and they will undergo such a strenuous training campaign that will put them in the same class as last year's championship eleven. Coach Johnson lost a few of his regulars with the graduation of the '16 class, but these men have been replaced by equally as good players from the '15 squad, who were not members of the team. Looking over the back field as it completed the season, this section looks hardest hit, in the loss of Harold Schmitt and Roy Brown. Center, Bill Hoag, right end, Willis Fasel, and right tackle, Carl Hovie were also lost. Johnson and the team members are pinning their hopes on the arrival of Frank Conner, Clarence Pope, both having been attached to the high school team last season, and Clarence Ringham. All these men are heavy weights, fast and experienced players.

Veterans Back On Eleven

Among those seen in action last Friday afternoon were several veterans of the 1915 championship team. Stebbins, last year's right half, was on deck and kicked the pigskin around in good style. Alvin Holzknecht, who will captain the'16 eleven was on duty also, somewhat stiff after a seven month's period of hibernation Holzknecht, who officiated at quarterback last year, will either try for half or remain in his former position. He is one of the grittiest and hardest playing men of the bunch and is good at either place. Hobson Rogers, '15 tackle, and Vincent Borry, '15 sub-half, appeared on the field in old time form, Borry causing a sensation by his punting and drop kicking. Roy Miller, Ralph Hilson, Rufus Barackman, sub-guards of '15, were also out for a warming up. "Chuck" Prichard, quarter back contender, another boy who bears the ear marks of a coming football man, went through all practices in an efficient manner. He claims to have been doing manual labor all during his summer vacation and anyone who beats him out of a position will be a "bear." Dennis McGinn was the only freshman to report on Friday for "big team" practice, although the Freshies have enough men to have a team of their own. Myrvel Kromer, Clarence Steen and Rheuben Teslow, big men connected with the '15 squad, were out in responce to the call in an effort to land a job. Tandberg, star tackle of last year's team, is unable to get out for practice at present but hopes to get into the game before long. Added to these men who are known candidates to the coach, others are expected to be uncovered during the course of early practices.



COACH ALBERT JOHNSON

Flozsdahl to Enter.

It became known Tuesday that Leonard Flozsdahl, of Warroad, who made himself famous last winter with the Thief River Falls hockey team at the ice carnival in St. Paul, will come to this city shortly to matriculate at the high school. Flozsdahl, the moose from Warroad, is a husky lad and will be a good man for full back and undoubtedly will be a candidate for this position. He is an athlete and is well built from the ground up. This big fellow will be the sensation of high school football if he lives up to the manner in which he played hockey.

Learning Fine Points.

Coach Johnson is putting his men through some stiff practice this week and inside a short time scrimmage will be begun. At present the boys are brushing up on handling and falling on the ball, kicking, punting, drop kicking, catching passes and all the other little points which have to be perfected before they can proceed with plays.

Game This Month.

Enough material is now available for two teams, and as soon as the preliminary work is completed scrimmage will begin. The Freshmen contemplate on having a team of their own. With two elevens to work with and such a formidable lineup to pick from, Coach Johnson believes the team for 1916 can be chosen to produce a championship aggregation. He has already begun negotiating for games with surrounding towns, and expects the cleat of the football shoe to cut the fair ground turf the last week of this month for the initial game. Prospects for a winning team has caused much interest among the high school boys and even among the alumni members. The latter contemplate on forming a star eleven to help whip Johnson's proteges into shape.

Prof. Strand, instructor in mathematics and history, is assistant coach.

ELECT LINCOLN STATE OFFICER

DIRECT ENERGIES SENSIBLY

Booster Bodies Should Devote Their Attention to Developing Natural Resources Instead of Advocating Impossibilities, Is Opinion

Fred T. Lincoln, secretary of the Thief River Falls Commercial club, was elected acting secretary of the state organization of these clubs at the meeting held in St. Paul last week. The other officers elected were as follows: P. J. Seaberger, St. Cloud, chairman; E. L. Bennet, Municipal Reference bureau, St. Paul, executive secretary. There were 36 secretaries present at the meeting and it was decided to call nother gathering for some time in December for the purpose of adopting a platform and perfecting the organization.

Short Course for Secretaries

One of the matters very favorably discussed during this meeting was the holding of a short course for the instruction of Commercial club secretaries during the coming winter. This course will be held under the direction of the extension division of the university of Minnesota, and will deal principally with the best means for community improvement.

It was decided to reorganize and re-name the state organization. The majority of the delegates believed that "Commercial Club" did not exactly convey the purpose for which these bodies were maintained, and a motion that they hereafter be known as the State League of Community clubs was carried by a unanimous vote.

In discussing the purposes and value of these clubs in general the opinion seemed to prevail among the secretaries that well-meant efforts are often misdirected—that too much attention is devoted to securing enterprises for towns not in any manner adapted to their support or maintenance. Farming communities are always on the lookout for manufacturing enterprises when they might better be devoting themselves to securing more and better farmers. To boost for the location of factories in towns where there are neither water power, fuel nor adequate transportation facilities is simply a waste of time and money. It is to impress the uselessness of this kind of propaganda on the minds of secretaries that the short course is advocated.

Is a Signal Honor.

The selection of Mr. Lincoln as secretary of the state league is a high compliment both to that gentleman himself and the city. The work of the Thief River Falls Commercial club has been attracting the attention of the entire state since it was reorganized and the effects of its policies are being marked by many with the idea of copying the system employed if it works out well here. It is recognized as the most energetic and aggresive organization in the state for a city the size of Thief River Falls, and much of its success is credited to Secretary Lincoln. He will take an active part in the work of the state organization and his position will add much prestige to the club of his home city.

NEW FODDER CROPS OF MUCH INTEREST

Japanese Millet and Soudan Grass Thirve Amazingly Well In This Section.

A. C. Hanson, residing a short distance north of the city, last week brought to the real estate office of Daniel Shaw samples of two new kinds of grass with which he has been experimenting. One is what is known as Japanese millet, and if the samples shown are any indication of the ordinary growth, this millet is a wonder. The bundle given to Mr. Shaw measures over five feet in height and is quite heavily leaved throughout the greater part of its length. One of the most remarkable features about this grass is the rapid growth. It is ready for cutting 60 days after planting and grows so fast that it is ready to cut every 30 days thereafter.

Mr. Hanson also brought in samples of what is known as Soudan grass. This attains a height of from six to seven feet, the time required for its growth being about the same as in the case of Japanese millet. The cutting periods are also practically the same. Both yield a large tonnage, but they have not as yet been sufficiently tried in this section, to test their nutritive value. Should this prove even approximately that of native grasses there will soon be a general demand for them because of their enormous yield. The experiment will be watched with a great deal of interest.

Mr. Hanson recently returned from a visit through Fairbault county. Compared with Pennington county land he does not thing much of what he saw down there. According to his own statement he inspected farm values at $125 per acre, but states that he would not for one moment consider exchanging his land here for a like amount in that section of the state.

Post Office Inspector Here.

Roy LaForge, inspector for the United States postal service, with headquarters at Bemidji, was in the city on Saturday to look over the claims advanced by the office here for the appointment of another carrier. He went over the business of the office thoroughly and will forward his report to Washington at once. While there is no way of knowing what this report contained it is generally understood that it will be favorable. The carrier force in the city is inadequate for the present needs of the service, and the effort to have it increased began some time ago.

A Fine Flax Yield

K. Borgen, who came to Pennington county about two years ago from Oregon and purchased a quarter section on the State road just south of Mavie, has been cutting his flax during the past week. He has 85 acres planted to this crop, and while he does not claim any wonderful yield the present prices make the output very valuable. The straw alone probably represents a value of $5 per acre.

RAILROAD HEARINGS ARE SET FOR NOVEMBER 20

Scope of Joint Congressional Sub-Committee Will Be Broad in Its Report.

November 20 is the date set when hearings before the joint congressional sub-committee on railroad problems will begin at Washington D. C. The committee agreed on this date the latter part of last week, and decided to invite statements from the Interstate Commerce commission, authorized by the Adamson law enacted to prevent the threatened nation-wide strike. Its scope will be broad and any legislation recommended in the report to be made may include the provisions dealing with wages and other questions involved in the present controversy between railroads and their employees.

Amputation Not Necessary

George Fry, the Soo Line brakeman who was knocked down by a flat car two weeks ago, receiving a crushed shoulder which was so seriously injured that it was at first believed amputation would be necessary, is now improving and the attending physician says that the arm will not be lost.—Bemidji Sentinel for Sept. 8. Fry, previous to his injury, had a run out of this city on way freights 186-187, and it was on one of these freights he was working when the accident happened. The news of his escaping amputation is being received with much gratification by his friends here.

Lacey On Visit.— Edward Lacey, Soo Line brakeman running out of St. Paul, arrived last Friday morning for a visit with his railroad friends in Thief River Falls. Lacey formerly held a run on the Winnipeg division.

Agent Promoted.—M. H. Maroney went on as night telegraph operator at Alexandria Tuesday, vice C. H. Jockinson, who has been promoted to station agent at Miltona, Minn.

Relieving Operator.—F. E. Keefer is relieving Soo telegraph operator, A. G. Ellinboe, at Mahnomen, there being a death in the latter's family.

ADA BOOSTERS WANT SOO LINE TO COME IN

Rumor Afloat That Soo Will Build Another Line to N. D.—Ada Arranges Club Meet.

A meeting of commercial clubs of cities interested in a railroad which it is claimed the Soo intends to build between the points of Bemidji and Carrington, N. D., is being arranged by the Ada Commercial Club Boosters to be held at Fargo.

A rumor has been afloat to the above effect, and the club at Ada has been busy investigating same, with the result that it has started action to secure the line through that enterprising town. The proposed line is reported to be mapped out to go through Cooperstown, Hillsboro and other Dakota towns, as well as Manohmen and Ada in Minnesota.

Engineer On Visit.—Soo Line Engineer V. F. Robarge, who has run between Kenmare and Overly, N. D., returned to resume his duties in the cab Monday morning, after a visit in Thief River Falls with his family.

Smith Returns.—Frank Smith, Soo Line fireman, returned Monday morning from St. Peter, where he had attended the funeral of his brother-in-law.

Fireman Goes Hunting.— Billy Funnel, Soo Line fireman, is taking a few days off to enjoy a chicken hunt. He left for the fields Tuesday morning.

Sunday in Minneapolis.— Thomas Rowan, train dispatcher at the Soo offices, passed Sunday in Minneapolis, where he was the guest of friends. He left Saturday evening and returned Monday morning.

Back From Fair.— John Carlson, superintendent of bridges and buildings, on the Winnipeg division, returned last Saturday morning from Minneapolis, where he had been in attendance at the Minnesota state fair.

Accepts Position With G. N.—Harold Schmitt, of Bemidji, who graduated from the local high school last spring, was checked in as express clerk at the G. N. Depot Friday morning. Miss Majers, who has been holding this position, has left to teach school.

Orm On Job.—Soo Fireman Orm returned to his duties in the cab the latter part of last week, after a visit to the state fair.

Rail Men Go Hunting.—W. P. Kinney, vice-president of the Northern Pacific railway, and a party of Minneapolis business men passed through this city Saturday bound for Middle River on a hunting trip. The trip was made in business car A1. The above party was accompanied by Steve Withey, and "Dinky" Miller, both G. N. conductors on the north and southbound passenger runs from Warroad to Crookston.

Canadian Stock.—Regular shipments of stock from Winnipeg are passing through Thief River Falls daily, bound for South St. Paul. The first of the fall stock trains started to pass through last Thursday, and has resulted in increased activities along the line. Besides these the usual train of stock departed from this city Saturday afternoon.

In For Repairs.—Soo engine 176, which was badly damaged last week at Conway, N. D., when three box cars and the tank went into the ditch at the intersection of the G. N. and Soo tracks, is in the Soo round house here receiving repairs.

Fossum Returns.—Ingvald Fossum, local store keeper at the Soo round house, returned Monday morning from Minneapolis, where he had spent Saturday, being in attendance at the final day of the state fair.

From Cities.—Gilmore Huseby, clerk at G. J. Conklin's office at the Soo yards, returned Monday morning from Minneapolis, where he had enjoyed a short visit at the home of his parents. He left on Thursday evening of last week.

Machinist Resigns.—John O. Jones, who has been employed at the Soo round house as machinist, resigned from his position Friday, September 8.

Home For Short Visit.—H. W. Wilson, employed by the Soo Line at Fordville, N. D., as baggageman, arrived Friday evening for a short visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Wilson, 223 Markley avenue north. He returned to resume his duties Saturday morning.

Supt. Michaels Here.—Supt. Michaels, of the Soo Superior division, spent Monday evening in Thief River Falls, coming up on the 7:25 in his private car No. 55. He had been spending the day on a tour of inspection over his line and spent the evening with his railroad friends here. Supt. Michaels' line extends from Superior, Wis. to Plummer. He left again on Tuesday morning.

Rayson Gets Ford.—Louis Rayson, chief clerk at Supt. Barnard's office, joined the "Get Out and Get Under" club the first of the week when he received a bright, shiny, 1917 Ford. The machin is the latest from the Detroit, Michigan, factory, and is equipped with all the late contrivances of motordom.

Visit With Parents.—J. J. McCarty, Soo Line freight conductor, left for New Richmond, to spend two weeks visiting with his parents. His little son also resides with his parents.

Jones To Minneapolis.—G. Jones, who has been spending the summer surveying with Civil Engineer A. J. Nyhus' crew, left Saturday evening for Minneapolis to enter upon his studies at Central high school. Mr. Nyhus and his men make this city their headquarters.

Brakeman is Well.—B. E. Robinson, Soo Line brakeman, who was injured at the Soo yards on the morning September 2, when three pairs of trucks passed over him, breaking two ribs and breaking the bone in his left leg in two places, has improved to such an extent that he will be discharged from the Physician's hospital and taken to his home in this city the latter part of this week. Mr. Robinson has improved wonderfully and his railroad friends are receiving the news with much gratification.

Nyhus To Cities.—A. J. Nyhus, civil engineer, who is employed by the Soo Line, making this city his headquarters, left for Minneapolis Saturday evening to attend to matters connected with his position.

Big Wheatline Traffic.—The annual fall rush over the Wheatline has begun. The first signs of it appeared Monday evening when between 150 and 160 passengers alighted at 7:40 p .m. The crowd was composed largely of harvest hands returning from North Dakota after a short season. The 1916 crop failure is plainly shown by the return of these men as compared to 1915 when the rush did not begin until late in October.

Olson on Leave.—Emil Olson, assistant warehouse foreman for the Soo at this point, is taking his annual vacation. Olson left for the home of his parents at Paynesville, and other points.

Back From Vacation.—H. H. Keefer, agent for the Soo Line at Bronson resumed work September 11, after having spent his annual vacation. A. P. Pfeiffer, who relieved Keefer, has been transferred to Brooks to take the place of T. J. Briley, who is on a leave of absence.

Returns To Work.—J. H. Gray, Soo agent at Fordville, N. D., who has been on a leave of absence on account of illness, resumed work Wednesday morning. A. Field, who relieved Gray, has been sent to Egeland, N. D., to relieve the agen at that place during the former's vacation.

Linde Back.—John Linde, car inspector at the Soo yards, returned Tuesday evening from Minneapolis, where he had been taking in the state fair sights.

The Sunday Night Chautauqua

Most of the readers of this paper have knowledge of the fact that Sunday afternoon and evening the Ammerican Chautauqua System gave their programs in the Methodist Episcopal church of this city. This was done because Saturday night in the storm their tent was blown down to the ground.

Sunday Mr. Dugan the platform manager came to me and asked that they might use the church telling me what had happened to their tent in the night. After calling a number of the trustees by phone Mr. Dugan's request was granted on condition that the programs to be given would conform strictly with the spirit of the day and the house where they were to be given.

The afternoon program complied with these conditions and we had very good reasons to believe that the evening program would do the same. In fact we were told that it would be even better. But to our utter surprise and sorrow it was anything but what a program should be to be given in the church and on a Sunday night.

This statement is made that the public may know that programs of this character are not in keeping with our conception of Sunday and the church. Had the board of trustees, the members of the church, or the pastor known the nature of the Sunday nights program it never would have been permitted to take place in the church.

We believe the church should not only be used for the teaching and preaching of the gospel, but for a gathering place of the people where they may be blessed by everything that is good and uplifting. But we do not believe in making a show house out of it on Sunday or any other time.

GEO. O. PARISH,
Minister Episcopal Church.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

Two installments of Gloria's Romance appear in this issue of The Times. Read the story and then see the picture at the Princess theatre Saturday afternoon and evening.

The Julia Marlowe Dramatic club entertained Monday evening in the Catholic church basement at a farewell party given in honor of Father Adolph Dingman and Miss Sophie Weber. At 9:30 p. m. a three course banquet was served, this being followed by a farewell speech by George Werstlien, president of the club, who presented Fr. Adolph and Miss Weber with souvenir spoons as a remembrance of the club. Fr. Adolph and Miss Weber responded in a very pleasing manner. Members of the club were then called upon for short extemporaneous speeches and all replied when their turn came. The color scheme was pink and white and sweet peas were used for table decorations.

Miss Elfa Werstlien was pleasantly surprised last evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Werstlien, 610 LaBree avenue north, the occasion being the twenty-first anniversary of her birth. The rooms were decorated in purple and white, and vases filled with asters were also used. At seven o'clock a delicious three course dinner was served, after which the time was spent at cards. As a token of esteem in which Miss Werstlien is held by her friends, she was presented with a beautiful lavalier. Those present were: Misses Eva Golla, Teresa Giefer, Catherine and Marie Thill, Sophie Weber and Agnes Linde, and Messrs. Thomas Majers, Henry Swanson, Fred Protz, George and Joseph Werstlien and Ralph Mathews.

Society

The home of Lars Backe, 313 Riveride avenue was the scene of a pretty social event Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, when his daughter, Miss Clara Oline Backe was united in marriage to Sverre Loveid of Middle River, Rev. I. T. Aastad officiating. They were attended by Fred D. Haug who acted as groomsman, and Miss Emma Backe, a sister, was bride's maid. The ceremony was attended by only the most intimate friends of the contracting parties and relatives. Miss Clara Backe wore a beautiful white net over silver cloth and carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley. She also wore a long veil in cap effect with two pearl bands and rosettes. Miss Emma Backe, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a gown of light green silk veiled in white tulle and trimmed with silver lace. She also carried a boquet of beautiful pink roses. Miss Katie Dahl executed Wagner's "Lohengrin" before the ceremony, and played Mendelssohn's wedding march during the time the newly weds were being congratulated by the guests. During Wagner's "Lohengrin" the groom, bride and attendants took their places under a large bell in the parlor.

A sumptuous wedding dinner was served following the ceremony for the happy couple and the twenty-three guests present. Both the parlor and dining room were decorated very attractively, the color scheme being white and pink in both instances. Large baskets of flowers donated by the bride's friends were placed about the rooms on tables and in the corners of the house. In the dining room a number of small tables were placed around the bridal table. Seated at the bridal table were, Rev. I. T. Aastad, Mr. and Mrs. Sverre Loveid, Lars Backe and Emma Backe. Silk ribbons with place cards attached to the ends hung from the ornamental light holder, and made a very pretty scene. When nearly at the close of the evening Miss Dora Holmes rendered several excellent vocal solos, the young people joining in at the chorus.

Miss Clara Backe is the daughter of Lars Backe and has practically been raised in Thief River Falls. She received her education in the local schools, finishing her Junior course in the high school some five years ago. She then left for Red Wing, where she took a year's normal work at a seminary. Since that time she has been engaged as instructor in various schools in Minnesota, and taught a term at Winger last year. While there she made a large number of friends, all of whom will wish her a happy and prosperous married life. She is a charming young girl of pleasant personality and is one of the popular ladies of the city. Miss Backe was a member of the Synod church choir and took a very active part in the work of the Young Peoples society, and her departure will be missed. Mr. Loveid is manager of the creamery at Middle River and has followed that line of work with much success. He is also interested in the electric company that is being formed to serve Middle River with power and light.

Out-of-town guests at the ceremony were: Mrs. Peter Loken, of Carlisle, Minn., aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Bertil Bakke of Holt, Misses Signa, Louise and Lydia Loveid all of Newfolden.

Mr. and Mrs. Sverre Loveid took their departure the same evening in a car for their future home at Middle River, where they will go to housekeeping at once. They will be at home to their friends after October 10.

The Times joins in with the many friends of the newly married couple in extending best wishes for their future prosperity and happiness.

At the Presbyterian manse on Saturday, September 9, 1916, at high noon, Eddie Abbott and Viola Kimball were united in marriage by Rev. D. Samson. Both bride and groom are excellent young people from Grygla, in the eastern part of the county.—Warren Sheaf, for Wednesday.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Abbott, who reside in this city, and the news of their marriage came as a complete surprise to them. Both the bride and groom spent Sunday in Thief River Falls enjoying a short visit at the Abbott home and departed for Warren Monday morning.

At a regular meeting of the Lady Maccabees held Tuesday evening at the Masonic Temple, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Sargeant at Arms, Mrs. Parbst.
Sargeant, Mrs. Soderlin.
Sentinel, Mrs. John Gilbertson.
Picket, Mrs. Fred Johnson.
C. of G., Mrs. H. A. Sands.
Color bearers one and two, Mrs. Gillette and Rhodagard.

Last evening at 709 Atlantic avenue north occurred the marriage of Henry G. Goete to Lydia Klockmann, Rev. I. T. Aastad officiating. Miss Daisey Novontny acted as bride's maid while Henry Klockmann was best man. The bride has been residing with her parents near Germantown, and the groom is an employee at the Soo round house. They will make their future home here. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. John Reitz.

Seven of the boys of the class of '15, at Lincoln high, had a little reunion Friday evening. A theatre party was formed and all attended the evening's program at the Princess, after which light refreshments were served at Mac's Sweet Shop. There were six boy class members absent. Those who composed the party were: Hugh Bottleson, Lawrence Hermanson, Francis Burns, Herbert Connor, Oscar Paulson, Ralph Falk and Ben Bothun.

A reception will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas at their home in Excel township, Section 9, on Saturday evening at six o'clock in honor of their daughter, Laura, who will be united in marriage at two o'clock in the afternoon to Adolph Jorde, Rev. I. T. Aastad officiating.

The first social event of the season occurs next week on Friday evening when the Minnesota State band will give one of their popular dances at the Auditorium. This announcement was made by band officers this morning. Director Greenfield has received all the season's latest music and something new is promised in this line, to trippers of the light fantastic.

Dr. and Mrs. Leon Stanton of Bemidji, and Attorney E. M. Stanton, of this city, were guests at a game dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Lincoln Sunday. Dr. Stanton and Mr. Lincoln are boyhood friends, having been raised together in Wisconsin.

A wedding was solemnized at St. Bernard's Catholic church Monday morning at 5 o'clock, when Miss Antoinette Smith, was united in marriage to O. C. McCormick. Miss Smith has made Thief River Falls her home since last fall being employed here as bookkeeper at the Northwestern Drainage company's office. She has resided with her sister, Mrs. Frank Weiland, 415 Bridge Sereet, during that time. Mr. McCormick has also resided in Thief River Falls for about a year, he being engaged in conducting a branch office for the Continental Land company of St. Paul. Both the groom and bride have made a large acquaintanecship during their stay here, all of whom will wish them a happy married life. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick left at 6:15 a. m. for the Twin Cities and other points on a short honeymoon, after which they will return to this city to make their future home.

A parcel shower was tendered Mrs. Claude Crandall, nee Miss Laura Bamford, by her friends at the home of her parents on Wednesday evening of last week. Mrs. Crandall received many useful gifts. The evening was spent in a very enjoyable manner, after which refreshments were served.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

Strengthened by Thief River Falls Experiences.

Kidney disease is too dangerous to neglect. At the first sign of backache, headache, dizziness or urinary disorders, you should give the weakened kidneys prompt attention. Eat little meat, take things easier and use a reliable kidney tonic. There is no other kidney medicine so well recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. Thief River Falls people rely on them. Here's one of the many statements from Thief River Falls people.

Mrs. George Williams, 412 Main Ave., N. Thief River Falls, says: "I think highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and have all reason to, as the cure they made in my case has been permanent. It is a little over four years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills. I was bad off with my kidneys and back and was not able to work for a whole summer. I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious, but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car.

SECOND EPISODE

Little Miss Stafford wandering in a silk frock through the jungle of the everglades at midnight did not even know that she was lost. The terrors that were in store for her, she was not imagining. She was still giggling over her imaginations of the excitement at Palm Beach when her governess discovered that she had run away.

Miss Sidney woke as Gloria expected, sprawled as well as Gloria hoped, her feet on high and the rug waving in air. She knew who played the trick and ran into Gloria's room. She saw that the bed was empty, the sleeping suit tossed aside, the dinner gown gone. She flung into her bathrobe and ran to give the alarm to Gloria's father. Her costume made a sensation even among the sensational costumes of Palm Beach. She found Pierpont playing cards with young Dr. Royce.

What she told them sent them running in opposite directions, frightening the dancers and the loiterers about the tables in the gardens and various couples surprised in loving embraces among the inviting nooks.

On the lawn the two men came together and shook their heads in signal of failure. They saw David and Lois. David mentioned the loss of his automobile. Neither he nor Pierpont thought of Gloria as the thief. They continued the search among the crannies of the enormous hotel and among the cottages of their friends.

But Dr. Royce had been speaking of Gloria's rebellious heart only that afternoon. He ran at once to a parking space where automobiles where kept. The chauffeurs were not about and he did not pause to haggle. He threw away a "For Hire" card and, leaping into the saddle, so to speak, of a six cylinder thoroughbred, dug his spurs into its side and plied the lash.

The car broke into such a run that its own chauffeur did not recognize it as it shot into the main road. Royce checked his speed only when he met occasional saunterers along the roads. From most of these he got no information. From one negro on a bicycle chair he had the comforting answer:

"Yassa, I done seen a bar'headed young missy in a auterbile licketty split—yassa. She turned sothe at the next corner. If I hadn't a throwed this year wheel over mighty peart I'd a——"

Royce was not interested in the Negro's might-have-been. He was already at the next corner, and he turned south, too.

Now and then a red light ahead cheered Royce on, but when he overtook it it was never on the car that carried Gloria.

In one or two of the villages he found someone awake who had seen a young girl or a comet shoot through.

He had about decided to turn back and endure the laughter that would greet him. Long ago, no doubt, Gloria had reappeared and been resentenced to bed.

But even as he slowed up for the turn he caught sight of tire tracks swerving wildly and turning off into the sand between two dunes. He shut off his power and set his brakes, drew into the side of the road, and jumped out.

He passed the barrier of the dunes and caught sight of David's racing car in the waves. The billows flaming with moonlight were sweeping over the little machine with terrifying ruthlessness, now tossing up spray which the moon turned to jewelry, now smothering it all from view.

Royce gazed aghast. He tore his hair at the vision. He could almost see Gloria caught in the wheel and held fast while she drowned, slowly choking.

He was about to dash into the sea and fight it for the body of the little runaway when he saw footprints in the wet sand.

With a cry of relief Dr. Royce followed them across the sand to the highway. But Gloria had not turned north in the road. She had been wooed into the dense, lush foliage.

The doctor regarded it with dread. He could not imagine how tempting it had been to Gloria's truant heart. He was afraid that she might have lost her mind with fear.

He had hardly plunged into the thicket when he lost track of her. He ran back, hoping that he might find some courier with news. Instead he met a boy from a pineapple plantation. Royce hailed him and learned that he was going for a doctor. He had heard and seen exactly nothing of Gloria.

He was about to let the boy go when it occurred to him that Gloria's father would be frantic for some word of her whereabouts. He found a prescription pad in his pocket and a bit of pencil and he wrote a note.

Pierpont Stafford, Royal Poinciana: I found Gloria's car in the surf and her footprints leading into the everglades. I am following them, but think you had better organize searching parties to beat the whole district.

STEPHEN ROYCE.

He gave this to the boy and a bill from the small roll he found in his pockets. He made the boy promise to go to the nearest telephone and transmit the message to the hotel. Royce returned again to the chase, increasingly applied at the thought of Gloria alone there.

Now and then he found some hint of her, a shred of silk from her Paris frock torn away by a clutching thorn.

Gloria had not been long in finding out that there can be too much liberty as well as too little. No calm wandering in a dream through nightmareland could have seen a more fantastic world than that Florida entanglement. She was entranced at first, but at length she had had enough.

She had read of people who walked in circles till they died of exhaustion. She felt ready to die so already. But mainly she was yawning her pretty head off. She beat about the bush and said "Shoo!" to any crocodiles or boa constrictors that might be in hiding. Then she stretched herself out and began a little prayer. She could not keep awake to finish it. In her sleep she dreamed herself back in the beautiful bed she had foolishly left. She dreamed that she was asleep in her own room.

Meanwhile Dr. Royce stumbled and groped through the jungle in search of her, and her father and brother were in conference with the Palm Beach police.

The message that Royce had given to the boy from Colohatchee reached them a little before dawn. It only increased their alarm, but it gave them something to do. They made no further secret of Gloria's disappearance. They called on everybody for help.

Cars went scurrying along the little railroad that pushes a short distance into the forest; boats of every sort glided along the drainage canal; motor boats, canoes, skiffs, dugouts were spinning hither and yon among the thousands of waterways.

David forgot Lois Freeman and the engagement he had to play golf with her that morning. He and his father had anticipated the dawn in the bayous.

Freneau, strolling across the lawn to open the office of the New York brokers he represented, found Lois Freeman and her father reading the morning papers. They spoke of the loss of Gloria and the $5,000 offer for her restoration to her father. Freneau meditated. He could use $5,000 or less to great advantage.

When Lois invited him to play golf he said that he had another engagement. Whatever motive it was that moved Freneau, he resolved to forego his opportunity to court Lois without the disturbing presence of his wealthy rival. He bade her good-by, but he did not go to his office. He sauntered to the water's edge and chartered a motor boat.

Almost everybody in Florida must have been aware of Gloria's disappearance except the family of shiftless paupers named Sipe.

Gloria had lain down to sleep just about where the Sipe fence would have been if there had been a fence. She had not seen their shack beyond the heavy growth.

When she awoke and yawned and rubbed her eyes and looked about she decided that she must have fallen asleep in the horticultural building at Bronx park. She rose to her feet and limped aimlessly. She caught sight of the Sipe hovel. It was a tumbledown hut, but it looked like the Royal Poinciana to her. The pigs and the mangy dogs might have been gazelles in a park and the ragged man and woman and boy might have been a group of royal blood.

She ran toward them for shelter. They received her with stupid wonder and with no hospitality.

The woman upbraided Gloria for being out in such rags and Gloria offered to buy anything they had. Mrs. Sipe refused to sell what she had on, which was all she had. The only extra covering was a new suit she was making for the boy out of some hemp sacking. Gloria did not want a boy's clothes, but Mrs. Sipe sneered that they were more decent than what she had on. Also that she might pass some rough characters or even some Seminole Indians on her way back and that she would be safer as a boy than as a girl.

This convinced Gloria. She paid for the clothes with the ring and went into the shack to change.

When Gloria was dressed the Sipe boy was ordered to take her to a path which would eventually lead her to the main road.

It was easier walking in breeches than the skirts she had worn. But she did not like the manner of the boy. He began to pay her crude compliments and finally grew so impudent that she boxed his ears. He took his revenge by pointing her in the wrong direction. He turned back and laughed. He had an ill-nourished sense of humor.

Gloria pushed on and on, growing more and more doubtful of the way and dismally footsore.

Suddenly a turn in the path revealed what she took to be an answer to her prayers—a horse! It was a doleful looking animal, yet it was a horse. She ran forward and spoke to it soothingly. But it backed and reared. It was not a white man's horse and it hated the whites even as its red master had hated them. Thereby hung a tale.

* * * * *

The family known as the "Cypress Wolves" was the sole remnant of one of the fiercest tribes the paleface had met in the Seminole wars.

If Gloria Stafford, who was strolling slowly into the very heart of the Cypress Wolf region, had come among them as a young girl in distress, they would have treated her with chivalry. But her first action outraged their most sacred beliefs.

The old chief Hitakee of the Cypress Wolf tribe had more dignity than wealth. But he owned a horse. It was an ancient mustang and its manners were bad; but it was at most the only horse owned by an everglade Indian.

At the very time that Gloria had been helped to solve her algebra problems by Dr. Royce old Hitakee was solving all his problems with the aid of the medicine man of his tribe. He died with great dignity.

The young brave Katcalani was the logical successor to the chiefship. He had his eye on that horse and dreamed of himself astride it. The widow of Hitakee had another idea. Shonolakeo was her name. She did not intend that her dead husband should walk all the way to the happy hunting grounds. In her youth when the chiefs had horses and rode them, they rode also to the far-off paradise. Each chief's squaw saw to that, for she cut the throat of his horse and sent its ghost after its master's spirit.

Katcalani tried to save Hitakee's horse from sacrifice, but Shonolakee grew so fierce and the other squaws so fierce that he felt his election is danger.

Just about the time that Gloria Stafford was feeling her way through the thickets about the Cypress Wolf village Shonolakee led the old horse out to slaughter. She was weeping so bitterly that she did not heed when the sacrificial knife fell from her belt. She tied the horse, said her prayer, and reached for the blade. It was gone. She turned back to look for it.

She had not gone far when Gloria Stafford parted the palmetto leaves and saw before her the steed she had prayed for.

She approached it with coaxing words and untied the halter. The pony shied and tried to caress her with its heels. Gloria had been well schooled in horsemanship from childhood, and she soon had her hands in the mane of the unwilling mustang and vaulted to its back.

She had no sooner set her heels into its ribs than the old squaw returned with the recovered knife. She saw the sanctified charger being carried off—and by a ragamuffin evidently from one of the white trash families that even the Seminoles despised.

She gave a wild cry of alarm, the fierce "Yo-ho-ee-hee!" that had once made the Indian-hunters' blood run cold. The tribe answered in wondering haste. She pointed to Gloria and the vanishing horse. It was not vanishing very fast, for the wilderness was thick and Gloria did not know the way. The Seminoles divided and ran in various directions to head her off.

In a few moments the young chief himself leaped from ambush, and caught the horse by the nose and ear. The old squaw was not far behind and Gloria was dragged to the ground and threatened with the death of a thief—a sacrilegious thief.

Old Shonolakee raised her knife and was about to plunge it into the heart of the shivering captive when something about the captive made her pause. She saw that the lad was a lass. Her rage was forgotten in amazement for a moment. She grunted: "The boy is one squaw."

The other Indians stared at Gloria and the pallor of her horror was reddened with shame. The blush was very becoming to her. The young chief stepped forward for a closer look at it.

Thinking him a possible rescuer Gloria turned on him one of her ninety candlepower smiles. The effect was greater than she had expected. Katcalani was dazzled. He blinked, then turned his eyes on the smoky Indian maidens clustered about. Each of them had ambitious dreams of being his wife. But shabbily as Gloria was dressed she was a tearing beauty in any company. Compared to the unkempt daughters of the everglades she was a goddess.

Katcalani's heart beat with a new kind of excitement. He resolved to begin his new chieftainship with an act of courage. He would defy not only the men, but even the women! He seized Gloria's hand and shouted:

"If boy is squaw he is my squaw."

Gloria did not understand the meaning of this. But she saw that it had not endeared her to the Indian women. They murmured their wrath and would have struck her down if Katcalani had not protected her. She drew closer to him and he took that for consent.

They led her into the village, a huddled group of palmetto leaves.

Shonolakee first went aside and sent the dead chief's horse on the long road to the happy pastures. Then she returned to prepare Gloria for the honor of becoming the wife of the chief. She led her into her own hut and gave her the habiliments of an honest squaw in place of the boy's disgraceful togs. Seminole ladies are modest. Then she showed Gloria a little sewing machine. She had bought it with the proceeds of rattlesnake skins she had sold to tourists in the village along the railroad. She promised Gloria that some day if she were good she might be allowed to play on the machine. The squaw's idea of being good consisted largely of doing heavy labor. The first duty of a wife was to gather wood for the fire. She set Gloria to work.

Royce was not the only one in the everglades hunting the estray. Freneau had gone as far as his motor boat would carry him. Then he had found a native Indian with a dugout, a cypress log hollowed. The Indian drove it with a pole. He had heard nothing of Gloria's presence in the thicket, but he promised to guide Freneau to some of the scattered villages.

Meanwhile Dr. Royce, hunting in every direction, had happened upon the home of the Sipes, and had asked about Gloria. Fearing that he had come to demand the return of Gloria's jewels they pretended not to have seen her. But Royce caught a glimpse of Gloria's evening dress, which Mrs. Sipe was trying to hide. He charged the Sipes with deception, probably with murder.

They hastened to confess that they had seen her and helped her on her way in the clothes of a boy. They sent young Sipe to show Royce which way Gloria had gone. Young Sipe, still angry at Gloria and his parents, sent Royce in a false direction, too. He laughed as he saw the crazy stranger in that tattered evening dress playing his blind man's buff, not knowing that rivals were searching the wilderness, and knowing that Gloria was now in Indian servitude.

The young chief, Katcalani, kept watching Gloria. Her whiteness, her delicacy, the unconscious daintiness with which she lifted the crooked faggot from the brushwood, and the luxurious aureole of her hair in the Florida sun, made him frantic to call her his own. He beckoned her to follow him and led her to a distance where the shambling, dusky women of his tribe could not see him bow his turbaned head to the chalk-faced squaw.

Gloria hoped that the peculiar person was going to help her to escape, and she followed him with only a little fear. But he paused and began to declare his passion with all an Indian's eloquence.

His dialect was crude, but his emotion was fierce. He compared her with the most graceful palm, with the rarest orchids. He said that the sunrise was in her hair and the stars in her eyes. He compared himself with the great warrior Osceola, who had slain so many whites. He offered to kill all the white men in Florida to please her. He spoke of his wealth. His turban had a silver band made out of four silver dollars. He had a gold watch, sixteen handkerchiefs, and eighteen shirts. He had six of them on. Gloria should have his grandmother's forty pounds of beads to wear—she should be a queen and she would not have to plow.

Gloria had often dreamed of her first proposal of marriage. This was it. It did not accord with her dreams. She was disgusted, aghast, afraid. She could think of nothing to do.

She caught sight of the dagger that Katcalani wore in his belt. In a sick horror of her fate she snatched it from him. She had not the courage to kill herself, or him, but she gave him the knife and begged him to plunge it into her heart. Katcalani glared at her in a frenzy of humiliation and wrath. Then the child-woman wavered on her tired feet and suddenly dropped to the ground in a dead faint.

Katcalani's rolling eyes made out a startling vision. Dick Freneau was standing before him. The Indian guide had put him ashore near the village and was waiting for him to make inquiries. Freneau had pushed through the palmettos just in time to see Gloria swoon. He recognized her by her fair skin and her bright hair. He approached Katcalani to claim her and the reward.

But the young chief was in no mood for a parley. He gnashed his teeth and threatened Freneau with such bloodthirsty fury, that Freneau fell back. He felt his hair rise and his scalp already going. He retreated in such haste that Katcalani did not pursue him far. He stood watching for him to reappear.

Meanwhile, by another roundabout land path, Dr. Royce had found the Seminole village. He saw Gloria where she lay on the ground. He thought her some young Indian maiden asleep. He paused to wake her and ask if she had seen Gloria. He saw that she was Gloria.

Before he could stoop to lift her he saw Katcalani turn and stare. The Indian had a knife in his hand. He had put one white man to flight: he charged on this other. But Royce did not fall back. He advanced. He was half mad with his night's wandering and he was afraid of nothing. With his bare hands he went straight into the fight.

He dodged the blade, clutched the chief's wrist, and closed. He whipped his heel round Katcalani's knee and tripping him, fell on top of him. But the Indian was agile as a panther, and he rolled over. Then Royce was on top, then the Indian broke free. Then the men circled and feinted and finally clinched again, went to earth again, rolled, broke, rose, and clinched, cursing and grunting in mortal hatred.

Freneau from the thicket where he hid witnessed the fight; watched it in fascination a moment. At length, seeing that the battle had carried the two warriors away from Gloria's vicinity, he made so bold as to run to where she lay, and pick her up.

Her eyes opened. She found herself in his arms. She stared, then recognized him. He was like a rescuing angel. She embraced him with a little wail of gratitude and adoration. She had not seen Royce at all. Freneau led her away from the struggle down a twisting path to the landing place, where the Seminole guide waited for him.

He helped Gloria into the canoe and ordered the guide to push out into the bayou. If he felt any impulse to go back to the aid of Royce, he suppressed it, for Gloria's sake. He neglected even to mention that Royce was even then in a death grapple with Katcalani. It would only have excited the trembling child still further. Indeed, when Gloria poured forth her gratitude to Freneau for his fearlessness in her behalf, he shrugged his shoulders and smiled. He was too much the gentleman to contradict a lady.

The Indian pulled his dugout along the tortuous channels, until finally it was hailed from the shore. Gloria's father and brother had caught sight of them.

When Gloria was landed and in her father's arms, she told what hideous danger Mr. Freneau had saved her from. Then Pierpont embraced the young man, and David wrung his hands, forgetting that they had lately been jealous rivals for Lois Freeman's smiles.

* * * * *

Royce and Katcalani fought on without thought of truce. Katcalani could have brought help by crying out, but he had the knife and he would not bring his people to see him worsted by an empty handed white man. Royce had the skill of a college wrestler, the coolness of a surgeon, and the determination of a lover. But he was dulled with fatigue and wearing down rapidly. At last, however, he broke free and stood off for a moment's breath. Katcalani, dripping with sweat, and a little dizzy with the struggle, went at him to finish him.

He ran like a wolf and leaped like a wolf. But he ran straight into a most beautiful uppercut. Before the point of his knife could reach Dr. Royce, the point of his jaw met Royce's fist. The world went to pieces in an earthquake, and it was some minutes before Katcalani found himself lying flat on his back with no enemy in sight.

Royce had picked up the knife and turned to Gloria. She was not there. He nearly fell down with amazement. Then he caught sight of something moving near the water's edge. He staggered as fast as he could through the underbrush. He reached the shore in time to see Gloria and Freneau in the dugout just rounding a barrier of saw grass. He ran along the shore, trying to get near. He was glad that she was safe, and it cheered him no little to feel that he had been able to do something to earn a place in her heart.

He hurried on and on. At last he came to a clearing and found the Staffords holding a family reunion. Pierpont had his arm about Freneau. Gloria was clinging to Freneau's hand. She told Dr. Royce that Freneau had saved her from worse than death. Royce looked at Freneau to hear him tell the truth.

Freneau did not speak. Royce could not. he was too fagged in muscle and soul. And it was not his custom to boast of his prowess. He simply could not lay claim to their gratitude. After all Freneau had restored Gloria to their arms. He turned away with a wry smile. The Staffords were sorry that he should permit jealousy of Freneau to embitter him. It hurt Gloria especially. She had liked Dr. Royce so well.

But he loved her.

THIRD EPISODE

Never before in all her luxurious young life had Gloria encountered the slightest hardship. The most exquisite of the niceties of existence had been hers as regularly as the breath she drew. So she had wearied of them and rebelled. And now she had found that adventure was not altogether pleasant, either. A primeval jungle inhabited by a primeval people was, to say the least, distinctly uncomfortable.

Gloria felt it especially lucky that since she had to be rescued fate had been polite enough to select a good-looking rescuer for her. The more she studied Mr. Freneau the better she liked him. He had a nice name, too—a nice, marriable name.

The only fly in the ointment was the bad behavior of Dr. Royce. She had thought him charming. But now he sulked and moped.

Dr. Royce was glum because he did not know just what he ought to do. He was confronted with a duty that he could not solve. It was like some obscure disease, hard to diagnosticate.

To speak up and denounce Freneau as a liar and thief was impossible. Royce had no proof that Freneau had played either the cad or the coward. He knew only that Freneau must have seen him battling with the Indian, and a decent man would have come to the assistance of a fellow white. Even if Freneau had felt that he ought to put Gloria in the boat first, he might have come back to help Royce. But Freneau had left Royce to his fate. That was ugly.

Royce heard Pierpont Stafford say to Freneau: "My boy, you've earned the $5,000 reward offered. You've earned a million dollars!"

Now Royce felt that he understood. Freneau had been coaxed into the everglades by that $5,000 lottery prize. He had won it; and it looked as if Freneau were expecting to win Gloria's love in the bargain. For Gloria was simply devouring him with her eyes.

Royce knew little about Freneau, and that little was not to his advantage. Freneau neglected his office, but neglected no opportunity for a love affair. Dr. Royce had come to Palm Beach as the private physician of old Judge Freeman, and he had abundant opportunity to see the influence of Freneau on the judge's daughter, Lois. It was not a wholesome influence.

* * * * * * *

On the long ride back to Palm Beach they passed the spot where Gloria had left her brother's racing car in the ocean. They paused to look at it. Several men and a team of mules were struggling to drag it out of the water.

When they reached the Royal Poinciana Gloria passed through a throng of welcoming friends, and Freneau received congratulations innumerable. Royce sneaked off to his room and plunged into a hot bath, treated his wounds as best he could, shaved, and put on fresh clothes.

Then he strolled out to order a new evening dress in a hurry from a Palm Beach tailor. He met Freneau, carrying his honors jauntily. Royce went to him and held him skewered with his eyes as he said:

"Look here, Freneau, haven't you a little something to say to me?"

Freneau colored a trifle, but he stared back at Royce without discomfort and he laughed no less easily than usual:

"Why, no, old man; nothing that I know of—except that I suppose I ought to feel sorry that you arrived too late. But I can't feel sorry. I didn't even know you were there."

Royce glared at him, then laughed harshly and said:

"The diagnosis in your case is clear. You are hopelessly infected with yellow fever; but you are immune to all honorable sentiments. Don't lose your head, though; and don't try any of your tricks on little Gloria Stafford."

Freneau laughed again, a more ugly laugh this time. "That seems to me to be Miss Stafford's business, and certainly none of yours."

"I'm going to make it mine," said Royce.

* * * * * * * *

After Gloria had enjoyed all the redeeming influences of a tub, and a shampoo, and fine linen and a silk frock, she found that her interest in Mr. Freneau was as keen as ever. She even felt grateful to Lois Freeman for flirting with David. She sat out on the ledge of the veranda and daydreamed.

When her father sauntered by and asked her what she was up to she answered:

But when Pierpont came by that way a little later he found Dick Freneau basking in Gloria's most bewitching smile. They were Romeo and Juliet at Palm Beach, separated only by a low wall and a clump of rhododendrons. And Romeo was reaching across that with his walking stick.

It was the first time Pierpont had seen his child in a flirtation. He did not like her in that employment. He took her by the ear and led her away. She protested at the indignity.

Pierpont let go her ear. He had always been afraid of her and unable to manage her. He was not afraid of Freneau, however. He went for him at once. He was about to begin with a stout, "How dare you speak to my daughter?" He paused, feeling that without Freneau's help he might have no daughter to be spoken to.

Pierpont was used to accomplishing his ends with the weapon of the check book. He drew the weapon now and a fountain pen and said:

"By the way, there's that reward. It will give me great pleasure to pay it over."

He wrote after "Pay to the order of" the name "Richard Freneau" and the amount "Five thousand and no-hundredths dollars—$5,000." Freneau's fingers twitched to clutch the fortune, but his brain advised him to play for higher stakes. He put away the temptation with a proud smile.

"It is reward enough to have been able to be of service to Miss Stafford."

If Gloria had not adored him before, that chivalrous speech would have won her. It quite disarmed Pierpont. With his check book ruled out, his best weapon was gone. But he blustered all the harder. "My daughter is a little girl. I won't have her fooling time away with you. She must get her education first. She is hardly more than a child."

"Oh, papa!" Gloria cried.

Pierpont went on: "And she's going to school at once. We start north on the next train."

"Then Mr. Freneau will come north, too, and we shall see each other all we want to. For we love each other, don't we, Mr. Freneau? Desperately! Don't we, Mr. Freneau?"

Mr. Freneau's answer was blurred.

Pierpont studied the two young people. He had his own opinion of Freneau. It was formed on brief acquaintance, but he was a judge of men.

"You love each other, eh? Desperately, too? Well, well! Now, look here," he said, after a quick balancing of his mind, "of course you both know that Gloria is too young for marriage. She must prepare herself for the solemn responsibilities of life and graduate at a good finishing school. Now, if you will wait, and not see each other or write to each other, till then, and if you still love each other then, I will not oppose your marriage. I'll do all I can to make you happy. Is it a bargain?"

Freneau had not the courage to refuse the demand in the cold eyes of the millionaire. To be accepted as his son-in-law at any time was a marvelous promise. He hastened to give his own in exchange for it.

When he had promised there was nothing left for Gloria to do but promise also.

"For five years, then," said Pierpont grimly, "you promise not to bother each other or speak or write—for five years."

"I promise!" said Freneau quickly.

"From tomorrow," said Gloria with equal grimness.

"The train leaves very shortly," said Pierpont, and led her in to superintend the packing.

Freneau walked away in a daze. Yesterday he was a broker's clerk. Today he was the son-in-law elect of one of the country's wealthiest men. What were five years to him?

Five years sounded unimportant to Gloria, too, at the moment. She would love that young man forever.

* * * * * * *

Five years is a long time, and many things can happen in the eighteen hundred odd days and nights.

Freneau hated Royce, for we rarely like the people whose property we have stolen.

Gloria was gone and Lois was gone, but an attractive youth like Freneau was not left alone in such multitudes of women as gather at Palm Beach with no more serious purpose than escaping the cold drafts of the North and the torments of boredom in the South.

He spent so much time gathering the applause from fair women that when the season closed at Palm Beach his firm gave him his full liberty. He had done nothing, they wrote, to encourage them to pay him further salary. He had to go next to places where his fame had not reached—where he had only his winning personality as capital. He found men rather hard to impress, but there was always some woman foolish enough to believe in his beautiful eyes.

Some of them were rich and some of them were as poor as poor Nell Trask, the daughter of Gideon Trask, a canal boat captain. He met her in a cheap boarding house, where he paid his landlady nothing much except his promises and some extravagant compliments.

He behaved very shabbily in his affair with Nell Trask, and deserted her cruelly because, at a critical time for her, he got a tip on the market and sold it to a broker, who gave him a share of the proceeds.

He was so tired of poverty that he went to New York and anticipated his promise. But Gloria and her father were abroad on a summer vacation, and Freneau was thrown on his own resources. He flirted himself into another tip and sold that to a broker named Frank Mulry.

Mulry knew the value of such a partner, and he encouraged Freneau to learn from financiers' wives and daughters what could not be learned otherwise. In the course of time Freneau made himself so important to Mulry that he was taken into the firm as a silent partner. At length, through a most confidential tip, he got in as a sort of stowaway in a piratical raid on the market and cleaned up so much money that Mulry was glad to take him into full partnership as the senior member of the firm.

When he saw the legend, "Freneau & Mulry, stocks and bonds, members of the stock exchange," on the door and on the letterheads Freneau felt so important that he did not care what Pierpont Stafford or his daughter thought of him. He was the young Napoleon. One of these days he would buy and sell Pierpont Stafford.

His success enlarged his acquaintance, his attractiveness, and his temptations.

He was on the crest of the wave when he met Lois Freeman again. He was studying the diamond crop in a jeweler's window and wondering just what peace offering he should buy for a certain person whom he had rendered violently jealous when who should step out of the shop but Lois Freeman!

Each stared at the other with eyes ready for flirtation. Each recognized the other as a former Palm Beach comber.

"Why, Mr. Freneau!" was Lois' exclamation. Her language was not so brilliant as her eyes.

"Why, Miss Freeman!" was his equally brilliant answer. The same thing was true of him.

"But I'm no longer Miss Freeman," said she.

"I'm still Mr. Freneau," said he.

"I'm now Mrs. Stafford."

"Stafford? Stafford? The name sounds familiar," said Freneau.

"Surely you haven't forgotten David Stafford, your old rival for my young affections?"

"Of course not," said Freneau. "I've never forgiven him for cutting me out. How long have you been married?"

"Oh, for an eternity—two years."

"Really? You don't look it at all! But that's long enough for you to come and take tea with me somewhere, isn't it?"

"I suppose so. Anyway, I'm dead tired and in need of a pick-me-up. It's so stupid shopping all day. And my husband has already been married long enough to be quite frank about my extravagance. But what else is there for me? He is at the office all day; and he travels a good deal. He's ambitious to outdo his father in business."

"So am I," said Freneau.

They were buzzing away merrily when they found seats in a tearoom where dancing was the main business, with tea as an excuse. Freneau did not even take tea. He was not particular about excuses. He urged Lois to dance with him. But she saw several people she knew, and she declined. Also, she slipped away early. She knew enough to be elusive.

They met again, however, at a less conspicuous tearoom. Then she danced with him.

And all this while Gloria was cherishing her ideal of Freneau and working hard to make herself worthy of him! And her brother was cherishing a trust in Lois and working hard to give her the luxuries she exacted with increasing greed.

* * * * * * *

Five years was a long time for Gloria, too; but not so long as she told herself. Her girl soul did not feel the emotional demands of a grown woman. She could put Freneau's picture on her bureau and find satisfaction in paying it worship.

In the school she had discovered a new world. She fought her way to the captaincy of a basketball team as if it were the presidency of an Amazonian republic. She learned to fence well and to box a little. She even took an interest in some of her text books.

She thought she was very wicked, but she did nothing more vicious than hold a chafing dish orgy now and then in her room.

Gloria had few sorrows of importance, beyond the occasional disappointment her examination records gave her. The chief of her disappointments was her brother's marriage to Lois. She never had liked Lois and had never understood her charm.

Lois had taken little interest in winning the approval of women. She had played a part in winning even David's serious interest. She never cared for him, but she could not resist the wealth and prestige of his name. She was bitterly disappointed in him when after the honeymoon was over he expressed his unwillingness to live on his father's money and vowed that he would earn his own way by his own energy. The life of travel and gayety that Lois had planned was taken from her.

Gloria had a staunch little heart and she kept her word to her father. She kept faith, too, with her fiance five years removed. She fell into the habit of talking to his photograph. When she was tempted to forget that she was a solemnly betrothed young person she would find strength in his image to be austere and to deny herself many of the gayeties of the school or of her companions in the gorgeous resting places where she spent her vacations.

It was a quaint and bitter irony that the eyes in Freneau's photograph should have had so pious an influence, while his own eyes were devoted to casting such evil spells.

Unconsciously Lois revenged her husband on Freneau, for while Freneau was causing Lois to forget her duties to the partnership she had entered into with David Stafford her fascinations led Freneau to neglect his duties to his partnership with Frank Mulry. He spent time and money on Lois that should have been devoted to the intricate stratagems—not to say treasons and spoils—of Wall street.

He and Mulry in the flush of their early successes had spread out—had established branch offices in Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and Pittsburgh. While the tide set their way these branches served as so many hands to gather in shekels. But when the hard times came upon the financial world they served as so many mouths to feed. The office of Freneau & Mulry became one of those dismal places where the pay roll is a weekly agony and where the watchword is "everything going out and nothing coming in."

When Freneau at last awoke to realize that bankruptcy instead of plutocracy was likely to be his portion he turned back to his work with a desperate energy. And now Lois found that he was as fierce an office man as her husband. He had engagements when she was lonely.

She naturally imputed his neglect to some other charmer. She could not believe him guilty of overwork. She grew jealous and their meetings were stormy. She kept his telephone busy to make sure that he was at his desk. She began to annoy him. He wished to be rid of her, but she would not be jilted.

It was during this crisis that Gloria marked off the last month of her five years' ordeal. She was ambitious enough to go on and finish her course and get her diploma. She compressed her last year of schooling into half a year and graduated all alone in midwinter.

She dashed into her room at college for the last time, with her solemn mortarboard askew on her head, her somber black gown flying from her shoulders, and in her hand her parchment diploma (in Latin that she could nearly translate). She looked like a little Portia for a moment.

She threw her diploma in air and her mortarboard after it. She whipped off her black robe and began to juggle school books, letting them fall where they fell. She danced a jig over her scholarly past and made haste to pack her things and dart out to meet her future. "Future" was her spelling of "Freneau."

The journey to New York from school was as long as the journey to New York from Palm Beach had been years ago; only then she had been traveling away from her romance, now toward it.

When her father met her at the train she hugged him almost to suffocation, then asked him how dear Mr. Freneau was the last time he saw him.

"The last time I saw dear Mr. Freneau was at Palm Beach," said Pierpont, who had almost forgotten his name and had hoped that Gloria had forgotten it entirely.

As soon as she reached the house on Riverside drive and embraced the old servants and shook hands with the new, Gloria took her father into his library and asked him for Mr. Freneau's telephone number. She had found "Freneau & Mulry" in the book already, and she said: "Do you suppose that that Mr. Mulry's Freneau is my Mr. Freneau?"

"I don't know, I'm sure," Pierpont grumbled. "But it wouldn't be very correct to telephone a busy man, would it?"

"I suppose not," Gloria admitted. "Where's a pen? I'll write him."

"How long has it been since you wrote him last?" said Pierpont anxiously.

"Why, I've never written him at all," Gloria answered, shocked. "I promised, didn't I?"

Pierpont kissed her brow with a profound pride. Then he ventured to say, "Don't you think it would be nicer if you waited for him to look you up?"

Gloria gnawed the end of the penholder a moment, and then sighed with all the impatience of youth in the shackles of conventionality. "I suppose so." She flung down the pen and wondered how she could manage delicately to attract Mr. Freneau's attention without seeming to.

"By the way," said Pierpont, "there's a big gala performance at the Metropolitan Opera house tonight, a special benefit for some war relief. Would you like to go?"

"You bet!" cried Gloria with schoolgirl elegance.

At about that time Freneau was just putting down the telephone in his office. Lois had called him to say that her husband was taking her to the benefit and she hoped that he would be there. She had something important to tell him. Everything she had to tell him was immensely important nowadays to her—and immensely unimportant to him.

The thing that agitated Lois was her knowledge that Gloria had come back to New York and was still in love with the memory of Freneau. Lois was in an anguish of fear and jealousy and she wanted to compel Freneau to swear that he would not forsake her for Gloria.

Freneau was oblivious of this, but he had no intention of keeping his promise to Lois till Mulry, who had overheard Freneau's end of the conversation, said: "Come along. I got stung for a couple of tickets. You can have one of them. We might meet somebody who might give us a line on the market."

So the Romeolike Freneau went with his Falstaffian partner. They haunted the promenade of the boxholders, wishing to be seen in expensive company.

Glancing over the balustrade, Freneau caught sight of Lois mounting the stairs with her husband. She was looking for him, and he smiled back at her with stinted grace. He did not notice that on the other stairway of the big double zigzag Pierpont Stafford was coming up with a vision of young loveliness at his side. He did not know Gloria saw him. He did not see her clutch her father's arm and almost swoon with delight.

He might have observed all this and still not have suspected who the girl was, for the Gloria he had found in squaw costume in the everglades, the Gloria who had exchanged vows with him on the veranda of the Poinciana, the Gloria who had waved farewells to him from the receding train five years ago, had all but receded from his memory. What recollection he had of her was of a little sixteen-year-old thing with her hair down her back and an air of almost childish immaturity.

The Gloria who marched up the broad steps of the Metropolitan was a young lady of twenty, one with her hair up, her head full of knowledge, and her features changed as the bud is changed when it becomes a rose. Her costume was the latest thing from Paris, still Paris in spite of the war.

Gloria could hardly climb the steps to the level of Freneau. Her father did not know him, but she did. She left her father's side and hurried to Freneau's. He did not hear her or know that she was at his elbow, trembling with rapture and trying to keep from crying his name aloud and seizing him by the arm that had saved her from the Indians. She coughed and he did not hear. At last she ventured the terrific deed of touching his sleeve with her finger tip. He turned and she murmured:

"Mr. Freneau, I believe?"

He turned, saw that a most exquisite creature had addressed him, wondered who under the sun she was, lifted his hat, made a violent pretense at remembering her perfectly, having met her just the day before, and exclaimed: "Why, hello! I'm so glad you got here."

He put out his hand, but hers fell away before he could clasp it. She had thrust her arm into her father's elbow and hurried him along toward the door of their box while Freneau whirled and stared.

"It must be his daughter; it's Gloria!" Freneau gasped.

"His daughter! Do you know her?"

"Know her!" Freneau laughed. "Well, rather! I'm engaged to her in a way."

Freneau leaned against the balustrade thinking so hard and recasting his plans so rapidly and with such enthusiasm that Lois not only touched his arm but pinched it fiercely before he noticed her. Then he stared at her with a cold indifference that verified her wildest fears.

Meanwhile Gloria was sitting in miserable splendor on a little gold chair in a box like a prison cell to her, and she was batting her eyes fast to shake away the tears that came pellmell. She was wringing her little white gloved hands and trying not to sob aloud: "He doesn't remember me! He doesn't remember me!"

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A.D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota; on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 193 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

Dated August 30th, 1916.

BEGINNING HOCKEY TALK

Certain of Last Year's Players Would Like to Return and Again Join Winners.

G. Howard Smith, manager of last year's champion hockey team, has already started the ball rolling for another winning aggregation this coming winter. A number of the players are still in the city and will likely remain here, but some of them have drifted away. These would like very much to be members of a winning aggregation, however, and two or three of them have signified their willingness to return if jobs are offered them. They cannot make a living playing hockey and are willing to work at something else.

Thief River Falls had the best hockey team in the northwest last winter and received considerable excellent advertising from the fact. The team is worth holding together and supporting and any scheme for doing this will be gladly considered by Mr. Smith. One of the boys is also a band player of considerable ability, which is another reason for wanting him back.

Judge Watts Here.

Judge William Watts of Crookston, was in the city Tuesday for the purpose of holding a special term at which was determined the percentage of cost to be assessed against the two counties of Pennington and Red Lake for the construction of Judicial Ditch No. 42. The total cost of the work is estimated at $3,600, of which Pennington county will pay sistx-nine and eight-tenths per cent and Red Lake county the balance. Auditor George Dupont of Red Lake Falls, was present at the hearing as a representative of his county. Today Auditor T. P. Anderson of Pennington county is at Red Lake Falls as a representative on a similar matter pertaining to another ditch.

300 City Lots

at Warroad, Minn.

Will be sold at Public Auction

on Thurs., Sept. 28

Sale will start at 1:00 o'clock p. m.

These lots are right in the city, facing Moody park, and only about 100 feet from the boat landing on Warroad river and only 1 block from post office in heart of the city. They are high and dry and very desirable, either as a permanent holding or for investment.

Get in on the ground floor. When the summer resort possibilities of the Lake of the Woods become more generally known, these lots will quadruple in price. Most desirable location on the lake.

CLOSE BIDS FOR EXTENSION JOB

TO LICENSE JUNK DEALERS

Ordinance Requiring This is Introduced at Request of Local Metal Buyers—Peoples Bank Gets Sewer Warrants.

The Robinson-Van Alstein company of Grand Forks, was awarded the pipe-laying contract for the water works extensions in the city at the meeting of the council held on Tuesday evening. Their bid was itemized as follows: Laying of 3,737 feet of six-inch pipe, $1.29 per foot; four hydrants, $48.00 each; seven tees, each $6.25; six crosses, each $8.00; two gate valves and boxes, each $25.00; 16 plugs, $24, the total being $5,169.45 for the entire job. There was but one other bidder, the Holt & George Plumbing company of Thief River Falls, whose total bid was for $5,339.20, a difference of only $169.75.

Wants City to Charge.

P. W. Mabey appeared as council for certain electrical supply houses and asked that the city put a charge on the work of placing lead wires from the poles to the properties to be wired. He claimed that at present no charge was made for this work when it was done by the city, while if private contractors made the connection they were compelled to pay the city for the privilege. He charged discrimination in the matter and was promised that it would be looked into. During the discussion on this subject certain of the councilmen gave it as their opinion that it might be better if the city went out of the supply business altogether.

A Session on Sewers.

The assessments against the properties benefitted by certain sewers to be constructed by the city were submitted. In district No. 3 it was found that the assessment would amount to 45.95 per cent for each 50-foot lot, while in district No. 4 the district tax was placed at $915. It was also decided to extend the sewer now being built from Knight avenue to Duluth avenue on Zeh street so as to reach Arnold avenue under the same job, the district assessments being thereby practically doubled.

To License Junk Dealers.

An ordinance was introduced at the request of local junk dealers requiring that anyone engaging in this business be required to take out a license. They claim that some such move is necessary for their protection inasmuch as traveling peddlers have been receiving stolen goods and have made considerable trouble for those doing a legitimate business. As these peddlers would not be able to ply their trade unless they had a license they would keep away from town and thus this market for stolen goods would be put out of business.

Much Other Business

The six per cent sewer warrants, running one, two and three years, were awarded to the Peoples State bank, this institution offering to handle the paper at par.

Mayor Gambell notified the council of the appointment of Mrs. A. H. Fasel as a member of the library board to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mrs. D. K. Bryant. The appointment was approved.

A building permit was ordered issued to the congregation of the Zion church granting permission to construct a dwelling on the lot next to the church building. The cost of the building will be $2,500. Fred Roth was granted a permit to repair his dwelling house, the cost of the improvement being estimated at $200. A number of applications were presented and estimates ordered made.

MORE SCHOOLS BADLY NEEDED

Up Among The Big Ones

At times it seems as if the people of Thief River Falls do not quite realize just where their city is listed among Minnesota municipalities. The enrollment at the high school in this city for the year 1915 was 320. This is within 59 of the number credited to Stillwater, regarded as one of the largest of the third class cities of the state. Other municipalities nearly always regarded as being larger than Thief River Falls had the following enrollment: Austin, 308, Bemidji, 195; Brainerd, 282; Cloquet, 236; Crookston, 284; Fergus Falls, 330; Hibbing, 278; Little Falls, 344; Northfield, 307; Rochester, 337; Virginia, 287.

The Increase is Steady

There is a larger enrollment at the high school at the present time than at the close of the last school year. This means that there will be an increase over the present number of about 15 per cent before winter sets in. Experience has proven that at least this many join the classes after school has opened. There was not sufficient room last year and with this increase conditions will be such as to make the best work practically impossible.

This matter cannot possibly be delayed any longer. The school board should act at once.

Reception to Teachers.

The public in general and parents in particular are invited to attend a public reception to school teachers on the evening of Friday, Sept. 22. The place for holding the reception will be announced in next week's papers.

Refreshments and a musical program.

BENNIE VIGEN IS IN BAD AT CROOKSTON

Bound Over To Appear Before District Court on Charge of Operating Blind Pig

Bennie Vigen, who formerly conducted the Stockholm restaurant here, was arrested at Crookston on Friday night charged with operating a blind pig in that dry town. He was tried before Judge Gossman and given a straight jail sentence of 60 days. He was released on $200 bond to appear before the next term of the district court.

Vigen must have been rather energetic since moving from Thief River Falls to Crookston. The Times of that city has the following to say concerning the arrest:

"Sheriff Kelley, Deputy Bolstad and Chief of Police Eek were out calling this morning and during the course of their rambles made a stop at 114 South Main Street, where Bennie Vigen, formerly of Thief River Falls, has been conducting a soft drink place. It developed that the officers of the law had suspicions that there were some refreshments to be found in the place that were not so "soft," and when a search revealed the presence of a hunderd pints of the stuff that makes you feel as though you owned the world and could whip Willard, in the basement of the building, Mr. Vigen was invited to a conference with Judge Gossman. The municipal judge thought that Judge Watts of the district court would like an interview with Vigen, and as an inducement to make the latter keep the appointment, he placed the bail at $200 which was furnished."

"THE BLINDNESS OF LOVE"

The next attraction on the Metro program will be "The Blindness of Love," with Julius Steger, the gifted dramatic artist, in the stellar role. Others in a strong supporting cast include George LeGuere and Grace Valentine, who are featured; Walter Hitchock, Edgar L. Davenport, Chas. F. Gotthold, Maud Hill and Harry Neville. This feature was produced by Rolfe Photoplays Inc. and will be shown here at the Princess theatre on Sunday, Sept. 17th.

The story of "Blindness of Love," which was written by Ruth Comfort Mitchell and scenarionized by Harry O. Hoyt, is briefly as follows:

Joseph Wilton is a thrifty German and an expert piano maker who, thru his industry has built up a small factory and acquired considerable money. His whole life and future ambitions are centered on his son, Bob, whom he has entered in a big university. His only daughter, Molly, has taken the place of her mother in the home since Mrs. Wilton's death.

Bob is carried away by college life, and begins to feel embarassed over his father's humble life and surroundings. He falls under the influence of Herbert Graham, a sauve society leech and college mate who inveigles him into drinking, gambling and a life of profligacy. Bob is inducted to draw on his father for large amounts, on the excuse that he needs the money for expenses at college.

The blindness of the father's love for his son is emphasized when he insists on attending a football game, where his son is the hero of the hour. Bob practically denies his father in the presence of his friends on the campus. Soon afterwards Bob's continued escapades cause him to be expelled from college. Graham induces Bob to take him home with him, hoping to get an opportunity to swindle the father. They arrive and explain that they have been granted several extra weeks for the Christmas holidays.

Graham induces the elder Wilton to finance a small bank for himself and Bob. They are popular and succeed from the start. But Graham indulges in many wildcat speculations and the bank is ruined. In a run on the bank both narrowly escape bodily injury. Graham commits suicide. Bob decides to face his disaster, but after hearing Aubrey Maynard, the father of Grace Maynard, to whom he is engaged, denounce him in the presence of his own father, he decides to leave, as he has borrowed money of Grace when the bank was first in trouble, and her father threatens him with imprisonment as a swindler.

He leaves Grace a note saying he will return when he has made a man of himself and can make good his obligations. Come and see if he makes good. S-14.

Rats roving around the kitchen and finally gnawing into a box of matches, igniting them is believed to be the cause of the blaze that gutted James Cosgrove's restraurant, commonly known as the "Hole in the Wall," and O. Jacobson's confectionery store, also headquarters for local Socialists, 308 LaBree avenue north, early Saturday morning at 2 o'clock. "Jake's" place is well covered by insurance while Cosgrove estimates his loss at $700.

REAL SIDE OF HUMANITY

Manager Brockway, of the Lyceum theatre, announced yesterday that he had booked the Pathe Moving Picture company's latest serial, "The Grip of Evil." The first episode will be shown together with the final episode of the "Iron Claw," Wednesday evening, September 27.

In showing this latest picture, "The Grip of Evil," the Pathe company has marshalled together twelve of their greatest actors and actresses, who are already at work, while many more will be added to the roster before another six months. For this new Pathe serial Pearl White, "The fearless, peerless Pathe girl," who has already thrilled Thief River Falls audiences in "The Clutching Hand," Exploits of Elaine," "The Iron Claw," "The Red Circle" and many other pictures, will again be seen. Other stars comprise Ruth Roland, Grace Darmond, Sheldon Lewis, Creighton Hale, Tom Moore and Leon Barry. These actors cost Pathe $300,000 a year.

"The Grip of Evil" accomplishes the challenging feat of visualizing a philosophical question in terms of photographic action, stirring, swift and convincing.

"The Grip of Evil," novelization of which has been written by Louis Tracy, is neither a serial or series in the accepted sense of the terms. It is described as a "master plot in fourteen chapters showing the real side of humanity." There will be plenty of suspense throughout. Thoughts of great Americans will be expressed in this play for the benefit of the photoplay fans crowding the theatres to see films, in the course of which there will be portrayed the ideas conceived by men whom they know personally or by both national and local reputation.

The story which is full of thrills, deals with John Burton, born a poor man, who later inherits millions. He asks himself a question: "Is Humanity in the Grip of Evil?" His quest of the answer takes him into every walk of life—society, politics, the underworld and what lies between. He bares the sins of mankind as seen in the palaces of the rich and the hovels of the poor in such a manner as to give photoplays in which his experiences are picturized elements of mystery suspense and adventure that lead to success.

Where is the world headed? The greatest minds of the country are divided on this question, some say humanity is in the grasp of evil, while others hold we are going up not down.

Every Tuesday and Thursday is feature day at the Lyceum, and Manager Brockway has secured two exceptionally good feature films for next week. On Tuesday, Sept. 19, Mary McDonald will appear on the screen in "Shoes," a five reel picture. For Thursday, September 21, a five reel Pathe Gold Rooster will be shown.

LATEST STYLES PUT ON PARADE

IS PRAISED BY EVERYONE

Merchants Who Undertook Exhibition Given Much Credit by Everyone. Many Out-of-Town People Among Onlookers.

"The Wheel of Fashion," presented at the Auditorium last evening, with Loken Brothers as the principal exhibitors and A. M. Langseth, Mrs. B. E. Dalquist and Johnson Sisters as contributors, was without doubt, the most successful affair of its kind ever attempted in a city the size of Thief River Falls. The big Auditorium was packed to the doors long before the time set for the beginning of the show, the people coming from long distances in order to witness the display.

The latest and most up-to-date articles in the way of wearing apparel for women were here displayed to the best advantage. A beavy of young ladies of the city acted as models and carried off their part of the program with both grace and dignity. The other appointments were fully up to the main feature. The music by an orchestra of nine pieces under the direction of Prof. Joe Greenfield, was most appropriate during the exhibition, while the chorus members proved a most enjoyable feature. This chorus was directed by Miss Evelyn Grindeland and composed of the following young ladies: Misses Bernice Langseth, Nora Holmes, Dorothy Miller, Ardith Arpin, Helen Weeks, Helen Strand, Doris Halvorson, Doris Brumund, Lois Wold, Dorothy Bottleson, Celina Bourque, Myrtle Berg. Chase F. Mix favored the audience with one of his popular tenor solos.

Much of the success of the offair is due to the models. They wore the pretty clothes with an air of ease and seemingly unaware of the effect they were producing. A platform had been erected down the center of the Auditorium and along this they prominaded, singly or in pairs—whichever way appealed to Director H. O. Loken as being the most effective. Every appearance was applauded by the big audience, the people apparently not only liking the costumes but being determined to show that they appreciated the large amount of work and care expended in order that they might enjoy this unusual exhibition. The following young ladies served as models: Misses Myrtle Rasmusson, Marie Nelson, Ruth Bamford, Laura Stopple, Gudrun Evenson, Eva Messerschmidt, Nettie Kepple, Murial Loken, Grace Wilson, Lottie Elg, Alice Peterson, Anna Wiczek, Zella Zeh, Christine Lundberg, Gladys Nelson, Ione Ioken, Lorine Eagler and Baby Hankins. The ushers were Misses Lucille Burns, Florence Fasel, Grace Loken, Elva Bartlett, Irene Woodcock, Irene Plummer, Irene Sorenson, Ruth Vik Phonsie O'Neill.

The Goods Exhibited.

Practically everything in the line of outer garments for women was on exhibition, the line including suits and furs, cloth coats, plush coats, children's coats, skirts and waists, ladies' dresses, afternoon dresses, kimonas and party gowns. The millinery and shoe display was in every respect in keeping with the remainder of the make-up, great care having been taken to get exactly the proper harmony effect throughout.

Beautiful Decorations.

The stage setting was in keeping with the balance of the appointments. A flower-decorated pergola adorned the center of the stage, the models passing around and behind this in their trip toward the center of the room. The electric lighting effects were handled by W. H. Seitzler, manager of the Princess theatre, and added much to the charm of the general result.

Entitled to Much Credit.

Loken Brothers are entitled to a great deal of credit for going to this amount of trouble and expense for the purpose of demonstrating to the people that the very best to be had anywhere can be secured right here at home. The cost was considerable but the originators of the scheme believe that in the long run it will prove a paying venture. At any rate they are very glad that the show was put on, and so are the people of the city generally. The success of the exhibit proves conclusively that our citizens will turn out to anything worth while, even when the weather is not the best. It also proves that the people read The Times, this being the only newspaper employed by Loken Brothers for advertising the event. Everybody is to be congratulated.

Many Outsiders Here.

Two hundred seats had been reserved by mail, telegraph and telephone by people residing in other cities in this section. Crookston, Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire all sent their quota and more would have been on hand had it not been for the threatening weather. All voiced their astonishment that such a show could have been successfully put on here.

Choosing Advisors.

The various high school classes are organizing and selecting class advisors. The Senior class chose Mr. Johnson as their class adviser; the Juniors, Miss Storli, the Sophmores, Miss Johnson: and the Freshmen have not chosen theirs.

FOOTBALL TEAM IN GAME SATURDAY

The Thief River Falls high school football team will begin their fall "drive" on Northern Minnesota elevens Saturday afternoon, September 23, when they clash in the initial game of the season with Red Lake Falls, in the latter city.

For two weeks Coach Johnson has been drilling his men in preparation for the opening contest. Each evening the boys have been tearing up the practise field by dashing off play after play with a precision that is creditable. The usual preliminary work of passing the ball, kicking, punting, falling on the pigskin is also included on the program.

Light but fast will adequately describe the condition of the 1916 team when it lines up against Red Lake Falls Saturday to compete for initial honors. The boys have shown some splendid work in scrimmage and are unusually fast, which counter balances their lack of weight. Frank Conner and Clarence Ringham, are the only heavy candidates, both weighing in the neighborhood of from 175 to 185 pounds.

Looking over the backfield for Saturday, it appears that this section will not lag behind. Steen, who is heavier this year than last, is slated for fullback, while Vincent Borry goes in as left halfback, and Stebbins, right halfback. Alvin Holzknecht, pilot of the eleven, will start the game at quarterback, and if things begin to look easy "Chuck" Prichard will go in for a time. In the line Hugh McDaniel will hold down right end, Myrvel Kromer, right tackle, Joseph Hall or Clarence Ringham, right guard. Rheuben Teslow or Rufus Barackman are candidates for center and the former will enter the game first. Frank Conner, the heaviest man on the eleven, will hold the right guard job down, while Hobson Rogers will officiate at left tackle. "Chuck" Connor, light but speedy, will fill left end. "Dutch" Zeh will accompany the team as substitute. With this lineup for the first game Coach Johnson will get a good line on his men.

To Arrange Good Card.

The home season is expected to open October 7, when Johnson's Colts will take on the Stephen aggregation, although the game is pending. Red Lake Falls will play a return game on the following Saturday, Oct. 14. Arrangements are being made to bring Fosston here October 28 and Crookston here November 4.

KILLED WHILE TRYING TO SAVE LIFE OF SON

Trygve Randers, cashier of the Valley State bank at Crookston, and one of the best known men in this part of the state, was instantly killed while trying to save his little son from being run over by an automobile at Crookston on Sunday. Deceased was formerly one of the officers of the Kiewel Brewing company and was a frequent visitor in Thief River Falls.

Mr. Randers, accompanied by his four-year-old son, was standing on the sidewalk in conversation with Ben Kiewel when the boy started to cross the road in front of an approaching automobile. Mr. Randers leaped after the youngster, rescued him and backed squarely in front of another machine driven by George C. Holden, in spite of the efforts of the driver to turn out and save an accident. Mr. Holden drove his car into the iron supports of the bridge, but Mr. Randers was caught by the front of the machine and his body crushed against the iron girder. The little fellow was also under the car behind the front wheels when nearby witnesses rushed to the rescue. The body of the victim of the crash was removed to the sidewalk and death ensued in the course of a few minutes.

CHAIRMAN NAMES G. O. P. BOOSTERS

GOOD MEN, TRIED AND TRUE

An Aggressive Campaign Will be Waged From Now On With Particular Attention Paid to the National Candidates.

The executive committee of the Pennington county Republicans met at the court house on Tuesday afternoon and completed the organization for the entire county by appointing the committeemen for each of the different localities entitled to representation.

Chairman H. H. Hieber stated that reports from all sections of the county are to the effect that the old line Republicans are enthusiastic over the outlook for success and that the Progressive party supporters of four years ago are practically all back in the fold. With a united party there is no doubt of the outcome, according to the chairman, but he hoped that every committeeman would work to the best of his ability to make the majority as large as possible.

Those Selected.

TOTAL OF $42,000 FOR CITY PURPOSES

Levy Made by Council For Coming Year is $3,100 Greater Than in 1915.

A levy of $42,100 for the purpose of meeting the expenses of the city's administration during the coming year was made at a special meeting of the city council on Monday night.

This is $3,100 more than was levied for last year, the increase practically all going to the credit of the current expense fund. The levies for the two years are as follows:

	1915	1916
Current fund	$14,000	$17,000
Road Improvement	400
Local Improvement	2,400	2,500
Auditorium Fund	1,700	1,700
Sinking Fund	3,500	3,000
Poor Fund	1,000	2,000
Interest Fund	3,400	3,500
Hydrant rental	2,600	2,500
Park Fund	1,000	500
Cemetery		600
	$39,000	$42,100

The matter of sending a representative to the meeting of the state municipal league at Red Wing in October was discussed and laid over for action later.

Prepare Own Lunches.

The Knox teachers have organized a system whereby they prepare their own lunches in the building. It works satisfactorily and relieves them of long noon walks over town.

MARKET DAY A GREAT SUCCESS

FIVE HUNDRED AT DINNER

Free Auction Well Attended and Numerous Sales Made—Merchants Report Bargain Specials Generally Taken Advantage Of.

The Thief River Falls Commercial club acted as host to its farmer neighbors on Saturday at the most successful market day event ever held in the city. Added to the club's inducements of a free dinner and a free auction were special bargains by the merchants of the city. These assert that as a result they had one of the best days of the season.

Secretary Lincoln of the Commercial club, reports that about 500 hundred partook of the dinner at the club rooms, the greater part of this number being composed of farmers and their families, and that more would have been served were it not that many of the townspeople saw early in the day that the visitors would be able to take care of everything that had been prepared, and on that account deemed it advisable to secure their lunch in the usual manner. The event had been liberally advertised and it was expected that the attendance would break the record. The result, however, greatly surprised even the most sanguine.

Merchants Give Tickets.

The idea took root in the first place through a desire on the part of everybody in the city to do something that would get the farmers better acquainted with the home merchant. Particularly was it desired to prove by actual demonstration that goods can be bought as cheaply at home as in the cities. In order to convince the farmer visitors that they could even do better right in their neighborhood the merchants made special offers on seasonable goods.

The scheme was to give a dinner ticket with each purchase, regardless of its size. All the merchants whose Market Day advertisements appeared in the local papers were given these tickets to hand out to their customers. Nearly every business man in the city gave out the supply on hand and most of them could have used a larger number. That the advertisements had been noted was evidenced by the fact that the purchasers almost invariably asked for the tickets if these were not forthcoming when the purchase was made. It proved a very good stunt and will in all probability be repeated at another time.

The Auction.

An invitation had been extended to bring in anything they might have that they wished to get rid of and have it put up at auction. This was very liberally taken advantage of, the sale continuing until late in the afternoon. Everything imaginable, from a horse to a bottle of pickles, was offered for sale, and found ready buyers. Sheriff W. J. LaBree acted as auctioneer, and as this position is nothing new to him, he did the job up in good style. It is likely that this feature of Market Day will be of even greater interest hereafter now that the people have discovered this convenient means of converting into cash articles no longer needed by them.

Everyone Satisfied.

The farmers, their wives and families were greatly pleased at the efforts that had been made to make things convenient and agreeable for them. They were invited to make the club rooms their headquarters during the entire day but there was too much going on outdoors for many of them to accept this offer.

Arrangements Tested.

During the progress of the dinner the Minnesota State band rendered a number of musical selections which were greatly appreciated. The Thief River Falls Music company contributed the loan of a Victrola with numerous records, and these were listened to with much enjoyment. Secretary Lincoln and the executive committee of the club saw to it that everyone putting in an appearance was properly taken care of in the way of eatables, and if any went away without getting a square meal it was their own fault.

A number of banners were strung across the club room, all calling attention to the advisability of town and country pulling together. Following are some of the legends:

"This Club Stands For Pennington County."

"Our Interests Are Mutual. Let's Prove It."

"Welcome, Farmers. Let's Pull Together."

"Speak a Good Word For the Home Town."

Will Be Continued.

Secretary Lincoln states that if the weather will hold out the way it generally does in Northern Minnesota at this time of the year it is certain that another market and auction day will be held before long. This first event was rather in the way of an experiment. It proved so successful and satisfactory to all that it should be continued. Mr. Lincoln, as usual, put forth most of the work necessary and is entitled to much credit for the success of the affair.

THE PHILHARMONIC CLUB ON OCTOBER 2

First Lyceum Number Will be a Musical Program by This Famous Organization.

The fourth annual tour of the Philharmonic Orchestral Club includes Thief River Falls in its itinerary. This organization is composed of members of one of America's greatest symphony orchestras. There are fourteen players in the club and the instrumentation is such as to afford a perfect ensemble for the playing of all the important works of the great composers. Each member of the organization is a solo player and an artist.

A delightful feature of the evening's program will be in the soprano solos of Miss Martha Cook, a charming and gifted singer whose reputation is already established in the northwest.

The orchestra is under the able direction of Karl Scheurer, whose position in the musical world is attested by the fact that he was for many seasons second concert master of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

The music produced by this organization is of the very highest order of merit, yet it is not so severely classical as to be beyond the appreciation of the average audience as the following program will show.

Coronation March—Meyerbeer.

Overture, "Poet and Peasant"—F. B. Suppe.

Aria from "Figaro"—W. A. Mozart.

"Tell Me Fair Ladies"—Martha Cook.

Violin Solo, "Souvenir of Moscow."—Karl Scheurer.

Waltz, "Valse Trieste"—Sibelius.

Malaguena.—M. Moskowski.

Clarinet Obligatto—"Larghetto"—Mozart.

Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2—F. Liszt.

Waltz, "Rose of the South"—J. Strauss.

March of the Bojars.—Halvorson.

The Other Features.

The second in the series of entertainments is the Chicago Operatic company. This is an organization of seven artists presenting the very best in vocal and instrumental music.

December 20 is the date on which the Faust Opera Singers will make their appearance. This troupe is composed of four vocalists and a pianist.

Ex-Gov. Frank Hanly of Indiana, will be the last attraction, his date being Jan. 29.

Manager C. J. Anderson of the Auditorium, states that this Lyceum course is the best and most expensive ever secured for the smaller cities. The four numbers cost in the neighborhood of $200 more than the five-course program of last year but that he believes them worth the money. There is no question but that the entertainments are of a higher order than any heretofore given here and our people should show their appreciation of the attempt to secure the best by a liberal patronage.

OPENING BAND DANCE AT AUDITORIUM FRIDAY

The first big event of the 1916 social season will be the dance given by the Minnesota State band at the Auditorium on Friday evening. The music will be furnished by the band under the direction of Joe Greenfield and one of the features will be the special decorations to be employed in connection with the moonlight waltzes.

These band dances have always been among the most popular events of their kind given in the city. Not only is a good time at all times guaranteed, but the public seems to regard it as a patriotic duty to patronize the parties given by the band boys. The organization is one of the big assets of the city and is deserving of every encouragement.

TO ERECT NEW BRICK BUILDING

MODERN IN EVERY RESPECT

First Two Floors Will be Occupied by Owner as Clothing Salesrooms, Balance to be Devoted to Offices and Appartments.

Thief River Falls is to have another new business block before the end of another summer. At least this will be the case unless the plans now under consideration by Maurice Giller go wrong entirely, and there is but little fear of this.

Contemplated Some Time.

Mr. Giller has for some time been contemplating the erection of a larger building in order to accommodate his business, but has been waiting to see just how things were going to turn out before embarking on the venture. He recently made a trip to Minneapolis and it is understood that at that time made the preliminary arrangements for beginning the work any time that the conditions seemed propitious.

Three or Four Stories.

Mr. Giller being the owner of but 25 feet at his present location has decided that it will be necessary to use two floors for store purposes. The building will occupy the entire length of the lot, 140 feet, and the third story will be occupied by his family as living rooms. It is possible that the building may be even four stories, as Mr. Giller is at present carrying on negotiations with a concern desirous of coming here and occupying such quarters as the top floor of the building would offer.

Would Be Great Improvement.

A structure such as contemplated by Mr. Giller would be a great improvement to the section in which he is located and would almost compell some similar action on the part of other property owners.

STEADY PROGRESS MADE ON NEW DAM

Driving Piles in Hard Pan is Slow Work But Being Successfully Accomplished.

It makes no great difference how much of a hurry you may be in, when hard pan is struck things automatically slow up. The pile driving crew at work on the Kretzschmar dam have found this out during the past week. To prove the resisting power of this sand Superintendent John Hedlund, in charge of the work states that it was necessary to hit one pile 34 times in order to drive it three-quarters of an inch.

In spite of this, however, the work of putting in the coffer dam has progressed satisfactorily. The piling for the section extending eastward across the river is in place and it is expected that the portion of the dam running down stream at right angles to this will be driven by Saturday night.

The work of filling in has already begun and will be rushed as fast as possible. The planking-up is being done as rapidly as the piles are in place, the fill consisting of earth at the bottom with stone on top. When it comes to building the dam proper this stone will be mixed in with cement, thus making its removal unnecessary. It will not be necessary to remove the earth, for as soon as the supporting planks are torn out the current will take this down stream.

Superintendent Leonard Peterson of the city electric light plant has already taken up the matter of wiring for lights to be used for continuing the work at night.

Democrats Will Organize

Chairman E. M. Stanton, Pennington county member of the Democratic State Central committee, announces that a meeting will be held at the court house on Wednesday evening, Sept. 27, for the puprose of forming a county organization.

It is understood that the Democrats have been promised some speakers of more than local repute to help out in the campaign this fall and they are going to be in shape to take proper care of them when they arrive.

The Board of Education extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend the reception in honor of the school faculty at the Lincoln high school, Friday evening, September 22. A program, which appears in another column, will be presented and refreshments served.

Let's Be Reasonable

The editorial appearing in The Times last week under the heading "Give Them a Chance," started something. Our claim that people residing right in the city are as great offenders when it comes to sending out of town for supplies as are the farmers, with none of the reasons which might be advanced by the latter for so doing, has created more talk than anything dealing with similar subjects appearing in any paper we know of in this section. We are glad of it. The more the matter is discussed the better it will be for everybody.

It is foolish to ask a person to buy everything in his own town, no matter what he has to pay for it. He simply will not. He feels justified in getting his supplies where his money will buy the most. Ordinarily he is not, but we have been trying for years to make him see this without success, so have concluded to take another tack. We are willing to admit that if he can save money by sending away for his stuff he is justified in doing so. But he owes it to himself to find out what he can buy an article for at home before sending away for it. He should take into consideration the fact that there are no delays, that the goods are returnable, that there are no freight charges, that he may sometime be in a position where it is inconvenient or impossible to pay cash, that he has the privilege of acceptance or rejection after seeing the goods. If, after considering all these things, he still believes it cheaper to send his money away, his is a hopeless case and there is nothing to be done for him.

And here begins another chapter. A number—quite a number—of people have informed the Times that one of the reasons why the farmers do not patronize the home merchant is because the latter does not patronize the farmers. As an example of the way the tiller of the soil is being treated by the parties who should handle their produce the following is set forth:

"On Friday potatoes were quoted in the Duluth and Minneapolis papers as selling wholesale at $1.15 per bushel. The produce house in this city at the same time was offering 75 to 80 cents per bushel."

Now, maintains the grower of spuds, this is too much of a difference and a great deal too large a percentage of the ultimate price goes to the middleman. And it looks that way on the surface, but let's see. The freight rate to Duluth and Minneapolis is 18 cents per hundred, or about ten cents for a bushel of potatoes. Jute sacks now cost 11 cents each. Sacking, loading and the tare in sorting will easily amount to 10 cents more. This is a total of 95 cents. It often takes a week to secure a carload of potatoes, and many times it is necessary to pay the expenses of a man to chase about the country to gather up enough to make a shipment possible. This would bring the amount actually paid out for that bushel of potatoes considerably above one dollar. Does what remains out of the $1.15 received for the shipment in the cities constitute more than the produce man should be allowed for rent, bookkeeping, insurance and overhead expenses, as well as profit?

Potatoes may be selling at retail for $1.40 cents in the cities when the farmer is getting but 75 cents per bushel at the warehouse. The difference is too great, but under our present system of merchandising the profits derived by the different handlers need not be at all unreasonable.

And the retailer comes in for his share of the same censure: "He is making too great a profit." If the farmer would stop to ask himself how many retail grocers he has known who became enormously rich he would find their number very small. He will have no trouble in recalling a number who have failed. This would not be the case were the profits of the business anywhere near what the surface figures would lead one to believe they are.

And it might be added that at 75 cents the farmer is making a greater profit by far on a bushel of potatoes than the handlers and haulers combined. Which is perfectly proper.

Administration Or Legislation?

(Minneapolis Journal).

President Wilson seems to be the apostle of the quantitative theory of legislation. He says the Democratic Party has fulfilled all its promises and points out what it has done, nine-tenths of which consists in the enumeration of new enactments. He overlooks the fact that the chief promises which his Party made were to reduce the cost of living and to practice economy in public affairs, and that both of these promises have been broken.—Congressman Steenerson's Speech in the House.

The gentleman form the Ninth Minnesota is right. Administration is more important than legislation. Good laws newly passed are, no doubt, to be desired, but after all the main thing is how the old laws are enforced, and how the business of government is dispatched.

Mr. Wilson has been so intent on his "program," has been so keen to force Congress to his will in putting every item through, albeit often in greatly altered form, that he has had to pay Congress its price for its complaisance. He has had to throw the diplomatic service open to "deserving Democrats," no matter how ignorant of diplomacy; he has had to consent to making spoils of thirty thousand new offices created by Congress, and, by riders on appropriation bills, exempted from the operations of the merit system; he has had to sign bills appropriating millions for river and harbor "pork," public buildings "pork," and other varieties of bacon for Congressmen to take home with them.

In his own Cabinet he has kept such maladministrators as Daniels. The business of the Government has suffered on every side from the President's willingness to sacrifice anything to getting his way in Congress.

Sportsmen throughout northern Minnesota are advocating a closed season of from three to five years on prairie chickens. These birds have had rather a hard time of it during the past two seasons. Bad weather conditions during hatching periods has practically depleted the section of young birds, while the old ones have been gradually hunted out. The smallest bags in years are reported by hunters everywhere and there is a very general demand that all hunting be prohibited for a sufficiently long time to give the birds a chance to multiply unmolested. Minnesota sportsmen are attempting to interest those of North and South Dakota in the matter, and it is likely that bills having for their purpose the prohibiting of prairie chicken hunting for at least three years will be introduced simultaneously in the three states.

Thief River Falls is the style center of this northwestern section. This was proven by the attendance at the style show here last evening. Reservations were made for seats for more than 200 people from Crookston, Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire. It was the first attempt of its kind ever made in the city, but its success was so pronounced that it will become one of the big events of the fall season hereafter. The merchants who went to all the expense of putting forth this splendid exhibition will find it a paying proposition, but outside of this it was worth thousands of dollars as an advertisement for the city. The show proved conclusively that there is absolutely no excuse for anyone going to the larger cities in order to secure the latest and best.

While the figures may not mean much of anything, we just can't help calling attention to them. The public school enrollment at Bemidji is 1,112; at Crookston, 1,256; at Thief River Falls, 1,267. It must also be taken into consideration that because of lack of room no children under the age of six years are enrolled in the schools of this city.

———o———

There is no use attempting to dodge the fact that many northwestern farmers are going to be seriously inconvenienced during the coming fall and winter. Automobile dealers say that it is impossible to get machines fast enough to supply the demand.

———o———

The Duluth Evening Herald prints a long editorial intending to prove that the policy followed by President Wilson with regard to Mexico is the same as that of Ex-President Taft. Well, you know what happened to Taft.

———o———

There are so many things to be said in favor of the re-election of Congressman Steenerson that it is almost a shame there is no necessity for saying them.

Instead of Mr. W. A. Swanson's plan for a big ditch from Neptune to St. Hilaire, I submit the following:

A smaller ditch beginning at an intersection of the north line of section 13 with the Red Lake river, just west of Neptune; thence west to the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 7 in Deer Park; thence north to the same river, at the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 30 in Highlanding, just north of Sunbeam P. O.

It would be to a drainage proposition what a coffer-dam is to the building of a mill-dam—aid and hasten the accomplishment of the main object.

It is about half as long as Mr. Swanson's proposed ditch; can be completed in less time; affords a certain and quick relief to settlers; and the same water will reach St. Hilaire in a natural channel where it can be utilized for power.

This is not in opposition to the views set forth by Mr. Swanson, Mr. O'Neill or Mr. Hunt, but it militates the proposition of the "All Minnesota Development Associations" promulgated at Bemidji recently.

That plan to drain Red Lake and other bodies of water into the Gulf of Mexico at a cost of $25,000,000 is chimerical. Is it probable that Canada and the United States would cooperate to complete that scheme?

While considering drainage of the land, it is well to keep on the ground and in our own country, and use the natural drainage channels as much as possible.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN LUNCH AND TALK

Listen to Inspiring Address by Rev. Dr. J. F. Barackman, Brother of Local Pastor.

About forty of the men of the city accepted the invitation to partake of a lunch served by the Presbyterian ladies in the basement of the church on Friday evening. The gathering was in the nature of a neighborly visit and proved a most pleasant affair throughout.

The feature of the evening was an address by Rev. Dr. J. F. Barackman of Duluth, brother of Rev. Dr. Rufus L. Barackman, pastor of the local church. The speaker gave a most interesting account of the history of the church, its aims and accomplishments.

Dr. Barackman is not among those who believe that the Christian church is losing its influence. On the contrary, he maintained that Christianity is steadily progressing and gaining in prestige, and that among the thinking people of the earth it is held in greater estimation at this time than ever before in its history. The speaker showed by figures that the Christian church is by far the greatest institution on earth at the present time. There are in the neighborhood of 400,000,000 people of all colors and nationalities professing the faith in the entire world, about 40,000,000 of these being in America. Dr. Barackman asserted that the influence of the church in the lives of men and women was at this time greater than at any time in its history; that this influence particularly embraced the home, and regulates to a large extent the business intercourse among men.

F. F. Haynes, one of the trustees stated that the financial condition of the local church was very good. He expressed his appreciation of the cooperation and good will shown by the people of the city.

MAKES THEM COME AFTER HIS ORDERS

One Thief River Business Man Insists That Drummers Make Him a Visit.

There is one salesman, traveling for a large neckwear manufacturing concern, who will make regular trips to Thief River Falls hereafter. His line of goods is particularly desirable but he has never thought it worth his while to bring his samples nearer than Crookston. If any of the merchants dealing in this class of goods here wanted his stuff they have had to go to the Polk county town in order to inspect the line. This has been stopped.

The other day an invitation was received by one of our leading clothing dealers requesting him to come down and pick out what he wanted. The merchant receiving the note sat down and sent the following reply: "There are two first-class hotels in this town. There are also several smaller ones. The landlords of any of these will be glad to see you. There are a half dozen of us here selling neckwear, but if you want us to sell any of yours it will be necessary for you to make a trip up here and show us what you have to offer."

The traveling man came up on the next train and sold a very saticfactory bill of goods. He even admitted that hereafter it might be to his advantage to make this city his northwestern headquarters and ask the people of Crookston to come here to make their selections.

Revealing a Display of Fashion's Most Recent Creations

The Honor of Your Presence is Requested

Here are assembled many exclusive styles from the world's best designers and makers. It is a fashion event in which the Style Leadership of this store is again given forceful demonstration. We hope to have you with us on the opening days.

Important Style Features as Shown in These

Fall Garments

THE SUITS Tailored types. Jackets have large collars and are nipped in at the waist. The skirts of the jacket are full and inclined to ripple. Pockets are prominent features. THE SKIRTS are quite full and a mere trifle longer, with simple lines. MATERIALS are gabardines, velours, velour checks, duvetines, serges and mannish worsteds. DEMI-TAILORED SUITS are rather elaborations of trimming of the tailored styles, with the style features accentuated.

THE DRESSES show a marked tendency to overskirt effects, generally caught up or open at the sides. Bodices of the old-fashioned tight variety are popular in many dresses. EVENING DRESSES are more simple than ever, most of them being snug fitting waists and very large and ample skirts. MATERIALS in street dresses, serges and satins are favorites—in reception dresses, satins and crepe de chine—in evening dresses, taffeta and the softer silks—and gros de londre in all styles.

THE COATS are remarkable for their variety of style—the one ever present feature being the high and voluminous collars. Large pockets, very much like the pockets of the English soldiers' uniforms, give decoration and style. DRESSY COATS also retain the great collars and fall loose from the shoulders. EVENING COATS are quite full and have cape-like collars in very many different interpretations.

ELECTRIC PLANT WILL RUN SOON

Power House at Goodridge is Completed and Street Wires Are Being Strung.

WORK ON ROAD AND DITCH

The village of Goodrdige, incorporated as a municipality last March, is to have electric lights before the first of October unless the plans now being carried out upset in some unforseen way.

A short time ago the village council granted a franchise to P. Palmer, permitting him to use the streets of the town for the purpose of erecting the poles and stringing the wires necessary to furnish electric light current. The franchise is for a period of 25 years.

Already at Work.

Contrary to the ordinary mode of proceedure, which would preclude the possibility of anything being done with this franchise for a year or two, work was at once started. The power house has been completed and Mr. Palmer is now in the cities looking after the matter of getting the machinery shipped as quickly as possible. A crew of men have been at work stringing the wires during the past week and this part of the work will all be completed by the time the engine and dynamo are in place.

Ditches and Roads

A ditch has been started at a point one half a mile south of the tracks of the Minnesota Northwestern railway and will be continued northward until it finds an outlet in Ditch No. 18. This will drain a stretch of territory just west of the ctiy which has had a tendency to flooding heretofore. The material taken out in order to secure this ditch will provide a much-needed road northward. The east and west highways in this part of the county are among the best to be found anywhere, but cross roads running in the other direction are lacking.

When this piece of road is completed there will be a strong effort made to have it continued until Ditch No. 20 is reached. The completition of these two projects would give the people of the Mud river section of Marshall county a strong argument in making a demand for a road leading to the south. There is a settlement of farmers in this neighborhood who are at present forced to make a wide detour in order to reach a trading center of any kind and the people of Goodridge are particularly interested in making it an easy matter for them to reach town, which is their logical headquarters.

A highway between Ditches 18 and 20 will also make it a matter of comparative convenience to reach Grygla, an improvement very much needed.

Ponds To Be Drained.

There are a couple of ponds at the western edge of the village which the citizens consider a nuisance. As soon as the new ditch is completed a petition will be presented to the council, the townsite company and the railroad corporation requesting these ponds to be drained. That no objection will be raised is considered certain. Objections are not particularly noticeable at Goodridge. When the time comes for doing a thing, the people simply get together and do it. Citizens, railroad company and townsite company all are working together to make the little town the best there is, and the results of this kind of team work have been simply remarkable.

Nobody Kicked.

As in the case with any new town, Goodridge does not present a business street without its gaps. There are naturally some vacant lots still owned by the townsite company. When it was decided to put in cement sidewalks there were none of the usual objections. The company at once made provisions for putting the sidewalk along the front of its vacant property at the same time the balance of the work was done. This makes an unbroken line of walk along the principal business street and is one of the things striking the visitor most favorably.

A Park Reservation.

A plot one block in length and one half block wide has been donated by the Townsite company to the village for park purposes. This has been cleared and graded, and the placing of trees will be begun in the spring. The plot is located between the depot and the town and will be the first thing to greet the visitor when entering the city.

Going Into Cattle.

The farmers around Goodridge are in no better shape this year as regards a wheat crop than are those of other sections—and no worse. Flax is a good crop this year and will go far toward making up any loss in the wheat yield. But the Goodridge vicinity is cutting away from crops of this nature and is being devoted more and more to the raising of stock. Shipments of cattle are being made every week and a creamery is being talked of. Common with the people of other sections of Pennington county, the people of Goodridge realize fully that they are residing in a dairy and cattle section and are making preparations to take full advantage of their surroundings.

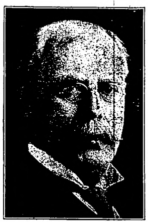
CONGRESSMAN BACK FROM WASHINGTON

Representative Steenerson Speaks of Legislation Accomplished During Past Session.

Congressman and Mrs. Halvor Steenerson returned to their homes at Crookston this week after almost continuous absence of nine months. In common with other representatives the Ninth district member was decidedly glad to get away from the grind for awhile. Most of his fellow members have a strenuous campaign ahead of them, but this will not bother Mr. Steenerson, his election being a foregone conclusion.

In an interview given a Crookston Times representative upon his return, Mr. Steenerson said that the session just closed has been the most strenuous in his experience and that he is glad to get home for a much needed rest.



CONGRESSMAN STEENERSON

Important Legislation.

Among the important items of legislation affecting this part of the state may be mentioned a provision in the River and Harbor Act authorizing the Secretary of War to make a survey of the Red Lake and Red Lake river, with a view to regulating the stream flow, so as to improve navigation, prevent floods, and conserve the domestic water supply. This provision was the outcome of a convention held at Thief River Falls last November to which the Commercial clubs of Red Lake Falls and other towns sent delegates. It is expected that a preliminary examination of the river will be made this fall.

Another matter of interest to this section is a provision in the Annual Indian Appropriation Act which establishes an Indian forest on Red Lake Reservation and authorizes the sale of the surplus timber. It is expected that some of the timber will be offered for sale this fall.

Another important new law was one amending the Volstad act so as to turn over to each county where the land is located any surplus arising from competitive bids. Heretofore a large number of tracts of land that had been assessed for drainage charges and which belonged to the government, chiefly in Beltrami, Koochiching, Marshall and Roseau counties were sold and a considerable surplus was realized from competitive bids and this surplus was turned over to the government. Under the amended law this surplus, if any is realized, will be turned over to each county and will help to maintain the ditches and roads.

Taking the work as a whole Mr. Steenerson is well pleased with the results obtained during the last congress.

U. OF M. PROFESSOR IS VISITOR HERE

John E. Granrud, Instructor in Department of Latin, Visits His Former Pupils.

Prof. John E. Granrud of the university of Minnesota, was in the city the first of the week in the interests of the Scandinavian-American foundation, the headquarters of which are in New York City. This is an organization endowed by certain wealthy Scandinavian-Americans for the purpose of propagating a closer intellectual intercourse between the peoples of the old countries and those of the United States. Since its establishment a few years ago the foundation has prospered amazingly, a number of the best known people both of Scandinavia and America having taken an active interest in the advancement of its objects.

Prof. Granrud was seeking to get a greater number of people in touch with the work of securing their subscriptions to the Scandinavian-American Review, published bi-monthly at New York. He also had the pleasure of meeting quite a number of university alumni here.

Prof. Granrud is an author of note, one of his works, a Constitutional History of Rome, being used as a text book in most of the higher institutions of learning in this country.

HEARING ON DRAINAGE MATTERS TO BE CALLED

Frank B. Kellogg Has Interested Himself in Matter and Results Will Follow.

That some action will soon be taken in the matter of preventing the overflowing of the Red Lake river now seems certain. Frank B. Kellogg, who made a trip along the river as far as Highlanding on a recent visit here, has taken the matter up and that his presentations are receiving some attention is already evident.

Senator D. P. O'Neill this week received a letter from Mr. Kellogg in which was enclosed a communication fro Maj. E. D. Peek, in charge of government drainage work in this section, in which that gentlemen gives assurance that a hearing in the matter will be held at an early date. This date is not fixed definitely because of the fact that the government officials cannot at this time tell when they will be able to be here for the purpose of holding the meetings.

Major Peek assures Senator O'Neill that ample notice of the hearing will be given to enable everyone interested to be here.

Notice to Parents.

Parents, who are the owners of automobiles, are hereby notified not to allow their children, who are under 16 years of age, to drive cars. This is the state law and will be enforced.

HUNTING GROUNDS NOT DESTROYED SAYS MUNCH

Game Warden Claims That Thief Lake Will Never be Drained Entirely Dry.

According to Game Warden Munch, the duck hunting grounds at Thief Lake will not be destroyed by reason of the draining of that body of water. According to the Crookston Times, the warden said that the drainage canal has been connected up through the lake, and the water is now flowing into Thief River but added:

"The lake is not entirely drained, and never will be on account of the pot holes. It will take several weeks to get all the surface water off, and will not in any way interfere with the hunting this fall. While the area of the lake will be smaller, there will always be plenty of water for the ducks, and it will undoubtedly continue to be a breeding place for the birds."

The drainage canal starts in Beltrami county, connects with Moose creek, from there into Thief Lake and thence into the Thief river. Farmers in the vicinity of Thief Lake are much dissatisfied with the course of the canal, according to Mr. Munch, holding that it might just as well have gone a litle farther south and run through Mud Lake which is already drained, and thus saved them their fishing grounds, which will be destroyed by the canal.

AN ACRE OF CORN COSTS 30 BUSHELS

An Acre of Wheat Also Takes 12 Bushels out of the Total Produced on Each Acre.

It takes 30 bushels of corn or 12 bushels of wheat at ordinary prices to pay for the production of an acre of corn or wheat on a Minnesota farm. Such yields of corn or wheat pay the farmer for his labor and for rent on his land, but give no profit in addition, says A. C. Arny of the Minnesota College of Agriculture. It is evident, he adds, that it is not profitable to farm a large number of acres in such a manner that the yields secured barely pay for the actual cost of production.

The sure way to secure a profit is to increase the yield. This may be done by making the soil more productive through the growing of leguminous crops, such as clover or alfalfa, through the keeping of livestock, through systematic crop rotation, through better cultivation, and through the use of better seed.

The time to consider cultivation and better seed is right now. The farmers who are most successful are those who make preparations in the fall for the next spring's planting.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Quality and Service

Any merchant is able to give quality if the customer is willing to pay the price. Real quality, however, means that the merchant has procured the very best to be had at any given price. That is our aim.

We buy often in order to keep our stock fresh. There may be a loss on account of discounts sacrificed through this policy, but it pays us in the satisfaction it insures our customers.

Next to unreliable goods, unsatisfactory service is the great stumbling block in the grocery business. Nothing is more aggravating to a housekeeper than to be kept waiting for the things she needs. We are as careful about making our deliveries promptly as we are about locking our door at night.

Big Traffic—Extra Car.—202, Soo passenger running between Thief River Falls and Kenmare, N. D., had an extra coach added Monday morning as it pulled out from the station at 8:15 a. m., owing to the large number of harvest hands returning from the harvest fields. The rush started last week, between 100 and 150 men alighting every evening. An equally large number has been recorded this week.

Sunday at Plummer.—Glenn Richardson, telegraph operator at the Soo offices, left Saturday evening for Plummer, where he spent Sunday on a hunting trip. W. E. Nash, Soo operator at Plummer, came up in the evening to accompany him down.

Laying New Rails.—Soo Section Foreman Belland had his crew of men laying rails the first of the week, replacing several stretches on the main line and also places on the track leading to the switch yards.

Cab Arrives.—A new engine cab and tank arrived at the Soo shops in this city the latter part of last week from Shoreham, these being sent here to be placed on engine 172. which was damaged in a wreck at Conway, N. D., several weeks ago, at the intersection of the G. N. and Soo tracks.

New Operator.—M. R. Monagle, went on as second trick telegraph operator at Mahnomen the first of the week, relieving E. P. Lennon, who has been transferred to Fordville, N. D. Mr. Lennon is relieving Agent J. H. Gray, at the Dakota town owing to illness.

Gasow to Dakota.—John Gasow, Soo Line engineer, left Monday morning for Overly, N. D., he being assigned to a run between Kenmare and the former place. He has been running out of Thief River Falls for the past few month. His family reside at 617 Atlantic avenue north.

To Kentucky.—James R. Henry, who has been in the Soo's employ at the round house for several months in the capacity of machinist, resigned last Friday. He has left for his home in Kentucky.

Roll Injured.—Elmer Roll, Soo switchman with the day crew, met with another accident Saturday noon while at work. Roll attempted to open the switch after it had been run through and as a result, flew back striking his left leg. The blow was sufficient to keep him from work Saturday afternoon. Ed. Lacey reported in his place. Last May Mr. Roll also met with an accident, when he was knocked from the top of a box car, as a result of the trucks leaving the track. After the latter accident he was confined to the Physician's hospital for several weeks.

Petersen Quits.—Joe Peterson, employed at the Soo yards as car repairer for some time, has resigned.

Helper Resigns.—Carl Knutson resigned from his position as machinist helper at the Soo round house on September 12, to engage in some other vocation during the fall and winter.

Ticket Man Resigns.—Ed Ahlborn, who has been acting as day ticket agent at the Soo depot, resigned his position the latter part of last week. Arthur Alnes, former express agent at the Soo, went in as temporary agent Monday, until the return of Walter Bens, who is expected here on September 21.

190 Passengers.—All records over the Wheatline were broken Monday evening when between 190 and 200 passengers alighted from the Soo Wheatline train. Most of those getting off were harvest hands returning from Dakota.

New Machinist.—Dan McKenzie went to work for the Soo Line here September 14, as machinist.

Officials On Trip.—Supt. W. A. Barnard and Assistant Master Mechanic J. W. Hendry, of the Soo Line, returned Saturday evening from a trip to Devils Lake, N. D., where they had attended to official business matters. They made the trip in Mr. Barnard's private car.

Linde On Visit.—Oscar Linde, telegraph operator for the Great Northern at Ada, arrived in Thief River Falls Saturday morning for a visit at the home of his father, John Linde, 1011 Horace avenue north.

109 Delayed.—Soo flyer, 109, running between St. Paul and Winnipeg, arriving here at 2:30 a. m., was delayed over one hour and thirty minutes Saturday morning due to a broken flue.

Master Carpenter Here.—E. A. Mills, master carpenter for the Great Northern with headquarters at Crookston, came up Monday morning to attend to matters connected with his position.

New Agent.—A. Field went on as agent for the Soo Line at Mahnomen the latter part of last week, vice A. W. Swerine, who has been transferred to third trick operator.

McCrystal to Cities.—Frank Mc Crystal, boiler maker foreman at the Soo round house, left for Minneapolis last Friday evening for a visit with frends and to attend to business matters. He was accompanied by his wife.

Supt. On Trip.—Superintendent Degnan, of the Crookston-Warroad division, passed through last Friday morning on a tour of inspection.

Engineer On Vacation.— Major Keely, Great Northern engineer, who holds a run on one of the local passengers passing through this city from Crookston to Warroad, is taking a vacation this week from his duties. He passed through Tuesday afternoon to Crookston, after having spent a few days looking over his farms near Roseau. Mr. Keely is one of the veteran Great Northern railway employees.

Back From Western Trip.—Walter Bens, day ticket agent at the Soo depot, returned Tuesday morning from his annual vacation spent on a trip through some of the western states. Mr. Bens spent a short time in South Dakota after which he proceeded to Billings, Montana, and later through Wyoming and other places.

Halbert To Pittsburg.— "Chesty" Halbert, Soo Line brakeman, took his departure Tuesday evening for Pittsburg, Pa., where he was called by the illness of his mother.

Bids Wanted.

The town board of Rocksbury will meet on the northeast corner of section 12, October 2, at 1 o'clock to receive bids for the digging of a ditch on said range line. About 1,400 yards to excavate. Right reserved to reject any or all bids. Lars Netteland, Clerk, Route 2, St. Hilaire.—S21-28.

The Crimson Stain	? ? ? ? ?

The great city of New York is in a state of mind bordering on panic. Prominent men whose names are household words are murdered by an unknown assassin— strangled to death. Robbery is invariably the motive.

Dr. Burton Montrose, a famous scientist, discovers a biological element which he believes will improve the mental faculties of the human race, in time producing a race of super people. Applied in secret upon human subjects, the discovery reacts, changing them into cruel, relentless murderers who have for their leader one, Pierre La Rue. No one knows of the doctor's connection with the murders except the murderers themselves.

There is a hue and cry. The police spurred on by the newspapers, bend all their efforts towards the solving of the mysterious murders, but find themselves completely baffled—at every turn. The Examiner, the biggest newspaper, attacks the police for their failure to apprehend the criminals, and assigns Harold Stanley, son of the owner, to run down the only clue obtainable—an ante mortem statement made by a victim that the leader of the killers has a Crimson Stain in his eyes.

Harold Stanley and Florence Montrose, daughter of Dr. Montrose, are sweethearts. Walking one evening he tells her he is working on the mystery when suddenly they see silhouetted on the window of a house three figures, one of whom is strangling the other, while the third is spurring him on to the deed. While Florence runs for help Stanley breaks into the house. In the darkness he is attacked by the murderer and he sees the Crimson Stain in the killer's eyes. Florence returns with the police in time to save Stanley.

That evening Stanley, his father, and Robert Clayton, an artist, are dinner guests at the Montrose home. During the evening, while Stanley, Florence and Clayton are in the music room, Stanley's father is murdered in the dining room while alone. Florence discovers the body and sees the Crimson Stain who makes good his escape upon the approach of Stanley and Clayton who are attracted by Florence's screams.

Stanley vows never to rest until he has avenged his father's death.

Mrs. Arthur S .Chase.

Mrs. Arthur S. Chase, a resident of Thief River Falls for over one year, passed away at her home, 907 Knight avenue north, Wednesday morning at 3:30 o'clock, death coming as the result of childbirth. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Brainerd, at the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Chase whose maiden name was Cora Bacon, was born near Pillager, Minn., 26 years ago. She was united in marriage to Mr. Chase two years ago, and to this union were born two children, Evelyn, age 19 months, and the child born Wednesday morning. The deceased is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bacon, of Brainerd, and three sisters, one of whom resides at Pillager and the other two at Brainerd. She is also survived by her husband.

Mrs. Katie Gray.

Mrs. Katie Gray, who has been residing with her son, Hans Gray, at Fordville, N. D., died in this city on Monday. The deceased had been in Thief River Falls receiving medical aid. She was born in Norway February 16, 1850, making her age at the time of death 66 years, 7 months and 2 days. The remains were shipped to Fordville Wednesday for interment.

SCHOOL NOTES

Two practice rooms have been organized for the normal training departments from the lower grades in the Washington and Central buildings.

An additional high school teacher will be secured at once to assist with some of the departments in which large classes are enrolled.

The football team visits Red Lake Falls Saturday to contest for the initial honors of the season.

The "Washington" plan is arranged so that the classes working under it recite all the time they are in school. The private conferences during free hours are from 8:45 to 12:15 and 12:45 to 4:30.

A large attendance of school children in this city is not startling or novel. They have annually appeared in generous numbers in September, and though some crowding occurs in certain grades the first and second weeks, the board of education and the superintendent have always maneged to care for the pupils and that too without unnecessary delay or inconvenience. Adjustments in seating and attendance have already been made so that a moderate enrollment is now found in all grade roms.

Three more typewriters have been ordered by the board for the commercial department; the science rooms have also secured some convenient work tables; the agricultural department room is receiving additional supplies; and books and material are arriving for various other grades and rooms.

The various industrial clubs taking part in the sewing, bread baking, corn, potato, calf, chicken and pig contests will hold their proposed fair at the Lincoln high school on Friday and Saturday, October 13th and 14th. All contestants will be notified by letter as to particulars of the exhibition. The corn and potato plots are now being examined.

Coming Next Wednesday.

Movie fans of Thief River Falls are awaiting with much interest the initial episode of "The Grip of Evil," Pathe's latest master serial in fourteen parts. The first chapter will be given at the Lyceum next Wednesday evening, September, 27, together with the closing number of "The Iron Claw." In this new serial twelve of Pathe's greatest actors and actresses will be seen on the screen and more will be added to the roster before another six months.

SOME GOOD ADVICE
Strengthened by Thief River Falls Experiences.

Kidney disease is too dangerous to neglect. At the first sign of backache, headache, dizziness or urinary disorders, you should give the weakened kidneys prompt attention. Eat little meat, take things easier and use a reliable kidney tonic. There is no other kidney medicine so well recommended as Doan's Kidney Pills. Thief River Falls people rely on them. Here's one of the many statements from Thief River Falls people.

Mrs. George Williams, 412 Main Ave., N. Thief River Falls, says: "I think highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and have all reason to, as the cure they made in my case has been permanent. It is a little over four years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills. I was bad off with my kidneys and back and was not able to work for a whole summer. I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and was cured."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that cured Mrs. Williams. S.14-21.

HOW APPENDICITIS CAN BE PREVENTED.

Thief River Falls people should know that a few doses of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka, often relieve or prevent appendicitis. This simple mixture removes such surprising foul matter that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour stomach or gas. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. Adler-i-ka has easiest and most thorough action of anything we ever sold. F. J. Stebbins, druggist.

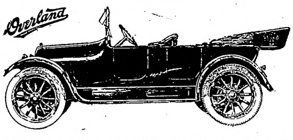
THIRTEEN AUTOMOBILE PRIZES FOR THIRTEEN SCENARIO IDEAS

CONSOLIDATED FILM CORP. OFFERS OVERLAND "SIXES" FOR STORIES BASED ON CHARACTERS, SITUATIONS AND MYSTERIES IN "THE CRIMSON STAIN MYSTERY."



The Consolidated Film Corporation, which company is presenting "The Crimson Stain Mystery," a sixteen episode serial, in which Maurice Costello is being starred, supported by Ethel Grandin, announces something new and big in connection with its serial. This company will give away, positively free of charge, thirteen automobiles; they will be six cylinder high powered 1917 Overlands. Everyone in the country will be given a chance to win.

It will be necessary to follow the sixteen episodes carefully, and then to write suggestions for a five reel feature based on the characters, mysteries and situations of "The Crimson Stain Mystery." Those who desire to enter this contest need not worry if they are not expert scenario writers, as the construction of the matter is not necessary. It will be the bright ideas and suggestions that will count. Professional men of high repute will act as judges.

Everything must be typewritten and sent to the executive offices of the company at No. 1482 Broadway, New York City. Here is a chance for some of the embryo motion picture writers who are continually declaring that their efforts are ignored by motion picture companies, also those who claim that their stories and ideas are deliberately stolen. Everyone will have an opportunity to participate and to win a car.

Many things have been given away in the interest of a serial picture, but never before has anything of such great magnitude been attempted, as the giving away by the Consolidated of thirteen big luxurious automobiles.

A brief description of the car follows: 35-40 h. p.; five passenger; 116-inch wheel-base; electric starting and lighting vacuum gasoline system; demountable rims; full streamline body; cantilever rear springs; built in windshield; and a rich Brewster green finish, white striped, completes the thoroughly stylish appearance.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf, where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father, who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria.

FOURTH EPISODE

Gloria went as if blindfolded through the glittering throngs in the corridor of the Metropolitan. It was a cruel humiliation to her young heart not even to be recognized by the man she had waited for through five eternal years, the man she had loyally considered herself engaged to all that time.

But Freneau was not long in finding out his mistake. Gloria had run away from her father to run to Freneau, only to run away from him in turn. Old Stafford, looking for Gloria, encountered Freneau, shook him warmly by the hand and asked: "Have you seen my daughter?"

Then he realized with a shock that the man Freneau was engaged to his daughter, and that the respite of five years was up. The mortgage on Gloria's heart was due. Stafford glowered at the handsome young enemy of his happiness.

But Freneau had suddenly realized that Gloria was Gloria. He made haste to pursue her. He caught her just as she paused at the door of the Stafford box and put up her absurdly small handkerchief to catch the absurdly large tears as they escaped over her pink petal cheeks.

Freneau deftly turned his slight into a compliment:

"Miss Stafford—Gloria! I was so dazzled when I saw you that I couldn't speak. You were tremendously pretty as a—as a kid; but now, with your hair up and all this grandeur on, you're—you're a goddess. And you're mine, aren't you? You're still mine!"

His impetuous charge staggered her, but she was too deeply hurt to forgive him at once. She shook her head dolefully and punished him with sorrow rather than with anger. In spite of all he could say she slipped into the box, closed the door almost on his fingers and vanished.

He cursed his stupidity and turned away. He joined a group of men seated in a box, among them his partner, Frank Mulry, who was beaming like a full moon wrapped up in broadcloth and white linen. Freneau began peering about the house through his opera glass. He fastened them on Gloria where she sat brooding bitterly. The first great meeting with her lover had failed to live up to the dreams she had been cherishing for five years.

He Lost No Time in Preambles.

Her father leaned over and tried to interest her in the opera.

"'Boris Godunow' is my favorite opera," he said, "and Amato is in splendid form tonight."

But Gloria hardly heard the sonorous orchestra or the thundering chorus. The music was little more to her than a loud wind blowing about her the ashes of her dead romance.

By and by the opera glasses went roving idly along the boxes. They suddenly brought Freneau before her with a jump. He seemed very near and the lenses of his opera glasses were like eyes staring into her own. She could not help smiling back into his appealing smile. Indeed, when he began to signal her to meet him in the corridor she was tempted to consent. To the girl just out of school that would be a frightful adventure, more exciting than her wanderings in the everglades and her capture by the Seminoles.

She shook her head at Freneau and turned to see what her father thought of her flirtatiousness. She saw why he liked "Boris Godunow" so much. He had never slept better. Now, with her chaperon gone to Dreamland, it looked to Gloria as if Providence meant that she should pursue the adventure.

She did not know that Lois Stafford, seated in David's box, was taking in these wireless signals from one side of the horseshoe to the other. She did not see how Lois glowered at Freneau's alluring grin; how fiercely she frowned when Freneau rose and left the box, and how frantic she was when Gloria arose and left hers. For Gloria, seeing Freneau go, hesitated only a moment, then rose and stole away, too, leaving her father in a peaceful slumber which all the clamors of the Russian opera could not disturb.

Outside the Stafford door Freneau waited in ambush. He was rewarded by the appearance of Gloria. He was so delighted that when she asked him why he had motioned to her to meet him he could think of nothing better to say than: "I thought you might be hungry. There's the buffet upstairs."

Gloria smiled and understood and accepted the challenge. She said she was famished. The corridors and the massive stairway were empty at this time and they scampered up to the refreshment room like children.

Gloria was enchanted by the array of cakes and became hungry in the presence of the feast. She poked her finger at the most toothsome.

"Give me this, give me this; one of these, two of those and a chocolate and pistache ice cream—and some lemonade."

Freneau led her to a table and they began to renew old acquaintance. She renewed her five-year-old expression of gratitude to him for rescuing her from the Indians, and he had neither the courage nor the honesty to admit that it was not he but Dr. Royce who had fought the chief to a livestill. Freneau and Gloria had many things to discuss, but he did not tell her all the mischief he had been up to in the five years' test. That went without saying. They did not know that the room filled up with a chattering mob when the curtain went down, nor that the chattering mob disappeared when the curtain went up again.

Gloria prattled on, munching her cakes and ice and sipping her lemonade. Suddenly she felt her ear seized in a familiar grasp. Her father had wakened with a start when the orchestra quit playing. He had blinked about in the sudden bright lights and missed his daughter. She was lost in the mazes of the opera house. He was tempted to offer a reward for her, as he had when she decamped into the everglades.

He decided to search first for her himself. He found the estray in the deserted buffet, spooning up the last of her ice cream and the best of Freneau's flatteries. He dragged her out of heaven. She fought him all the way down the stairs, but he would not let her go. He would not let Freneau come near.

At the next intermission her father tagged along like a younger brother. Before she could get to Freneau her sister-in-law, Lois, captured him. Lois rebuked Freneau for his attentions to Gloria, and reminded him of his oaths of fidelity to her own unfaithful self. He made light of his interest in Gloria and was avowing his devotion to Lois when her husband appeared at their elbows.

They masked their confusion as best they could and Freneau sauntered away. David glowered after him and glared at his wife. He had not forgotten that Freneau had been his rival for Lois' fickle heart before they were married. He did not dream how deeply she was involved with Freneau now; but the first seed of suspicion was sown. Lois' father, Judge Freeman, had not forgotten Lois' early infatuation for the young broker, who had a gift of making women reckless. He saw how David was miffed. He saw also how Gloria tried to reach Freneau, only to lose him in the crowd. The judge was trained in observing human nature. He even ventured to speak to Gloria.

"I wouldn't think too much of that Freneau fellow if I were you, Gloria."

"But you aren't me, are you, judge?" Gloria answered impudently, and the judge retired, mumbling: "No! I'll have to admit that."

Then Pierpont came up and compelled Gloria to go back and listen to mere opera, when she wanted to hear Freneau's glorious voice. When the last curtain fell and the multitude flooded the corridors she did not get a glimpse of him. Her father kept watch over her and Gloria went home amazed at the cantankerous meddlesomeness of parents in love affairs.

She told her father that he ought to be in better business than playing the demon chaperon, but he only smiled. She was all he had and he wanted to keep her to the last moment. He wanted also to make some investigation of Freneau's behavior and his reliability as a son-in-law. He had heard but little about him, but that little was not good.

* * *

The next day a rescuer appeared in unexpected guise. Her aunt, the great Hortensia Stafford, called to see her, raved over her beauty and hailed her as a graduate from the ranks of girldom.

"You must have a coming-out party," she said, "and take up the duties of womanhood."

Pierpont violently insisted that Gloria was only a child. But he was only a father and merely a brother to Hortensia, so she waved him aside as a nuisance. Gloria embraced her fervently and thought her an angel.

She changed her mind when it came to sending out the invitations for the debut, for Aunt Hortensia was a stickler for social selectness and she loved to blue-pencil doubtful names.

Gloria made out a list of those she wanted. There were dozens of girl friends and a few young men she had known from baby-carriage days. She wrote among these the name Richard Freneau with loving flourishes. Aunt Hortensia ran him through with one straight thrust of her deadly blue pencil. Gloria protested, but Hortensia answered:

"I don't know him. I don't wish to know him. You have no time to know him. Who is he?"

When Gloria started to tell her she would not listen, and Pierpont had one from Freneau's hand, he slapped him on the back and said:

"The main thing is that she thinks you saved her, so it's her turn to save you. Marry her quick! We can borrow a big wad on your father-in-law's mere name."

His mind shifted back and forth like a shuttlecock, weighing all the chances. There was his entanglement with Lois. What a double-dyed fool he had been to flirt with Gloria's sister-in-law! How very careless of him! She might spoil everything. She would be bound to see and know something of his courtship.

He felt sure he could win Gloria over again as he had won her heart five years before, provided he could still pose in the light of a courageous and faithful suitor. But Lois must be kept from ruining everything. His best chance lay in speed, he thought, and his ability to keep Lois quiet.

"All right. We'll marry her."

* * *

Standing at the head of the famous Stafford stair, in line with her aunt, her girl friends, and Lois, was the most exquisite debutante of the season. Aunt Hortensia had seen many in her long life, but she heaved a small, polite sigh of great pride and contentment as she glanced over the imperious young figure at her side.

Miss Stafford had insisted that simplicity be the keynote of her niece's attire at this afternoon reception in her honor; but the cunning of the dressmaker had contrived to cause the appearance of simplicity over a most complicated study in beauty line. Yet above the wealth of fabric the joyous youth of Gloria shone forth transcendent.

The house was so filled with flowers sent by admiring friends and hope-cheerful moment. Gloria, however, would not let her lover be snubbed so arrantly. She knew that argument with this imperative relative was worse than useless, so she merely nodded her head in obedience and sat about to circumvent her, fluttering about again while her aunt returned to her own list. Gloria annexed an invitation, an envelope, and a pen, and the deed was done. An invitation to Mr. Richard Freneau reposed in the basket with those all ready for the mail, and with elaborate innocence Gloria danced over to her ignorant relation.

When that invitation was received at the office of Freneau & Mulry it seemed like a message from heaven to the almost broken brokers. The business was in fearful shape and they were about ready to close up shop unless some miracle should occur to tide them over.

Mulry had been pacing the floor, discussing ways and means; Freneau was disgustedly beating a tattoo on the desk, when the office boy entered with the mail. On the top lay the large envelope. Opening it, Freneau read that Mr. Pierpont Stafford and Miss Gloria Stafford requested the pleasure of his company at a debut dance on a certain afternoon.

Freneau proudly showed it to Mulry.

Mulry blew a long whistle and said: "What right have you got to get this?"

"I saved her life," Freneau replied. Mulry laughed, "Ah, go on." When Freneau told him his version of the story, vividly describing how little Gloria had been lost in the everglades of Florida and taken prisoner by a tribe of Seminoles, and how Freneau had tracked her through the wilderness and saved her from the young chief who was determined to make the girl his squaw, Freneau's language had all the vividness that only fiction achieves. But Mulry still laughed:

"You never saved a kitten from a poodle." He knew Freneau.

Freneau was furious, but Mulry looked him up and down with a contemptuous admiration. Then, sobering quickly, and taking the invitation ful suitors, that the affair was like a merrymaking in the gigantic conservatory. At the foot of the steps stood a footman, resplendent in powdered hair, with silk stockings, red velvet coat and kneebreeches. At the edge of the receiving line the old butler, Griggs, kept calling each guest's name clearly and distinctly, so that the hostesses need not puzzle their wits over who was who.

Gloria's heart pounded proudly beneath her chiffons. It was not half bad to be a young queen in one's own palace and at last to be considered a real part of it. Yet as guest after guest was presented to her aunt she gave each only an instant's graciousness, then her eyes went beyond and her ears strained for the magical name of her idol—Freneau.

She did, indeed, give a little extra honor to one old friend. As Dr. Royce mounted the stairs Gloria ran forward from the line to greet him specially. She presented him to her aunt, and his heart glowed warmly with Gloria's welcome. Aunt Hortensia's keen eyes lit up with pleasure as she greeted him, too, for something about the look of his eye and the grip of his hand gained her worldly wise favor. But Gloria's affection for Royce was not love, and when he turned back to her for a word he found her distrait. He sighed and passed on to Lois, waving her little hand to someone in the ascending stream of guests.

When Dr. Royce had shaken hands with the rest of the hostesses he saw Freneau already holding Gloria's hand. There was an expression of ownership on his face, and he made no bones about incidentally holding up a line of indignant guests. Royce saw the look of adoration in Gloria's countenance, and he burned with righteous jealousy.

From this time on through the entire afternoon Royce made himself a Nemesis on the trail of Richard Freneau. Through the ballroom, the tearoom, the library and conservatory Royce followed the Gloria-hunting man. He could not do much, but he hoped to shame Freneau a little, and he put all his contempt into his eyes whenever Freneau's attempts to get a word alone with Gloria became too flagrantly expressive.

The chase was watched also by another—the terrified, conscience-haunted wife of David. Lois had given up her peace and happiness and her respect of self for the prize that she now saw being taken from her. She felt no repentance, but only a helpless rage.

Gloria had counted on dancing the first dance with her Mr. Freneau. She was so beset with wooers that he could not reach her. He was not the only man in New York willing to make love to the heiress of the Stafford wealth, who was, incidentally, dowered in her own right with a beauty and magnetism that would have meant a fortune to any girl.

Gloria tried to dodge the gnatlike suitors: "May I have this dance? The next? The one after that, then?" They followed her among the pillars about the ballroom floor. They cornered her at last, and Dr. Royce confronted her. She was about to take him in desperation when she saw Freneau at her shoulder.

He was the man of men, but a sudden shyness overwhelmed her. Her betrothal to him had not yet been ratified again, and she was afraid to let everyone see her choose him. Her humid eyes caught sight of her father, who was smiling in the hope that there was security in numbers. She made a dive at him and made him her beau. Everybody admired her tactful choice; but Pierpont knew more about investments than about the fox trot, and he had more rheumatism in his muscles than grace. He made a sorry figure in the crowd of dancers, and finally collapsed in Royce's arms. Gloria giggled.

"I turn him over to you, doctor."

Royce laughed till he saw that she surrendered herself to Freneau. Then he frowned. He was in a miserable dilemma. He could see that Freneau cast a spell over the young soul of Gloria, and he knew him to be unworthy of the girl's trust. Royce knew that Freneau was a cad. He had stolen from Royce the fruits of his victory over the Indian chief. Royce had fought for Gloria and for his own life while Freneau carried her off. And now Royce wanted to save her from Freneau as he had saved her from the Seminole. But, alas! this was quite another matter, for Gloria did not want to be saved.

Royce could not bring himself to declaring the truth of the matter, for he could not endure to exploit his own prowess. He knew enough of the world, too, to know that if he went to Gloria with criticism of her cavalier, he would only add to Freneau the charm of persecution. He was in the presence of a complication of dangerous symptoms, and he did not know how to act to prevent their developing into a plague of troubles. He could only do what he could to keep Freneau assured that his conquest of the young girl's heart would not be opposed.

Suddenly a careless glance at Lois gave him a start. She was in such distress that he moved to her to offer his help. She was watching Freneau dance with Gloria. She saw how content they were together and her heart turned sick. But before Royce could reach her a determined youth cut in on Gloria's dance with Freneau and dragged her from his arms for the rest of the dance. Then Freneau hurried to Lois.

Instantly Lois was better, smiling once more, for now it was she whom Freneau encircled with his arm and piloted through the skipping and gliding traffic on the ballroom floor.

Freneau held Lois tightly and whispered to her honeyed lies. He explained that he had to be polite to his hostess and that Gloria was a dear child, but, of course, she was nothing to him, while Lois was all in all.

And Lois believed.

Bad women are, of course, bigger fools than good women; otherwise they would be wise enough to be good. But, being fools, it is not strange, perhaps, that they should be so easily fooled. They can seldom believe or disbelieve truly. The intuition upon which they so confidently rely constantly plays them false, and belief becomes the servant of wish.

That dance over, the godlike young heart breaker betook himself again to the trail and followed the Stafford millions.

Gloria had had enough of the guests. She wished that they would all go home. Instead they were still pouring in. The slam of the doors of their cars could be heard even here, as motor after motor rolled up, emptied its human contents on the marble steps and rolled away.

What Gloria wanted now was a solitude for two. Freneau was more than willing. Seeing a young man coming to whom she had promised several dances and given none, Gloria fled among the crowd, motioning Freneau to follow. She led the way through the dense wilderness of the conservatory to a marble bench, appropriately placed at the feet of a fountain where a little old marble Cupid presided. The trysting place was evidently popular, for Gloria flushed one brace of plover when she parted the branches.

She did not recognize the young man and woman who scurried away, but she understood their longing for quiet and would have apologized if they had lingered. But now that they were gone she smiled at Freneau and invited him to sit beside her.

"This is the nearest to the everglades we have," she said.

He lost no time in preambles. He began: "Gloria, dear, I've waited five years for this moment, and I want you to know that my heart has never for one moment—"

There was a rustle of palm leaves and the swish of skirts. Someone was invading their Eden. He sighed: "No hope!"

Gloria whispered: "Never mind; come out to our country place tomorrow and I'll take you for a sleigh ride behind my ponies. And I'll drive."

Freneau chuckled as he understood. He drew closer to the delectable witch, only to see over her shoulder the eyes of an earlier witch.

It was Lois. Fearing that Gloria might see her she retreated. But Doctor Royce had followed, too, and he had seen Lois' face as she watched the lovers. He understood now the fever that he had noted on her face a while before. He understood, too, that he had an ally in his battle against Freneau's prosperity with Gloria—not an altogether desirable ally, but all allies are welcome in love or war. And this was both.

Biggest Little Dairy Country.

Denmark holds the world's record for intensive farming. After Germany had taken Schleswig-Holstein, Danish experts figured that their development must come from within and they proceeded to develop the arid wastes of Jutland, which have now become tremendous producers of agricultural and dairy products. The Danes claim that they have solved most of Europe's intensive farming problems and that much of German efficiency in this direction has been learned from them. The little kingdom is one of the greatest dairy producers of the world and its butter is exported to every part of the earth. It is found in Mexico, and even in the far-off islands of the antipodes as well as in Patagonia. Its reputation in Europe, particularly in England, is unexcelled, and vast quantities have been shipped for years to all the countries of Europe. American business men have always admired the wonderful cow-feeding methods employed by the Danish farmers who tether their cattle in rows in such a way that they can eat but a certain section of grass in a day. The next day they are moved forward in the meadows and it is worked out on such a minute basis that by the time the cows have reached the end of the pasture the grass is again ready for grazing at the beginning.—Wall Street Journal.

DRAINAGE PROJECT IS DECIDED JOKE

Connecting Red Lakes With Minnesota River Still Being Talked by Blind Enthusiasts.

When the people of Northern Minnesota first heard of a $25,000,000 project for the purpose of draining the Red Lakes into the Minnesota river the matter was regarded as a joke. They knew that the country in the valley of the latter stream is in worse shape as far as floods are concerned than is this section. It seems, however, that the parties behind the idea are in earnest, impracticable as the proposition is known to be.

The Minneapolis Journal states that A. L. Croker, chairman of the All-Minnesota Development association, is going to have an expert come from New York state to tell all he knows about the drainage conditions in Minnesota. According to Mr. Croker this will eventually result in the reclamation of millions of acres in northern Minnesota.

As a matter of fact there are millions of acres to be reclaimed in northern Minnesota, and only about 225,000 acres all told which would naturally drain into the Red Lakes. The 440 square miles of surface presented by these lakes would in all likelihood be able to take care of this additional amount of surface water, and talk of a $25,000,000 drainage project is all moonshine. The straightening and deepening of the Red Lake river, with controlling works at the source, would solve the entire problem and the cost would be but a small fraction of twenty-five millions.

Throughout northern Minnesota where the conditions are understood and the remedy known this big project looks like a joke. It has been charged by some that it is nothing but a huge scheme fostered by persons who love to contemplate the expenditure of enormous sums of money whether the expenditure serves any good purpose or not. Others claim to see in the project a scheme to make someone furnish the money for the development of a water power at or near Granite Falls. By no one in this region is the matter considered seriously.

If these people who are so anxious about the reclamation of the lands about the Red Lakes would work to have the natural outlet for these lakes deepened and controlled they would be acting to some purpose. This would increase the capacity of these natural drainage reservoirs and prevent floods from doing any damage along the Red Lake river, the Clearwater and the Red River of the North above Fargo. The Minnesota river is another problem altogether and will have to be dealt with separately and differently.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to Iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A.D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 193 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

Dated August 30th, 1916.

PRESBYTERIAN MEN LUNCH AND TALK

About forty of the men of the city accepted the invitation to partake of a lunch served by the Presbyterian ladies in the basement of the church on Friday evening. The gathering was in the nature of a neighborly visit and proved a most pleasant affair throughout.

The feature of the evening was an address by Rev. Dr. J. F. Barackman of Duluth, brother of Rev. Dr. Rufus L. Barackman, pastor of the local church. The speaker gave a most interesting account of the history of the church, its aims and accomplishments.

Dr. Barackman is not among those who believe that the Christian church is losing its influence. On the contrary, he maintained that Christianity is steadily progressing and gaining in prestige, and that among the thinking people of the earth it is held in greater estimation at this time than ever before in its history. The speaker showed by figures that the Christian church is by far the greatest institution on earth at the present time. There are in the neighborhood of 400,000,000 people of all colors and nationalities professing the faith in the entire world, about 40,000,000 of these being in America. Dr. Barackman asserted that the influence of the church in the lives of men and women was at this time greater than at any time in its history; that this influence particularly embraced the home, and regulates to a large extent the business intercourse among men.

F. F. Haynes, one of the trustees stated that the financial condition of the local church was very good. He expressed his appreciation of the cooperation and good will shown by the people of the city.

WINDOWS ARE FULL OF FALL DISPLAYS

In order to become thoroughly convinced that Thief River Falls is fast assuming the position of trading center for a large territory it is only necessary to take a look at the display windows of the merchants. It is safe to say that no other city of its size in the state can show a finer or more varied display of fall goods. That these could not all have been purchased with the idea that they would be disposed of in this city is self evident. If you care to ask why such large stocks were secured you will b told that not alone do the people residing in the city demand the latest and best there is to be had, but that those from the country districts are fully as particular. Many of the large stores here also supply the smaller dealers in the neighborhood and this draws heavily on the stock. Because of the uncertainity of always getting just what is wanted during these days of dye shortage the merchants stocked up heavier than usual at the time they made their purchases, and they were wise.

Some of the dealers in the city—particularly those engaged in the dry goods, women's wear and clothing lines—have just returned from the cities where they personally inspected the goods they desired for their fall trade. Those who did not do this are finding themselves rather handicapped, as naturally those having made the personal selections are taken care of before anyone ordering by mail or even through a salesman.

Artistic Window Trimming

Some the display windows are models of the trimmer's art; and prove that the merchants of Thief River Falls have a keen realization of the value of presenting their wares attractively. One would go far even in the larger cities to find seasonable articles more invitingly displayed, and this will prove of immense value. Add to this the liberal amount of newspaper space used for advertising purposes and you have a combination that sells goods.

Anyone who feels called upon to send away for anything in the line of fall wearables—whether for men, women or children—either lacks in judgment and good taste or they simply insist on being humbugged.

ROAD COMMITTEE IS MARKING TRAIL

The marking of the route of the Jefferson highway has been completed from the Red Lake county line on south to the Seven-Mile sand ridge west of the city. From the point at which the regular system of marking had to be abandoned for lack of telephone poles on which to continue it, wooden arrows have been placed for the purpose of pointing the way until the Pembina trail is reached. This work was done on Tuesday by Daniel Shaw, Secretary Lincoln of the Commercial club, and John Bratrud, the last-named gentleman volunteered his automobile for the trip.

Corns Loosen, Lift Right Off

Nothing But "GETS-IT" Will Do This to Corns and Calluses.

If you've ever had corns, you've tried lots of things to get rid of them—salves that eat your toe and leave the corn remaining, cotton rings that make your corns bulge out like popeyes, scissors and knives that make corns bleed and sore, harnesses and bandages that fill up your shoe, press on the corn and make your foot feel like a paving block. What's the use? Why not do what millions are doing, take 3 seconds off and apply "GETS-IT." It dries, you put your stocking on right away, and wear your regular shoes. Your corn loosens from the toe, it lifts right off. It's painless. It's the common-sense way, the simplest, easiest, most effective way in the world. It's the national corn-cure. Never fails.

"GETS-IT" is sold and recommended by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price, by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Thief River Falls and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by F. J. Stebbins and J. P. Curtis.

COLD FACTS ARE VERY STUBBORN

Records of Transactions Prove Attacks on County Auditor to Be Purely Malicious.

REPORTS PROMPTLY MADE

State Auditor J. A. O. Preus States That Pennington County Official Has Attended to Gross Earnings Matters Satisfactorily

In view of the wilfully misleading and absolutely false statements made by a local paper regarding the transactions in the office of County Auditor T. P. Anderson with regard to the payment of the gross earnings taxes of the Minnesota Northwestern railway, The Times has this week gone to considerable trouble to look up the records in the matter. This paper finds that the attacks upon the county auditor are unwarranted and that the paper publishing them must know them to be false. It is due Mr. Anderson, the railroad company, the state commission and the public that the facts be published exactly as they appear from the records in the auditor's office.

In order that The Times might not be charged with an attempt to defend an official whose laxity had been responsible for delay in the payment of this tax, the publisher addressed an inquiry to Hon. J. A. O. Preus, state auditor, asking that gentleman to give the facts as they applied to the taxes against the Minnesota Northwestern railway company for the year 1915. Mr. Preus replied as follows:

"Attended To Promptly."

"St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 13, 1916. Mr. R. H. Ross, Thief River Falls, Minn. My Dear Mr. Ross: Your letter of September 11th, relative to your County Auditor attending to Minnesota Electric railway tax is just received.

"The Minnesota Tax commission certified as per Section 5, Chapter 454, Laws of 1909, on August 21, 1916. Under date of August 26th, your County Auditor, T. P. Anderson, wrote this office enclosing a certified statement of state rate in the several townships in Pennington county through which the Minnesota Northwestern Electric railway operates. His letter was received in this office August 28th and submitted by me to the Minnesota Tax committee for their further action. I did not write Mr. Anderson as I expected that he would hear from the tax commission within two or three days. On September 9th Mr. Anderson wrote me again in regard to the matter, saying that he had had no reply to his letter of August 26th. His letter of Sept. 9th was received by me on Sept. 11th, acknowledged and answered on the same day.

"I have attended to the matter promptly in this office and I am of the opinion that Mr. Anderson has done likewise in his office.

"With kindest regards, I remain
"Yours truly,
J. A. O. PREUS,
"State Auditor."

Regarding 1914 Taxes

The distribution of the 1914 gross earnings taxes paid by the Minnesota Northwestern railway was held up in the office of the tax commission pending a decision by the Attorney General as to the proper application of these taxes. Under date of Dec. 15th, 1915, Secretary Henry A. S. Ives of the commission, wrote Mr. Anderson advising him of this fact, at the same time enclosing a lengthy explanation of the laws pertaining to taxes of this character, and informing him of the proper steps to be taken by his office. This matter must have been attended to at once, as under date of December 18th Mr. Ives again wrote Mr. Anderson as follows:

"Dear Sir: We beg to acknowledge your letter replying to ours of the 15th relating to the distribution of certain gross earnings taxes and thank you for your prompt attention to this matter."

The Decision Announced

From the 18th day of December, 1915, to the 2nd day of May, 1916, no further communication regarding the matter was received from the state auditor nor the commission. On the last named-date Mr. Anderson received the information that a decision had been filed by the attorney general on April 28. The tax reports from which the June apportionment are made had long previous to this time been forwarded to the state auditor. It would have been impossible to get this report corrected and returned to the state auditor in time to get a division made so as to come under the June apportionment, no matter how expeditiously the matter was handled in the office of the auditor here. In proof of this it is pointed out that although it is now over a month since the report for the year 1915 was accepted by the state officials the money for that year has not been received by Mr. Anderson.

Facts Easily Obtained.

These are the facts in regard to this matter, as anyone interested can easily ascertain by demanding the records. Mr. Anderson will be only too glad to show them, as they prove conclusively that in no manner is his office to blame for any delay which may have occurred. The communications of Mr. Preus and Mr. Ives will prove this to the entire satisfaction of any honest person.

River Improvement.

President A. L. Croker of the All-Minnesota Development association, has advised Senator D. P. O'Neill of this city, member of the drainage committee of that organization, that there will be a meeting of much importance held at St. Paul on Saturday. President Croker states that at this conclave a definite program for presentation to the legislature will be formulated and that it is important that all members be present.

Senator O'Neill is recognized as one of the foremost authorities in the state on northern Minnesota conditions, particularly as these pertain to drainage, and any proposition advanced by him is sure to receive a great deal of attention. He has just returned from a trip to the headwaters of the Red Lake river where he made a close study of the situation and will be in a position to give some first-hand information to the development boosters.

MAYOR ORDERS ALL DICE BOXES FIRED

No More "Rolling of the Bones" Permitted in Thief River Falls.

The dice box must also go. An order issued by Mayor F. H. Gambell yesterday instructed the proprietors of places where dice shaking has been permitted that the pastime would hereafter be prohibited.

The fact that dice was played in practically all places where soft drinks, candy cigars are being sold has been very generally known, and until recently there has been no serious objection to the proceeding. Of late however, the mayor has been the recipient of many complaints, it being alleged that young boys were permitted to frequent places where the games were allowed and that they often took part in them. The state law specifies that no dice shall be permitted even in saloons and the mayor acted under the power given him by the statutes.

There are a number of other devices at present permitted in business places of this kind and they are looked at decidedly unfavorably by the authorities. While no move has as yet been made towards their removal, it is likely that such action will soon be taken. Many people maintain that punch boards are a bigger nuisance than dice boxes ever were.

Called For Border Duty.

Advices from Washington are to the effect that Companies A, B, and C of the first battalion of the Minnesota Field artilery, have been ordered south for border duty. H. C. Rowberg, of Thief River Falls, is a member of Company C which has been at Fort Snelling awaiting orders for some time. Mr. Rowberg, who is a member of the legal firm of Stanton, Rowberg & Hoge, enlisted at Duluth when the call was issued.

BURGLARY WAS EASY

Enters Shoe Shining Parlor by Back Window and Steals Punch Board Jewerly

The Olympia Shoe Shining parlor conducted by William Dris at 207 La Bree avenue north, was broken into on Tuesday evening and a considerable amount of jewelry stolen. The thief had gained entrance to the building by prying open the window of a rear room, used as sleeping quarters by the proprietor and a young man working for him. Mr. Dris was a way from home and the assistant had locked up the shop about nine o'clock. He was gone but an hour, but this was long enough for the ambitious burglar.

The loss consists of $37.50 in gold pieces used as charms, three watches and chains and one ring. These articles were all punch board premiums and their value, outside of the gold pieces is problematical. The thief left a tobacco pipe and one small ring.

Mr. Dris' assistant had taken with him $65 in cash out of the till when he left the place so that the robber secured no actual cash except the charms.

The boards had been taken to the back room to be rifled, being found on the bed by the proprietor when he returned.

Skating Rink Urged.

G. Howard Smith, manager of last years championship hockey team, has interested himself in the securing an ice skating rink for the coming winter. If his ideas are accepted the vacant lots on South Main street next to the roller rink will be flooded, fenced and maintained for the purpose. The cost of this enterprise will not be great and will in many respects be preferable to a rink on the river.

It is the intention to ask the park board to donate the necessary lumber and it is thought that the city will be willing to foot the cost of maintenance. The idea is to sell tickets to the grown-ups who may wish the privilege of skating, while the children will be admitted free.

TEACHERS MEET HERE FIVE DAYS

County Institute Will Begin on Monday Morning and Continue Until Friday Afternoon.

TWO STATE INSTRUCTORS

Mrs. Harriet F. Jacques and Miss Mary Gallagher Will Have Charge of Separate Branches of the Work Taken Up.

A teacher's institute will be held at the court room in this city, beginning on Monday morning at nine o'clock and continuing until Friday afternoon.

County Superintendent E. A. Mostue is particularly desirous that the rural teachers shall attend this institute and has arranged matters so that this may be done without loss or inconvenience. Notices have been sent out by Mr. Mostue this week informing the teachers that there will be no loss of time because of their attendance at this institute and urging upon them the advisability of being present. In cases where the schools open for the fall term on the same day as the institute, the school officers have been requested to postpone the opening until the following Monday in order that the teachers may have the opportunity of attending.

Those In Charge.

The institute will be in charge of Mrs. Harriet F. Jacques of Robbinsdale, and Miss Mary Gallagher of St. Cloud. These ladies are two of the best known institute workers in the state and their instructions have for years been proving of the greatest value to teachers, particularly those in the rural schools. Mrs. Jacques has charge of the advanced studies, while Miss Gallagher is a specialist in primary work.

Visitation Week Later.

The state department has announced rural school visitation week for October 16-20. During this period it is expected that some noted educator will be present for the purpose of inspecting the work done by the teachers as well as the condition of the schools. The observations made by this visiting educator while here as well as the report submitted to the state department will be made a basis for consideration at the conference of county superintendents to be held at the state capitol on Nov. 1, which is the date of the annual meeting of the State Teachers' association.

DAMAGE $1.00 A LOT

Property Owners on Davis Avenue Entitled to This Sum From Electric Line.

The appraisers appointed by Judge Grindeland for the purpose of fixing the amount of damages sustained by the owners of property on Davis avenue because of the fact that the Minnesota Northwestern Electric Railway company had laid track along the thoroughfare, have reported their findings. The damage is placed at the sum of one dollar for each lot facing along the western side of the street. There are 30 lots along the stretch specified in the court's order, but the company had previously obtained easements in the case of 18 of these from the owners, leaving but twelve subject to the damage assessment of one dollar.

This report of the appraisers is the last step in the efforts made by the company to secure the right to run electric trains as far as Third street. A franchise has been purchased from the city granting permission to use the thoroughfare for this purpose and these final findings will prevent any future trouble in the matter. It is expected that there will now be no delay in making Third street the city terminus of the road.

The appraisers were H. E. Wood, of Smiley township; George A. Stevens of Rocksbury township, and K. O. Gigstad, of St. Hilaire.

GROCERY STORE SOLD

Val Yeager Becomes Owner of Business Formerly Conducted by Mrs. Mary A. Gray.

Val. Yeager will again engage in business after having been on the retired list for about a year. A deal was closed on Monday whereby he becomes the owner of the grocery and confectionery store conducted during the past two years by Mrs. Mary Gray at 217 Main avenue north.

Mr. Yeager has been a resident of Thief River Falls for the past ten years and was formerly in business here. He has a host of friends and acquaintances who will be glad to again give him a share of their patronage. His new place of business is located toward the residence section of the city and has always enjoyed a good trade. "Val" is a good business man and the grocery and confectionery line should prove both agreeable and profitable.

PULL THE PURSE STRINGS TIGHT

Council Refuses Salary Increase and Band Must Get Along Without a Regular Levy

CEMETERY FUND IS HELPED

City Will Continue to Pay Care Taker For Six Months Longer—Sewers For North End of City Are Ordered Laid

The expenditure of money for any purpose not absolutely necessary was severely frowned upon by the city council at the meeting held on Tuesday evening.

A proposition to levy a one-half mill tax against the property in the city for the maintenance of the band was voted down. The laws of the state provide that such provisions be made in the tax levy, providing the total secured shall not exceed $500. Councilman Bakken stated that he thought it quite possible for the band to get along without this sum and considered the levy sufficiently high as it stands. Councilman Ihle voted with him when the motion was put, and as there were only five members of the board present and the matter required a two-thirds majority to carry it was lost.

A resolution providing for the raising of the salaries of the second and third engineers at the electric plant was also voted down, Councilman Benson and Froseth setting themselves against the proposition. They claimed that this increase in salaries would have to stop some place and that this was as good a time as any to commence.

Will Help Cemetery

W. W. Prichard, sr., of the cemetery association, was present and asked that the salary of the caretaker of the grounds be continued for another six months. Mr. Prichard explained that there was a great deal of labor connected with keeping the grounds in presentable shape and that at the present time the revenue of the association would not stretch to cover this cost. He also stated that the association hoped to be in shape to put up a small building in the cemetery and that a fund is being established for this purpose. The council adjusted the matter by taking $400 from the park fund, for which there is at present no particular use, and depositing it to the credit of the cemetery fund.

Much Sewer Talk.

The Ninth street sewer proposition was discussed at a great length, and the work was finally ordered done. It will be put in by day labor under the supervision of the street committee of the council.

Superintendent Peterson reported that a very good quality of water had been struck in the second city well but that it did not seem to clear up quite satisfactorily. He was instructed to have a strainer put into the pipe and to note the effect of this arrangement. Mr. Peterson also recommended that J. A. Childs, state engineer, be sent for in order that the council and the water department might profit by expert advice in the matter. This was also ordered.

The several accounts against the residents of the city for having the snow and ice removed from their sidewalks during last winter was passed upon and ordered sent to the county auditor for assessment against the properties involved.

Will Go to Red Wing.

The council asked Mayor Gambell to appoint a committee for the purpose of attending the meeting of the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Red Wing next month. He appointed President C. W. Ackerman, Councilman O. L. Bakken and City Attorney Theodore Quale.

Mr. Quale was also instructed to go as far as he deemed advisable in securing evidence and aid in presenting the case of the city before the Railroad and Warehouse commission which meets here next month for the purpose of deciding whether or not the two telephone companies now doing business in the city should be compelled to establish a physical connection of their lines.

City Clerk A. H. Fasel was instructed to ask for bids on the fuel to be used by the city during the coming winter.

BUY FINE GUERNSEYS

Twelve Head of Prize Winners From Famous Duluth Herd Received Here.

Twelve head of high grade Guernsey cows were received this week by H. C. Woolson, president of the Pennington County Guernsey Breeders association. The cows will be distributed among the members of this organization and will add materially to the average of excellence already noted in the cattle owned by them.

The shipment was from the farm of John Unon Sebenius near Duluth, and comes from a herd famous throughout the entire northwest. Mr. Sebenius is a wealthy mining man who is also a stock fancier, and his herds have been developed regardless of cost. The cows from his farm have for years been prize winners in practically every exhibition held in this northern country, their fame extending as far as the Illinois state fair at Springfield.

The twelve head shipped to Pennington county are young cows and will all be fresh within a month. Each individual has a butter fat record of five per cent or better, showing that they are among the best to be had anywhere.

The Guernsey breeders are to be commended for their enterprise in securing cows of such unusual grade. It proves that they are alive to the fact that the cow is the one sure money-maker in this section and that they consider it a waste of time to bother with anything but the best obtainable. Mr. Woolson states that another carload of cows of a similar grade is expected in about a week from one of the best known stock farms in northern Wisconsin.

HORSES CREMATED WHEN BARN BURNS

Four Calves Also Perish in Mysterious Fire on Peter Liden Place Near Steiner.

Two head of horses and four calves were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the barn on the Peter Liden place near Steiner last Wednesday afternoon. The building as well as a considerable amount of valuable hay and farm machinery are a total loss, there being no insurance.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Everything about the barn seemed all right when Mr. Liden unhitched his team at noon. As it had been too wet to work in the fileds after dinner, Mr. Liden left the horses in the barn and went out into the woods near the place. About three o'clock the fire was discovered by Mrs. Liden and her daughter, Miss Mathilda, but the flames had already secured such headway that they found it impossible to save the animals although they made strenuous efforts to do so.

The fire must have been smouldering for some time, because when the door was opened the two women were driven back by the flame and smoke. Miss Liden rushed to the nearest neighbor and telephoned for help, but before this arrived the building was a mass of flames.

KORSTAD BROTHERS CLOTHIERS, RETIRE

Popular Men's Store Will Hereafter be Conducted by L. Gill, Formerly of Minneapolis.

E. M. and William Korstad, for eleven years engaged in the clothing business in this city, this week sold their stock and store fixtures to L. Gill, formerly of St. Paul. The transfer being made on Saturday.

Through this transaction Mr. Gill becomes the owner of one of the largest and most select stocks of men's wear to be found in this section of the state and assumes charge of a store that has always enjoyed the confidence of a large circle of customers. It has the reputation of being one of the most dependable clothing emporiums of the section and it is the intention of the new proprietor to add even to this high standard.

Mr. Gill is a man with years of experience in the clothing business, and has two brothers in the same line now conducting one of the largest stores at Bemidji. He expects to add materially to the excellent stock carried by his predecessors, at the same time continuing with the particular brands for which they had the sole agency in this city. This includes the Kuppenheimer and Stylplus clothes, Stetson hats, Munsing underwear etc. He will be assisted in the store by M. H. Goldsmith, his brother-in-law, a young man who is an expert in the gent's furnishing line. Grant Ohm, who has been with Korstad Bros. for some time, will also continue in the employ of the new proprietor.

Mrs. Gill, with four children, is expected to arrive about October 10, when the family will go to housekeeping in the J. B. Conner residence, 720 North LaBree avenue.

The Korstad brothers have not yet decided upon their future course, but will remain in the city for a time at least. They are young business men of the highest standing who have taken an active part in the upbuilding of the city and a keen interest in everything calculated to advance its welfare. They will have the well-wishes of our people in whatever undertaking the conclude to engage.

Former Resident Here.

P. C. Peterson, former resident of Thief River Falls, being employed at one time by Emil Sedlacek, well driller, and house mover, spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Thief River Falls circulating among his friends. Mr. Peterson just returned from Park River, N. D., where he had finished his second harvest season as cook. Mr. Peterson was in the early days cooking for Peter Eberhart on one of the wannagans in the Rapid River country. He left this morning for Bemidji for the purpose of taking up a position.

A LARGER FIELD CALLS LINCOLN

Commercial Club Secretary Will Leave Shortly to Accept Similar Position At Brainerd.

LIBERAL OFFER ACCEPTED

Has Been Energetic and Conscientious Official Who Has Built Up Organization Here—No Successor Yet Considered.

Fred T. Lincoln, secretary of the Thief River Falls Commercial club since May 1, 1915, this week tendered his resignation to the executive committee and will leave about October 16 to take the position of secretary of the chamber of commerce at Brainerd.

A Wider Field.

The new position not only means considerably more in the way of salary for Mr. Lincoln, but it will provide him with a much wider field of action. Brainerd is one of the hustling municipalities of Central Minnesota and has one of the most active commercial clubs in the state. The success which has attended the work of Mr. Lincoln while secretary of the club here is a matter for comment all over the state and he has had several flattering offers to induce him to change his location.

FRED T. LINCOLN

Contemplated Some Time.

Mr. Lincoln's resignation was first offered to President George G. Johnson last July, but he was prevailed upon to continue in the office at that time. The summer activities of the club were in full swing and as Mr. Lincoln had been largely instrumental in inaugurating all the different projects on hand it was felt that it would tangle matters up badly to have him leave. He therefore consented to stay until after the farmers' day project had been successfuly inaugurated. He feels that now, however, he cannot longer continue in justice to himself, and with this view everyone will agree.

Club in Good Shape.

Whoever the successor of Mr. Lincoln will be, he will find awaiting him a prosperous, flourishing club, with an enthusiastic membership and an equipment second to none in this section. Mr. Lincoln has so conducted affairs that the finances of the organization are on a safe and satisfactory footing. There are 350 members now paying dues and this provides sufficient revenue to meet all ordinary expenses of the club.

Family to Stay Here.

Mrs. Lincoln and the children will likely remain here until such time as Mr. Lincoln can make suitable provisions for their residence at Brainerd.

"You can say for both Mrs. Lincoln and myself," said the retiring secretary this morning, "that we have never lived in a place where the people showed more uniform kindness and consideration than right here in Thief River Falls. It is with a great deal of regret that we leave the city, but business reasons make this advisable. I shall be here off and on during the winter and have promised to help the club with the mid-winter fair arrangements. My work here has been pleasant and next to the city with which I am directly connected I shall consider Thief River Falls the best place in the universe."

Will Attend University.

Perry Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, who reside on a farm south of Thief River Falls, spent Friday in the city. Since finishing his Sophomore year at University of Minnesota last spring, Perry has been employed by the Merchants National bank at St. Paul in looking up land loans in Minnesota and North Dakota, and was passing through from a trip north of here. Perry, who played an important part in several of the football games at Minnesota last year, returned to resume his duties at the "U" yesterday, and will begin training with Doc. Williams' football proteges at once. It was hinted in the Minneapolis papers a short time ago that the Thief River Falls boy would not return to school. His return will undoubtedly be warmly welcomed.

For Representative---John A. Duffy

The Times believes that the interests of all the people of Pennington county will best be served by the election of John A. Duffy of Red Lake county, as a member of the legislature.

Through tradition as well as interest Pennington is more nearly allied to Red Lake county than to any other neighbor. The people of the two communities were for years affiliated under one government, and when the next reapportionment of the state is made they must, in the very nature of things, be formed into a single district.

The interests of Pennington county are identical with those of Red Lake. Our problems are, to a great extent, their problems. The same arterial waterway traverses both counties. The conditions arising because of this fact are the same in one county as in the other. No movement for the improvement of this important stream can be taken by one without affecting the other. The same flood conditions must be overcome in the case of each. The same water power rights must be preserved for both. Whatever is done to this river either at the source, along its course or at the outlet must in like manner affect both.

The same relationship holds good with regard to agricultural advancement. In soil, climate and products the two counties are identical. Along these lines no progress has been made by the one which has not at the same time taken place in the other. They are separate units for administrative purposes only.

The same close relationship does not exist in the case of Clearwater county. Situated farther to the east the interests of its people are in many respects dissimilar to those of its western neighbors. A representative residing among surroundings so different could not be expected to understand the conditions of this section as well as does a man whose home is right here. And this does not in any manner imply wilfull neglect or passive indifference on his part. He simply would be unable to devote the time necessary to the grasp of conditions as they exist. First hand knowledge concerning the improvement necessary to the Red Lake river, for instance, he could not possibly have in the same degree as would a man living right on the banks of that river. And the improvement of this stream is just now the matter of greatest importance to the people of Pennington and Red Lake counties.

John A. Duffy is a business man of experience and judgment. Red Lake county has repeatedly testified to the high esteem in which he is held at home, while his host of friends in Pennington know him as a man in whom every dependence can be placed.

It is the turn of Red Lake county to select the representative for the district. Pennington county, being the largest unit of the three, has by common consent been accorded the state senator. Clearwater county elected the representative two years ago. He made a very acceptable member and is altogether a most worthy gentleman. As concerns the people here, however, their candidate should, for numerous reasons, be John A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls.

Pennington county will decide the matter. The other two will in all likelihood give their resident candidates a substantial majority. Our people, also, have a right to consider their own interests in choosing between the two.

For More and Better Stock

The largest yield of wheat ever recorded for one acre, according to the department of agriculture, is a hundred and seventeen bushels. The average yield last year was seventeen bushels—and it was a bumper crop. The Pennington county average was much greater than this, proving that as much wheat can be raised here as anywhere in this section. But our farmers can no longer afford to devote their land to the raising of wheat unless they do something to get larger crops. And whether or not larger crops are secured depends almost entirely on the farmer himself.

The problem is to get more wheat off a smaller amount of land. There is but one way to do this and that is a more general development of the live stock industry. It has been proven by actual demonstration that if a farmer will devote one-third of his land to the raising of feed for cattle he will be able to get more grain from the remaining two-thirds than he at present secures from the entire acreage. Encouraging farmers to go into the live stock industry will thus solve the problem of securing paying grain crops.

In order to stimulate interest in this subject it has been suggested that Pennington county should hold a live stock fair about the first of August each year. This would take the place of the present county fair and would be of inestimably more interest and value. This exhibition would take on the nature of a sale and exchange market, the exhibition feature being a side issue. There are a number of stock breeders in the northwest who would be only too glad of an opportunity to place their cattle on exhibition if any opportunity for sale were held out to them. These exhibitors would naturally not expect to share in prize contests with cattle breeders residing in the county, but every other inducement should be accorded them. If a farmer then desired a new animal for the purpose of heading his herd, or if a community club wished to make an exchange for one that had been in a certain neighborhood too long, the matter could be easily adjusted, both buyer and seller being on the ground. The records of the individual or type sought would be at hand for inspection and the standing of the purchasers could at the same time be ascertained. The scheme has been worked in states farther to the south, while it has proved the redemption of farmers in the province of Manitoba to the north.

The farmer who formerly depended entirely upon his grain crop becomes an enthusiast after handling cattle for a short time. Instead of waiting until the end of harvest every year before finding out just how he has fared financially he receives his little creamery check every month and brings all his transactions down to a cash basis. He sees the acres on which he formerly raised from four to nine bushels of wheat increase in fertility until twice that amount is possible. A farm running lower and lower in productive capacity with the passing of each year is observed to be gaining in fecundity as the fertilization made possible by a barnful of cows makes its influence felt. He finds it the most interesting work for a farmer that can possibly be immagined. Every cow becomes a productive unit from which he knows just what to expect. Every calf born is the subject of care, concern and speculation. Every year sees the standard of the herd just a little higher than it was the year before.

Of course, the farmer who is satisfied to put seed into the ground in the spring and then depend upon the Lord to send good weather until harvest, will not make a good stock man. Neither will he ever make anything else worth while. But to the man who will work intelligently the live stock and dairying business in Northwestern Minnesota at this time holds out the brightest and surest prospects of independence and comfort.

It is an easy matter to discover the value of an acre of wheat. The value of an acre of grass fed to stock can hardly be computed. The sale of the stock itself or the products derived from it is only a small portion of this value. The fertility added to the soil through the manure obtained exerts an influence on any crop planted on the same acre for years, and in this the greater and more lasting value lies.

The people of Holland and Denmark have fought back the sea in order to secure sufficient space on which to raise feed for their cattle. This makes land values excessively high in those countries, but the people are among the most prosperous and contented in the world. Northwestern Minnesota is the natural home of grasses of the greatest feeding value and cattle here reach the very highest point of perfection.

By all means let us have a cattle fair. Anything that will help to stimulate interest in this, the coming industry of the section, will be worth all the time, trouble and expense it may entail.

Must Feel Foolish

The explanatory article appearing in the first column of this week's issue of The Times should put an end to the false and vicious attacks made upon County Auditor T. P. Anderson by the News-Press. It is doubtful if another newspaper in Minnesota would so absolutely ignore the truth in dealing with a public official. The facts were to be had for the asking, complete records of every transaction of the auditor's office being at hand, but the News-Press preferred to disregard the existence of this evidence.

State Auditor J. A. O. Preus states that he believes the matters in which the local paper charges the county auditor with delinquency have been attended to with promptness, while Secretary Ives of the Railroad and Warehouse commission writes a letter in which Mr. Anderson is particularly thanked for the dispatch which the business has been attended to.

To anyone knowing the News-Press, its attitude is not surprising. That paper does not like the Minnesota Northwestern railroad, the gross earnings tax of which corporation is under discussion, and it does not like County Auditor Anderson. Anything that may be done or said to in anyway injure either the road or the county official is therefore justified, according to the peculiar system of reasoning employed by the publisher of that paper. His hostility toward the road and the official is not because of anything either have done that is wrong, but simply and solely for the reason that they have neglected to sufficiently recognize the News-Press and its publisher.

The people are getting most decidedly tired of these attacks upon a competent and conscientious official. Everyone understands their purpose and places a true value upon their importance. If it were possible for the News-Press to sink any lower in the estimation of its readers these attacks would certainly accomplish that purpose.

Must "Cut" Somewhere

Because of the increasing demand upon the columns of The Times by advertisers the publisher has lately been forced to omit many valuable items of news. It is, of course, always possible to print more pages, but with paper stock at six cents per pound this is an alternative publishers are not embracing with any great amount of enthusiasm. The paper on which The Times is now printed costs a little over three and one-half cents per pound more than it did a year ago—and no relief in sight. No newspaper likes to skimp on service to its readers, however, The Times being more than ordinarily particular in this respect. We have therefore decided to reduce the size of the type in which the paper is set. This reduction is but a triffle on each line—one-seventy-second of an inch, to be exact—but this will enable us to get about three columns of additional news matter into the usual twelve pages. Many of the most important papers in the state have cut down in size while others have advanced their rates, thereby keeping down the size of the advertisements without reducing the revenue. The Times has thus far been able to manage without resorting to either of these expedients, but may be compelled to follow suit before long.

✦

The Times has for some time been trying to discourage patent medicine advertisers from using its columns. In spite of this fact a few small "readers" and such like truck have found their way into the paper. Hereafter nothing of the kind will be accepted, no matter what the price offered. While there may be patent medicines that are of some value, the large majority of them are worthless, if not injurious. The Times does not care to be a party to deceiving the people into spending their money for these nostrums.

✦

The New York Tribune's straw vote shows that Justice Hughes is far in the lead for the office of president. The New York Independent's straw vote shows that President Wilson is far in the lead as a candidate to succeed himself. This proves conclusively that if Mr. Hughes is elected it will be by defeating the president, while if the latter is again chosen it will spell defeat for Hughes. Straw votes are very reliable indicators.

Stand Together!

The only way a town or community will ever attain to its greatest stage of development is by the citizens standing together, and fighting, shoulder to shoulder, for the common good and the common cause. Factional strife and factional jealousies will do more to kill a town than anything else. If your neighbor is prosperous, rejoice with him in his prosperity, and strive to better yourself. If someone advocates a plan for the common good, get behind him and help to shove the good thing along. It's the only way to bring about progress and development—Winnebago City Enterprise.

INDIANS FAVOR CONTROL WORKS

Retaining System and The Deepening and Straightening of River Would Stop Floods.

WONDERFUL FAIR IS HELD

Visitors to Red Lake Agricultural Show Are Astounded at Progress Made in Past Few Years—Lake is Very High.

That no objections will be registered by the Indians themselves nor by the officials in charge of the reservation to the plan of deepening and straightening the Red Lake river was demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of the committee of Thief River Falls business men who made a visit to Redw Lake on Saturday.

It was the intention to meet with a number of representative citizens from Bemidji and discuss the matter of flood prevention thoroughly, but because of the inclement weather the committee from this city were unable to get away on Friday, the date set, while the Bemidji contingent managed to get through. This was a matter of no great importance, however, as everyone seems agreed that the only sensible solution of the problem is to improve Red Lake river and construct controlling works at the outlet of that stream at the Red Lakes.

Major Peek to Inspect

A meeting will be held sometime in October for the purpose of formulating a scheme to lay before congress. At this meeting Major E. D. Peek, government engineer will be present, and all the arguments adduced will be presented to him and this gathering will in all probability be held in Thief River Falls, an inspection of the river being most easily conducted from this point. It is the intention to take Major Peek directly to the lake by rail, the return trip to be made by launch, down the river, thus demonstrating to him the need of the improvement advocated.

A Wonderful Fair.

The annual agricultural fair of the Indians residing on the reservation was the most successful ever held. Daniel Shaw, who has kept close track on the work being done by the Indians for the past fifteen years, says that the progress made is unbelieveable. No more "squaw" corn is in evidence, the vastly superior dent and flint varieties having taken its place. The vegetable and fruit displays were remarkable, and the yield is large. The potato crop is particularly good and this means ready money for the growers as any surplus can be sold at good prices. The Minnesota and Rainy Lake railway has its northern terminus at Redby, six miles east of Red Lake, and this is the general shipping point for surplus products.

A Modern Village.

Red Lake is a hustling town. There are three large stores or trading posts, these being licensed by the government. A moving picture theatre is well patronized by the natives and officials alike. The visitors say that a particularly pleasing feature of the trip was witnessing the ovation given the flag when this was thrown on the screen.

There is a large Catholic church and Parochical school in the village, besides the beautiful hospital and school maintained by the government. The Episcopalians also have a mission there, Bishop J. W. Morrison of Duluth, being present to conduct the services last Sunday. The church services are well attended and all the children go to school. These institutions require quite a number of people as administrators and Agent Dickens finds himself at the head of a very considerable staff of Whites and Indians.

Water Damaging Timber

The lake itself is very high. The fluctuations between high and low stages of water have been greater during the past year than at any time since the records have been kept. Along the shore hardwood trees twelve and fifteen inches in diameter have been uprooted by the action of the water and have fallen into the lake. Groves of trees growing along the shores have been ruined through remaining submerged during the greater part of the season. These are some of the things to which the attention of Major Peek will be called when he makes his investigations.

Farmer's Clubs

There are numerous farmer's clubs on the reservation and these all had booths at the fair. A keen rivalary exists among these organizations and in competition for prizes on exhibits. The results of this is seen in the excellent products submitted. One of the things which particularly surprised the visitors was the culinary display. The preserves, pickles and bakery articles exhibited were simply wonderful in their variety and completeness and would compare favorably with similar wares shown any place in the country.

Two Auto Loads.

The Thief River Falls visitors enjoyed every moment of the trip. The roads were a little heavy for a short time after leaving the city, but no trouble was experienced in getting through.

Those making the trip were: Senator D. P. O'Neill, W. W. Prichard, sr., W. E. Baker and S. Laird, who went up on Saturday, while Daniel Shaw, C. A. Forbes and W. E. Monks arrived later and spent Sunday at Red Lake. Owing to the bad weather during the fore part of the week the fair was continued over Sunday.

Capt. Peter Eberhardt, of Thief River Falls, is engaged in the construction of a steamboat for the government at Red Lake.

REPORT DISCLOSES GOOD YEAR FOR SOO

Soo Line Earnings Show Year's Gain to be $5,977,144 Net—Year Ending June 30.

Prosperity Attributed to Big 1915 Crops and Heavy Iron Ore and Machinery Shipments.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the Soo Line, held Tuesday afternoon in Minneapolis, President Edmund Pennington presented a report showing an increase of nearly $6,000,000 in net earnings for the fiscal year ending June 30. It was plainly shown in the report that the enormous crop of 1915, its movement to market in record making volume, and shipments of iron ore, building material, machinery and agricultural implements made the Soo prosperous.

$35,010,064.15 is the total gross earnings of the entire Soo Line system, including the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Marie and Wisconsin Central. The Wisconsin Central was purchased by the Soo several years ago. This is $7,246,839.35 more than in the fiscal year preceeding. Net earnings of the system were $15,928,995.86, an increase of $5,977,144.87. The surplus income increased $5,115,698.24.

A reflection of conditions in the northwest is shown by the report, resulting from a good crop in 1914, and followed by the enormous 1915 production of all crops.

Makes Statement.

Of the outlook for the fiscal year that will terminate June 30 1917, President Pennington said:

"There has been considerable damage to the 1915 wheat crop of the northwest and the general business of that territory for the coming year will naturally be affected. Conditions in other territory served by the company seem to be good."

Figures For Whole System

Figures for the entire system are: Gross earnings, $35,010,064.15; operating expenses, $19,081,068.29; net earnings $15,928,995.86; other income, $999,261.92; total income $16,928,257.78; fixed charges, taxes, etc., $8,701,823.48; surplus income, $8,226,434.30.

These are the figures for the Soo line and Wisconsin Central lines, given separately:

	Soo Line.	Wisconsin Central.
Gross earnings	$22,804,824.98	$12,205,239.17
Operating expenses	12,160,317.80	6,920,750.49
Net earnings	$10,644,507.18	$5,284,488.68
Other income	947,415.83	51,846.09
Total income	$11,591,923.01	$5,336,334.77
Fixed charges, taxes, etc.	5,422,346.98	3,279,476.50
Surplus income	$6,169,576.03	$2,056,858.27

President Pennington stated at the meeting that there is no new line under construction or in prospect, as the financial conditions have not warranted such work. A feature that argues favorably for permanent effect in economy of operation is the movement of large trainload units. The number of tons carried per mile of road, on the Soo proper, was 693,163, compared with 501,327 in 1915, and on the Wisconsin Central, 1,207,541 compared with 927,005.

On As 3rd.—Alfred Glaholt, of Union, N. D., went on as third trick operator at Plummer the first of the week, relieving W. A. Nash, who has taken up the second trick. Nash relieved J. Meshnick, who has gone to Baker, N. D., to take up the station agent position.

Line Change.—C. E. Holman, former agent at Baker, N. D., has been transferred to Calio, N. D., to relieve J. P. Sprauge, who has been transferred to the Duluth-Superior division.

RAIL CROSSING SIGNS AT 200 FEET ADVISED

State Highway Commission Arrives At What Is Believed to be Partial Solution.

White signs, 14 feet high, to be placed over roadways 200 feet from railroad crossings, are the recommendations to be made by the State Highway Commission, as a result of a safety survey of railroads crossings in Minnesota. This announcement was made on Tuesday when the commission arrived at what it believes is at least a partial solution of the grade crossing problem.

In this way the automobilist and drivers of other vehicles will be warned in advance that he is approaching a dangerous place.

Back From Cities.—H. A. Pratt, Soo Line depot agent, returned the latter part of last week from Minneapolis, where he had been on a business trip.

G. N. Agent Here.—Peter Becken, formerly employed in the local G. N. depot in this city, who is now holding down the station agent job at Erskine for the Great Northern, was a visitor in Thief River Falls the latter part of last week.

Huseby Off.—Gilmore Huseby, clerk at Car Foreman Conklin's office, was among the many enthusiastic rooters at the Red Lake—Thief River Falls football game Saturday. He motored down with "Hal" Stanton, Leslie Provencher and Jordan Penney.

Olson Returns.—Emil Olson, employed at the Soo freight house, returned Saturday morning from Paynesville, where he had spent a short time visiting at the home of his parents.

Transferred.—J. W. Aiken has been transferred from Overly, N. D., to Eglund, where he will hold down the same job as warehouseman.

125 Cars Stock.—The fall stock shipments are steadily on the increase. Last Saturday a train composed of 125 solid cars of stock left this city for South St. Paul stock yards. 8 cars were taken in from over the Goodridge electric line, a number were taken on from the local yards while the balance of the train were picked up along the line north of here.

Return From Hunt.—Supt. W. A. Barnard, Assistant Master Mechanic J. W. Hendry and Dr. G. W. Booren returned Monday evening from the country around Devils Lake and Fordville, N. D., where they had spent Saturday and Sunday on a duck hunt. The party secured 52 ducks and one large goose. The trip was made in Supt. Barnard's private car and was attached to the Wheatline local.

Relieved Elsenpeter.—Elmer Ohm, brakeman of the Soo list, made the Wheatline run Monday, relieving Elsenpeter, who was on a short leave of absence.

Gage to Drake.—Soo Fireman Gage left Tuesday morning for Drake, N. D., where he will be employed on the Drake-Fordville line.

Elofson to Overly.—Roy Elofson, employed by the Soo Line at Overly, N. D., as car repairer, returned to his duties Tuesday morning. He was accompanied by his wife and child.

Resigns.—Fred E. Holden, who has been employed in the car cleaning department at the Soo yards during the summer, resigned September 18 to enter the local schools.

Engine Soon Ready.—Soo engine No. 172, which was badly damaged in a wreck at Conway, N. D., several weeks ago, will be ready for service Saturday. A new cab has been placed on the engine and a new tank added.

Quits.—John Robert Anderson, who has been in the Soo's employ as machinist at the round house, resigned September 16.

Home Over Sunday.—Chase Mix, clerk in Supt. W. A. Barnard's office, spent Sunday with his parents at Crookston, returning Monday to resume his duties.

Paulson Has Half Day.—Oscar Paulson, express cashier at the Soo depot, spent Saturday afternoon at Red Lake Falls to witness the football game between the local team and the down river eleven.

Herron Quits.—Raymond Herron, wiper at the Soo round house, resigned the latter part of last week. He expects to go lumbering during the winter months.

Accepts Job.—Hardy Bothun accepted a position in the car department of the Soo Line here September 18.

Promoted for a Time.—Joe Gulden has been promoted from blacksmith helper to blacksmith at the Soo shops, relieving J. Nelson, who is on a vacation.

Miss Boyce Ill.—Miss Eleanor Boyce, stenographer in Supt. W. A. Barnard's office, was operated upon for appendicitis at Warren Saturday. She is getting along nicely, although it may be some time before she will be able to take up her duties.

Changed Position.—Daniel Kelley, who has been employed as engine watcher at the Soo round house, was transferred to brakeman September 22.

Conklin on Trip.—Sam Conklin, car repairer at the Soo railroad yards, is taking a vacation from his duties and has left for a trip to Kansas City.

THE DANGERS OF FLOOD AND WEED

These Will Be Discussed at Meeting to Be Held at Crookston on October 9.

WILL URGE EARLY ACTION

Believed That Concerted Demand by People of All Sections Interested Will Have Effect of Speeding Up Relief Measures.

President Leslie Welter, of the Minnesota Red River Valley Development association, has issued a call for a meeting October the 9th, at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, in the interests of the movement to secure early action upon the prevention and control of flood waters resulting from the development of the many new drainage projects in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Drainage engineers and legislators from both the Minnesota and the Dakota sides of the Red River have responded to the invitation to meet with representatives from the Valley counties. The roads and drainage committee of the Development association is actively interested in the movement and, composed as it is of men throughout the several counties well informed upon the subject, the meeting should result in materially strengthening the presentation of the proposition to the State and Federal governments.

There will also be taken up the matter of more effective control and eradication of noxious weeds. Agitation in this direction is extremely timely in view of the noticible spread of the Canadian sow thistle. The past season has been one peculiarly favorable to weed growth, and the experience of the farmers of the Canadian northwest with this prolific and hardy pest should be ample warning to the farming interests of this section to take vigorous measures before the weed is allowed to make disastrous inroads. It is expected that the meeting will accomplish the initiation of a movement designed to secure the passage of laws more possible of enforcement than the present weed laws.

MINNESOTA PEAT MAY PROVE VERY VALUABLE

Equal of Low Grade Coal as Gas Producer—Ammonia Contents as By-Product.

"Dried and powdered peat is equal in value for the generation of producer gas to low grade coals like lignite, and about half as valuable for that purpose as the high grade bituminous coals," said Prof. Peter Christianson of the University of Minnesota, in an address before the annual convention of the American peat society recently.

"The great value of Minnesota peat, however, is the ammonia by-product. It has been shown by chemical analysis that the Minnesota peat is higher in ammonia contents than the peat from any other field. The utilization of peat as a fuel, however, has been retarded owing to the large capital required to establish a suitable plant. The time may come, however, when the Minnesota product will be used for fuel and for its chemical constituents."

BIG ALFALFA CROP

Will Go Far in Making Up Any Shortage There May be in The Wheat Crop.

Nineteen-sixteen promises to be the greatest year in the history of this section for corn and alfalfa production. The hot weather during July which proved rather disastrous to the wheat yield seems to have been just what most other crops needed. The alfalfa looks better than for years past and the farmer who has devoted any considerable portion of his acreage to this kind of hay is jubilant.

One of these, John Phillip, residing near Germantown, has 70 acres in alfalfa, and those who have seen it say it is the finest to be found anywhere. The first cutting was unusually good and the second will be better. An Iowa land buyer stated the other day that he had never seen better alfalfa on the $200 land of his native state. Mr. Phillip has what is known as an "outdoor silo," being one of the first farmers in this section to utilize this means for the storage of fodder. This silo is built of plank, these planks reaching up to a height of about twelve feet. The ensilage is packed into this open building and piled as high as it will stay on. This is said to preserve the fodder as well as would an air tight silo costing ten times as much. As the silage is used the planks are removed, this making for greater ease in handling than is possible with the regular round silos. Mr. Phillip predicts that there will be more of these silos used when their value becomes better established.

Some Giant Corn

The corn outlook could not be better. The danger of injury by frost is now pretty well past and there is no longer any fear from this source. Some of the finest corn fields in the state are to be found along the road between Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire. Just south of this city, on the Math Barzen place, there is corn eight feet high. No one particularly wants corn to grow this high, but it proves that the season must have been very favorable.

MANY IN THIEF RIVER FALLS TRY SIMPLE MIXTURE.

Many Thief River Falls people are surprised at the QUICK action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka. This simple remedy acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing such surprising foul matter that one SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour stomach or gas. A few doses often relieve or prevent appendicitis. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. The INSTANT, easy action of Adler-i-ka is astonishing. F. J. Stebbins, druggist.

THE BEGINNING OF A BRIGHTER FUTURE

From the Fargo Searchlight.

The poor crops of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota is an unfortunate condition of course, but the people should not be pessimistic or blue. While we will have to limit expenses somewhat, we are at the beginning of a sounder foundation for future operations on the farm.

In the seventies, Southern Minnesota had three crop failures in succession, the first one being well on a par with the present condition of crops in the three states just mentioned. At that time the farmers in that section of Minnesota had paid but little attention to diversified farming. The crop failures compelled a change; and inside of five years after the crop failures, the people of that section were on the high road to success through diversified farming, and have been ever since.

North Dakota is now at the bottom rung of the ladder that leads upward to successful diversified farming. The people will adopt diversified farming now with enthusiasm, and subdivide the farms so that they can handle them. While the poor crops this year must necessarily curtail expenses and to some extent perhaps temporarily embarrass some of the people, yet they are opening the door to assured successful farming hereafter, and in consequence optimism should prevail, instead of pessimism. At no time has the Red River Valley, Northern Minnesota and North Dakota generally seemed more inviting to the writer, than now.

MAKES THEM COME AFTER HIS ORDERS

One Thief River Business Man Insists That Drummers Make Him a Visit.

There is one salesman, traveling for a large neckwear manufacturing concern, who will make regular trips to Thief River Falls hereafter. His line of goods is particularly desirable but he has never thought it worth his while to bring his samples nearer than Crookston. If any of the merchants dealing in this class of goods here wanted his stuff they have had to go to the Polk county town in order to inspect the line. This has been stopped.

The other day an invitation was received by one of our leading clothing dealers requesting him to come down and pick out what he wanted. The merchant receiving the note sat down and sent the following reply: "There are two first-class hotels in this town. There are also several smaller ones. The landlords of any of these will be glad to see you. There are a half dozen of us here selling neckwear, but if you want us to sell any of yours it will be necessary for you to make a trip up here and show us what you have to offer."

The traveling man came up on the next train and sold a very saticfactory bill of goods. He even admitted that hereafter it might be to his advantage to make this city his northwestern headquarters and ask the people of Crookston to come here to make their selections.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Governor Burnquist Has Designated October 9 as a General Clean-Up Occasion.

A general observance of Fire Prevention Day is urged this year by Governor Burnquist and State Fire Marshal Hagardine. The date is October 9 and every man, woman and child in the state is requested to make a special effort to clean away the rubbish from the business houses, residences and schools of their communities.

"If Minnesota people will only stop to think that the nation's fire toll is 5,000 lives a year and $500 loss a minute; although two-thirds of the fires are preventable, fire prevention day this year will be a big success in every town," said Fire Marshal Hargadine. "Every person in the state will join in the movement because sickness and fire are nearest to them—liable to 'strike home' any day."

Records in the fire marshal's office show gradual reduction in the fire losses in Minnesota, and part of the credit for the showing is given to the general observance of fire prevention day each year in all cities.

For Peat Land Development.

Bemidji Sentinel: Backed by both Senator Leonard H. Nord, of this district, and Senator D. P. O'Neill, of Thief River Falls, it seems that the matter of peat land development is certain to receive consideration by the next state legislature. It is proposed that an experiment farm be established on the peat lands of Northern Minnesota and there is no question but that such an institution would be the result of wise investment. Both senators are firm believers in the ultimate availability of peat lands for agricultural purposes and have devoted much time to the study of the proposition.

Rural Carrier Examination.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the County of Pennington, to be held at Thief River Falls on October 14, 1916 to fill the position of rural carrier at Goodridge and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other post offices in the above mentioned county. The examination will be open only to male citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of a post office in the county and who meet the other requirements set forth in Form No. 1977. This form and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C. Applications should be forwarded to the Commission at Washington at the earliest practicable date.

Runs Into Money.

H. W. Protzeller, manager of the Minnesota Northwestern railway, returned the first of the week from a business trip to Bemidji. He says that while at the Beltrami county town his attention was called to a scheme for cornering all the money in the universe. Frank S. Lycan, who is always trying to do something for somebody, started an "endless chain" for the purpose of helping out an old traveling man of his acquaintance. His scheme was to write five letters to five friends asking them to send him ten cents to aid the good cause. These five would each write five more letters, ten cents being requested in each instance. Thus the chain would keep on being multiplied by five until enough had been secured to keep the old drummer from want. Lycan never started his chain. He gave it up when it was pointed out to him that by the time the fifteenth series was reached the sum would amount to $762,000,000, and that when the fiftieth series was reached there would not be money enough in the world to meet the demand.

DEEDS, NOT WORDS.

Thief River Falls People Have Absolute Proof of Deeds at Home.

It's not words but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills, for Thief River Falls kidney sufferers have made their local reputation.

Ole Rude, jeweler, State street west, Thief River Falls, says: "I was troubled with weak kidneys for sereral months, caused, I believe, by sitting constantly at the bench. I had to get up often at night to pass the kidney secretions. My back became weak and I had dull, nagging pains across my loins. I felt sore over my kidneys, as if had been pounded. When I attempted to straighten or get up from a chair, my back felt as if it was paralyzed. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and a short time after I used them, I felt better. I haven't had any kidney troble for some time."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Rude had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—S28-O5.

He had bee gone three weeks. While at Enderlin he was present at the marriage of his brother, who is a physician at that place.

A. J. Sanden returned Friday night from a visit to the home of his daughter at Gary, Norman county. Mr. Sanden says the wheat crop in that section was very much the same as elsewhere and that the farmer with a barn full of cows is the lucky chap this year. That section seems to be considerably worse off than Pennington county as the oats did not turn out particularly well and the corn only fair,

The United States government is in need of more male stenographers. The salary paid is from $840 to $1,000 per year and the opportunities for appointment are excellent. Occassional appointments are made where the salary reaches $1,200 per annum, but in such cases the rating must be at least 85 per cent in the subject of stenography. For full information address the Civil Service Board of Examiners, St. Paul.

Miss Sylvia Gendron arrived on Friday from Little Falls, and has assumed charge of the office of the Western Union Telegraph company at this place. F. J. Rank, of Mandan, N. D., district manager of the company for this region, was here for the purpose of establishing Miss Gendron in her new station. Miss Sadie Peterson, who has been the operator here during the past year, has severed her connection with the Western Union entirely and will leave shortly to make her home in the West.

SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Florence Johnson of Minneapolis, a teacher of several years experience, arrived Wednesday to assist in the high school. The fact that the faculty now has no less than four teachers by the name of Johnson is the occasion of not a little jesting.

Coach Albert Johnson's pigskin proteges committed fewer football errors than their opponents at Red Lake Falls last Saturday and won by a score of 19 to 0. Some flashes of real football by a few of the veterans indicated what the coach will soon develop in the rookies.

The fifteen boys in the animal husbandry class are taking advantage of pleasant fall days to visit nearby cattle herds for stock judging purposes. They divide the first two periods in the forenoon session to this study and pay the expense of the conveyance themselves.

The industrial contests will be held at the Lincoln high school on Friday, October, 13th and 14th. All contestants will receive final instructions next week through the mail as to how and when the exhibits must be made.

The second normal practice room is being prepared at the Auditorium building. Central school children from the lower grades will supply the pupils.

A meeting was held at the Satre school last Saturday evening to discuss association with the Thief River Falls schools. Messrs. Mellby, Pitkin and Hay represented the local schools. Associated rural schools receive an annual state aid of $50.00, enjoy free tuition in the city school, have the benefit of the supervision of the central school superintendent and industrial teachers, and all of this without any expense or tax levy. The old law was changed in 1915 so that association now costs the rural school absolutely nothing.

Miss McKenzie and her English classes visited the public library this week to acquire information as to the proper use of the mass of material available there for class work.

The exodus of Thief River Falls high school graduates to the higher institutions of learning during the past three weeks has been so large as to create comment. Every normal and college in Minnesota and North Dakota have one or more local people enrolled. A few have cast their lot with schools in other neighboring states.

The Board of Education reception to the faculty last Friday was attended by a large company—much larger than had been expected. A pleasing and profitable evening was enjoyed by all who availed themselves of the opportunity of being present.

The senior high school program is organized on an eight period plan of forty minutes each. As school days are estimated, this makes a long day but is almost too brief to enable the classes to be cared for satisfactorily. Most high schools work under a seven period program.

The principals of the various buildings are provided with price lists of the books in use. Lost books, or books injured unnecessarily, must be paid for promptly.

The executive committee of the Northwestern Minnesota Teachers' association, of which the local superintendent is a member, met at Crookston Wednesday evenong.

The death of Edwin Alness last Friday removes from the Senior class one of its most promising members. He was a splendid young man, of more than ordinary capacity, and his demise is a distinct loss to the school and community, as well as to his immediate relatives.

HOSPITAL NOTES

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Everette Jacoby at the hospital on Thursday evening of last week.

Miss Martha Tvedt was discharged from the hospital Monday after having received medical treatment for a short time. Miss Tvedt had improved greatly in health and has left for her home at Goodridge.

Miss Wallin, of St. Hilaire, was operated upon for tonsils and adenoids at the hospital Saturday. She left for her home Sunday.

Mrs. Claude Wade, of Greenbush, returned to her home last Friday after having successfully recovered from an operation for gall bladder trouble.

Mrs. George Schoenborn was discharged from the hospital today, after having undergone a successful operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Charles Lieberman and baby were discharged from the hospital on Sunday.

Harold Brown, who had his legs crushed by a freight train near Plummer several weeks ago, is improving rapidly.

B. E. Robinson, Soo brakeman, who was injured a few weeks ago in the Soo yards is recovering rapidly.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich, of the hospital staff, who is also county health officer for this county, stated yesterday that the scarlet fever epidemic in the Goodridge vicinity has been checked. The schools have been reopened and the Olsen case was discharged to-day. The only remaining case is that at the Christianson home, and it is expected to be discharged the first of the next week.

HE IS in town again Wednesday, October 4, at the Princess. Who? Why that cheerful idiot, Charlie Chaplin, in "The Count." He is as crazy as ever and has no keeper either. He skids across the screen, flirts with the fair ladies, and gives a fat cop the merry Ha, Ha. You aught to see the people laugh. They howl with joy. The thin boys go into spasms and the fat girls shake like a jar of jelly on a motorcycle. The critics say this is the best Chaplin that has been produced. "Can Uncle Sam Control the Seas?" See "The Secret of the Submarine" the same day we show Chaplin. Mac's Sweet Shop is having a 1 cent sale to see Chaplin. Get your tickets from Mac.

WILSON MEN FORM COUNTY COMMITTEE

Two Separate Organizations Selected For Purpose of Conducting Campaign in County.

A fair sized crowd of representative Democrats attended the meeting held at the court house last evening for the purpose of forming a county organization. E. M. Stanton, former chairman, stated the purpose of the meeting, which was the selection of good and true patriots who would untiringly work for the re-election of the president.

Two organizations were formed—a Democratic county committee and a Woodrow Wilson club. Of the former Hans O. Kjomme was elected president, while A. F. LaBudde was selected secretary of the Woodrow Wilson club. J. S. Barnett was made president and Mr. Stanton, vice president, Mr. LaBudde being also drafted as the secretary for this organization. Frank Cernousek was re-elected treasurer.

President Barnett was instructed to appoint a committee of three on membership and a similar committee on finances. The officers will also select two committeemen in each voting precinct in the county.

It was stated at the meeting that it was possible some of the big speakers of the country will be heard here before the close of the campaign.

TAXES APPROVED

State Commission Find That No Changes Are Necessary in County's Assessment.

There will be no changes made in the real estate tax assessment for Pennington county by the Minnesota Tax commission. This information is contained in a letter to County Auditor T. P. Anderson from Secretary Ives of the commission. This speaks well for the care exercised in their work by the county board of equalization, it being a matter for special commendation on the part of the secretary, who says:

"The real estate assessment in your county as equalized by your county board will not be changed by the commission.

"We beg to congratulate you and the members of your county board for the faithful and efficient work done in the equalization of real estate this year."

Mr. Ives adds that the commission is now at work on the personal property schedules and that the report on these will be forthcoming at an early date.

PRINCESS BARS KIDS

Manager Fears Certain Parts of Big Melodrama May be a Little Severe for Youngsters.

It is not very often that a moving picture house manager feels called upon to refuse patronage, but W. H. Seitzler of the Princess theatre has issued a notice to the effect that no person under 16 years of age will be permitted in his show house on Monday afternoons or evenings during the run of "The Crimson Stain," the first episode of which was seen here this week. There is nothing immoral or indecent about the picture, but certain parts of the situations are rather intense and somewhat sensational. Hr. Seitzler has not himself seen the picture, but from his knowledge of it he deems it best that the youngsters stay away. While it is probable that no harm would come of their seeing the production, yet he believes that parents will endorse his action in barring children from anything which they cannot possibly understand and which therefore gives them a wrong impression. There will be plenty of other shows to go to and missing Monday night will not hurt them.

WATER IN SECOND WELL AT 229 FEET

Excellent Flow and Seemingly Good Quality is Struck—Samples Are Tested.

After drilling to a depth of 229 feet a good flow of water was struck in the second city well. The vein was tapped in a layer of black sand and this is usually a favorable indication. Contractor Olson has been pumping steadily since striking the flow but has apparently not deminished the supply. The water looks clear and is of good taste, but an analytical examination will have to be made before its quality can be determined.

The work on this second well has progressed but slowly owing to the nature of the ground. The first water was struck at a depth of 120 feet, but this was full of gas and could not be used. The next vein was struck at 163 feet, but although the flow seemed ample the quality was not up to standard and Mr. Olson was instructed to keep on. It is thought that the samples gathered from the greater depth will prove satisfactory.

Dr. J. E. Douglass, city health officer, has received a report from the state board on the first samples submitted which were taken from the Duluth avenue well. This water seems to be strongly impregnated with mineral substance, the iron being particularly marked. The water is also very hard and consequently not of the most desirable quality. It is probable that some scheme will be devised to overcome this objection, when it will meet the requirements in every particular.

EXPERT IS COMING

Will Make Tour of Inspection of Peat Lands Through This Section In October.

John L. Stewart, chief of division of agricultural engineers at the University of Minnesota, has notified Secretary Lincoln of the Commercial club that he will arrive in Thief River Falls on the morning of October 11, and that he will proceed from here to make an inspection of the peat lands as far as Red lake. Mr. Stewart says that he is particularly interested in looking over the drainage conditions between the lake and Thief River Falls.

Senator D. P. O'Neill will make the necessary arrangements for the trip up and around the lake.

Freshmen Announcing Line-Up

Prof. Strand, who is coaching the team, expects to arrange one or more games with outside teams this fall.

Indians Here Oct. 7.

Coach Albert Johnson announced this noon that the first game on the local gridiron will be played October 7 when an Indian team from White Earth meets the high school eleven, October 7 being an open date. Foston comes the following Saturday, October 14, Red Lake Falls, October 21 and Warren October 28. Johnson's men have begun a strenous training campaign for their contest next Saturday and are leaving no stone unturned in the perfection of plays and other fine points in the game. A tackling dummy has been put into use at the high school field.

Society

First Dance a Success.

The first dance this season given by the Minnesota State band of Thief River Falls at the Auditorium last Friday evening proved even more successful than these affairs usually are. There was a good crowd present and the music was of the best. A greatly appreciated feature was the lunch served under the supervision of Mack McCully of the Sweet Shop fame.

Wednesday morning in the Catholic church in the city of Crookston occurred the marriage of Miss Agnes Goulet, of Thief River Falls, to O. W. Fergusen, of Beaulette. Miss Goulet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Goulet, 616 Knight avenue south, and has practically been raised here, and received her education in the local public schools. For the past two years she has resided at Beaudette, where she has been employed. The newlyweds passed through this morning enroute to Beaudette, where they will make their future home. Mr. Fergusen is one of Beaudette's business men.

Miss Stene will act as hostess to the Young Peoples Society of the Lutheran Free church in the church basement tomorrow evening.

Haynes will entertain.—S-28.

Searching For Sister

Word was received in this city by Chief of Police O. E. Berge today that a young man by the name of Christ Christensen had died at Fargo, N. D., yesterday (Wednesday) and that the young man had stated to friends, previous to his sickness, that he had a married sister living in Thief River Falls but didn't give her name. The body is being held at the undertaking parlors of Gaard and Moore in Fargo until definite information concerning the sister can be received.

"Her Great Price."

Mabel Taliaferro, the charming and fascinating stage star, will be seen on the screen at the Princess theatre on Sunday Oct. 1 in "Her Great Price," a Metro wonderplay of five gripping acts. This is one of the most novel features ever produced for the screen, and it is filled with thrills, well sustained suspense and startling surprises. Miss Taliaferro is surrounded by an excellent cast and the production is mounted on an elaborate scale. Miss Taliaferro will be remembered by theatre goers for her remarkable performance in "Polly of The Circus," "Springtime" and other notable productions.

Edwin Benjamin Alnes

Edwin Benjamin Alnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias S. Alnes, 313 Main avenue north passed away in this city last Friday, September 22, death being due to tuberculosis, from which he had been suffering since the latter part of June. The deceased was taken slightly ill the first part of June, but it was not until several weeks had passed that the cause of the illness was discovered. After receiving treatment in this city he was taken to the state sanitarium in Cass county and ermained there until September 2. He then returned to Thief River Falls to the home of his parents, and stayed there until he passed peacefully away to his reward.

Edwin Alnes was born in Thief River Falls June 23, 1898, making his age at the time of death 18 years, and 29 days. He received his education in the city schools and would have entered upon his Senior year at Lincoln high school this fall. He was an exceptionally bright boy and was never known to fail in the classroom, and when the rest of the class failed to answer some certain question Edwin could be relied upon at all times. Diligence towards his studies made the young man an exceptionally good student and he ranked high among his classmates. Last year he was a member of the stock judging team that carried off the silver cup at the Crookston stock show, and he did a great deal in securing points against their several opponents. He was confirmed at the Zion church with a large class in 1913.

Funeral services were held at the Zion church Sunday afternoon, Rev. George Larson officiating, and interment was made in Greenwood cemetery. The deceased is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Alnes, and brothers, Arthur and Lloyd and sister, Gladys.

The Times extends its sincere sympathy to bereaved relatives.

Anna Jertina Nelson.

Saturday morning, September, 23, at 5 o'clock in this city occurred the death of Anna Jertina Nelson, death being due to cancer of the stomach, The deceased was a resident of Holt and was born in Wisconsin 48 years ago. The remains were shipped to Holt Monday morning, and services were conducted in the afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Clausen

On Thursday of last week occurred the death of Mrs. Mary Clausen, mother of Mrs. Stageburg, at the home of the latter on State avenue. The deceased was 66 years of age and had been ill for some time, death being due to diabetes. She was born in Denmark. Funeral services were held Monday from the Hauges Synod church and interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

To the many friends and neighbors who by their kind words and deeds assisted us during the sickness and after the death of our beloved mother, we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks.

Paul Morck, who for several years has made Thief River Falls his home, being conductor of the Lyceum theatre orchestra, left last Thursday evening for Madison, South Dakota, where he has accepted a position as violinist in a theatre at that place.

Mrs. C. C. Way, of Sioux City, Iowa, who had spent the past month in Thief River Falls visiting at the home of her son, Thomas A. Way, 716 Duluth avenue north, returned this morning from Grand Forks, where she had spent a few days visiting with relatives.

Mrs. James Hart, of Wabun, was the guest of Mrs. Henry Brabender on Saturday while enroute to her home after a visit with her daughter at Warroad. Mrs. Hart was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Claude Blevins, of Warroad, to her home to spend several days visiting.

Mrs. E. L. Quist and daughter, July, left yesterday evening for their home at Paso Robles, California, after having spent about two months in the city visiting with the former's mother, Mrs. Caldwall. Mrs. Caldwell accompanied her daughter to California to spend the winter.

Rev. and Mrs. Hjembac, of Drayton, N. D., motored over to this city the latter part of last week for a visit at the home of Rev. and Mrs. O. P. Stavaas. Rev Hjembac is an old schoolmate of Rev. Stavaas and they had a most enjoyable visit. They returned to Drayton yesterday.

After having spent her summer vacation in the city with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Peterson, 411 LaBree avenue north, Miss Alice Peterson departed Sunday evening to take up her duties at the state university. Miss Peterson entered upon her second year at that institution yesterday.

Mesdames Joseph Weirus, Andy Smith, Herman Ohm, Lonson C. Gillette and Davidson left for Holt on Monday morning to pay their final respects at the funeral of Mrs. Nelson, of that place, who passed away in this city Saturday, death being due to cancer of the stomach. The deceased was an old acquaintance of the above named ladies.

Martin Bothun expects to leave the first of next week for Minneapolis for the purpose of purchasing material for his proposed green house. Mr. Bothun stated yesterday that the work of excavating would begin at once in order to complete the concrete work before freezing time The first of the week Mr. Bothun received an order from Badger calling for 2 dozen asters, but was obliged to notify the party that his company had not started in the green house business, but by this time next year would be ready to fill the order.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ferris returned this week from near Malcolm, in Beltrami county, where they have been residing on a homestead for some time. Mrs. Ferris has been in poor health for some time and will stay in the city during the coming winter. Mr. Ferris will also remain until sometime in October, when he will go back to the farm for the purpose of making his final proof.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Stitt left Monday morning for their home at Regina, Sask., after a visit in Thief River Falls with the former's brother, J. L. Stitt, 901 LaBree avenue north. Mr. and Mrs. Stitt were on their honeymoon, having been married August 28, and arrived here from a visit at Toronto, Canada, Niagra Falls, Detroit, Mich., via Chicago and Minneapolis. Mr. Stitt is employed at Regina as linotype operator on the Daily Leader.

FOE CRUMBLES IN FIRST CLASH

BORRY PLAYS STAR GAME

Teams Were Evenly Matched For Contest Both Weighing About the Same—Local Goal Never In Danger of Being Crossed

In their fall "drive" on Northern Minnesota football teams, the Thief River Falls high school eleven trampled over Red Lake Falls with a score of 19 to 0 on the down river city's fair ground field Saturday afternoon. Although the boys did not surprise Coach Johnson by the victory or the many local fans who were present to see the contest, they did surprise their coach and followers by the efficient manner in which they administered a defeat upon their opponents. This victory puts the first burr on what will undoubtedly be a championship football pelt for the local team.

Thief River Falls scored a touchdown after twenty minutes of play. The ball was taken down the field in rapid order and after a series of line plays Rogers brought the pigskin within a short distance from the goal line. Red Lake's line crumpled like an egg shell before Johnson's men and Holzknecht slid threw the opening. The second touchdown was "duck soup" for the Lincoln high boys. From the time the ball was snapped at center, Red Lake Falls was backed straight down the field.

The third and final touchdown was made during the last two minutes of play. Borry received the ball from quarterback and crashed through irresistably for 26 yards, followed by Holzknecht's dive of four yards.

At no stage of the game did Red Lake Falls have a chance to win, and at no time did they have a chance to cross Thief River's goal. Repeated attempts to braek through the line resulted in failure for Red Lake Falls. What Red Lake did not do would fill a newspaper. Failure to catch punts was a great fault, a fault so common that it might be called a habit. A kickoff was also muffed.

Johnson's men, good in all around play, worked to its limit a line ripping game and in most instances the opposing line gave way for big and small gains. Fake plays with wide end runs netted clever gains.

The season's first game showed the brilliancy of Vincent Borry's work in the backfield. His running, goal kicking and punting outshone the individual play of his team-mates. The last touchdown was due solely to his speed down field, and his keen eye in recovering fumbled balls also aided the team to victory. He was easily the star of the game.

Alvin Holzknecht, pilot of the eleven, also did remarkable work on the field. He was down the field like a race horse and tackled with unerring accuracy. His ability to receive punts was also a great asset. Holzknecht is credited with three touchdowns, but missed two goal kicks. Stebbins, half and Steen, fulback, are also entitled to much credit for their work and both played a consistent game throughout.

On the line Hobson Rogers did the stellar work. At one instance Rogers broke through Red Lake's line and stopped a halfback, grabbing him around the waist and hoisting him into mid-air in the style Frank Gotch used in throwing the German Oak. Rogers also was called upon to carry the ball and each time acquitted himself with honor. The balance of the team played a splendid game and are deserving of much commendation. The greater part of the linemen answered Johnson's call for recruits two weeks ago.

The Game By Play.

Captain Holzknecht won the toss and chose to defend the north goal, the boys facing the sun with a southwesterly wind blowing. Red Lake Falls kicked off and the ball sailed to the 80 yard line, where it was caught by Holzknecht, who carried it out 12 yards and was downed. On the first play Fullback Steen went through for a ten yard gain, and Borr, halfback, dashed by for a 4 yard gain, followed by Holzknnecht who plunged for a 2 yard gain around end. Steen again ripped through the line for 4 yards, fumbling the ball, but recovered it in quick order. On the first down Steen smashed the line for 6 yards; Stebbins, halfback, lost 4 yards around right end. Red Lake's defense grew compact and Steen gained one yard through the line and Holzknecht on fourth down took 5 yards around end. Ball lost on downs. On a line play Red Lake Falls was "stonewalled." Paul, quarterback for Red Lake Falls, made 10 yards around left end; another 10 yards gained around left end. On the first down Red Lake made 4 yards around right end, and 2 yards were gained by a line plunge. Red Lake was held on third down and were set back 3 yards for offside. The ball went to Thief River Falls on downs after Red Lake had made 4 yards on a forward pass. On the first down Steen made one yard by a line "drive," Borry 3 through the line and Holzknecht made 6 yards around the end. Holzknecht then called a forward pass and McDaniel, end, caught the oval gaining 10 yards. Stebbins then crashed through for 14 yards, followed by Borry for 10 yards on a fake play. Steen made 7 yards through the line, and Rogers, tackle, advanced the ball 3 yards through right guard. A 3 yard dash by Holzknecht brought the ball within 3 yards from the goal, and on the second down, he squirmed through left guard for the first touchdown. Holzknecht failed to kick goal. Time 3:20 p. m.

Red Lake kicked off to Thief River and Holzknecht received the ball on the 50 yard line, where he was downed. Borry was good for 5 yards and Rogers went through tackle for 3 yards In the third down a forward pass to McDaniel, the ball landed outside the line and was brought back to its former position. Stebbins then hit the line for 4 yards on final down. Thief River's left half and fullback went through for 5 yards, followed by Holzknecht, who whizzed around left end for 15 yards. Fullback Steen, Quarterback Holzknecht, Tackle Rogers and Left Half Borry, carried the ball until 11 yards were made on four downs. A 14 yard run by Holzknecht around left end was made on first down. A smash by Steen netted 5 yards and Borry's run added 3 more, which landed the teams within 7 yards of Red Lake's goal ııne. Holzknecht aided by splendid interference then tore through for the second touchdown around left end. Holzknecht again failed to kick goal. Time 3:30 p. m.

Red Lake Falls received the kickoff and fumbled the ball on the 50 yard line. Teslow, Thief River center, recovered it on the 60 yard line Owing to timekeeper's mistake the teams played into the second quarter and as the game had progressed for a few minutes they did not change goals. Seven minutes were left of second quarter. Borry made 8 yards on first 2 downs, Steen and Holzknecht carrying it the balance of the required distance On the first down Borry fumbled the ball going around right end, and was recovered by a Red Lake man on the 30 yard line One yard was lost by Red Lake on the first play. Right half made 15 yards on left end run. Quarterback Paul gained 6 yards around left end, this being followed by a forward pass, which was received by Holzknecht on 50 yard line and returned 12 yds. Holzknecht made 12 yds. on first down and Rogers got by with 3, tackle through tackle. On second down Holzknecht carried the ball one yard. Borry then made 2 yards around end. First half ended with ball on 40 yard line. Score 12 to 0.

Beginning the third period Red Lake received the ball on the 70 yard line and returned it 8 yards. After three downs Red Lake was forced to punt, Holzknecht, of Thief River, grabbing the ball on the 40 yard line. On first down he went around end for 3 yards. Steen was thrown for a loss of 2 yards and Borry was forced to punt on the third down. The ball sailed 30 yards and was recovered by Red Lake. Two line plays netted them 11 yards. The next down gained 5 yards, right half around left end, and then were thrown back one yard. Another loss of 5 yards resulted and the ball was lost on downs. Borry advanced 8 yards through the line, while Holzknecht fell back 3 yards on fourth down. The ball was lost on downs and Red Lake came over with 10 yards around left end. Thief River braced up and threw their opponents for a 4 yard loss on first down followed by a 3 yard gain, half around end. Red Lake was again thrown back for 8 yards and were in such hot water that a punt was necessary. Holzknecht, for Thief River Falls, received it. A pass to McDaniel lit outside and was taken back to its position; Borry wiggled by for 4 yards, and failed to gain around end. Another punt was put into force, Red Lake Falls getting the oval on the 30 yard line, fumbling it and then recovering. Three line bucks netted Red Lake one yard. They punted on the final down. 12 yards were gained, half around left end. Kromer of Thief River Falls was injured in tackling the half and time was taken out. A series of line plays netted them 3 yards and they punted 20 yards. Holzknecht was on the job and "nailed" it. Again he scored 10 yards around left end, and Red Lake was penalized 5 yards for offside. Borry smashed the line for a 5 yard advance, muffed the ball and recovered it at once. On the third down Rogers by a tackle through tackle play "plowed" for 7 yards, closing the third period.

"Hip" play and line dive opened the final quarter with an 8 yard move. Holzknecht made 4 yards through the line and Stebbins dashed in a like manner for 10 long yards. The latter play was called back for the reason that two men were in motion before the ball was snapped. On third down Holzknecht lost 3 yards around right end and a beautiful 20 yard punt was lost to Red Lake Falls. Red Lake Falls was thrown back on first down for a 5 yard loss and then gained one through the line. A punt by Red Lake was caught by Holzknecht. Borry's last effort was made during the last two minutes of the final period, when he was called around right end and dashed through irresistibly for 26 yards. When within 4 yards of the goal, Holzknecht went through the hole made by the right guard, crossing the chalk line for the third time. Borry's attempt at kicking goal was good, and the fourth period closed Score 19—0.

THEY WANT ACTION

Literature of Rapid Movement is Most Eagerly Sought at the Local Library.

The Carnegie library is one of the busiest places in the city these days. With the opening of the schools and the lengthening of the evenings reading is becoming more popular and Miss Emma Backe, the librarian, is kept on the jump, particularly after the dismissal of school.

"Full of Action" books seem to be most in demand. There is a good assortment of these, the following being among the additions since the last report:

Title	Author
"Molly Make-Believe"	Abbott
"White Linen Nurse"	Abbott
"Little Miss Grouch"	Adams
"Little Minister"	Barrie
"Mary Cary"	Bosher
"Personal Conduct of Belinda"	Brainerd
"The Crisis"	Churchill
"William and Bill"	Cooke & Morrison
"The Spy"	Cooper
"Melting of Molly"	Davies
"Tooster's Handbook"	Edmund & Williams
"Money Moon"	Farnol
"Henry of Navarre"	Hall
"To Have and To Hold"	Johnston
"Everybody Lonesome"	Laughlin
"Sicily Ann"	Lea
"Chole Malone"	Lee
"Lady of the Decoration"	Little
"Amarilly of Clothespin Alley"	Maniates
"Polly of the Circus"	Mays
"Poor, Dear Margaret Kirby"	Norris
"Rich Mrs. Burgoine"	Norris
"Mother"	Norris
"Pollyanna"	Parker
"Girl of the Limberlost"	Porter
"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"	Rice
"Red Pepper Burns"	Richmond
"Mrs. Red Pepper Burns"	Richmond
"Twentyfourth of June"	Richmond
"Star in the Country Sky"	Richmond

"Daddy Long-Legs"	Webster
"Dear Enemy"	Webster
"Rose Garden Husband"	Widmer
"Mother Cary's Chickens and Other Stories"	Wiggen
Winning of Barbara Worth"	Wright
"Stranger at the Gate"	Wright

Among the books calculated to be of an inspiring nature, the following are having a very good demand:

"The Wonder Workers"	Wade
"Florence Nightingale"	Richards
"Turning Points in Successful Carers"	Thayer
"Famous Types of Womanhood"	Bolton
"Training for Efficiency"	Marden

Besides these there are a large number of volumes on biography, history. poetry, sociology as well as an exceptionally good assortment of reference books.

N. B. C. GRAHAM CRACKERS

You don't have to coax the children to eat plenty of N. B. C. Graham Crackers. These are not only rich in the nourishment that builds bone and muscle, but their tempting taste makes the little appetites hungry for more.

N. B. C. Graham Crackers added an individuality and nut-like flavor that other graham crackers lacked. This makes them an almost universally popular article of everyday diet.

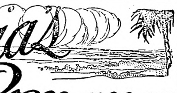
Gloria's Romance



by MR. and MRS. RUPERT HUGHES

Novelized From the Motion Picture Play of the Same Name by George Kleine

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father, who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law, he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her one dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau.

FIFTH EPISODE

The Gathering Storm.

"Daughters are dangerous charges, Pierpont," said Judge Freeman. The two elderly men stood watching the dance which was in full swing at the coming-out party of Gloria Stafford. The men were related to each other by marriage—the marriage of Stafford's son David and Freeman's daughter Lois—whatever relations that made them.

Pierpont Stafford nodded a worried assent to the judge's statement and, turning his eyes reluctantly from the grace and charm of his own girl, who was dancing with an almost lyric poetry of motion, enfolded in the arms of Richard Freneau, Pierpont looked for Judge Freeman's girl, Lois, to find a specific cause for the judge's doleful remark. What he saw puzzled him considerably. He saw Lois, not dancing, but watching Gloria and Freneau. There was a look of unmistakable jealousy and helpless rage on her face. He saw his son David speak to her and put his hand on her arm, only to have her shake him off and move away into the crowd.

Pierpont felt suddenly terribly afraid for his son's honor, and a gnawing ache in his heart for Lois' father, who stood beside him. But it was far too delicate a situation for the two men to discuss—yet.

"Children are hostages of fortune, as Bacon, the playwright, said," Pierpont murmured, putting his hand on the other man's arm. "After all, how little it is we can really save them from!"

Gloria was being watched jealously by yet another, Doctor Royce, who, with the mixed feelings of a lover and an older guardian, felt cut to the quick as she passed directly in front of him in Freneau's embrace. He could see the look of perfect joy in her glorious eyes, and there was rapture in the whole happy swing of her youthful body. Anger at Freneau's unworthiness of this pure being almost choked him. When another man took Gloria away from Freneau for the last half of the dance, and Freneau reluctantly walked away, Royce asked for a word with him, moving toward the library, where they could be alone. Freneau followed with uneasy bravado. Once safe from observation, Doctor Royce let his rage break forth.

"You contemptible fortune hunter! Five years ago I warned you to keep away from Gloria. You lied to her then and your life is still one long lie."

Freneau's face blanched with fury, and he raised his arm to strike Royce, but before the calm contempt in his eyes he changed his mind. He decided to forego the blow for the present, and laughed as bravely as he could. Royce pursued him with an alarming threat.

"What if I tell her of your affair with a certain married woman?"

Freneau gave a surprised start, attempted to speak, changed his mind again. He was guilty of too much to risk a challenge. Shrugging his shoulders, he moved sullenly off and out of the room.

Royce smiled to himself. "It was a bluff, but it worked." He had caught a glimpse of Lois' jealousy and a faint suspicion had risen in his mind. Now he wondered if it were confirmed.

Royce walked after Freneau and had the satisfaction of seeing him depart after bidding good-by to Gloria.

Royce thought he had won a signal victory. He would have taken little pleasure in it had he known that Freneau left so obediently because Gloria had already granted him a whole afternoon to be spent in her company alone on the following day. Freneau felt so certain of his ability to win a promise of marriage from her with this opportunity that he could afford the seeming compliance with the order of Doctor Royce.

As he descended the outer steps of the Stafford home a footman signaled his car to put into the driveway. A tramp who had been loitering on the street watching the gorgeous crowd of guests, caught sight of Freneau and seemed to go mad with rage. He rushed forward, shouting accusations. Freneau struck out viciously with his walking stick. The tramp fell to the ground, while Freneau, leaping into his limousine, motioned his chauffeur to make haste. He leaned out of his car as it turned and smiled to see the tramp pick himself up awkwardly and run after him, rushing wildly through the traffic of Riverside drive.

As Freneau's car turned into a side street the tramp, still in pursuit, was caught by an oncoming automobile and knocked sideways. One of the rear wheels passed over his legs. The car was stopped instantly and the occupants picked him up to hurry him to a hospital.

Freneau sat back in a daze at the quick tragedy. He could not tell how badly the man was hurt nor how much he could depend on his own release from danger in that quarter. It ruffled him considerably to encounter another relic of his adventurous past, just as he was about to win a beautiful young wife for himself; a relic who had a just grievance and might well ruin him by exposure. To get out of his entanglement with Lois was delicate matter enough for him to handle without this new ghost. Truly, Freneau brooded, a brave, pleasure-loving free lance like himself should have a wider field to move about in. The smallness of this world was cramping his style!

Arriving at his own apartment he threw his overcoat to his valet and marched gloomily into the living room, slamming the door behind him. If only Trask should die! But he could not count on such luck. Trask would probably escape with a few bruises and an added grudge, and be out again in a few days to pick up the trail.

A vision came to Freneau's mind of Nell Trask, as he had last seen her, when he left her beside a stream near a mining camp in the South.

Poor fool! She had pleaded so unreasonably that he should marry her and save her. When he refused she had thrown herself down on the bank in wild abandonment to her grief. As he mounted his horse he saw the girl's father pick her up and hold her in his arms while apparently she sobbed forth her confession. A look of such savage ferocity came over Trask's face that Freneau dug spurs into his horse. On reaching the town he had boarded a train at once, leaving his few belongings behind him. For that look on Trask's face surely meant death for him if he were overtaken. And now at last he had been overtaken.

Soon, however, Freneau broke from his reverie, dismissed it as an unpleasant memory, smiled at himself for giving it any place in his thoughts, and turned his mind to Gloria—the bewitching girl-woman to whom on the morrow he would tender his heart and hand, for all that they might be worth.

Meanwhile Gloria herself, tired beyond words, her pretty right hand stiff from the endless shaking of other hands at her reception, her tiny feet weary of their satin slippers and her ears tingling still with the buzz of compliments poured into them, was ecstatic as a full-fledged birdling after its first long flight.

The last of the guests departing, she threw her arms about her father's neck and gave him a resounding kiss. Swinging her feet free of the floor, she kicked off her slippers. Then she hugged Aunt Hortensia and thanked her, and, please did she and father mind if the new social leader left them and betook herself to bed, where they might send her crackers and milk for her dinner before she toppled off to sleep?

They laughed through their own weariness as Gloria, gathering up her cast-away footwear, proceeded to drag herself up the staircase, bent far over in imitation of an ancient cripple.

Reaching her own room, she screamed lustily to Burroughs, her English maid, to run a hot bath for her, and for goodness sake to get her out of her wreck of dress. As Burroughs fluttered between the two tasks Gloria hummed the "Aloha Oe" that had been played in waltz time to her last heavenly dance with Freneau. She picked a rose from her dressing table and went through the ritual of "He loves me, he loves me not," down almost to the last petal. But finding that it would come out on the tragic "not," she gasped, "How silly!" threw the rose away, casting a shy little smile at herself in the mirror.

Burroughs, having taken the woefully wilted and shredded tulle frock from her, wrapped her young mistress in a dressing gown. And Gloria went, still humming, to her bath.

In the midst of the splashing, while Burroughs was straightening the dressing room, she heard: "O Burroughs, do you think my new fur-lined driving coat looks very good on me?"

"Yes, miss. I do, indeed," answered Burroughs, surprised at the apparent irrelevance of the question.

"And, Burroughs!"

"Yes, miss?"

"What warm afternoon dress have I that I look awfully nice in?"

"Why, the brown velvet from Lucile, miss; you do look a perfect little doll in that, miss."

Another splash in the tub and a ripple of laughter.

"Thank you, Burroughs—you see, I'm driving the pony and sleigh out in the country tomorrow afternoon."

"Yes, miss?"

"And I'm not driving out alone, Burroughs."

"No, miss?"

After this Gloria was silent.

She hopped hurriedly into bed from her bath and ate her crackers and milk like a good child, smiling every now and then at her own thoughts. Then she told Burroughs to put out her lights and not allow her to be disturbed.

"You see, Burroughs, I'm a society queen now, and I have got to get my beauty sleep. Good night."

"Quite so, miss, and good night, miss," said Burroughs, as she tiptoed toward the door.

"Burroughs! Do you ever pray?"

"Oh, yes, miss; always; night and morning."

"Well, then, please pray for beautiful weather tomorrow."

"Certainly, miss. Anything else, miss?"

"No, nothing, thank you. Good night."

* * * * * * *

On the following day, all arrangements having been made by telephone to the Stafford country place, Gloria took Burroughs with her and motored out. They were met by a [illegible] and enthusiastic Freneau at the railroad station. Gloria took him on to her warm-weather home, which managed to keep a majestic appearance in its mantle of snow.

The dogs started a wild hullabaloo of ferocity from their kennels as the car drove in. They changed their excited barks to yelps of welcome as they recognized Gloria. But she left them disconsolate, for a groom brought up from the stable yard her shaggy ponies harnessed to the little Russian sleigh.

As she stopped to pet the noses of the ponies Freneau lost for a moment his confidence in his own power to win this small young beauty enveloped in a great coat, which made her seem smaller still, her eyes beaming, her cheeks flushed with the cold, her delicate pink blonde curls escaping from the little fur-trimmed hat.

With this palatial background, among the obsequious attendants, she stood, more than ever for him, the embodiment of power,—youth, beauty, wealth. What had he to offer in exchange for that worldly trinity? Spoiled by women as he was he felt that however sincerely he wanted this slip of a girl—wanted her more than he had ever wanted anyone else in his life—she might elude him.

Gloria turned to him with a bright smile, and seeing the look of adoration in his eyes, blushed an even deeper rose than she had been wearing.

"I think we had better start at once if we are to get our sleigh ride," she said. "The days are so short now; we must make the most of this stingy sunlight."

"Right!" Freneau answered eagerly as he helped her into the sleigh.

The ponies were champing at the bits and jingling the bells and waving the pompons on their heads with every impatient movement. Gloria stepped into the driver's seat (she was going to drive them herself, wise girl!) and Freneau snatched the sable robe from the hands of a groom, saw that her little feet were in place on the foot warmer, and proceeded to wrap her snugly in. (How nicely he did things of that sort, she thought.)

"We will be back in a couple of hours, probably stop somewhere for tea," Gloria called to Burroughs as they passed the lodge door. She felt the thrill of being a runaway once more, and she was glad that her father was not present to thrust a chaperon upon them.

Out into the road and off they went, youth, health, and joy of life in their veins; love in their hearts. The ponies pranced and cavorted, somewhat too strenuously, Freneau feared, until he realized how skillfully Gloria's hands were in handling them. On they glided merrily, chatting of the big nothings of young love, Gloria pointing out paths and places of interest, Dick Freneau seeing them only as they were mirrored in her eyes, since he could not bear to turn away from her lest he lose one fleeting expression of her face.

After several miles of "up hill and down dale," Gloria turned her ponies off the main road into one less used.

"I'm taking you to the dearest old-fashioned farmhouse, where we can have tea and the nummiest apple butter you ever tasted. Shall you like it?"

"I shall like anything and everything in this world, so long as I have it with you," Freneau breathed earnestly.

"Then that's all right," chirruped Gloria, happily. "You shall most certainly have this tea with me, and I'm famished."

When they reached the farmhouse, which called itself an inn, the plump landlady greeted Gloria with pleased recognition and ushered them into the parlor, saying that she would hasten with their tea and bring the table to them there by the fire. Freneau helped Gloria out of her great coat—how well he took off a coat, she thought. She emerged like a golden-brown butterfly in a velvet gown.

The blazing logs in the deep fireplace gilded the beauty of a truly charming old room. Gloria fingered the quaint pewter pieces on the mantel and Freneau waited restlessly for Mrs. Bailey to hurry in with the tea things and hurry away. Soon they were left alone, seated opposite each other, the little tea table between. Gloria learned his sugar. She became suddenly timid and embarrassed. It did seem very intimate and daring. It was the first time she had ever asked a man about his s[illegible] with him!

Dick perceived her shyness and divined the cause at once. He must speak now. He would never have a better chance, he thought. Putting down his cup, he reached across the table for her hand.

"Gloria, dear little Gloria," he sighed, "my five years of probation are up. I've waited patiently and always hopefully. Mayn't I have my reward now? Please say that you will marry me quickly and put me out of my misery, will you?"

Gloria could not answer. She hung her pretty head and wriggled back a little farther into the grandfather's chair. Perhaps she did not want to end the luxury of keeping him anxious with a too immediate yes. He would not dally. He picked up the little table that stood between them and putting it aside dropped on one knee before her, like the true artist in love that he was. He clasped his arms about her and she closed her eyes and gave him her lips.

They heard the untimely hostess approaching and he sat back in his chair, twirling his mustache, while Gloria tried to look as if nothing had happened. Nothing had happened except a short flight to heaven.

On the way home they chattered merrily of the everythings that would make up their new life. The scenery was the same, yet how different! They were betrothed now. For many reasons Freneau was impatient to have her father's sanction to their engagement as soon as possible. Gloria decided that she would drive him home with her and beard her parent in his lair without delay.

* * * * * * *

Pierpont Stafford was not unprepared for the "Will you let me marry your daughter?" speech that Richard Freneau made him. He had given his own word five years before that if Freneau and Gloria found themselves in the same frame of mind at this date he would raise no further objections. He gave up the fight now, and took his defeat like the true sport he was, graciously concealing his own sad heart.

The radiance of his child and the evident sincerity of Freneau almost repaid him; at least they made him hopeful for her happiness. One stipulation only he insisted upon, that the engagement should not be made public at once. He knew that engagements were not necessarily certain to end in marriage, and he wanted to test Freneau a little further. He insisted upon guarding his daughter's name to that extent. If anything went wrong with them they should not have to take the great American public into the secret. Freneau agreed to this, the more readily since it would give him the more time to propitiate and get rid of Lois. And old Trask might have to be given his quietus in one way or another.

While Freneau and her father held their council of war Gloria had gone out to the hall to wait its outcome. There Freneau found her huddled up on the lower step, hugging herself as if she were cold. He rushed to take her in his arms for a kiss. She battled him with mock resistance, before she ran up the stairs to play Juliet to his Romeo. Then, throwing kisses, they parted.

When she reached her room Gloria found herself shivering with a violent chill that all the warmth of her heart could not subdue. Burroughs was instantly alarmed. She summoned Gloria's father, who was even more alarmed. He made her go to bed at once, ordered her covered with many blankets, and had hot-water bottles filled.

The chill did not abate. In a panic he telephoned from Gloria's own room to his old family physician, Doctor Wakefield, and was fortunate enough to reach him and be assured of his immediate attendance. Doctor Wakefield was a fussy medical man of the very old school. He had taken good care of the Stafford family, but latterly he had let science outrun him. Still he recognized pneumonia without difficulty. He whispered the dreadful word to Stafford and ordered in two trained nurses and no end of medicines.

Pierpont Stafford was frantic with anxiety. He telephoned for Gloria's brother and for Aunt Hortensia. Burroughs told them of the stolen sleigh ride and Freneau became less popular with the Staffords, father and son, than ever before.

Days and nights of harrowing fear dragged over that household. Wealth had not dulled affection, nor could it seem to bribe death. The fever line mounted on the nurse's chart like a mountain side, and Gloria grew weaker, except in her deliriums, when she seemed to be inhabited by demons of ferocious strength.

At length David felt that Doctor Wakefield had been given all the time to experiment with Gloria's life that could be afforded. He was for calling in a young man of the newest school of medical art. He called for Doctor Royce. Royce came with no hesitation over medical ethics or courtesies. Gloria was more than a patient to him, and old Wakefield was less than a doctor in his eyes, after he had questioned the Staffords as to the manner of Doctor Wakefield's treatment. Things were, as he feared, all wrong. It was life or death. Doctor Wakefield could not cope with the disease. He must be dispossessed as politely as possible.

Doctor Wakefield, he learned, was in the sickroom above. Royce would not mince matters or wait on professional etiquette. He felt the eagerness of a lover in coming once more to the rescue of his idolized Gloria.

He ran up the stairs and walked into the room. He hardly knew his Gloria when he saw her. She was in the throes of a wild delirium. She imagined herself once more among the Seminoles who had held her in bondage when she ran away in Florida five years before.

In her tormenting fancy she was again dressed as a squaw and set to the task of gathering firewood and subjected to the worse task of enduring the old squaw's hatred and the young chief's love. She begged him to kill her rather than marry her, and she fought with all her fury, seizing Wakefield's white hair with one hand and the nurse's black locks with the other.

There was no quieting her outcries. "Take me home; my father is rich! He will make you rich! Oh, they don't believe me! Help! Help!" Then she smiled and cried: "Dick, Dick, it's you! You'll save me! Blessed, beloved Dick! Oh, I'm so glad, so glad you found me!"

Then the frenzy left her and she sank back exhausted, but content. Doctor Royce realized that he had two antagonists now to fight—Death and Richard Freneau—both of them trying to take from him the girl of his heart.

Death was the first to fight. Royce was too desperate to treat Doctor Wakefield with much formality. He asked a few questions which roused the ire of the old physician. He examined the patient, threw off the smothering blankets and exclaimed, "Fresh air is the best and only treatment for pneumonia." He flung up the window, shoved Gloria's bed against it, and let the cold air from the river sweep into the room and into her tormented lungs.

Almost at once her breathing became less labored. Doctor Wakefield left in as dignified a rage as he could manage. Royce threw away all the Wakefield medicines and gave the nurse a new set of instructions. The nurse, at least, whom Doctor Wakefield had prescribed, seemed a capable one. Royce welcomed her as a valuable aid in the gruesome fight. He arranged to stay all night, and allayed poor old Stafford's fears as best he could. But his own head was near to breaking with terror for the safety of Gloria's sweet life—and for her happiness if she lived.

Notice to the Public.

When we took over the management of the Princess theatre it was with the determination not to allow children to see pictures through which the immature might get a wrong impression. We do not believe that children under 16 years of age and who are consequently highly impressionable, should be allowed to see "The Crimson Stain." This is not because of anything bad or immoral in the picture, but certain of the situations are just a little too melodramatic to be good for children. We have therefore decided not to allow anyone under 16 years of age to attend the performances on Monday afternoons or evenings during the run of this serial, unless they bring written permission from their parents.

We are sure that the people of Thief River Falls will appreciate our efforts to keep the children from seeing a play, the after effects of which might prove injurious. No one has registered an objection against this picture and grown-up people with good sense will find none, but we do not think it best that the children be allowed to see it. That is the object of this notice.

Yours truly,
W. H. SEITZLER,
Manager Princess.

St. Hilaire News

University Lyceum Course

All arrangements have been made and everything is well under way for the successful launching of our lecture course. It is the intention of the committee to solicit every person in this community for the sale of a season ticket. Why go to other towns to attend a lecture course when St. Hilaire is to have one of its own?

The first number of the course will be the University Players; an attraction staged in many of the larger towns. They will be here Saturday evening, Oct. 7th, and should draw a crowded house. Thief River Falls had this same number on its Chautauqua course this year, and pronounced the "Players" a huge success.

Burgdefer, the man of many faces, will be with us Dec. 4th. He will be immensely popular with the young people. He is a genius at the art of impersonation. If you enjoy a laugh, you cannot afford to miss this number.

Chas. Payne, university lecturer for Minnesota, Wisconsin, and N. Dak., will deliver an illustrated lecture on Jan. 18th. Two of his subjects are "Beautiful Fascinating Hawaii" and the "Panama Canal."

The Potter-Depew Trio will give a musical entertainment here on Feb. 6th. Music lovers of St. Hilaire should enjoy them immensely.

In fact you cannot afford to miss any of this lecture course. It is not a question of how much it will cost, but of how much you will lose if you stay away.

The very reasonable rate of $1.25 per adult season ticket, and 75 cents per school children season ticket has been made, and for the single admision tickets 5 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Let's all boost for the Lecture Course.

"Guarding Old Glory" to Be Shown.

The people of St. Hilaire and vicinity will at last have the opportunity of seeing F. O. Neilson's big American war picture, "Guarding Old Glory." This superb picturization of our military defenses will be shown at the Imperial theatre here on Saturday evening, Sept. 30. This picture is presented in five thousand feet of high class film and shows Uncle Sam's fighting men in the air, on land, and on and under the sea.

The picture is full of action and spectacular scenes. Some of the actual scenes to be shown are: Where officers and men for our garrisons and fleets come from; how they are trained, what they do in peace and in time of war; how bombs are dropped from the sky, and with what terrific force they explode; how mines are laid; what a broadside looks like fired from a fleet of dreadnaughts; the grand scenes of military parades and the exciting dash of soldiery. The picture is a lesson in patriotism and will give you a better understanding of what all the present day talk of "preparedness" really means.

ROUTE NUMBER TWO

On Saturday, Sept. 23 this community was very much grieved when the news spread that Mrs. Martin Nelson had passed away into the Great Beyond. About two weeks ago she was taken ill with cancer of the stomach and was committed to the hospital, where death occurred early Saturday morning.

Mrs. Nelson was born in Wisconsin Jan. 5, 1868 and was married in the spring of 1910. She and her husband have since made their home in various places of Mud Lake and East Valley townships. She was a kind and loving woman who was highly honored by all who knew her. While here she made a large circle of friends who regret deeply her sudden death. Sincere sympathy is extended to the grief stricken husband besides a number of other relatives.

May the consolation to all be that she has departed for a higher and more perfect life on the other shore, where there shall be no more suffering or sorrow.

Funeral services were held from the Holt Synod church on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. A. Klungness was a Sunday afternoon caller at the Sampson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Olsen and children, Mrs. Olsen, Mary Kaichinger and Amund Sordahl, were Sunday afternoon visitors at the Halvor Listol home.

Harry Moe and sister, Gunda, were delightfully entertained at the Albert Klnugness home Sunday evening.

Amanda Klungnes, who is attending high school at Thief River Falls, spent Saturday and Sunday at home.

Miss Clara Larson will commence teaching a term of school near Thief River Falls on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hansen and sons, Ralph, Floyd, Henry and Russell were guests at the S. G. Moe home Sunday afternoon.

WILL YOU HELP HIM?

Will Shortly be Discharged From Hospital and is Without Funds or Clothes.

Harold Brown, the man who about three weeks ago was run over by a train at Plummer and brought here for treatment, will be able to leave the hospital on Wednesday of next week. The fact that he faces the world minus one leg is certainly a severe handicap, but to add to his helplessness he has neither money to pay his way nor friends to whom he can turn. He has been taken care of by Dr. F. H. Gambell, who has certainly done his full share in the matter.

Brown wants to reach Minneapolis and believes that he can make a livelihood for himself there by selling papers or at some similar occupation. He is sorely in need of clothing for the trip, however. Deputy sheriff Paul Medderigh has given him a pair of crutches with which he is able to move around in pretty good shape, and it now remains for other good fellows to help him along. Ed. O' Hara has fitted the unfortunate man out with a full new rig of the most necessary garments, but a cap, overcoat, shirt and certain other articles are still needed. The outlay will not be great if a few "chip" in together to meet it and the man certainly will have to be supplied before he can be sent on his way. Notify Dr. Gambell of anything you are able to do for a fellow who really needs your help.

CATTLE PRICES DOWN

Pennington County Shippers Advised to Hold off Till Spring if This is Possible.

R. L. Muzzy, resident manager for the Thief River Falls Shippers association, has just returned from South St. Paul, to which place he had accompanied a shipment of cattle. The consignment consisted of 28 head, the stock being picked up in the neighborhood of the city.

Mr. Muzzy states that the receipts at the stock yards are enormous at this particular time, and for this reason prices are only fair. The yards were so crowded at the time this shipment arrived that many trainloads had to be accomodated on tracks outside of the stockyards. He therefore advises all shippers to hold their cattle till spring where this is possible, believing that any attenmpt to fatten the stock in the hope that prices will soon recover will be a mistake. Because of feed shortage in many sections stockmen are rushing their cattle to market and there is small reason for supposing that this condition will be bettered later in the fall.

The stock continues to come in, however, and it is likely that Mr. Muzzy will take out another shipment on Saturday.

STUDENTS ARE SORE

University students who have just been relieved from border duty with the United States army find themselves in an embarassing situation. The money that many of them expected to earn during the summer for the purpose of carrying them through the coming winter at universities will not be forthcoming, as they have been putting in their time as soldiers and have in the neighborhood of $40 coming. One Pennington county boy, H. R. Menzel, of Germantown, had a job running a tractor at Carrington, N. D., when he was called to mobilize. According to the Minneapolis Journal he is pretty much disgusted. He is quoted as saying:

"The only thing the army did for me was to put me back in Minneapolis broke," said Menzel at Fort Snelling today. "I can now go out and look for a job after the good ones are taken. I am 21 years old and will not ask my family to send me to school. I would have had the funds but for the call of the war department. I don't intend to borrow from the student fund, either. Some of the men who borrow from that fund have a reputation for not paying it back. I want a reputation for havink no debts so I will not go to school this year."

When Menzel gets his army pay he will have $40. His tuition alone in the college would be $85.

Take notice that default exists in the conditions of that mortage given by Swan Englund, a single man, Mortgagor, to Hoag Security Company, Mortgagee, Minneapolis, Minnesota, (a Minnesota Corporation) dated December 5th, 1914, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, on December 18th, 1914, at 1:30 o'clock p. m. in Book 53 of Mortgages on page 153. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage is $142.10 and for interest paid on prior mortgage by this mortgagee $87.78, a total of $229.88 claimed to be due this date by virtue of said mortgage indebtedness. The premises described in said mortgage and situated in Pennington County, Minnesota, are to-wit: The south half of the northeast one quarter of section thirty-five and the south half of the northwest one quarter of section thirty six, in township one hundred fifty-three, north of range forty west 5 degrees P. M. By virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute and no action in law or otherwise having been instituted thereon, same will be foreclosed by the sale of the said premises at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of Pennington County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on Monday the twenty-third day of October 1916 at 10 o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with the interest and taxes if any, and costs of this action including $25 attorney fees as stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated September 5th 1916.

HOAG SECURITY COMPANY,
Mortgagee.

L. M. HOAG,
Attorney for Mortgagee,
Minneapolis, Minn. S7-O12

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to Iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A. D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 153 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

Dated August 30th, 1916.

GRID SEASON TO OPEN SATURDAY

Indian Eleven From Ogema Will Battle With Johnson's Men in First Home Game.

FOSSTON NEXT ON SLATE

Local Team is Going Big and Will Be In Splendid Shape For The Next Two Big "Grid" Engagements.

King Football will kick the lid off the home gridiron schedule Saturday afternoon, when Johnson's Colts will take on an Indian crew from Ogema. Little is known of the Red men and their team, but it is safe to say that the Indian invasion will be checked in short order. The team is composed of boys from the White Earth reservation and are being taken on by the local eleven to fill an open date. This the first time in the history of the high school that an Indian squad has been booked and the contest should prove real interesting. The fleeted-footed Redmen are capable of putting up a good article, it is reported, and a record-breaking crowd should be present to cheer Thief River Falls on to victory.

Team Going Big

The team, itself, is going big. Johnson's men have reached a splendid physical condition and will be in grand shape for the coming gridiron engagement Saturday afternoon as well as for the Fosston battle Oct. 14. The team is working like one man and a new set of plays—all good ones—has been given out by the coach. For the past two weeks the high school warriors have been tearing up Lincoln field and have also been given a taste of the tackling dummy. Mistakes made by the men of Johnson's machine in the Red Lake Falls game have been all corrected and they have been given a special drilling in offensive and defensive work, and as a result Captain Holzknecht has his men stepping in fine shape.

That the Thief River Falls high school has a wonderful backfield must be admitted. Borry, Stebbins, Steen and Holzknecht forms a quartet of seasoned performers and have a heap of football brains and excellent ability. The high school boys scored on old man Jinx this week when Tandberg, star tackle and end with the '15 team, returned for practice. With Tandberg back into the game at end or tackle, the high school line will be strengthened considerably.

Assistance Needed

The fact is that Thief River Falls has an excellent chance of writing "Champions of the Ninth District" on the back of the 1916 scroll, and it is hoped that the people of this city will give assistance along athletic lines by their presence at the games. Without the proper amount of interest in the games it will be impossible for the boys to show up in the best form. This is true in any walk of life, as the interest and encouragement tend to best efforts.

Big Rooting Club.

Lincoln high school students have always been known for their enthusiasm and at Saturday's game a sample of the 1916 stuff will be shown. A rooting club will be formed of men and boys and besides this army of leather-lunged masculinity there will be young women all decked out in blue and red ribbons,—the school colors—and they, too, will shout and sing.

Big Game With Fosston

Following the game with the White Earth Indians, Coach Johnson will lead his warriors against Fosston on Saturday, October 14, at Fosston. Intense interest is being centered on this contest as much depends on the game in the run for the championship. Wild-eyed joy will be turned loose for further orders on the morning of October 14 and no peace can be expected until after Johnson's crew has met and defeated their old time opponents. The crews are booked to battle in the afternoon and if Thief River Falls is victorious the many rooters who have signified their intention of accompanying the team will shake the town to its base with gay enthusiasm. Arrangements are being made by the band officers to give a concert and dance at Fosston that evening. In that event the band will accompany the team and furnish plenty of spirited music at the big game. Scores of local football fans will also go to the scene of battle.

Coach Johnson has a new set of plays for every game and contemplates giving out next week a new series devised for the purpose of mystifying the Fosston team in the game on October 14.

NO CHANGES MADE IN COUNTY TAXES

State Commission Finds That Local Officials Are Entitled to Much Credit For Work.

Pennington county is one of the very few in the state of Minnesota that has escaped with practically no changes in its tax assessments. County Auditor T. P. Anderson this week received notice from Secretary Henry A. S. Ives of the State tax commission, informing him that there were no changes ordered in the personal property assessments. Last week Mr. Anderson was notified that the real estate valuations would stand as submitted by the board of equalization of the county, and commenting upon the good work done by the auditor and the county commissioners. In his last letter Mr. Ives says:

"We beg to advise you that there will be no changes in the personal property assessment in your county as equalized by the county board, except the changes in bank stock shown on the attached sheet. The usual official will be sent you in a few days.

"Please accept thanks of the commission for the valuable assistance you have given in carrying out the law."

The changes referred to consists in an increase in the amount to be taxed in the following institutions; Citizens State bank, Hazel, $344; First State bank, Thief River Falls, $832; Citizens State bank, Thief River Falls, $460. The returns on this class of property do not come before the equalization board, being sent in as submitted by the assessorr.

COUNCILMAN AMBLE TO LEAVE THE CITY

Will Resign His Office, and Family Will Leave Shortly to Make Home in North Dakota.

Henry Ambel, councilman-at-large, will leave shortly with his family to take up his residence at Sarles, N. D. Mr. Ambel has already sent in his resignation and the same will be read at the next meeting of the council.

The retiring member has been in office less than one year, beginning his service on the first of January. During this time he has proven himself a thorough and painstaking official, devoting a great deal of his time to the welfare of the city. He has been particularly active in seeing that the work of securing an adequate water supply was carried on with all reasonable haste. Because of his conscientious application and willingness to shoulder responsibility he has been very popular with his colleagues and they will regret his absence from the council board.

WILL ASK BONDS FOR NEW SCHOOL

Board Will Hold Special Meeting on Tuesday to Discuss the Preliminary Steps.

The question of a new school building for Thief River Falls will be discussed at a special meeting of the board to be held on Tuesday evening.

The board met last Monday and the matter was given some consideration. It has been decided to ask the people of the city to authorize a bond issue in the amount needed, but the exact sum has not yet been decided upon. The members are very anxious to relieve the situation now existing as quickly as possible, realizing that there is no possibility of its growing better with the lapse of time. There are, however, many matters to be considered before embarking on a project of such magnitude and the board members believe they will be upheld in their desire to take sufficient time to make sure of their ground.

SANITORIUM PLANS FINALLY ACCEPTED

Bids Will Now be Advertised For and Work May Yet be Commenced This Falls.

Dr. O. F. Mellby of this city, chairman of the Tri-County Sanitarium board, on Monday received word from Sund & Dunham, architects, at Minneapolis, stating that the plans for the sanitarium to be erected at Thief River Falls for the counties of Pennington, Marshall, and Roseau, had been accepted by the state board of control and that notices requesting bids for the construction of the building would be at once published.

Inasmuch as three weeks will be required for the publication of this notice for bids it will be rather late in the season before work can be commenced and it is Dr. Mellby's opinion that the actual construction may have to be postponed until spring. Everything will be put in readiness, however, and it is possible that the excavation work and foundation may be completed this fall. This will largely depend upon the speed with which matters are handled at St. Paul.

Commercial Club Dues.

The membership list of the Commercial club is being revised and it is very desirable that those in arrears for dues pay these promptly. A number of unusual demands upon the treasury at this time makes it necessary for the club to make this request.

If everyone will give this matter their attention at once it will greatly facilitate the work now contemplated by the club.

F. T. LINCOLN, Secretary.

AUTOISTS HAVE A STRENUOUS WEEK

Three Accidents, One Resulting in Serious Injury, Is the Unusual Record.

PROVENCHER BREAKS ARM

Overturning of Car Near Crookston Puts Evelyn Landlord in Hospital—Architect Has Narrow Escape—Collision on East Side

Julien Provencher, proprietor of the Hotel Evelyn in this city, returned yesterday from Crookston, where he had been in a hospital since Saturday as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident. His right arm is broken between the elbow and the shoulder and there were also other injuries of a less serious nature.

Tipped Going Up Hill

Mr. Provencher and O. C. McCormick of the Continental Land company, were on their way to Crookston in the latter's automobile. They had arrived at a point about two miles from Crookston on the Maple Lake road when the accident happened. Ascending a slight raise having a sharp turn at the top, the auto for no apparent reason that the occupants could see, suddenly turned over. Mr. Provencher was thrown clear but struck on his side with sufficient force to fracture his arm. Mr. McCormick was under the overturned car, but escaped practically without injury. The machine was hardly scratched.

Theodore Laurent of Crookston, picked the wounded man up and brought him to the hospital in that city where he remained until yesterday when he was brought to his home here, where he is steadily improving.

Scored Clean Knock-Out.

After lying unconscious for seven hours in the hospital at Roseau, Architect Jos. R. Lutz of Thief River Falls arrived home on Saturday evening after an automobile experience which he may be excused for hoping will not be repeated.

In company with Clarence Loomans, Mr. Lutz was traveling along the road between Roseau and Warroad when the accident happened. The auto was runing at what both admit was a "pretty fair clip," which means that it was going rather faster than there was need for. The men were scattering some hand bills for the Warroad Townsite company along the road as they travelled and it was one of these that caused the trouble. The poster was thrown from the car but was blown back by the wind and lodged squarely across the face of Mr. Lutz, who was driving. That is the last he remembers until he awoke in the hospital at Roseau seven hours later. He was not seriously injured a general stifness and some slight abrasions about the face making up the total of his visable injuries. He must have gotten a very severe jolt, however, as the doctors worked untiringly for hours in order to bring him to.

Between Pole and Stone

Mr. Loomans fared somewhat better although he does not understand how it was that he is alive at all. He does not think he was unconscious for any length of time, but when he came to he was wedged between a telephone pole and a big stone. Had he struck either of these objects when he was thrown he never would have been picked up alive.

Mr. Lutz says that when the bills struck him across the face he must have lost control of the machine and swerved into the telephone pole. The occupants were thrown some distance from the machine, which would indicate that they were not crawling along.

An auto coming along a short time later picked up the injured men and took them to Roseau.

Collision on East Side

Louis Rayson, chief clerk in the office of Superintendent W. A. Barnard of the Soo, and T. O. Rierson, bookkeeper for the Oen Merchantile company, met in a head-on collision at the corner of Conley avenue and Bridge street Sunday evening. The corner is a little difficult to navigate under the best of conditions and the gathering darkness helped to confuse the drivers. Except for some minor damages to the cars no great harm was done.

COUNTY GETS BIG SUM FOR SCHOOLS

October Apportionment Amounts to Over $10,000—$3.50 For Each Pupil Attending

County Auditor T. P. Anderson has been notified that the apportionment of the current school fund has been made and that the share of Pennington county is $10,573.50. This is at the rate of $3.50 for each of the pupils enrolled.

At the last apportionment in March the amount received was at the rate of $2.10 for each of 2,919 pupils, making a total of $6,129.

The division to the different school districts will be made in November.

SECOND MARKET DAY OCTOBER 20

Elaborate Arrangements Going Forward For Making This Event Biggest of All Successes

LIST EXCLUSIVE BARGAINS

This is Advice Given Merchants by the Committee—Dinner Hour Extended to Three O'clock—Auction a Feature.

The advertising page for the second big Free Auction and Market Day to be held under the direction of the Commercial club on Friday, October 20, is now open to advertisers.

The committee has made an effort to call upon merchants who are members of the business men's organization and the promptness with which they have taken advertising space indicates their approval of this plan of giving the farmers a genuine bargain and holiday. Those who are tardy in making space reservations for their advertising will have only themselves to blame, if overlooked. Phone the secretary or call at the commercial club and make advertising space reservation promptly, as the pages will be closed on Saturday and all copy must be in Monday October 9th.

Dinner Tickets.

The committee wishes to emphasize the fact that dinner tickets will be issued to advertisers only and they in turn will give them out to their customers. A number of farmers who did not fully understand the plan last Market Day failed to present tickets. They were invited in to lunch however, but the next Market Day it will be necessary for each and every one to have a meal ticket, as it is an easy matter to secure these from the merchants whose names appear in the bargain pages of the local papers next week, announcing the Market Day specials.

Merchants are urged to name some specific bargain and not to advertise generalities, as it will add to the interest in the bargain page, make the advertising more to the point and bring better results. It is suggested that merchants in the same line of business get together and decide upon some special bargain, thus avoiding a repetition of the same article offered as a bargain by two or more firms.

Lunch Hours.

The free lunch will be served at the commercial club rooms from 11:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. in order to give those late in reaching the city an opportunity to avail themselves of the courtesy. The lunch will be in charge of the house committee, of which Joseph Lutz is chairman and he will be assisted by members of the directorate and club, to be selected from the active workers in the organization. Charles Anderson will act as cashier and George Johnson as "official carver of meats." The menu will consist of hot roast beef, brown gravy, mashed potatoes, home baked beans, coffee, bread and butter. There will be food in abundance and local business men are urged to take lunch down town on that date, and to lunch early in order to avoid the crowds sure to visit the club rooms when the people from the country arrive. Lunch to local people will cost 25 cents per plate.

The Auction.

The auction will be held at the corner of LaBree avenue and Fourth street as formerly, at 1 p. m. sharp, and Jesse W. J. LaBree agrees to dispose of every marketable effect that is brought in. There has been a request from a number of local people for permission to auction off personal effects. The committee has decided to permit this, but in each and every case, the goods must be listed and the list turned in to the commercial club secretary the day before the auction and the clerks will reserve 5 per cent of the gross receipts on such goods to help defray the expenses of the Market Day and Auction.

Free To Farmers

Another thing, the goods brought in by farmers will be auctioned off free and will come first. No goods taken from the local stores will be accepted for auction. It must be personal effects used in the home, usually termed as "second hand" goods, and the committee reserves the right to accept or reject all such goods, submitted by local people for auction.

Everything indicates an even larger attendance than at the last Market Day and the event will be liberally advertised and every detail carefully worked out by the committee.

The Thief River Falls band will be in attendance during the noon hour and will give a musical program at the club rooms. The members of the band will be served at a special table arranged for their benefit and are expected to be at the club rooms early in order that the committee may serve them before the big rush comes.

The list of advertisers will appear in the next week's issue of The Times and the Market Day ad on the same date, Thursday, October 12. Watch for the big bargain announcements and the list of merchants who are making Thief River Falls the trading center of this section of the state.

Plenty of Checks—No Funds.

O. E. Mogensen, the clothier, has a check for $6 drawn on the First National bank of Warren, and signed by "Charlie Brown," that he will dispose of at considerably less than its face value. He would also like to get within reaching distance of the said "Charlie."

A party giving the above name selected a sweater at the Mogensen store one day last week and tendered the check in payment. The fellow looked all right, Mr. Mogensen knew that the First National bank was all right and also that there was nothing whatever the matter with the sweater. He therefore took it for granted that the check was just as good, being aided in reaching this conclusion by the fact that it was issued for the exact amount, with no change returnable.

The check came back marked "no funds" coupled with the information that similar checks were showing up at both the Warren banks. "Brown" never had an account in either of these institutions. Neighboring bankers were at once warned against accepting any more in case they ran across him. He has evidently left for other fields, however, taking the sweater and check books with him.

EARNINGS TAX IS FINALLY RECEIVED

Total Amount For Two Years is $2,029.63—State Will Soon Forward Money.

The vouchers for the payment of the gross earnings tax of the Minnesota Northwestern Electric Railway have finally been received at the office of the county auditor. These will now be signed up and returned, after which the money will be forthcoming.

The total amount to be received is $2,229.63, of which sum $416.81 represents the taxes for the year 1914, and $1,612.81 those for 1915.

The report of this gross earnings tax is chiefly valuable as showing the increase in the business of the electric line during the first year of its operation. Every month of the current year has thus far overrun the corresponding period a year ago, and this item of taxation is expected to show a large increase when the next report is turned in.

PLEADS GUILTY TO FORGERY CHARGE

Ole Gunslo Uses Signature of Kittle Vatne on Negotiable Paper—Usual Results.

Ole Gunslo, a young man residing in the eastern part of the county, was arrested and taken before Judge N. W. Tarrant, yesterday, charged with having forged the name of Kittle Vatne of Highlanding, to two notes aggregating $155.

Gunslo is said to have bought a horse from M. E. Hyland on March 3, and tendered the notes as payment. Neither Mr. Vatne nor Mr. Hyland knew anything of the matter until the time for payment of the interest arrived, when the forgery was discovered.

The forger, on being confronted with the evidence, admitted his guilt, but did not seem to realize that it was a very serious matter. Judge Tarrant bound him over on a charge of second degree forgery, and as he indicated a willingness to plead guilty he was taken to Warren, where Judge Andrew Grindeland sentenced him to an indeterminate term in the state reformatory. The sentence was suspended for a period of one year with the understanding that Gunslo must report once a month to Magnus Anderson of Star township, who was appointed probation officer.

WILL REQUEST AID ON RED LAKE ROAD

Committee Appointed by Commercial Club to Act With Similar Body From Red Lake

The Red Lake Falls Commercial club has taken the initiative in a move to secure federal aid for the improvement of the road to the Red Lake Indian agency. A communication from Red Lake Falls club this week suggested that the local organization appoint a committee to cooperate with them in the project. President Johnson selected J. H. Mc Kinney, John Bratrud and W. J. La Bree to represent Thief River Falls in any proceeding that may be taken.

Jos. R. Lutz and Secretary Fred T. Lincoln, committee in charge of the last market day arrangements, reported to the executive committee that the event had financed itself and left a small balance when all the bills were squared away. This committee was tendered the thanks of the club for the good work accomplished.

Would Succeed Lincoln

Three applications were received for the position of secretary of the club, which will soon be open because of the resignation of Fred T. Lincoln. The applicants thus far are: G. Howard Smith, E. G. Schlanbusch and Scott Laird. The committee has not yet made its decision but the general opinion seems to prevail that a local man should be chosen.

SECTION OF NEW DAM WASHED OUT

Thirty-two Feet of Temporary Structure is Destroyed by Pressure of Water.

DAMAGE REPAIRED AT ONCE

Expected That Work on Coffer Dam Will be Finished Before Saturday Night—Big Crew Being Worked.

A section of the coffer dam being built across the Red Lake river at this point by the Kretszchmar-Schrieter company was washed out about 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening. The destroyed portion was situated in the exact center of the stream and the planking-up work had just been completed.

Pulled Out and Broke

Seven piles were torn out of place, four of these being broken off at the point where they entered the hardpan in the river bed, and three pulled out entirely. Those broken were clipped off as smoothly as if the work had been done with a saw, giving not only a good idea of the amount of pressure they had to withstand but also showing the tenacity of the hard pan in which they were embedded.

Work Just Completed

The driving of these piles was completed about four o'clock in the afternoon and the work of planking had been begun. As this work progressed the water at the back of the dam rose until a head of about four feet had backed up against the obstruction. The space between the piles was being filled with clay from each side, and where this work had progressed sufficiently to steady the piling the structure held.

Went To Work At Once

Superintendent John Hedlund at once dispatched men in boats down the stream to salvage the piling and planks. This material had floated away, some of it being found on Sunday in the vicinity of St. Hilaire.

By Monday morning the pile driver was again at work replacing the destroyed section. Mr. Hedlund decided to follow out his original intention in spanning the river but provided heavier piles and placed them closer together at points where the heaviest pressure might be expected. He is sure that they will hold this time and promises to have the dam in such shape as to divert the water away from the site of the concrete structure before the end of another week.

A Big Undertaking.

The building of this coffer dam is considerably more of an undertaking than most people seem to realize. Mr. Schrieter states that up to date he has paid out the sum of $3,000 for labor alone and that the piling has cost in the neighborhood of $500. This washout will perhaps delay the completion of the job about one week. Mr. Hedlund says that it often happens that coffer dams do not stand up at the first attempt. The government structure at Minneapolis has gone out three different times and in this undertaking millions of dollars are involved.

The work will be rushed to an early completion, this slight set-back having practically no effect whatever.

THE PUNCH BOARD FOLLOWS DICE BOX

County Attorney Follows Mayor Gambell's Lead in Attempt to Suppress Petty Gambling

Soon there will not be a single device left in the city of Thief River Falls whereby foolish persons will be able to risk their hard-earned cash where there is no possible chance of winning.

County Attorney H. O. Kjomme this week ordered all punch boards removed and there is no longer even a chance of securing a solid gold watch for ten cents.

Of all the petty forms of gambling these punch boards were perhaps the most objectionable. Placed in different business houses by outsiders, even the winnings went to swell the illegal receipts of some big outside grafter. The system did not even possess the possibilities for winning held out by most forms of gambling, for of all the "sure-thing" games ever invented it was the surest.

Last week Mayor Gambell put the finishing touches on dice shaking in confectionery and soft drink places so that it begins to look as if legitimate business will have to be depended on to keep these places running.

Postpone Good Roads Meeting

The good roads meeting scheduled to be held at the Commercial club rooms on the 20th has been postponed until some time later in the season. Charles A. Forbes, the state highway engineer who was to have delivered the address on this occasion has notified Secretary Lincoln that it will be impossible for him to be present on the date mentioned but that he will be glad to come to Thief River Falls as soon as he has an open date.

The Second Market Day.

The providing of a market day and free auction for the farmers of the territory adjoining Thief River Falls will in all probability prove one of the most valuable of the many proceedings for which the Commercial club is to be given credit.

Any project having for its purpose the bringing together of the people of the city and those of the farms should be supported. They need one another and their problems in life are not so very different. Cities in farming communities are prosperous if they supply the things that the farmer cannot raise for himself and furnish him with this service at a reasonable profit. This does not alone include the goods the farmer has to buy in order to maintain himself. There are many other things that must be furnished from the outside if the farmer is to enjoy all the advantages to which his work and worth entitle him.

That is one of the reasons—perhaps the principal reason—why county fairs are held and market days established. Events of this kind bring the people of the farm and city together and make for a better understanding. Each has something the other needs and the events themselves simply supply an opportunity for exchange.

The date for the second market day and auction is October 20. Practically the same program as that which made the first event of the season such a success will be followed out. The merchants will be asked to offer some special bargain to the visitors. The Commercial club will serve a free dinner to those holding tickets secured from these merchants. The band will give a concert. There will be a free auction of anything the farmers may bring in for that purpose.

No one not advertising in the special pages devoted to the use of the Commercial club in the next issue of the local papers will be entitled to these dinner tickets. All will be requested to pay the club a small sum for them, this having been made necessary by the fact that the club does not consider it exactly proper to pay the costs of an enterprise in which the advertising merchants are the only gainers. There is no desire to make profit, but the management considers it only justice to the club members who are not merchants that the latter stand the greater part of the expense, inasmuch as they and the visiting farmers will be the only direct gainers.

Rest Room For Women.

There is one matter that the Commercial club should take up at once, and that is a rest room for women. There is not at present any place in the city where women coming from a distance on a shopping expedition or for any other purpose can go and be comfortable. Very often a woman transacts her business and has considerable time at her disposal before it is possible to leave for her home. During this time there is no place where she can go and feel that she is welcome. She does not care to get in the way of busy people in the stores and often has neither friends nor relatives with whom the time can be conveniently spent.

Business and professional men have on more than one occasion run onto women sitting down on the stairs of office buildings for the purpose of gaining a short rest. At times these have had small children to take care of and have been placed in a most uncomfortable situation. Only last week one doctor turned his office into a rest room for women in this plight and he is of the opinion that our business men would be making a strong bid for popularity with a large class of very desirable customers if they would get together and do something toward providing a place to which these women would feel that they had a right to go.

This same doctor has also figured somewhat on a plan for carrying out this idea. There are not many buildings available for the purpose in the city at this time, but one could no doubt be found. The cost of furnishing the place need not be great. The installation of lavatories and a wash room would have to be arranged for in case these were not already in the building secured. Chairs, tables, magazines and newspapers would make up practically the balance of the equipment. In winter some system of heating the room would have to be devised, but the cost of all this would be very small when divided among the business men who might be expected to take an interest in the matter.

The project would probably come within the scope of the Commercial club's activities, and right now would be a good time to get started.

Situation Not Changed.

Minnesota has never cast its electoral vote for a Democratic candidate for president. Those who profess to see indications that the state will change its habits at this late day are not very close observers and do not know the character of the people making up our population.

The reasons that have made the people of Minnesota vote for Republican candidates and principles are the same today as they were four or eight or twenty years ago—a desire for competent government. Pointing to a prosperity almost entirely due to causes which the Democratic party could not control is not going to change the hard headed farmers of the North Star state to such an extent that they will go back on the party under which they enjoyed their greatest and most lasting prosperity. They are unalterably opposed to a tariff so low as to bring the products of other nations into direct competition with those of this country. They have had a trial or two of the results following upon the heels of such a policy and know from experience what it menas.

The cry that "he has kept us out war" fails to have the intended effect. Minnesota farmers are students of events and have an uncomfortable feeling that the president's policy has brought us about as close to actual warfare as we care to get.

All the other arguments advanced as reasons why the people of Minnesota should vote to continue Wilson as president are the same as have been used for twenty-five years. They have been disregarded thus far and there is no reason for thinking that they will be accorded any other treatment now.

"The Jefferson Highway Declaration" Says Highways Near Here Are Finest on Route

REPORTS ON RELAY TRIP

Officials Highly Pleased With Reception Accorded Them in Northern Minnesota and Are Enthusisastic in Praise of Section

"The roads between Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls were the best encountered since leaving Little Falls." So states the Jefferson Highway Declaration, the official publication of the Jefferson Highway commission in an article describing the relay run from New Orleans to Winnipeg. Thief River Falls comes in for its share of credit in the article, and especially is the country in the neighborhood praised.

"From Red Lake Falls on the scenery is very fine and the farm lands are excellent," says the Declaration. "The roads are the best that the highway officials found this side of Little Falls. All the roads are graveled and they can be compared to any boulevard in the state. The entire road from Red Lake Falls through to St. Hilaire to Thief River Falls is patrolled once each day.

The officials were highly pleased with the reception accorded them all along the line, the publication quoted having the following to say concerning their stay here:

"Nearly 100 automobiles were on hand to meet the tourist party at Thief River Falls. In the evening addresses were made by the highway officials on a street corner and an entertainment was given at the Thief River Falls Commercial club.

"The district around Thief River Falls is especially blessed with gravel pits and the people of the district have taken advantage of the pits to make good roads. Men are hired by the county to drag the roads and to patrol them. Several miles from Thief River Falls the route meets and follows the famous Pembina Trail. This trail was once used by the oxen teams in pioneer days from St. Paul to Winnipeg and to Hudson bay. The trail presents an excellent road except for many curves."

Concerning the attitude of the people along the line toward th highway project, the Declaration has this to say:

"Never before in the history of Northern Minnesota has a project been so enthusiastically greeted. People flocked to the by-ways and the highways where the party passed, and to the towns and villages to hear the speakers and to see the men who are working to make the Jefferson highway the success it is going to be."

Just what Manager Clarkson himself thinks of it is best expressed in his own words. He says: "I would rather have the enthusiasm that we received from the people in the places from Litle Falls to Thief River Falls than to have a donation of $50,000 for the route. I mean by this that I know that the enthusiasm of the people is behind the project, they are interested in it and they will see that the highway gets the proper support."

The Highway Declaration goes to thousands of subscribers all along the course of the highway and northern Minnesota has received some excellent advertising as a result of this relay run.

Hoveland at Balboa

In a letter to his friends in this city a few days ago, Amund Hoveland, former storekeeper at the Soo yards, states that he has accepted a position with the U. S. government at Balboa, Panama, Canal Zone. His position came through a civil service examination. Mr. Hoveland left Thief River Falls May 25, and had intended to go to South America, but on arriving in Panama he was advised the opposite on account of the unsettled conditions in the country at that time. Hoveland decided to stay in Panama and at once looked up a position. His letter states also that he has been confined to the hospital for several weeks with malaria, but has now fully recovered.

"There's a Reason"

A QUARTER CENTURY OF SCHOOL PROGRESS

Just at this time school matters in the city of Thief River Falls are receiving more than the usual amount of attention. Believing that a glance backward and a general resume of the progress made in educational matters during the past twenty-five years will prove of interest to its readers, The Times is pleased to publish the following. Mr. Mussey was himself a pupil of the schools of the city in the early days and has been a resident here practically ever since.

By Homer F. Mussey.

Twenty-five years ago Thief River Falls boasted two school buildings, each a one-story affair. One, that used by the primary and intermediate departments, was located on the lots on Third street now occupied by the Remmen livery barn. The other, housing the grammar department, is the building now being used by the Falls Electric company at 113 Second street east. The grammar department—There was no such thing as "grades" in those days—was latter moved into a building also used as a church and situated near the west end of the iron bridge connecting First and Bridge streets. The building was sold by the school board, after the erection of the Central school, to Joseph Wierus and is now the residence of Val Yeager.

The other building has been rebuilt and is now a part of the A. B. Remmen residence. Several years ago when agitation was started for a permanent home for the public library, some of the more sentimental urged that the building be purchased by the city and used for that purpose. The plan failed to materialize, and it is probably just as well.

In the Third street building Miss Helen Wallin guided the youth of the village through the initiatory steps into the mysteries of the "Three R's." She who completed the werk was Miss Helen Davies. Those who first began their schooling in this city twenty-five years ago remember most vividily the school room presided over by Miss Wallin.

Our Own Beginning

At that time there lived within a stone's throw of that building a little boy but a few week's past his fifth birthday. Each morning and afternoon he sat upon the front door steps of his home and longingly watched the older boys and girls romp to and from their school. During the play periods of the school days the little fellow often joined in the frolics, and when the children returned to the school room to again take up their tasks his glimpse of the interior through the open door or windows filled him with envy and longing.

Thus it came about that he acquired a desire to don his best "bib and tucker" and join the other youngsters in their studies. There was a rule in those days that children who had not yet reached the age of six years would not be permitted to attend school, but like all rules, there were more ways than one for its enforcement.

Didn't Think He'd Stay

Dad and mother soon tired of the persistent coaxings of the boy, and Miss Wallin was finally appealed to. "Oh, let him start school if he wants to," was her advice. "He'll soon get tired of the monotony of the school room and will be glad to enjoy the freedom he now dreads." And so one noon thirty-five youngsters hurried home from school to their parents with the news that "we've got another new scholar. He started school today."

There was a surprise in store for "pa and ma and the teacher," for the new scholar didn't tire of his school work. On the contrary he enjoyed it and continued through eleven years of study.

Building Not Modern

The school building faced the south and was set back from the street about 60 feet. It was a typical old-style school and its exterior appearance was not particularly inviting. When it was first erected it might have been painted a blueish gray, but the weather of several seasons had marred its beauty and dulled and faded the color of the paint.

Teacher's desk stood at the north end of the room. Rows of double seats accomodated the scholars, and "pals" sat together. Each desk was marked with the initials of former occupants, either scratched in the varnish or cut with a jacknife deep into the wood.

When the cold weather set in the school board provided a large box stove for heating purposes. The girls took turns cleaning the school room, while the boys brought in the wood and tended the fire.

At the time the building was erected this was district No. 107. Carl Kretzschmar was chairman of the board; Charles Robbecke was secretary and W. W. Gibbs treasurer. Miss Wallin, who had the distinction of teaching a term of school in what is now Thief River Falls as early as 1883, had been engaged as an instructor in 1890, continuing in educational work here until April, 1902, when deafness made it necessary for her to relinquish the text book for a more suitable employment.

Faced Problems Early.

The school board of district No. 107 in 1891 faced problems no less grave than does the Board of Education of Independent District No. 18 today. The enrollment of the school was steadily increasing and on June 13, 1892, it was decided to call a special meeting of the voters to discuss the feasibility of securing a site and erecting a school building. By this time two rooms could not accomodate the enrollment and an overflow was handled in the building occupied by the Northwestern hotel on LaBree north.

The site of the present Central school was purchased on June 17, 1893—just a year after the agitation was started. The consideration for the 12 lots was $1,240. Near the close of the school year in 1892 there were 124 pupils in actual attendance, this showing the rapid increase that made imperative added accomodations.

No Free Text Books.

Pupils were required to purchase their books and in many homes today may be found the text books used 25 years ago. Some even have retained the old slates that have now been superceded by paper and pencil, the latter being less noisy and more sanitary. Well remembered is the first catastrophe of school days—the broken slate resulting from a fall to the floor through careless handling.

A fluent pen could write a volume of reminiscences of those happy school days of twenty-five years ago. There was not the rigid discipline that prevails today. There was not the wide range of studies, the "Three R's" being the main objective. To "readin' 'ritin' and 'rithmetic" might be added a fourth "R"—"roughishness"—for somehow or other the kids became more and more proficient in mischievious ways.

Indians and Entertainments

During the period in which the little old school house was occupied the Indians, then very numerous in this section, made their headquarters at the Aos store, and the school children were often late on account of too deep an interest in the Redskins.

Events of the school year which still remain vivid in the minds of the pupils were the occasional public entertainments given in the village hall and participated in by young and old. Those were gala nights for the children, who for weeks previous had studied and practiced for the "big night." Dialogues and recitations, with a few songs, comprised the programs, which were generally liberally attended and applauded.

A New Era Ushered In

When the removal into the new Central building was affected it seemed that new life had been given to the educational atmosphere of the village. The building was a four-room structure and the voters believed it sufficiently large to accomodate the school population for several years to come. There were even those who objected to the size of the building, basing their objections on that time-worn and oft disproved argument: "The building is simply a big expense. It will be years before we need that much room."

Still More Demanded.

Little did they reckon upon what the future had in store for Thief River Falls. Like many of the residents of the city today they could see but the present and the result was an all to frequent demand for an increase in facilities. It is an undeniable fact that had "the men behind" in the past builded for the future that has come rather than for the future they could see, there would not now be an embarrassing condition existing in the public schools of the city.

Not only in the construction of the Central school did the same objection arise, but in the erection of every subsequent building or addition to an old structure.

Another District Organized

Shortly after the purchase of the site for the Central school, residents of the East Side, then known as Red Lake Rapids (although it was not in corporated), instituted a movement which resulted in the organization of School District No. 57. The organization being perfected, school was held in whatever rooms were available—the Proctor residence at the corner of Bridge street and St. Paul avenue, where the Melgaard residence now stands, and a house about two blocks farther south on St. Paul avenue which has since been remodled or removed.

Here also lack of room soon became a problem. Pupils sat three to a double seat and the writer and a chum, "Bobbie" Bye, were accomodated with chairs and with a portion of the teacher's desk as a study table. Although it is pleasing to think that a lack of room was responsible for the arrangement, the truth might reveal the fact that the teacher was thus able to eliminate a goodly portion of mischief from her daily worries.

New Building Burned

The Knox building was built in 1894, and was a two-room structure, two stories high having a bell of the same size and tone as the one used at present. There was great rejoicing when the building was first occupied, but this was quickly turned to gloom when, a short time after its occupancy, the structure burned to the ground one Friday morning, the fire being discovered shortly after eight o'clock. The building was rebuilt within a short time.

Mention of the bell may here seem of minor importance but fond recollections are nevertheless connected with it. After its recovery from the ruins of the building there was considerable good humored strife in the matter of its possession. In the end W. I. McCrum, one of the first board members of the district, secured the useless bell and it remained for a number of years in his yard as a receptacle for flowering plants.

Rivalry Among Scholars.

Considerable rivalry existed between the scholars of Red Lake Rapids and the West Side, and this feeling was utilized to good advantage by the instructors in urging the pupils to a greater excellence in their work. Even in the public entertainments was this competition a prominent feature. In the work accomplished by the pupils a marked improvement was noted. As an incentive to this purpose, prizes were offered for the most perfect report, attained during the three terms. A number of the pupils were thus honored. The writer still treasures a volume of Hawthorne's "Twice Told Tales" bearing this explanatory paragraph: "Presented to Homer Mussey for perfect attendance at fall term of school, 1895, Red Lake Rapids, Minn., Geo. Kenniston teacher." Prof. Keniston was also pastor of the M. E. church.

It is doubtful if a single one of his pupils will forget Mr. Keniston. He surely believed in the adage "spare the rod and spoil the child," and although he did not use a "rod" his punishments were much more severe. For the offense of "whispering" the offender was required to stand on his tiptoes, facing the wall and with hands above the head, the duration depending upon the gravity of the offense. Two such periods of punishment served to convince the writer that it were better to refrain from further illicit conversation during school hours. The mode of enforcing his rules having been reported to the school board, Prof. Keniston was advised to change either his methods or his vocation.

"Pals" of School Days

Among the school mates of the first year or two might be mentioned Linda Robbecke (Mrs. Dr. Booren), Olga Kretzschmar (Mrs. Chas. Stewart), Eleanor Connelly (Mrs. W. H. Frederick), Emma Backe, now city librarian, Melvin Evenson(the two last mentioned comprising the total membership of the first class to graduate from the local high school), Freddie Maxwell, Mabel Chapman, Orange Kjos, Hattie Turville, Frank Kratka, Pearlie Christianson, Ada Clements, Wayne Richardson, Jim and Mike Connelly, the Wedmer twin girls, Gunda and Linda, the Wedmer twin boys,'Olaf and Conrad, Phil Zeh, jr., and Gertie Holzknecht. There were many more, but time wipes out memories regardless of the intimacy that might at the time be connected with them.

Many of the schoolmates of those days are still well remembered in Thief River Falls, where a considerable number of these still reside. Among these are Theresa Bourque (Mrs. W. B. Fuller), Emma Brown (Mrs. A. M. Langseth), Mollie Lonson (Mrs. E. K. Aasen), Gina Gilbertson (Mrs. Charles Shirley), John and Albert Gilbertson, Cora Rockstad (deceased), Leon Bourque, Lizzie Bourque (Mrs. John Madden), Emma Lonson (Mrs. A. J. Mercier), Katie McMahon (Mrs. James Connelly), Edna Jubb (Mrs. Ole Jaranson), the Vesey girls (Beatrice and Mary), Harry Burns, the Folske sisters and Henry Folske, Alma Gilbertson, Lettie Kinsela (Mrs. Jas. Mulhall), Thomas Kinsela, Frank Zavoral, Mary Zavoral (Mrs. Ed. Kelly), Hans Hanson, Willie McCrum and Lulu Mc Crum, the last-named now a teacher in the city schools, Lizzie Brown (Mrs. Louis Hanson), Clara Brown, Minnie Brown (Mrs. P. O. Myhrom), Celina Gilbertson, Laura Anderson, Emma Bye, Robert Bye, Earl Bye, Fred Gallenbeck, Josephine Bourque, Harold Hicks, Rose Jerome, Joseph Votava, Mary Mikulecky (Mrs. Nels Severson), Edith Pederson, Joseph Pederson, Amanda Thompson, Effie Thompson, Hilma Thompson, Willie Lillimoen; Jennie Lillimoen (Mrs. Oscar Svien), Jalmer Lillimoen, Peter Becken, Sigfrid Becken, Gilbert Becken, Henry McMahon, John Hoffseth, Caroline Hoffseth (Mrs Axel Rod), Emma Olson, Clarence Jubb, Katherine Dunn, Amanda Dunn, Lillian Kivel (Mrs. Dan Sheedy), Anna Johnson, Henry Johnson.

Bell Caused Confusion

When the Central school was erecced the present bell was purchased. This being about the time of the organization of the fire department arrangements were made by which the bell would also serve as a fire alarm. Many were the times when the class recitations and study periods were disrupted by the violent clanging of the bell sending forth its warning of fire dangers. At such times the windows would be filled with anxious faces watching for signs of the fire. The bell was also used by one of the local churches.

Free Text Books

The free text book system was adopted in 1895, and the innovation was a most acceptable one to the parents, while the pupils expressed open rebellion at the idea—it necessitated extreme care in the handling of the books. A torn page or a damaged corner meant the purchase of the book and the stern parent usually made the erring one suffer accordingly.

A School Romance

For the 1896-97 term Herbert Fuller and Martha Brown were engaged as teachers in the Knox building. They still reside in this city and their children attend the Knox school, their home studies being accomplished through the aid of these same two instructors, now Mr. and Mrs. Fuller.

The Washington Next

In 1902 the criticism of "too much school room" was again advanced when it was decided to erect the Washington school and make it an eight-room structure, but in 1906—only four years later—four rooms were added to the Central building and four to the Knox building. Two rooms had also been added to the latter in 1900. When these four-room additions were authorized it was decided to complete but two rooms in each addition as it was believed that would afford ample accomodations for several years.

In 1911, five years after the completion of the additions to the Knox and Central schools, the Lincoln building was dedicated, and now, but five years later, the school board again faces the urgent necessity of securing more room. The one logical conclusion is another building.

Present Conditions No Surprise

To one who has seen a quarter of a century of school advancement of the city and who has noted the rapid but steady growth, it is not surprising that the present conditions exist. Eleven years attendance in the schools, during many months of which it was necessary to "crowd in" in order to be seated, makes one realize the disadvantage under which both the teachers and pupils are working at the present time. Had the school directors of the earlier days forseen the future in store for the city ther would probably not be the present congestion.

The Old-Timers

Of the school boards of the "old days" members still in this vicinity who will be able to see the unintentional errors of their ways are: Ira C. Richardson, W. I. McCrum, H. E. Mussey, Lars Backe, and Frank Bourque.

There is a once popular song which still retains its reminiscent value and the chorus runs in part:

School days, school days,
  Dear old Golden Rule days—
Readin' and 'ritin' an' 'rithmetic,
  Taught to the tune of a hick'ry stick.

There is more truth than poetry in these lines and were one able to gather and compile the many anecdotes and reminiscences of the "dear old golden rule days" of Thief River Falls—the days of the late eighties and early nineties—he would have a document priceless beyond computation. Suffice it to say that, given the privilege of living over again just one brief period of the past, there would be no hesitancy in choosing those happy days of youth, spent in the school room and with school mates, days with pleasures innumerable and without worries, when thirty-five or forty was the total school enrollment of the village, and when knowledge was more to be desired than riches.

ENTHUSIASTS ARE BLIND

Wish to Entirely Disregard the Natural Slope of the Country Toward Red Lake, Winnipeg and Hudson Bay.

There are few men in Minnesota better acquainted with the rivers in the northwestern part of the state than is Judge Ira C. Richardson of Thief River Falls. He has lived in the section a long time and has given particular study to this particular problem. He does not think much of the proposition of draining the Red Lakes into the Minnesota river by building canals that would make all the streams flow southward. Believing that the Red River of the North and its tributary, the Red Lake river, are very necessary to the people of this section, Mr. Richardson registers an objection against their being wiped out. The following communication to The Times, written by the judge on this subject, will be found both sound and interesting by anyone who has given the matter even passing consideration:

"Upon information furnished by the newspapers in the last month, it appears that citizens of Bemidji and the "All Minnesota Development association" proposed to make a canal to connect Hudson Bay with the Gulf of Mexico, draining the Red Lakes in the operation.

Calls Scheme "Ludicrous"

"That insidious scheme, under the guise of a drainage proposition, already started in the Minnesota Valley (possibly near Granite Falls), has farmers, railroad officials, commercial clubs, and the great dallies supporting it, and the Attorney General of Minnesota trying to find authority to recommend it to the next Legislature and Governor of Minnesota. Congress will also be urged to grant aid.

"Of itself the scheme is fanciful and laughable. The danger, however, is in the prosecution of it to the detriment of practical and needed drainage in the northern part of Minnesota.

"Elbow Lake, in Becker county, 1680 feet above the sea is the source of the Red River of the North. The stream famed in story and song, is 750 miles in length and has a total fall of 1072 feet..

"Its principal tributary, the Red Lake river, has its source in the Red Lake, 1170 feet above the sea, and flows to Grand Forks, 342 feet lower, affording wonderful power to generate electricity that is easily transmitted for use in a thousand ways.

"Imagine the value of it to the northwestern part of Minnesota.

Would Run Up Hill

"What about that canal through the Red Lake, 1170 feet above the sea; thence in a southerly direction to Bemidji at an altitude of 1355 feet; thence to Cass Lake, 1300 feet, and Leach Lake, 1297 feet above the sea; or, perhaps the promoters will reverse the Red River of the North and cause it to flow from its level of 782 feet at St. Vincent, to Lake Traverse, 970 feet above the sea, to connect with Big Stone Lake at an altitude of 962.5 feet for the source of a supply of water for the Minnesota River. But, how will all this benefit northwestern or northern Minnesota?

"The proper name for their plan is "aerial drainage." Lake Winnipeg is only 710 feet above the sea and Hudson Bay is lower than that.

"They say great minds can comprehend it, and turn it to the advantage of the northern part of Minnesota.

"In 1900 George A. Ralph, contributed a paper to the Red River Valley Drainage convention, in which I find the following:

Red River Flowed South

"You have probably all learned or heard something about ancient Lake Agassiz. About the time when the land upon which the City of Crookston stands now was covered by ice and water to a depth of 260 feet. This ancient lake extended from Big Stone Lake on the south to Hudson Bay on the north; its eastern and western shores extended to where the surface reached an elevation of 1150 feet above the sea.

"In fact, Lake Agasiz covered a considerable portion of the valley of the Minnesota river, and extended as far south as the Des Moines river in Iowa, and the Red River Valley for a period shed its waters toward the south to the basin of the Mississippi. The waters continued flowing in this direction until the epoch of severe cold begun to relax and the ice in the region of Lake Winnipeg and Hudson bay began to melt."

"All that time there was not an air-tight stove within a thousand miles of Hudson Bay, but the ice melted and because it did melt, the water has ever since flowed north, which is a fact that the promoters of the canal have overlooked.

Sum Too Small.

"To make their scheme practical they must first restore ancient conditions; and $25,000,000 will be only a starter to keep Congress at it and allow more.

"What are the people on both sides of the Ride River of the North and the Red Lake river thinking about?

"They are directly and deeply interested in these rivers and the Red Lakes and Lake Traverse. They are interested in the improvement of these rivers by constructing reservoirs and by erecting dams at the outlets of both for retaining surplus water to prevent floods in time of high water, and to draw on in dry seasons for the purpose of maintaining a sufficient flow for power.

"This work should be started immediately by commencing on one or both the rivers. The dams can be built later.

"Just because a man started something in the Minnesota Valley does not give him exclusive control of all drainage problems. Others may do better."

EDUCATORS' MEETING AT CROOKSTON NOV. 22-24

Northwestern Minnesota Teachers Will Hold Annual Convention on Above Dates

The Northwestern Minnesota Educational Association will hold its annual convention at Crookston on Nov. 22, 23 and 24.

A program of unusual merit is being arranged. Honorable J. Frank Hanly, Ex-governor of Indiana and candidate for president on the Prohibition ticket has been secured for the evening of November 24th. Mr. Hanly has few equals on the platform today. His subject will be "The Patriotism of Peace."

On November 23,, Mr. C. A. Prosser, Director of the Dunwoody Industrial Institute of Minneapolis will speak on "Education as Preparedness."

Dean Joseph Kennedy of the college of Education of North Dakota University will address the convention on November 22 on the subject, "The School in Education."

Other speakers of prominence who have already consented to appear are: Honorable C. G. Schulz of the State Department of Education and Mr. J. C. Brown, of the St. Cloud normal school.

The officers of the association are: Superintendent David Johnson, president, Warren; J. P. Bengtson, secretary, Crookston; Superintendent Ambrose Hays, vice president, Hallock; Miss Ingeborg Espeseth, treasurer, McIntosh; executive committee, Superintendent G. H. Sanberg, Crookston, Superintendent J. H. Hay, Thief River Falls.

New Buick Arrives

Fred D. Haug, proprietor of Haug's garage, left Friday afternoon for Grand Forks in "Safety First" on a business trip. He returned Saturday morning with two Buick cars, one six cylinder and the other 4 cylinder. The latter car is one of the Buick company's newest products. It is equipped with a self starter, electric lights, Steward vacumn gasoline feeder and has a 35 horse power engine. Cars of this size are shipped to Thief River Falls F. O. B. $725. The six cylinder machine is equipped with a 45 horse power engine.

FLAX AND COWS WIN THIS YEAR

Farmers Who Pulled Away From Regular Crops Are in Prosperous Condition.

JAG OF FLAX BRINGS $87

Thirteen and One-Half to Fifteen Bushels Per Acre—Seventy-Five Dollars Per Month Gross Revenue From Cattle.

While thirteen and one-half bushels of flax to the acre may not be regarded as an exceptional crop, at the present prices it nevertheless means a return of 23 per cent net from land costing $100 per acre.

Flax growers throughout the northwestern section of Minnesota are this year doubly fortunate. Not only is the crop very good but the prices are the best in many years. William Moller, living near this city, brought a load in the other day for which he received over $2.00 per bushel. His yield averaged thirteen and one-half bushels to the acre.

Cattle Makes the Difference

Ole Flattem, another lucky farmer, averaged fifteen bushels to the acre. Halvor Fodstad threw a small jag of flax on top of some other products, brought it to the elevator and received $87 in cash for it. Mr. Fodstad also threshed out 2,400 bushels of other grain so that the outlook for him is not particularly discouraging. His having 19 head of cattle on his place probably accounts for the fact that he almost invariably has the best crops in the neighborhood.

Refused $100 Per Acre

Ed Timm, living about four miles northeast of town, averages about $75 per month from milk sales. The other day he was in the city to make his usual bank deposit and he then told of having been offered $100 an acre for his land. The offer was refused.

Mr. Timm has this year constructed a new barn on his place. The building is 34x80 feet and modern in every respect. It houses some excellent milch cows, from the product of which the owner is securing a steadily increasing revenue.

Took the Wrong Path

The Albert brothers, residing near Rosewood, will shortly sell their movable property and return to Illinois. They admit they have made the mistake of devoting practically their entire acreage to wheat and the results were not satisfactory. Are they discouraged? Not much. They are coming back in two years and will then bring with them sufficient cattle to make a start in the dairying business.

Other Crops Make Up.

One farmer admitted in conversation the other day that while his wheat would not amount to much, his other crops were very good and that because of the high prices he would make more money than a year ago. This man also devoted a portion of his acreage to the raising of feed for cows and he does not even notice that the wheat crop was a disappointment.

A Remarkable Change

Farmers on all sides are talking cows, buying cows and milking cows. The change in the attitude of the ordinary farmer toward this industry during the year is little short of phenominal. Men who never before gave any thought except to the raising of crops that could be sold directly off the farm are now realizing that the only way to be sure of securing a grain crop is to maintain cattle, either as the principal business of the farm or as a necessary adjunct to successful grain growing. The assessor's reports for the past year shows that cows increased in the county at the rate of three head every two days. This record will be broken during 1916.

D., where Mr. Bloom is employed as the manager of a meat market. Mr. Bloom expects to open a shop shortly.

A news item in the Minneapolis Daily News for Tuesday states that tieing an alligator with a pink ribbon around your neck is the latest fad for young women. Above the item was an illustration of Miss Amparito Farrar, cousin of Geraldine, the famous comic opera star, with a tiny alligator dangling from a ribbon around her neck. The Daily News advised all the young women to get a live one right now if they wanted to "belong," because Miss Farrar touted it as a fad. Lars Furan, of the Furan & Benson barber shop, who is possessor of both a real live alligator, captured in sunny Florida, and a baby mud turtle from Red Lake river, does not want to see Thief River Falls girls lag behind and offers his alligator to the first girl who will apply. If the young lady doesn't exactly care for Mr. Alligator, she may take Mr. Mud Turtle.

The "Look-Ahead" Habit

It is, primarily, the part of business wisdom to look into the future to discern the probable result of actions we take now for promoting our success. Particularly is this true with the business man in making his banking home. He must be assured that in his hour of opportunity or need his bank will be right at his side to counsel and protect.

The First State Bank wants to "compare notes" with responsible business men who have the "look-ahead" habit.

To Minneapolis.—Axel Williamson, employed in the car repairing department at the Soo yards, left for Minneapolis Sunday evening for a short visit with friends. He intended to stop off at Detroit for a few days on the return trip.

Jordan To Enderlin.—Fred Jordan, Soo Line fireman, who has been holding a run out of this city, departed Sunday evening for Enderlin, N. D., having been transferred to that point.

Adjudged Insane.

Alfred Lee, age about 25, was adjudged insane this afternoon before an examining board consisting of Drs. F. H. Gambell, O. F. Mellby, H. G. Heiber, and Judge of Probate Wilhelm Michelet. He was taken to Fergus Falls at 4:05 p. m.

At The Princess Sunday.

"The Wall Between," a five-part Metro wonderplay, with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in the starring roles, will be seen as the next Metro feature attraction here at the Princess Theatre on Sunday, October 8th. In this production Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne have the best vehicle in which they have appeared in their long careers upon the screen. Both have appeared in more than five hundred pictures, but were never given roles better suited to their distinctive artistic talents than in this production.

The story of "The Wall Between" deals with a condition which obtains in the United States Army, where rigid discipline maintains a barrier between the commissioned officer and the enlisted man, which is never broken down. There are scores of thrilling battle scenes in which more than two thousand men appear. A fort near Savannah, Georgia, was used by Metro to obtain much of the realistic photography, and more than five hundred regular soldiers participated in many of the important scenes.—O5.

Had Big Meeting.

Between 150 and 200 people were present yesterday at the Dairymen's picnic held at the Hans Anton farm, 5 miles south of Thief River Falls. Addresses were made by Prof. Diedrich, of the Crookston Agricultural college and Prof. Hauske, state assistant dairy commissioner, of Halstad. The former gave an interesting talk on stock feeding. Prof. J. H. Hay, of this city, was also on the program and spoke in his usual pleasing manner. Mr. Anton has just erected a fine new barn, 80 feet long, and this was used by the picnicers. Geo. Johnson, president of the Commercial club, and several other members were also present.

Thank You.

I wish to take this means of thanking those in charge of the Physicians' hospital, the doctor in charge, for their care and kindness during the time I have been confined in the hospital. I also wish to extend my sincere thanks to the people of Thief River Falls for their assistance by donating to me clothes and money.

Harold Brown.

SHOW WINDOWS HELPING NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

The Sapero Company Getting Good Results From Care in Making Two Mediums Harmonize

Among the particularly tasteful show windows of the city those of the Sapero company rank well up toward the front. Mr. Sapero is himself a window trimmer of experience and the beautiful lines the firm is showing this season lend themselves particularly well to display of this kind.

The goods shown in the Sapero windows will be found to follow the firm's advertisements in The Times very closely. This gives added value to the advertising and helps greatly in arresting the attention of persons passing by.

Mr. Sapero says that he is agreeably surprised at the amount of business done by the firm since he took over the womens' wear store. The greater part of this popularity is of course due to the excellent line of wares carried by the store, but the proprietor has no hesitancy in admitting that the advertising appearing in The Times has been a very large factor in his success thus far.

"Killed In Action."

G. A. Stevens, a farmer living a short distance to the south and west of Thief River Falls, this week recieved word from the Canadian government informing that his son, Roy L. Stevens, had been killed in action. The Toronto papers of about the same date also contained the notice. The young man was not much known here, having been in other parts of the world during the entire time that the family has been residing in this vicinity.

To Start Bazaar Store.

O. W. Carlson, who has been conducting a soft drink parlor at 109 Third street west, has closed down temporarily. Mr. Carlson has had a crew of carpenters putting shelving into the room and intends to open a bazaar store there as soon as his stock arrives.

Market Day Pointers

Market and Free Auction day Friday, October 20.

Free lunch to farmers at Commercial club rooms from 11:30 to 3 p. m.

Meal tickets for distribution among farmers will be sold to advertisers at a nominal cost. Others will be asked to pay 25 cents per ticket.

The price of advertising space will remain the same as in the last Market Day issue of the local papers.

The Market Day ad will appear Thursday, October 12, in The Times and the News-Press

Merchants will be asked to advertise some specific bargain, not a general discount on merchandise for that day.

Merchants are urged not to conflict in their advertising, selecting separate lines in which to offer bargains. This can be arranged by a conference among those handling the same line of goods.

All copy must be in by Monday forenoon of the week the ads appear.

Spaces will be selected by drawing at the club rooms Monday October 9, at 10 o'clock sharp.. Unless an advertiser is represented he will be assigned a space not taken by others who are represented.

This will be the biggest and best Market Day and Free Auction in the history of the city, judging from the inquiries and interest shown by country people. Be prepared.

THE MARKET DAY COMMITTE
FRED T. LINCOLN,
Chairman

Charles Latta, former editor of the Holt Northern Light, motored down from his home at Holt Monday evening on a short business trip.

Coming back from a business trip to Warren yesterday, Clerk of Court H. E. Ives pretty near put his Jackson auto out of commision. E. M. Stanton, Hans O. Kjomme and Tom Vatne were riding with him and Mr. Ives says that the car was not evenly balanced. Hitting a chuck hole near the first sand ridge to the west of town two springs were broken, the stearing gear was bent and several other little things like that happened. They made town without requiring a tow, however.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

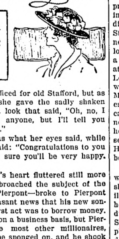
Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes



SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and mets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her one dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau. Doctor Royce warns Freneau that there is another woman besides Gloria; Freneau goes sleighing with Gloria without her father's knowledge. It results in pneumonia for Gloria, whose family becomes incensed at Freneau when they learn the truth. Royce is summoned to alleviate Gloria's suffering.

SIXTH EPISODE.

The sudden and perilous illness of Gloria Stafford threw her official lover, Freneau, also into a sudden and perilous situation. He and his partner, Mulry, had counted on using Freneau's engagement to the daughter of the great Pierpont Stafford as a kind of collateral at the bank.

When the girl was stricken down with pneumonia, Freneau's heart was wrung as well as his purse. He was genuinely in love with Gloria. It was not hard to love so beautiful, so rich, and so infatuating a girl. But he had not counted on death as a possible rival.

And there was another, a more certain rival—Dr. Stephen Royce—whom Gloria's brother, David, had called in to take charge of the case. Royce had loved Gloria before Freneau ever saw her. It was Royce who had actually saved her from the Seminole Indians. Royce despised Freneau and had told him so. Royce would not even permit Freneau to enter the sick room, where he was master.

Freneau was permitted to send up flowers, but he could not be sure that they reached her. He wondered what Royce was saying about him to Gloria, and whether she believed it.

He did not know that Royce had been discouraged to make even what protest he might have given voice to. When he first entered Gloria's room, Royce saw on the little table near her bed a silver-framed portrait of Freneau. Gloria was too delirious to see how his lip curled with scorn. But her father saw it, and when Royce said, "This fellow is a scoundrel," Pierpont answered, sternly:

"I called you to treat my daughter's health, not her heart."

Freneau did not know that he had such an ally in the family. But he knew that he had an enemy of a peculiar sort, an enemy who loved him not wisely, but too well. And that was Lois, the wife of David Stafford.

The poor Don Juan of a Freneau had never dreamed when he began a casual flirtation with Lois that she would prove so desperate a worshiper. He had expected that she would let him go with a sigh or a smile, as his other sweethearts had done when they realized that his heart had wings and used them. He was to learn how seriously Lois took his attentions and to learn it at a most inconvenient time. He had respected Pierpont's wish that the engagement to Gloria should be kept secret, and had told no one but his partner, Mulry. He had most decidedly not told Lois. He was planning to discard her as gracefully as possible before the news broke.

Mulry had chuckled with joy at the news of the engagement. But he grew as glum as an owl when he learned of Gloria's illness. At length he said to Freneau:

"My boy, you've got to go and borrow of your papa-in-law to be, or we've got to close the shop. Our branch offices are howling for their back pay, and we've got to pull down some cash somewhere or pull down the blinds. Go talk to Pierpont and show him the books. Show him the big killing we're going to make in the street if he'll tide us over. Go on, and come back with the bacon, or don't come back at all."

Freneau would almost rather have gone to the electric chair, but needs must when the devil drives. So he took a big bouquet and a big ledger and a taxicab to the Stafford house.

And whom should he meet as he was ushered in but Lois telling Pierpont good-by. And what should Pierpont say but, "I am going to tell you a great secret, Lois. Dick, here, is engaged to Gloria. Don't tell anyone."

Lois had no more self-control than to topple over. Freneau was disgusted with her more than ever now. She had enough presence of mind to blame her collapse on the heat of the room and her alarm for Gloria. And the excuse sufficed for old Stafford, but as she left, she gave the sadly shaken Freneau a look that said, "Oh, no, I won't tell anyone, but I'll tell you something."

That was what her eyes said, while her lips said: "Congratulations to you both. I'm sure you'll be very happy. Good-by."

Freneau's heart fluttered still more when he broached the subject of the loan to Pierpont—broke to Pierpont the unpleasant news that his new son-in-law's first act was to borrow money. He put it on a business basis, but Pierpont, like most other millionaires, hated to be sponged on, and he shook his head in answer to Freneau's proposition.

Freneau was in a pitiable plight. He was about to slink away in despair, when he happened to think to say: "You offered me a reward for the rescuing of Gloria from the Indians. I refused the money then, so I thought that now — perhaps — well — I thought—"

"That's true," said Pierpont. "That suggests a way out of it. Your proposition does not appeal to my business sense, but I can do this. I'll pay you double the reward with compound interest for five years. That will square us up."

Freneau thanked him, promised to return the money, and left the bouquet for Gloria. As he made his way out he met Royce just coming down from Gloria's room. Freneau hated the sight of Royce for many reasons. We usually hate people we have wronged. He managed to ask how Gloria was. Royce said she was better, but not yet out of danger. A curious look came over his face as he added:

"Look here, Freneau, I don't like you a bit, but Gloria loves you a lot. I don't see why, but she does. Women are peculiar. Now, I'd rather break my own heart than hers. She wants you for a husband, and if you'll play fair and walk straight from now on, I'll do nothing to interfere with your plans. But if you play false with her, I'll—well—there's nothing I won't do to save her from you."

Freneau promised glibly that he would be an ideal lover and a model of loyalty. Royce said: "I hope so," without much hope, and "You'd better!" with rather too much emphasis. Still, Freneau had the check in his pocket, and he went back to his office with "the bacon." Mulry made him so welcome that he forgot his new troubles in the radiance of the new business plans.

But his promise to Royce was put to the test at once, for that very afternoon, when he reached his apartment, Lois appeared there. She was heavily veiled, but Freneau's valet seemed to know her. He backed out discreetly. When Lois threw off the shroud her face was terrible in its resolution.

"You shan't marry Gloria, Dick," she said. "You shan't throw me over—not for her? You shan't marry her of all the people in the world."

Freneau was tired of Lois and tired of interference. He forgot to be gentle. He laughed.

"No? And how are you going to stop me?"

Lois' cold, hard answer bowled him over: "Even Gloria can't be so crazy about you that she would marry you if I were found dead here."

Freneau stared at her aghast. He could not quite be sure of her meaning till he saw a little phial in her hand. He leaped for it. But she dodged round his desk and put it to her lips.

"Don't you come near me or you'll wish you hadn't," she cried. "If you take another step I'll swallow this."

Freneau had to temporize with the mad woman. He surrendered weakly and dropped into a chair.

"Listen to me, Lois," he pleaded. "I went to her father to borrow money. I've got to have his support or go bankrupt. If I do that I'll blow my brains out. Of course, I don't love Gloria. My heart is yours. But I can't marry you. If I marry her she won't interfere with your love and mine. We shall be all the safer. If you love me, you won't ruin me. If you don't love me, give me the phial and I'll get out of your way."

She was in so insane a mood of jealousy and longing, that she believed him. She made him swear that he spoke the truth, as if an oath or two meant anything to him. Then she suffered herself to remain his dupe, and he took her down to a taxicab, feeling sure that he was well rid of her.

When she had gone he breathed more easily. He even laughed. He had everybody working for him. His rival, Royce, was toiling to save Gloria's life. His ex-flame, Lois, was in league with him to keep up the deception. Gloria's father was lending him money. He was plainly a child of destiny.

He was so reassured by his luck that he made a holiday with Mulry, who planned to start off at once on a round of the different cities where they had branch offices for the convenience of victims who lived far from New York.

* * * * * * * *

Ignorance may be bliss, but it is not preparedness. Freneau was blissful in the belief that Lois was quieted. He did not dream, nor did she, that David Stafford was awakening. When Freneau took Lois to the taxicab, she lowered her veil, but a veil is only a partial disguise at best, and it may attract attention. Neither Freneau nor Lois noted that a certain Mrs. Coleridge was passing, or that she stared hard. Mrs. Coleridge was one of the prettiest faces in Freneau's pack of discards. She was a sort of female Freneau, but in Freneau she had met her match, because she allowed herself to be more thrilled than thrilling. He had passed on without a long pause before her shrine.

Mrs. Coleridge had seen Freneau with Lois at various tea dances, and she recognized Lois all the more readily for her veil. She was outraged in her finest sensibilities. She felt it her duty to see that Lois was punished. She did not want to appear as a complaining witness, but her righteous indignation carried her to a large hotel in whose writing room she found pen, ink, paper, envelopes, and secrecy. She dashed off a little note to David advising him that his wife was showing more interest than he might approve in a certain heart-breaker. Mrs. Coleridge neglected to sign her name. In fact, she rather disguised her handwriting, though this made little difference, since David did not know it, anyway. She dropped the little letter into a mail-box with the innocent glee of an anarchist slipping a bomb with a time fuse under a millionaire's automobile.

The United States post office authorities carried the loaded letter to David's office for her. He opened it and read it, but could not understand it. He read it again and understood it, but could not believe it. He was about to toss it in the waste-basket, where such missives belong. He read it again. It threw him into a black pit of agony and consternation.

Now, he could, but would not, believe it. He wondered who the "heart-breaker" might be. He remembered that Lois had been fond of Freneau years before. He dismissed this suspicion with contempt. He loathed the letter. Only cowards and mischief-makers write such letters. He threw this one from him as if it were something unclean. Yet the anonymous poison gnawed away in his brain. He clenched and unclenched his hands and paced the floor, beads of perspiration dripping down his face.

At last he fought it out with himself and decided that he would trust Lois till she was proved unworthy. However, the letter seemed to whisper to him, "A little test will do no harm."

Of course, Lois was guiltless, but perhaps she had been careless of appearances. It would be better to wait and rebuke the indiscretion when it occurred. He had been talking of a trip South to a meeting of a board of railroad directors on which his father had placed him. It was not necessary for him to go. But he might pretend that it was, and tell Lois good-by, and pretend to leave, and then—. He dared not put the scheme into words. But he dared not let the chance go past to make sure.

That evening, when he went home, Lois greeted him with her usual warmth. Before he had quite decided what to do, he had told her that he was called South for ten days, and he had not urged her to go with him. She did not ask to go. In fact, he thought that she took the bad news with just a little too much philosophy. He was tormented with shame and suspicion.

The next day, when he went to his office, he bade her good-by as if he were the criminal and she the saint. He could not have imagined that Lois only waited his departure to fling on her hat and her veil and speed to Freneau before he should leave for his own office.

She found him, and he gave her a cold welcome. When she told him that David was to be in the far South for a week, he did not seem to be interested. When she rejoined that now they could be together without the annoyance of David's presence, Freneau solemnly reminded her of the danger from gossips and servants. He must walk warily, now that he was betrothed to a bank account like Stafford's.

To this Lois made the astonishing answer that if New York was too full of spies, she would go elsewhere. She reminded him of a beautiful village in the Catskill mountains, and declared her intention of paying it a visit; also she advised Freneau to happen there at the same time—his fiancee, Gloria, was too ill to see him, anyway, and he could give a business trip as an excuse.

Freneau was indignant, but Lois was dangerous. She threatened him again with the awful weapon of suicide, against which there is no defense. He realized that he was the prey of a kind of blackmailer. He had once thought of Lois as a conquest to be proud of; now he saw that he himself was the victim and she the tyrant. With one rash act she could not only destroy herself but all Freneau's plans.

Again he surrendered. Surrender was becoming a habit. He made one condition, that they should take along the letters they had exchanged and destroy them. He wanted no written evidence of his past to imperil his future. Lois consented, and hurried away, rejoicing.

She left Freneau in a mood of black rage and remorse. The quality of his remorse was shown in his meditations. He thought of the many women he had dealt with lightly, and he wondered if any more of them would rise to threaten his security as a son-in-law of Pierpont Stafford.

That very day the most pitiful of his conquests appeared. Nell Trask had learned from a newspaper that her father had been knocked down by an automobile and taken to a hospital. She visited him there. His bodily injuries were not serious, but he was brooding so bitterly over Freneau that Nell began to fear for his reason. He told her that he had seen Freneau and had denounced him, and Freneau had struck him in the face. Old Trask was burning to avenge it. He whispered to Nell that he would reach Freneau yet and strangle him like a dog. She feared both for her own father and for the father of her dead child. She thought of writing Freneau to warn him, but that might only lead him to persecute her father. Perhaps if she begged him to marry her, he would be rich enough now. She found out Freneau's address with little difficulty, and appeared at his door soon after Lois had left him, in an ugly mood. The apparition now of so humble an incident in his past as the daughter of a bargeman was too disgusting to endure.

When the valet opened Freneau's door, Nell slipped past him and ran straight to Freneau. He could not even pretend the ordinary courtesies. He would not listen to her. He ordered his valet to bundle her out and to take his own two weeks' notice.

Nell had no more fight in her than a violet. Like a violet, she bloomed to be trodden on or plucked for a moment and tossed aside. She drifted back to the shabby barge moored at the dock and waited for her father to return "home."

Freneau, raging and calling himself a fool, drove his arms into the overcoat his man held for him and left for his office, wondering whether he was to be compelled to close up the office because of the follies he had committed. He agreed that flirtation was a poor business.

All this while Gloria lay in her bed by the window imagining that Freneau was pining away for her, while she was getting well as fast as she could for him. Doctor Royce's treatment consisted mainly in keeping out of the way of nature, helping it, but not impeding it with drugs. Gloria was responding with all the rush of youth. He was glad of his success as a physician, but he was miserable over her eagerness to get back to her romance. Once, while he watched her as she slept, he saw that she smiled. He was afraid that he knew why. When her eyes opened and stared about her room and at him in bewilderment, he understood that she had come out of the dream realm.

"Oh, such a wonderful dream I've had. I dreamed I was well—all of a sudden I hopped out of bed, and—presto, my clothes were on without all the trouble of buttons and hooks and eyes, and I floated through the wall and over the roofs and climbed down the chimney of Dick's apartment house like a regular Santa Claus.

"Then I came out through the steam radiator without even rumpling my frock, and there I found Dick so lonely and forlorn as never was. When he saw me he nearly expired of joy.

"Then I took him by the hand and floated with him through the wall and across the roof to the darlingest little church. The darlingest little minister floated through the pulpit and then—dog on it!—I had to go and wake up. But wasn't it a beautiful dream?"

"Beautiful," groaned Doctor Royce.

She was too happy to hear the sorrow in his voice. She merely exclaimed: "Hurry up, for heaven's sake, and get me well."

And, like a dutiful young physician, he promised. But he wondered whether it was kindness or not to restore her to the world where dreams do not often come true—unless they are bad dreams.

CHALMERS MOTOR CO
Detroit, Mich. U.S.A.

Quality First

ONE YEAR AGO THE 3400 r.p.m. CHALMERS CAME INTO BEING; NOW 50,000,000 HAPPY MILES LIE BEHIND IT

Just one year ago the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers was born.

September 30th is its Anniversary Day.

It was untried, unknown, looked a little strange because it was different, and nobody outside of four men knew what it could do.

These four men—the men who had dreamed the car—had little to say.

"What will it do?" they were asked.

"Get in and try," they replied.

And in three days' time every last Chalmers executive had experienced a thrill that was new behind the wheel.

They banged it around in city traffic, abused it on hills, ran it through broken fields, made it take hurdles they would never ask their own personal cars to take.

They were amazed and then they sat down and decided to build three times as many of these cars as they had ever built of any model in a single year before—$22,000,000 worth.

Then behold the situation. Six months later these 18,000 cars were all built. Then 10,000 more were ordered.

And a few days ago we got word that 20,000 more are being built — 48,000 of these 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers.

48,000 in all—a $56,000,000 business in a single model!

So you see why we are proud to have a birthday party for the car.

Any car that has 50,000,000 happy miles of use behind it certainly has an interesting history and its birthday anniversary is an event.

Remember this is only its first birthday. So successful has the car proven that the Chalmers Company is continuing to build it right through into next year. So you're safe in getting a car now that won't be obsolete in the spring.

Consider the price, $1090 Detroit.

Come in today. Attend the birthday party.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to Iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A.D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 193 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars,. and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

Dated August 30th, 1916.

In District Court,
Fourteenth Judicial District.

In the Matter of the Establishment of a Judicial Road under the provisions of Sections 24 to 29, both inclusive, of Chapter 235 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1913.

PETITION.

To the Honorable Andrew Grindeland,
Judge of the Above Named Court:

We, the undersigned, legal voters and taxpayers resident in the counties of Polk and Pennington hereinafter named, do hereby petition the above named court to locate and establish a public highway under the provisions of Sections 24 to 29, both inclusive, of Chapter 235 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1913, along and upon the following route, to-wit:

Commencing at a point where the Judicial road heretofore established and known as the Pembina Trail Judicial Road intersects the north line of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section 20 in the Township of Polk Center (152 North of Range 45 West) in said Pennington County; running thence in a northwesterly direction upon and along the gravel ridge upon which said intersection lies, and following as near as practicable the main traveled road as it now exists upon said gravel ridge, and which is known as the Pembina Trail upon said ridge, through the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said Section 20, through Sections 19 and 18 in said Township of Polk Center, and through Sections 13, 12 and 1 in the Township of Belgian (153 North of Range 46 West) in the County of Polk in said State, thence through Sections 31, 30, 19 and 20, 17, 8 and 5 in the Township of Bray (153 North of Range 45 West) in Pennington County, thence in a northerly direction through Sections 32, 33, 28 and 29, 21 and 20,.16 and 17 to the point where said old Pembina Trail on said ridge intersects the North line of Sections 16 or 17, or if the public interests is best observed that said road be terminated where it crosses the North line of Section 28 or Section 29, and your petitioners further pray that if in the judgment of the commissioners appointed by the Court in these proceedings, the public interests will be best observed thereby, that said commissioners be authorized to change the starting point, the terminus or the route of said public highway.

And your petitioners further represent that the establishment of said public highway is a public necessity and is entirely without the corporate limits of any City or Village.

THEREFORE, Your petitioners pray that the above named Court and that the Honorable Andrew Grindeland, judge thereof, appoint three commissioners in conformity with the provisions of said section 24 of Chapter 235 of the Laws of 1913, and that such commissioners meet at such times and places as may be necessary and immediately proceed to lay out, locate and establish the road hereinbefore described and that said commissioners be authorized and directed by the Court and the said judge thereof to appoint a surveyor, ax-man and chainman for the purpose of surveying said road, and that said commissioners and surveyors be authorized to deviate from the course herein described wherever the public interest may best be sub-served by such deviation;

Your petitioners further pray that this petition be presented to the Court above named and to the Honorable Andrew Grindeland, judge of said Court, on the 27th day of November, 1916, at the chambers of said judge at the court house in the City of Warren, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of said day and that the clerk of said court give three weeks' published and posted notice of the presentation of such petition in each of the counties affected at least thirty (30) days in advance of such a presentation and that such clerk cause such notice to be served in the same manner as the service of a summons in a civil action upon each county and organized township in which or along the boundary of which said proposed road is sought to be established, and have proof of such service of such notice on said counties and said townships filed in the office of said Clerk prior to the day of said hearing; and that all further proceedings herein be had in conformance with said Chapter 235 of the Laws of 1913.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT THE INSTITUTE

Most Successful Meeting of Teachers in the History of Pennington County.

The teachers institute being conducted this week at the court house is proving one of the most successful ever held in Pennington county. About seventy-five teachers and normal students have been in attendance at practically all of the sessions since the opening on Monday morning and the interest has been keen.

The work is in charge of Mrs. Harriet F. Jacques, of Robinsdale, whose specialty is the advanced departments, while Miss Mary Galagher, of St. Cloud, is giving the instructions in primary work.

The program has been made up of primary reading and seat work, arithmetic, grammar, songs and games, reading and phonics, illustrated readings, rural play and recreation, questions and reports by teachers and instructors.

Following are the names of the teachers attending: Alma C. Anderson, Eric E. Anderson, Charles O. Ask, Elva Bartlett, Tilda Brandrud, Oscar Brevik, Ethel Carlson, Ella Causin, Alma E. Culver, Katherine Dunn, Fred C. Ellertson, Ella Engen, Gunda Engen, Mabel Engen, Genevieve Erickson, J. W. Erlandson, Annie J. Fellman, Annie Froiland, Louise Furstnau, Ruth Furstnau, Clara J. PHILHARMONIC CLUB HAS FINE PROGRAM

Excellent Entertainment Furnished by First Lyceum Number Deserving of Larger Audience.

The public did not turn out as well to the concert given by the Philharmonic club on Monday evening as the entertainment deserved. This troup is one of the best of its kind in the country and its varied programs are a musical treat. Those who attended are unanimous in their declaration that the program was one of the best ever presented in this section.

These Lyceum entertainments will have to be more liberally patronized of they are to be a success. The features for this course are the most costly of any that have ever been presented in the city and the people should show a greater appreciation of the efforts made to secure the best for their benefit.

The next number in the course will be presented on November 3, when the Chicago Operatic company will give an entertainment at the Auditorium. This is one of the really great Lyceum features now touring the country and their appearance is regarded as an event wherever they are booked.

HOME OF RIVER FALLS FARMER IS DESTROYED

A fire of unknown orgin totally destroyed the farm residence of H. J. Hanson three miles north of St. Hilaire in the River Falls township last Wednesday afternoon. The loss is estimated at $6,000 with $1,500 insurance.

The members of the family were out in the barn doing the morning chores when the fire strted and had no warning until they returned and found the house in flames.

A stiff breeze was blowing at the time and the fire made such headway that but a small amount of household goods could be saved. Mr. and Mrs. Hanson lost all their personal belongings and clothing as did also Rev. and Mrs. Frank Larson, who made their home there.

The fire is suposed to have started from a defective flue in the kitchen section of the house.

RED LAKE FALLS KICKS ON CURTAILED SERVICE

Red Lake Falls is to have but three trains a week over the Northern Pacific railroad, and the people of that city are up in arms over the prospect. The change is scheduled to take place this week and service will only be furnished on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays, trains running both ways on these days.

The reason for the objection registered by Red Lake Falls is that although the traffic department insists that the Red Lake Falls business shall pay the total operating expenses of the sixty miles of line, it is said that not all of the receipts from the line are credited to the local station. For example, it is said that car loads are hauled into East Grand Forks from Sherack, billed out of East Grand Forks and the business credited to that station. Business has been handled in a similar way over the Fertile end of the line, it is said, and the Fertile station credited with the business.

The railroad and warehouse commission will be asked to compel the road to resume daily service over the branch.

Mrs. Mary Olson, of Greenbush, entered the hospital last Monday to receive medical treatment.

Mrs. Frank McCrystal entered the hospital Sunday to receive medical treatment.

Harold Brown, the young lad who had one of his legs crushed by a Soo freight car near Plummer August 17, was discharged from the hospital Tuesday. The young man expects to leave shortly for Minneapolis, to secure some kind of a position. Mr. Brown has nearly been fitted out with clothes by local people and some financial aid has also been extended to the unfortunate lad.

Miss Lorine O'Hara was discharged from the hospital Monday, after having received medical treatment.

B. E. Robinson, Soo brakeman, who was injured at the railroad yards several weeks ago when three pair of trucks passed over his body, was discharged Monday.

Miss Tillie Nyberg, of Holt, underwent a successful operation for appendicitis last Friday morning. She is getting along nicely and will be discharged in a few days.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich, of the hospital staff, leaves tonight for a two weeks' trip. He will first go to Minneapolis to attend a meeting of the State Medical association, after which he intends to leave for Rochester to pass several days looking after hospital work that is being done there. He will also visit the Minneapolis hospitals.

REPUTATION MADE HERE PROVES OF MUCH VALUE

When Fred T. Lincoln leaves Thief River Falls on Oct. 15 to take up his duties as secretary of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, he will not only go away with the very best wishes of all the people of this city but will also be received in a like spirit by the citizens among he has decided to cast his lot. The Brainerd Journal Press extends to him the following welcome:

"On October 15th, the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce will welcome a new secretary and advance reports indicate that he is the right man for the right place. Fred T. Lincoln, at present secretary of the Commercial Club of Thief River Falls, comes to Brainerd with a reputation that is only gained through hard work and persistency in purpose and with experience that should well fit him to take up the work which the commercial organization has been carrying on for the past two years. Brainerd is said to present peculiar conditions, more peculiar than any town in the country, but this is only a thought and not a fact. No town, whether large or small, presents different problems or conditions than does the town which we gladly call "Our Home," and any man who thinks we have an exception in the category of conditions should step out into the world of other municipalities and learn of the trials and tribulations that are daily confronting business men who assemble into a common body for the common good of a bounded vicinity. We are for Mr. Lincoln, first last and all the time and if good newspaper publicity and an honesty in purpose will help any, the Journal Press stands ready to give more than its share."

Auction Sales

John Beinshroth, having decided to leave Minnesota will hold a public auction of all of his personal property Monday, October 16, at his farm located on Section 26, in Numedal, township, 6 miles south of Viking, or 12 miles west of Thief River Falls. At this time Mr. Beinshroth will offer for sale to the highest bidder 3 horses, ranging from 4 to 12 years of age and weighing from 1000 to 1300 pounds; 1 yearling Holstein heifer; 1 brood sow and six spring pigs; 50 chickens; 11 pieces of farm machinery; 6 tons of hay; a large quantity of potatoes; household goods and other articles. Sale terms will be all sums under $10 cash. Over this amonut bankable paper due in one year's time with 10 per cent interest. Frank Ramaker will cry the sale and the Viking bank will act as clerk.

E. Fassett, owner of 20 high-grade Holstein heifers and one registered bull, will sell these animals at public auction to the highest bidder tomorrow (Friday) afternoon. The sale will be held at the Great Northern stock yards, located on West First street, and will begin at 1 o'clock. W. J. LaBree will act as auctioneer and the First National bank will be clerk.

Exciting Drama at Princess.

A husband was needed instantly. The young society debutante was about to become a mother before she was married. The husband-to-be had gone down on the "Titanic." The girl's name must be saved at all costs; there must be no scandal; the child must have a father.

The husband was found; the child died; and then a splendidly exciting drama follows.

It is an unusual story and plot, and sure to arouse a great deal of attention. At the Princess Theatre Thursday, October 12.—O5.

TOBIAS REEP IS ON CITY BOARD

Unanimously Chosen at Meeting Tuesday Night to Succeed Henry Amble, Resigned

KICKS ON SEWER LOCATION

Chairman Ihle of Committee of Streets and Alleys, Declares That Ninth Street Project Will Never Receive His Sanction

Tobias Reep was selected by the city council at the meeting on Tuesday evening to fill the place on the board made vacant by the resignation of Henry Amble, councilman-at-large. The new member is vice president of the Tessum Seed, Grain and Supply company, is a thoroughgoing business man and a progressive citizen of the highest standing. That he will be popular with his colleagues is evidenced by the fact that his was the only name presented for consideration. His election was moved by Councilman Bakken and seconded by Councilman Ihle.

A Session on Sewers

Chairman Ole Ihle of the committee on streets and alleys, gave notice that if the council wanted the Ninth street sewer built in the manner suggested at the last meeting, someone else would have to look after the job. The proposition is to put down this sewer at the northern edge of the city limits, using a six inch pipe. This, Mr. Ihle maintains will be a waste of money. Besides the route laid out for this sewer does not follow that recommended by the city engineer. Mr. Ihle wants a twelve inch pipe put down according to the plans already accepted for a disposal system in this section of the city and presented reasons sufficiently sound to have the matter laid over until the next meeting.

Band Levy Refused

The subject of reconsidering the matter of including a $500 levy for the band in the general budget was again discussed, a reconsideration of the vote refusing the request having been requested. Councilman Bakken strongly opposed the increasing of the levy for any purpose not absolutely necessary. This, he said, was not because he did not want to help the band, but simply for the reason that the move would establish a bad precedent and that it is absolutely necessary that all unnecessary expenses be cut off. The rest of the members seemed to feel that way also, and the matter was dropped.

Coal Bids Opened

The bids for supplying the coal to be used by the city during the coming winter were opened. Ed. O'Hara was the successful bidder, he offering to furnish the city with the required fuel at $6.40 per ton in car lots, or $7.25 per ton in smaller amounts.

No Lights Outside City

The parties constructing a greenhouse in the township of North just outside the city limits made application for having electric lights installed in their plant. A similar request was received from the sanatorium commission to the south of the city. Both these applications were refused, it being pointed out that the power equipment at present available made it impossible to carry any greater load.

A request was also received from the owners of the Kretszschmar-Schrieter dam asking that they be granted free current for the lights necessary in prosecuting the work of re-building at night. The council could not see their way clear to grant this.

NEW SECRETARY OF COMMERCIAL CLUB

Scott Laird Chosen by Executive Committee to Succeed Fred T. Lincoln, Resigned.

Scott Laird, until recently one of the publishers of the Winona Republican, was on Thursday elected to fill the position of secretary of the Commercial club, made vacant by the resignation of Fred T. Lincoln.

Mr. Laird is no stranger to this kind of work, having been secretary of the Businessmen's association of Winona until that organization was merged with the Board of Trade into the Association of Commerce. He was secretary of the automobile club of his city and occupied the same position on the charter commission, and on the base ball club, besides being identified with a number of other civic bodies during his residence in the southern Minnesota metropolis. He comes with the very highest recommendations, both as a citizen and publicity promoter, and was selected after careful consideration on the part of the executive committee. Mr. Laird has been putting in the greater part of the week as an understudy to Mr. Lincoln and will have a pretty good working knowledge of conditions when he assumes actual charge next Monday morning. He will find an enthusiastic and helpful bunch to work with, among whom The Times wishes to be counted.

Fred T. Lincoln has been secretary of the club during the past eighteen months and is one of the best known men in a similar position in the state. The club has prospered and grown under his guidance, and if the Brainerd organization, to which he goes as secretary from here, does not take on new life because of his being added to its roll of officers, it will be because it is built up of dead timber. He is a hustler—capable, affable and diplomatic. This last quality is perhaps the most necessary of all in a position of this kind, and Mr. Lincoln possesses it to a marked degree.

The retiring secretary, with his wife and children, leave the city with the best wishes of every person residing here. The new official is welcomed in the same spirit. The remainder is largely up to him.

DAIRYMEN APPOINT THEIR CONMITTEES

Will Have Charge of All Arrangements For Meeting Here on December 5, and 6.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Red River Dairymen's association will be held in Thief River Falls on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 6 and 7. The preliminary meeting, called for the purpose of arranging for this event was held at the Commercial club rooms yesterday afternoon, President C. G. Selvig of Crookston, and Secretary L. J. Housky of Halsted, being present.

This convention will take on the nature of a regular stock show, and a building will have to be provided for the purpose of housing the exhibits. Suitable quarters will also have to be found for the butter show, while the Auditorium will be used as a place of meeting and for the presentation of the programs.

Five hundred dollars will be offered as prizes to exhibitors. Two hundred dollars of this sum will have to be furnished by the Pennington county branch of the association and the Commercial club.

The following were appointed as committees to look after the affair: Arrangements and banquet, Albert Johnson, R. L. Muzzy, Hans Anton, Henry Hanson and Henry Werner. Stock exhibits, Henry Woolson, F. B. Conklin, Fred Beerbauer and J. B. Connor. A smoker committee will be appointed by the Commercial club this evening.

REV. GEO. O. PARISH IS RETURNED HERE

At the Northern Minnesota Methodist conference held at Wadena this week, Rev. G. O. Parish, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city for the past year, was assigned to his post here for another twelve months. The ministerial assignments made at the close of the meeting showed seven members of the Parish family—the father, five sons and an uncle—actively engaged in ministerial work in this conference district. The family consists of Rev. S. L. Parish, superintendent of the Fergus Falls district; his father, Rev. J. J. Parish, in charge at Villard and Westport; his brothers, Rev. E. O. Parish, at Fosston; Rev. G. O. Parish, at Thief River Falls; Rev. J. L. Parish, Deer River and Rev. H. H. Parish, Clouquet, and an uncle Justus Parish, Clearwater.

Of the pastors who formerly served the congregation here, Rev. J. B. Smith has been transferred to Park Rapids, while Rev. M. E. Hedding, who preceded Rev. Parish, goes to Cass Lake. The act of the Methodist conference in re-appointing Rev. Parish is highly gratifying to his parishoners as the church under his leadership has enjoyed a steady growth and is in a flourishing condition.

A NEW FEATURE MAY BE ADDED

Matter of Offering a Discount on All Overdue Accounts Paid on Market Day.

SCHEME HAS ADVANTAGES

There are Objections, However, and Final Decision Will be Reached at Meeting of Commercial Club on Monday.

An opportunity to save 10 cents on the dollar by paying up bills owing to local merchants and professional men is suggested by Mayor F. H. Gambell and a number leading firms and practioners have indicated their hearty approval of the idea.

Mayor Gambell advances as argument that "a dollar saved is a dollar earned" and that 10 percent is a liberal discount for the cash payment of old accounts. This will prove not only a saving to those owing accounts, but will afford local business men the use of their money, now lying idle and without interest and should appeal to the conservative man of affairs, whether he is engaged in farming or employed in some business pursuit in the city.
al men and a meeting will be held at the Commercial club Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock to determine what merchants and professional men care to enter into the plan.

Will Be Big Day

Everything points to the coming Market Day and Free auction for the benefit of the farmers, being the greatest trade-promotion success ever carried out by the Commercial club, which organization has been very successful in the past in bringing the farmer and the merchant together.

Those who have been out in the country state that it is being talked about in communities within a radius of 50 miles, and that with fair weather, the amount of farm products to be brought in and the business resulting from the genuine bargains offered in this issue of the Times by local merchants, will exceed any previuos record.

The idea of distributing tickets among the merchants at a nominal sum and they in turn giving them out to their country customers seems to have won prompt favor. Only merchants who are advertising special bargains are entitlled to these tickets at this price. Others will be asked to pay 25 cents the ticket if they are inclined to show their country trade a nice courtesy on that date.

Must Have Tickets

Every person who is served lunch at the Commercial club rooms on that day will be required to have a ticket. This is an easy matter as the merchants who are making Market Day possible will be supplied and they are ready to distribute them to their customers. This ticket plan is to protect the merchants who are putting their money into the Market Day plan and at their request.

Sufficient announcement has been made in the local papers and the advertising space has been on sale for weeks. The committee has made an effort to call upon every merchant and especially those who are assisting in maintaining the Commercial club, and there can be no excuse if anyone is overlooked.

Market Day Merchants

For the benefit of farmers and others who expect bargains on Market Day, the following list of merchants who are advertising on the Market Day pages of the local papers today is given. They are making substantial efforts to bring trade to this city and to merit it:

Mulry's Bazaar, Laing Hardware company, Spink Hardware Co., Anton Langseth, Wallace Watson, L. Gill (successor to Korstad Bros). Thief River Produce Co., Hanson-Barzen Milling Co., Mac's Sweet Shop, Cronstrom Grocery, Theo. Salverson, H. O. Mogensen, M. Giller, Loken Bro., Sapero company, en Mercantile company, Jung Brothers, F. C. Niclai, Nielsen Meat Market, L. De Cremer Meat Market, J. P. Curtis, Roy Lambert, Princess Theatre, Lyceum theatre, Mrs. B. E. Dalquist, City Bakery, Froseth Harness Shop, Peter Neste, Thief River Grocery company, The News-Press, The Times, The New Fair Store.

UNEQUALED SERVICE SECURED BY TIMES

Bonnet-Brown Company of Chicago, Adds This Paper to Its List of Patrons

The Thief River Falls Times has been added to the list of high-grade papers receiving the advertising matter handled by the Bonnet-Brown Sales Service. The headquarters of this concern are at Chicago, and its patrons include such papers as the Chicago Tribune, Minneapolis Journal, Duluth Herald and others. There are papers using the cuts and advertising matter of the Bonnett-Brown company in every large city in the United States and Canada, but it is only lately that the firm has extended its business so as to include the weekly publications.

Oral LeBlanc, representing the Bonnet-Brown people, was in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, and arrangements were made whereby The Times will have the exclusive use of the service in this city. This will mean much to our advertisers as they will be given an opportunity to illustrate their publicity matter with no cost to themselves. Large sample books of seasonable illustrations will be issued every month and from these The Times' advertisers will be entitled to select any that suits their fancy absolutely free. This monthly service enables the advertiser to keep his announcements right in line with his stock, as nothing old or out of style need be employed. Many merchants are handling lines with which cuts are supplied, but many times these are not the particular goods to which he wishes to call attention. With this service he makes his own selections and gets the exclusive use of any cut or device he may desire.

Should he wish something special, all he has to do is to give The Times an outline of what he wants. This will be forwarded to the Bonnett-Brown people and they will make up a design, submit a proof and be ready to turn out the work in short order. The artists and advertisement writers in their employ draw an aggregate salary of $200,000 per year and are the best in the country.

The first sample books will arrive in a few days, when the idea will be more fully explained.

DISCUSSED PEAT LAND AND FLOODS

John T. Stewart and R. S. Donovan of University Experiment Station, Here Yesterday.

Peat lands and the flood situation were discussed at a well-attended meeting at the Commercial club rooms last evening by John T. Stewart and R. S. Donovan of the experiment station of the state university. These gentlemen had made a trip into the eastern part of the county earlier in the day and made an investigation of the conditions there.

Mr. Donovan, who was the first speaker, said that where the peat was not too deep it was being cultivated successfully in other parts of the country and he thought some action would be taken by the next legislature looking toward the establishment of small experiment stations in sections containing large acreages of this class of soil.

Mr. Stewart is one of the foremost drainage experts in the United States, having been employed on the levy work of the lower Mississippi and in the everglades of Florida. He said that peat conditions were varying in the different section of the country and no set rules could be laid down that would apply alike to all cases.

The addresses were interesting and instructive and contained some cery valuable information on the omportant subjects handled.

FOSSTON SECURES BAND FOR CONCERT

Thief River Falls' Superb Musical Organization To Play For Fosstonites Saturday

The Minnesota State band of this city, under the directorship of Joe Greenfield, will leave Saturday for Fosston, where they will appear in concert in the evening. At the close of the recital the floor will be cleared and a dance given. Director Greenfield has prepared an excellent program for the event and a treat is in store for music lovers at Fosston. At least twenty-two members of Thief River Falls' superb musical organization will make the trip, although a few may be unable to go.

There is one member of the local band who needs no introduction to Fosston people and that is Nels J. Anderson, Register of Deeds, father of the Thief River Falls band and also father of Fosston's first organization. Twelve years ago Mr. Anderson came to this city from Fosston, and on arriving here called for musicians, and later Mr. Maxwell was secured as director. Previous to his coming to Thief River Falls Mr. Anderson had charge of Fosston's band and when he left that enterprising little burg, the village was left without an organization of this kind.

Although twelve years have flitted away Mr. Anderson is still found connected with band work, and has done more for Thief River's organization than any one citizen in the city. In honor of his work here Director Greenfield has composed a march entitled "Pennington City."

Municipal Court Moved.

Judge N. W. Tarrant states that he now has a regular court room. This week several changes were made at the Auditorium, Municipal court being moved into the old library room, which has been used for some time by the normal students. The normal girls are now using the band room on the second floor and also the gymnasium. The band will hereafter use the old Municipal court room. Judge Tarrant stated today that several changes will be made to the court Room.

DECIDE TO ERECT TEN ROOM SCHOOL BUILDING AT ONCE

Preliminary Work to Be Out of the Way So Contract May be Let Early in January.

ARCHITECTS TO SUBMIT PLANS

These Will be Selected in Open Competition and Nothing But Merit Considered

TO PROVIDE FOR FUTURE

Plans of Board Include Thorough Survey of School Situation in the City—Another Meeting Next Monday Night

A new ten-room graded school building will be erected on the Oakland addition site, actual construction to begin as soon as weather conditions permit in the spring. This was the decision unanimously reached by the school board at a meeting held at the office of Clerk C. A. Pitkin on Tuesday evening. A motion to this effect was made by H. S. Dahlen, seconded by Lars Backe and unanimously carried.

It was decided to have different architects submit competitive plans for the consideration of the board at a meeting to be held in January.

Will Make Survey

Discussion preceeding this action indicated that the conclusions of the board were about as follows:

The entire system at present is inadequate— the high school as well as the grade buildings—and if the board is to go forward intelligently and be of the highest service it is necessary that a thorough survey of the situation be made. The plans finally adopted must be comprehensive in their scope and make adequate provision for the future.

Grade Building At Once

More room for the grades must be provided and the erection of a new building is the only way in which to meet the situation. This will relieve all the other buildings, including the high school and, it is thought, will meet the demands for some time to come.

Will Gather Data

The board, as a committee of the whole, is this week busy gathering all the data available, the result of their investigations to be reported and discussed at a meeting to be held next Monday night. At this time the character of the building will also be determined upon. The question of the amount of the bond issue to be requested will be decided at this time, and such other matters as are necessary before an undertaking of such magnitude can be started, will be more fully gone into.

As to Night Schools

Superintendent J. H. Hay of the city schools, was present at the meeting for the purpose of calling attention to the night school situation. Prof. Hay stated that his efforts to sound the sentiment of the people on this subject had about convinced him that sufficient interest might not be shown to make an attempt of this kind a success. The board would undoubtedly favor such sessions if a sufficient enrollment could be secured, as night school pupils come under the same rating as do those attending during the day in the distribution of state aid.

R. K. Doe of the federal emmigration bureau, was in the city a short time ago urging the establishment of night classes for the benefit of any who might not have any opportunity to become acquainted with the requirements for citizenship, and instruction of this kind would be one of the most valuable features of the suggested night sessions. The matter was not droped entirely, and will be taken up at a later meeting.

CARLOAD OF 5,000 CHICKENS SHIPPED

A carload of chickens, 5,000 in all, was shipped from this city to Chicago by the Thief River Produce Co. This is the first poultry shipment of this size made by the concern from its local warehouse, but indications are that they will be frequent hereafter.

Manager D. C. Biddick says that it has taken him about a week to get this shipment together, and that he will start securing another of the same size at once. It is the intention to get this second consignment in shape for shipment on the 20th of the month.

A man will accompany the car from here to look after and care for the fowls while in transit.

Cold Facts ARE Very Stubborn

The following is quoted from the last issue of the News-Press:

"It is decided (by the county auditor) that it is foolish and unnecessary to get bids on the printing of the primary election ballots, so Mr. Ross is told to go ahead and print them and put in his bill. Very fine, and believe us, the bill was rendered in due season, all right. And here is the situation: The Times printed 17,200 of these small primary election ballots, 4,300 of each four kinds, and the bill was $132.60. OUCH—The ballots were printed on an ordinary book paper, were small and could have been printed on a small press all at one time, and could have readily and easily have been printed for just one-half of that amount. In fact this paper has since figured the bill, and estimating same as we do any ordinary job we figure a good and substantial profit at less than half."

One-half of $132.60 is $66.30. If Mr. Cutter last week figured that he could print 17,200 primary election ballots for $66.30 and make "a good substantial profit" it might be interesting to have him inform the public just what kind of a profit he figured in 1912 when the primary election ballots were printed by the News-Press. His bill for that year, together with that of the Times for 1916, are reproduced below as taken from the records at the court house. Yes indeed, "Cold Facts ARE Very Stubborn."

Publication commissioners' proceedings, 93 folios at 40 cents per folio ....$ 37.20
Publishing financial statement, 595 folios at 40 cents per folio for first insertion and 25c per folio for two subsequent insertions, 90c for three insertions........ 535.50
Total $572.70

"On the above the bill was allowed by the commissioners and a warrant drawn on the county treasurer for $590.95—$18.25 in excess of the rightful amount—the county thereby being looted of this amount, and the taxpayers being called upon to foot the bills."

The board of county commissioners ordered 225 copies of the financial statement printed in phamplet form, using the same type matter that had been employed in the newspaper. These copies of the statement in phamplet form are used for exchange with other county auditors of the state as well as for sending to bonding companies and other parties who may request a copy of the statement. This piece of work came to $18.25 and at the request of the commissioners themselves the sum was added to the bill of the regular publication.

BUTTER FAT HAS RAISED IN PRICE

Farmers Are Now Receiving Eight Cents Per Pound More Than a Year Ago For Product

HERDS MUCH IMPROVED

Output of Local Creamery Will Reach 250,000 Pounds During Present Year—Not More But Better Cows is the Report

The farmer patrons of the Thief River Falls creamery are this year receiving about eight cents per pound more for their butter fat than they did a year ago, and the output of the plant will be in the neighborhood of 250,000 pounds, according to Buttermaker E. E. Styles.

Bigger Local Patronage

"The local patronage of the creamery is steadily growing," said Mr. Styles. "While it is true that the amount of cream shipped in has grown less, principally because of the location of a branch house by one of the largest private creamery concerns in the west at Grand Forks, nevertheless our supply has not dropped off. Before this branch was put in at the Dakota city we were receiving considerable cream and milk from Western points, but the new institution has cut into this. A much larger production in the immediate neighborhood, however, has more than offset the falling off thus caused.

Butter Cows Generally

"I do not believe we are receiving the product from more cows than we were last year. The quality, however, is vastly better and improving all the time. Farmers are weeding out their scrub stock and putting grades and thoroughbreds in the place of the less productive kind. In this they are being greatly encouraged by the high prices prevailing at present. I am positive that we will more than keep even with last year's record in spite of the competition that has lately developed."

Was Run To Capacity

The ability of the creamery to take care of all the supplies sent in has been tested this summer. For a long time Mr. Styles was turning out four churnings every day, and during the month of June it was found necessary to work an extra crew at night. As high as two and one-half tons of butter per day has in this summer been manufactured.

The system of marketing has been somewhat changed during the past year. Heretofore all the butter made by the creamery was shipped to New York and Boston, but now it goes to Minneapolis, where it is disposed of on a net basis. This has proven very satisfactory to the creamery patron thus far.

Everything Pasteurized

All the products handled by the creamery are sterilized before being sent out. This insures the keeping of all the milk and cream for a period of from 48 to 60 hours longer than when not similarly treated.

A set of new Toledo scales have been installed, these being the best and most accurate yet devised for creamery purposes. A new bottling machine has also lately been added, greatly facilitating the work in this department.

The creamery building has recently been painted on the outside and the interior will soon be similarily treated. It is the intention to finish the inside in white enamel, all the vats and other wood workbeing in this color. A new floor will also be put down in the main room of the building about the first of December.

Less Dairy Butter Made

The farmers have been receiving over 30 cents per pound for their butter fat lately, and at this price they cannot afford to continue churning butter themselves. Some of them have been getting a year-around price of 30 cents per pound for the dairy product, but they are practically all finding out that is not as satisfactory or profitable as sending their milk or cream to the creamery.

In Excellent Condition

The creamery is one of the most important institution in the county and is enjoying a most prosperous season. As the farmer also prospers in direct relation to the creamery, its success is of the greatest importance to him.

GOOD ROADS MEET TO BE HELD LATER

State Engineer Unable to be Here For the 17th, But Will Come Later With Others

The good roads meeting which was to have been held in this city on Oct. 17, has been postponed to a later date. State Engineer Charles A. Forbes, who was to have been one of the principal speakers, has notified those in charge that he cannot be here on that date and suggests a postponment until some time in December.

Whenever this meeting does take place it will be a hummer. Besides Mr. Forbes, it is probable that State Senator Robert G. Dunn of Princeton, father of the Dunn Good Roads law, will be in attendance. It has also been decided to invite Maj. J. D. Clarkson, president of the Jefferson highway commission, to be present and tell of the work being done on that great project.

While the postponment was made primarily to suit the convenience of Mr. Forbes, it will prove a good thing generally. The farmers will be given a more general notice of the meeting and will have more time in which to attend.

The exact dates have not been decided upon as the convenience of the invited speakers must be consulted.

FARMERS SHOULD SECURE THEIR SEED GRAIN NOW

Postponing This Important Matter is Sure to Cause Trouble Next Spring

A short time ago, a brief news article appeared in the Times requesting information about the amount of 1915 seed grain that would be available for the spring of 1917. Supt. Selvig of the Northwest Experiment station at Crookston informs us that very little seed was reported. Indications are that there will be a tremendous shortage in 1917, as the supply of grain harvested and threshed this fall indicates a very low grade for seed purposes.

It is incumbent upon each community to take up the matter of securing seed for the 1917 crop in order that good seed will be secured. Reports from the grain terminals indicate that grain of superior quality was grown in Montana and is being shipped through the Red River Valley at the present time. Sufficient quantities of good seed should be bought now and stored for use next year. Every farmer's club and every progressive village and town should take up this movement in order that seed grain of the highest quality be secured before it is too late.

There should be no trouble in financing a plan of this kind, as in all likelihood, the price of grain will not be down next spring. Suitable storing places for large quantities can easily be found, but the best plan would be for each farmer to secure what he needs and store it himself.

Peterson-Roese

Miss Nina A. Peterson and Mr. Wilbert E. Roese were quietly married Wednesday, October 4, at Thief River Falls by Judge Tarrant in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

The happy couple left immediately for the home of the bride at Hazel, where a four course dinner was served at 9 p. m. to over sixty relatives and friends. The out of town guests were Mrs. R. E. Smith and daughter, Mrs. C. F. Musselman and son of Crookston, an aunt and a cousin of the groom, also Mrs. Sjoberg of Crookston. The latter attended the bride's mother's wedding in Sweden. The misses Mabel and Ida Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Rinker, of Thief River Falls.

Miss Lena Peterson, sister, Miss Annie Peterson cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaids. Martin Peterson, brother of the bride and Willis Roese, brother of the groom, attended the latter.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with lace. Her veil was caught with a wreath of lilies of the valley. She carried a large bouquet of white roses.

The young couple received many lovely and useful gifts, among them was a beautiful kitchen cabinet, a davenport and a number of aluminum articles and many fine pieces of silverware.

The happy couple wll make their home four miels north of Plummer, where Mr. Roese has prepared a home for his bride. All wish them many happy years of wedded life.

Birthday Surprise

Mrs. Nels Berg was the honor guest Monday afternoon when 20 of her friends surprised her at her home on 417 Knight avenue. Mrs. Berg was presented with a casserole and silver cake knife.

Last Thursday evening the directorate of the Thief River Falls Commercial club was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Lincoln, 309 Fourth street east. Covers were laid for nine directors and the retiring secretary, Fred T. Lincoln, at a six o'clock dinner. Following the dinner cards were played and all enjoyed an all-around good time. Those present were: George G. Johnson, president of the club; M. C. Cutter, vice president; Thomas A. Way, treasurer; Charles A. Pitkin, J. B. Conner, E. M. Korstad, C. A. Nason, Fred Herrick and C. W. McDaniel, directors.

Mrs. Thomas A. Way entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Van Alstine, of Grand Forks, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Lincoln.

The Doo Drop club was entertained Monday evening by Misses Mammie and Rhoda Finberg at their home near Squaw Point.

Saturday evening, October 7, in this city occurred the marriage of Miss Sarah Offerdahl, of Holt, to Engval Bakke, of Warren, Rev. August Bredeson, officiating. The marriage ceremony was held at the parsonage. Witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Larson, of Argyle. The newly weds departed on the early morning flyer Sunday for Newfolden.

The Brumund hotel was the scene of a dainty six o'clock dinner Monday evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Willis Akre, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ives, Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dolan, Mr. and Mrs. William Prichard, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Halverson.

The first regular meeting of the Woman's club will be held Monday afternoon, October, 16 at the Commercial club rooms. A musical program will be rendered in charge of Mrs. Henry Loken. Refreshments will also be served. Meetings of the Woman's club will be held hereafter every two weeks. All members are requested to be present, and a cordial invitation is extended to all would-be members.

The class of 1918 of Lincoln high school frolicked at Squaw Point last Friday evening at a marshmallow roast. A large fire was built and practically all of the class members were present to spend the evening. Miss Ruth Storli, the Junior advisor, chaperoned the party and other members of the high school faculty were also present.

Mrs. E. M. Shutte entertained informally at her home on the East Side last Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Rathjen, of Luverne, Minn., who is in the city as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. R. H. Ross, 116 Markley avenue north. Cards formed the afternoon's entertainment, after which a luncheon was served.

A party of six enjoyed a marshmallow toast at Squaw Point Sunday evening. Those present were: Misses Ruth Storli, Avis Akre and Gertrude Holmes and Messrs. Francis Burns, Hugh Bottleson and Herbert Conner.

SCHOOL NOTES

School Notes

A change has been made in the Normal department, whereby the two model classes of small children are now seated in the upstairs rooms above the Auditorium entrance. The normal students have moved from the old library room to the gym, which is larger, better lighted and can be ventilated.

The State school adjoining the Thief River District on the southwest will vote next week on associating with the local school. Association gives the rural school the supervision of the city superintendent and industrial teachers, and a yearly gift of $50, and this without any extra tax or expense. The central school receives $200 annualy to aid in carrying out the required supervision.

In connection with the transferring of the classes and children from building to building during September, it must be said that the parents have, with rare exceptions, given the school management their co-operation. An unreasonable parent was rarely met. No room is now crowded and the work is moving all smoothly and satisfactorily.

Some of the high school boys and girls who are paying their way thru school are willing to accept work on Saturdays. A request for such service at the school office will receive prompt attention.

Notices appeared last week in the local papers requesting those interested in night school to communicate with the school superintendent. Unless a greater response is accorded this invitation, it is probable no school will be opened.

Grafton went down to defeat by Coach Johnson's warriors last Saturday. The visitors are considered one of the strongest North Dakota teams and the locals are worthy of the many compliments they have received. Edwin Stebbins suffered a fractured finger bone in the second quarter, but pluckily stuck to his position until near the close of the contest.

The industrial fair for boys and girls in this county, and this includes those in Thief River Falls, will take place at the Lincoln high school on Friday and Saturday of this week. Contests are open to all under eighteen in the following seven classes: Spring calf, spring pig, pen of one cockerel and two pullets, sewing and breadbaking, ten ears of corn and one peck of potatoes. Prizes in each of the classes are $5.00, $4.00, $3.00, $2.00, and ten prizes of $1.00 each. All school teachers are familiar with the contests and can give further information. Saturday is really the big day of the fair and the cash premiums will be paid immediately following the judging. Mr. Henry Werner is in charge. This fair is under the auspices of the County Fair association which is furnishing the funds for the premiums.

The large assembly room in the Lincoln was reseated last Saturday and nineteen additional desks placed therein. The aisles were narrowed down to 17 inches.

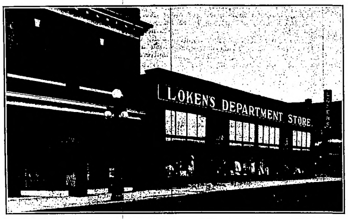
FALL MERCHANDISING SALE

Our Great Fall Merchandising Sale Commences Saturday, Oct. 14 at 9 a. m., continuing one week, closing Saturday night, Oct. 21. One week only.

Right Now! As never before, this sale means something. Tremendous advances on all merchandise on every hand. And in spite of the scarcity we have gotten together an unusually fine stock of everything most desirable for fall and winter wear. And on this sale, as you can see, we are offering you just as remarkable values as in normal conditions.



Big sales are unusual now. Why? Because the scarcity of good merchandise is being felt keener and keener every day with prices continually advancing. In spite of this serious situation we have labored and worked for some time in order to assemble a stock large enough for this—Our Great Annual Fall Event. Now we are ready! And we say you can not afford to miss this sale. So come early and often as this sale lasts one week only.

A great deal is heard and said about high prices. In spite of this 80 per cent of our goods are today selling over the counter at last year's prices. Its the few advances here and there that seem to make the big noise.

Miss Amy Nelson, who is teaching a term of school near Hazel, returned Monday morning to take up her duties, after having spent a week in Thief River Falls attending the Teacher's Institute. Miss Nelson was the guest of her parents while in the city.

Sheriff W. J. LaBree returned last Friday morning from Fergus Falls, after having taken Alfred Lee, who was adjudged insane last Thursday afternoon, to the hospital at that place. Gunder Lee, a brother of the insane man, accompanied Mr. La Bree.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. VanAlstine arrived the latter part of last week from Grand Forks for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Way. Mr. VanAlstine will remain here for some time to superintend the work of installing sewers on the East Side.

Roy Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Brown of Grygla, motored to this city Saturday morning to be in attendance at the Thief River Falls-Grafton football game. Roy, who graduated with the 1916 class, was captain of last year's eleven and also of the basket ball five.

John Myrland, employed in Minneapolis by the Montana-Dakota Grain company a branch of the Hanson & Barzen Milling company of this city, returned Sunday evening to his home after spending a few days here attending to business matters and renewing acquaintances.

J. A. Russell, prosperous farmer residing on route No. 2, spent Monday in Thief River Falls on a business trip. Mr. Russell has a flock of about 30 turkeys and while in the city made arrangements for the sale of the same with the Thief River Produce company.

L. J. Foss of Goodridge, was attending to business in the city on Friday. Mr. Foss says that he is living in the busiest burg in this section just now. Electric light plant going in, roads being constructed and ditches in the course of excavation make lots of work for everybody.

Arthur Johnson, who returned Saturday evening from Stephen, where he has been employed by Mousley & Glines in painting the newly erected school house, departed Monday afternoon for Grand Forks to take up a position with a painting firm in that city.

Mrs. F. W. Kenyon arrived Monday evening from her home at Fordville, N. D., for a visit with her friends in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon are former residents of Thief River Falls, Mr. Kenyon, who is a Soo engineer, being located here before his transfer to Dakota.

Rev. F. J. Seltz, pastor of the German Lutheran church, left Saturday morning for Greenbush and Roseau to conduct religious services on Sunday. He was accompanied by Student W. Braurer, of St. Louis, Mo., who will take charge of the preaching at those towns during the coming year. Mr. Braurer arrived in Thief River Falls Friday evening from St. Louis and was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Seltz over night.

SINGING CLASS TO OPEN.—By October 16th I shall be in a position to give lessons in voice culture to a limited number of pupils. Anyone wishing to start in at this time, or at a later date, and wishing to be advised as to terms, etc., may write me direct at 411 LaBree Ave. N., or 'phone 105. CHASE F. MIX.—O5-tf.

Albert Johnson, science instructor at Lincoln high, spent Sunday at Roseau lake on a duck hunt. Mr. Johnson, who is coach of the 1916 football team, felt so elated over the team's victory on Saturday when they defeated Grafton, that he could not help but follow it up with a hunt. in which he bagged a good string.

J. F. Steenerson, farmer residing 2 miles up Red Lake river, had a crew of electricians engaged on his farm last week in wiring his residence. Mr. Steenerson will shortly install an engine to furnish electricity for light on the farm. His home is also provided with water and sewers.

John Brumund returned Wednesday morning from a visit with friends in Minneapolis and St. Paul. The trip to the Twin Cities was made via the motor route.

H. M. Johnson, cashier of the Farmers State bank at Holt, returned Wednesday morning after having spent Tuesday in Thief River Falls on a business trip.

Otto Gulrud, who has been traveling for the Standard Oil company through North Dakota, and who resides at Goodridge, arrived in the city Tuesday morning. He left in the afternoon for his home. Mr. Gulrud stated that he was obliged to abandon the road for a time owing to an attack of rheumatism. He also stated that 3 inches of snow fell in North Dakota this week.

is now on exhibition at

THE HAUG AUTO CO.

Particular pains were taken by BUICK engineers to make this model of the BUICK a sturdy, useful motor car. This model of the BUICK was designed primarily for use, and for plenty of it. In its make-up there is incorporated the same high proportion of drop forged steel for which all BUICKS are famous, and which makes BUICK durability possible.

GREAT VALUES: Model D6-45, $1,085; Model D4-35, $725.

How can a careful man allow himself to drift into debt? Debt is as dangerous as a disease. It is a disease. A fly on a piece of fly paper sometimes frees himself when he is only on the edge. But "debt" is a monster that is hard to get free from.

It is so easy to "charge it." Don't do it; put a little money in the bank instead.

R. P. Luchau, publisher of the Grafton News, and Times, accompanied the football team to Thief River Falls last Saturday. The Times office acknowledges a pleasant call. Mr. Luchau is candidate for county treasurer of Walsh county North Dakota.

Mrs. William Kline arrived from her home at Fordville, N. D., last Saturday evening for a visit with her friends in this city. Mrs. Kline formerly resided in Thief River Falls, Mr. Kline being employed here as Soo Line fireman, but was transferred to Fordville some time ago.

Mrs. S. Moore, who resides at Middle River with her daughter, Mrs. Chester Wright, was a guest at the Andrew Bottelson home for a short time Tuesday evening while enroute to Arpin, Wisconsin, where she will enjoy a visit with her friends and relatives.

Mrs. A. Bain returned to her home at Ardoch Monday afternoon, after a visit in Thief River Falls at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Herrick. Mrs. Bain is a sister of Mr. Herrick. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Herrick, of Grand Forks, who had been in the city visiting.

Rev. R. L. Barackman left for Roseau Monday morning to conduct services in the evening. He left again on Tuesday evening for St. Paul, where he will be in attendance at a synod meeting of the Presbyterian churches, held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. He will return tomorrow morning.

Dr. H. W. Froehlich will return on Monday from a trip to Minneapolis and Rochester. Dr. Froehlich attended a meeting of the state medical association in Minneapolis the latter part of last week and also visited some of the hospitals. He is at present at Rochester visiting with friends and at the Mayo hospital.

The fire department was called out Tuesday evening at about 11:00 o'clock in response to an alarm sent in from 106 Second street west, where a small fire had originated in the rear of the building used by the American Drainage company. Near the diminutive blaze was a heap of ashes and the fire had evidently gotten its start from that source. The timbers at the base of the building were burned a trifle, and the flames had already begun to climb the walls.

Perry Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, who reside on a farm south of the city, will likely act as first substitute for the quarterback position during the Minnesota football team's schedule this fall. A dispatch from St. Paul says: "Perry Johnson, who will likely act as first substitute for Shorty Long, the Gopher's brilliant little backfiled leader, was given a shot at the halfback position, with Jimmy Ballentine as his running mate and Pudge Wyman fullback." Mr. Johnson practised at halfback the latter part of last week.

Thomas Benjamin, the 19 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Stuart died at St. Anthony's hospital Monday following a month's illness. Funeral services were conducted at St. Philip's Catholic church by Rev. Fr. J. J. T. Philippe Wednesday and interment was made in Holy Cross cemetery. Relatives from other cities were: Mrs. Staurt's sister, Mrs. Theodore Kittleson, of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Stuart's father, A. F. Panchot, of Foreston, Minn., Mrs. Stuart's brother-in-law, C. A. Lewis, of Crosby, Minn., Mrs. M. O. Madson, and Mrs. Murray of Kelliher.—Bemidji Sentinel.

Walfred Norlund, residing about a mile southeast of Maive, was in the city yesterday on business. Mr. Norlund moved onto his farm about a year ago and is well satisfied with the outlook, although his grain did not make him rich this year. He has eight head of cattle on the place now and is going to have many more before spring. Mr. Norlund says he knows of farmers in this section of the state who have been tilling the same acres during the last 25 years and have never had more than one cow at a time on the place. It is seasons such as the past one that hits these people hard. They will have to change their mode of farming, thinks this young man, or make room for some more up-to-date agriculturalist.

Auditorium Manager Charles Anderson is in receipt of a letter from Walter S. Baldwin, of Minneapolis, who has charge of the "Civilization" film for several of the Northwest states, asking for open dates at the Auditorium during November, December and January. "Civilization" is without a doubt the greatest picture showing on the American screen today. Those who have seen Thomas Inces' wonderful million dollar cinema spectacle declare it to be far superior to Griffith's "Birth of a Nation." The company travels in a sixty-foot car with special scenery and effects, a symphony orchestra of 50, chorus of 50, two solists besides a crew of carpenters and electricians. A prologue accompanys the picture with flesh and blood actors. This is "Civilization's" eighth week in Minneapolis at the Schubert theatre and the film is also being shown in New York City at the present time. It will be released to the Northwest shortly and Mr. Baldwin states that he would like to secure Thief River Falls on the tour.

Resolutions By Teachers

We, the teachers of Pennington county assembled here for Institute week; resolved, that this week has been spent to our greatest advantage.

That we go forth to our respective schools to generate more enthusiasm than here tofore.

That we put in operation such valuable information received from the efficient instruction as can be applied to our individual schools.

That we wish to express our sincerest thanks to Mrs. Jacques for her many practical problems taught us, and her cheerful disposition shown us in rendering these lessons.

We are highly indebted to Miss Gallagher for the efficient methods shown us in teaching the lower grades.

To Miss Booren, Prof. J. H. Hay and Prof. T. A. Erickson we give special thanks for their instructive talks.

That we feel intensely indebted to Co. Supt. E. A. Mostue for his kind consideration at this time to aid us in our duty, and for the kind encouragement which he always stands ready to give the teacher.

That we wish to tender our gratefulness to the city for the hearty welcome and generous hospitalities shown us while here.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Thomas Hanson is now able to be up and around, after an operation for appendicitis. The operation was performed last Tuesday.

Miss Morsette Hilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hilson, was discharged from the hospital last Thursday, after having recovered from an operation for tonsilitis.

Donald Snyder, of this city, the five year old son of Mrs. Snyder, was operated upon for tonsils the fore part of the week.

Mrs. Hostvet, of Thief River Falls, is receiving medical treatment at the hospital.

Miss Bulah Taylor of Greenbush, entered the hospital yesterday.

Mis Hortense Hoveland, of Greenbush, was operated upon Wednesday for appendicitis. She is getting along nicely.

Has Helped the Farmers....

Goodridge Eleven Towns.—In our last weeks' issue we published an announcement of John A. Duffy for member of the Legislature in this District. Mr. Duffy needs no introduction to the voters of Pennington County for he has been here for a long time and is favorably known, having been a candidate for the same office two years ago.

It is the opinion of this paper that Mr. Duffy should be elected this year. Pennington county was accorded the Senator two years ago by common consent, the Representative going to Clearwater county. Pennington, Clearwater and Red Lake make up the district. Mr. O'Neill holds over so Pennington is represented, and therefore to even matters up Red Lake should be given the Representative this year.

But it is not for the above reason only, which in our opinion is a good one, that Mr. Duffy should receive your support. Many a poor homesteader on the Eleven Towns have received help from Mr. Duffy when others would not take a chance. He has had and still has, unbounded confidence in the future of this section, and has always backed up this belief by investing his money, even when the security seemed inadequate.

That Mr. Duffy is well qualified, no one disputes, and if sent to the Legislature he will be able to do more than the average new member on account of his wide acquaintance throughout the state."

Wins Highway Recognition

A Large United States flag carried on the pilot car on the recent Sociability run to Canada and a tank load of oil, prizes offered by the Jefferson Highway association in a contest for the largest number of automobiles in line, were captured by Kensett, Iowa, and Geneva, Minn. Kensett won first place and has choice of either prize, while the Minnesota town gets whichever is not chosen by the winner.

There was a total escort of 3,772 automobiles altogether and the winning town had 272 of them. A total of sixty-seven towns competed.

Thief River Falls is credited in the report with having 100 machines in the turn-out.

Merits Condemnation

Goodridge Eleven Towns.—"The criticism of the News-Press hurled against our County Auditor is a shameless and cowardly act and should meet with condemnation from every decent citizen. Criticism when well founded is meet and proper, but it should not be used for selfish purposes. Mr. Cutter is supposed to give the news to the community, and not his private grudges. A more disreputable use of a newspaper can hardly be imagined, for it seeks to mislead the public mind in order to settle a private grudge."

Man of Sound Judgment

Gonvick Banner.—"J. A. Duffy, candidate for Representative of the 65th legislative district, was in Gonvick Friday interviewing the vote casters. Mr. Duffy is a prominent citizen of the city of Red Lake Falls and a business man of sound judgment. The splendid and solid vote he received in two primary elections are best endorsements of his standing with home people and of the confidence they place in him.

Mr. Duffy is opposed by Oscar T. Stenvick, a young lawyer of Bagley, and former county attorney of Clearwater county."

Commercial Club Notes

A number of copies of the June issue of the Jefferson Highway Declaration have been received by Secretary Lincoln, who will be glad to hand them out to anyone requesting them. These publications contain some very interesting matter dealing with the great project and as Thief River Falls is an important point on the line our people should become thoroughly posted on the progress of the work.

St. Hilaire News

Charley Chaplin in "The Mix Up"

Charley Chaplin, the funniest comedian in the world, the man that made laughter famous, will be shown in his funniest comedy, "The Mix Up" at the Imperial theatre here on Saturday evening, Oct. 14th. The show will commence at 8 o'clock. This will be a chance for the people of St. Hilaire to see the highest salaried in the amusement world in one of his very best pictures. Mr. Chaplin is today drawing a salary of $670,000 for his marvelous and laugh-producing acting which ought to be sufficient assurance that his work on the screen must be of the very highest order. The "Mix Up" has the reputation of being one of the biggest gloom chasers ever produced, and will make a person laugh sixty times per minute. It would require too much space to give a complete and detailed account of this great picture in which "Friend Charley" appears funnier than ever. No one should fail to see it as it will only be shown here once. Come Saturday evening, Oct. 14th., to the Imperial theatre and forget your troubles at home, as you will have no time to think of them while at the show. It will be one continuous roar of laughter from start to finish. The first part of the picture will be repeated for those who happen to come late.

Mr. Almquist, a young farmer living about a mile southwest of this village, nearly met with a serious accident last Friday afternoon when his horse became frightened by an approaching automobile and started on a quick gallop down the street. "FLYING SWITCH"

8 HOUR INQUIRY BOARD IS NAMED

President Wilson Selects General Goethals, E. E. Clark and George Rublee As Members

President Wilson last Thursday appointed General George W. Goethals, recently governor of the Panama Canal zone, E. E. Clark of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and George Rublee of New Hampshire, member of the federal trade commission, to be members of the board to investigate the operation of the eight hour day on railroads. At a meeting Colonel Goethals was named chairman. Mr. Goethals and Clark are the republicans and George Rublee is the progressive.

Besides observing the operation and effect of the institution of the eight hour work day, the commission will be authorized to conduct a general investigation of the facts and conditions affecting the relations between such common carriers and employees. The task will begin when the eight hour law takes effect January 1, 1917, and after an inquiry of not less than six or nine months, the commission will make a report to the president and congress.

Pending the filing of this report and for 30 days thereafter, the law provides that there shall be no reduction of wages of the employees affected by the standard eight hours of work.

Those members of the commission who are government employees or army men will receive no additional pay for their services.

An appropriation of $25,000 has been made for the investigation including travel expenses, salaries of employees, rent etc.

Snow Makes Expensive Covering For Farm Machinery

If any of your machines were out LAST year you know what the rust cost you this past season in repairs and new machines is one of the biggest money saving buildings that can be put up on any farm. If you have any figures to show what new machines and repairs have cost you in the past year or two it will surprise you to compare those figures with the small cost of a shed to house your machinery.

With the shed your repair bills will almost vanish and machines will last twice to three times as long.

Now is the time to build it. See us about it.

GRID CONTEST WAS A SIZZLER

High School Team Smothers Speedy Dakotans From Grafton By Score of 14 to 2

PLAY FOSSTON SATURDAY

Borry and Holzknecht Are Brightest Stars, Both Making a Touchdown—Large Crowd Sees Johnson's Men Win

Out-generaling and out-playing their opponents at every stage of the game, the Thief River Falls high school football crew annexed its second consecutive victory of the season on Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds field, when an eleven from Grafton, N. D., high school was vanquished by a score of 14 to 2. Johnson's men had everything pretty much its own way and would have piled up a greater score had it not been for the several costly fumbles when within a short distance from the final chalk line.

Game Cancelled

The White Earth Indians were scheduled to play here, but on Friday evening Coach Johnson received a letter stating that "the boys were too small and didn't know anything about football," so the contest was cancelled. Johnson then got into communication with Grafton and arranged a game at the eleventh hour.

Score in Second Quarter

Thief River Falls started to score early when the players were fresh, and made their two touchdowns in the second quarter. Outplaying the Dakotans in the line, Johnson's backfield men were allowed to pierce Grafton's defense for heavy gains and when the ball was lost on downs, the visitors were forced to punt at many instances. During the first half the ball was brought within 10 yards of Grafton's goal and Thief River was held on downs. The first period was taken up in see-sawing up and down the field. At the start of the second period Grafton attempted a forward pass, but Tandberg, star end for Thief River, was "johnny on the spot" and caught the spheroid with a gain of 12 yards, placing it within 2 yards of the goal. This paved the way for the first touchdown. The visitors were fighting like demons, but with a powerful line charging against them, followed by speedy backs with their noses dragging on the ground, Johnson's Colts proved too much, and Borry came through registering the first touchdown. After the kickoff the ball was muffed by a Grafton player and Thief River took it down the field in rapid order and when within 10 yards of the goal a costly fumble forfeited the ball to Grafton. The visitors had possession of it a few minutes and then were forced to punt, Holzknecht receiving the ball. A series of smashing line plunges were then put into effect, which cleared the avenue for the second touchdown. Grafton's right and left "wings" were being smashed to shreds by Johnson's onrushing men and Holzknecht carried the ball across the line through a hole made by Lane, guard.

Grafton Gets Touchback

Grafton's lone two points were made during the third period, after Thief River had been forced down the field within 3 yards from Grafton's goal. Borry fumbled the ball, as the result of it being thrown too high, and was tackled by an opposing man. The ball went to Grafton, and they secured two points on a touchback.

Thief River's Stars

As in the Red Lake Falls game Borry and Holzknecht were the brightest stars in Saturday's game. Borry, in addition to his ability at straight line plunging, displayed an astonishing ability to weave through the secondary defense for telling gains. Holzknecht took upon himself the burden of carrying the ball his share of the time in addition to directing the attack, and his dodging was a feature of the contest. Borry kicked goal two times straight. In the line, Kroemer, tackle, was a stone wall defense and on the offense bolted through his opponents and mussed up the Grafton backs. Rogers, the other tackle, tackled with unerring accuracy and would often throw his man at a loss. Time and again he would break through the line and the opposing backs didn't know what direction to go.

During the last part of the final quarter Halfback Stebbins was taken out of the game, with a broken finger. Time was taken out three times for injuries to Thief River men. Grafton came very nearly being without the services of their captain at one stage of the game as the result of showing too much roughness. He was left in the game, however despite the protests of those present for the reason that Grafton came here at the eleventh hour as a matter of courtesy to Thief River Falls.

The high school rooting club was out in full force, led by Arthur Bryant, Rooter King. Between halves the field was zigzaged by the happ students and at all times during the game many spirited yells were ripped off. The day was an ideal one for football, and the game was attended by a large and enthusiastic crowd.

Johnson's men this week have begun one of the most strenuous training campaigns of the year, in preparation for the game Saturday to be played at Fosston. Thief River Falls is on the road to capturing the championship of the district and are getting their in a hurry. The outcome of Saturday's game means everything in the world to the members of both teams. If Fosston wins it will mean that they will be the leading team during the remainder of the season. If Thief River Falls wins Fosston will be eliminated. Johnson and his men are not worrying over what Fosston will do, and are confident of being returned victors. A large crowd of fans are expecting to accompany the team.

One Explanation

Our esteemed "War Cry" the News-Press, after biting around in every direction— from intimating that the ladies of Thief River Falls are running gambling joints, to snapping at the president of the United States and the head of the Minnesota Northwestern railway—kind of winds up by attacking the city council for not establishing a new tax fund and thus providing for a still greater levy next year.

At this point the "War Cry" seems to be nearly exhausted and to have an idea that it may have exceeded itself, for it declares kind of solemnly that "nobody but Bakken can answer this question." The undersigned is very glad that an opportunity is given him to explain his vote in that case.

Those who paid taxes last year are well aware that these fell pretty heavily upon them. There are a whole lot of people in our town who have struggled to make for themselves a home. They are not living in corporation-owned flats, relying on a large salary, but are poor working men with unsteady incomes who are struggling to maintain a home of their own. I have been approached by widows owning homes here who have cried because they were unable to pay the large taxes on their property and who declared they would be compelled to leave their homes on that account.

Under these circumstances I feel it to be a crime to levy a single dollar more than is necessary for the payment of former obligations and the running expenses of the city.

It is true that five hundred dollars does not seem a big addition to the almost staggering levy for the schools and city, but this establishing of new funds and additional taxes must be stopped somewhere. By drawing a line here I am well aware that I am drawing down slurs and ridicule onto myself from directions much more respected than the "War Cry," but I am prepared to take this with good grace, knowing I am right.

Respectfully,

O. L. BAKKEN.

Some Comments On That Bouquet

When I filed for Clerk of Court I had no intention to carry the fight into the papers. But an article published in the Sunbeam by Mr. Hunt, and re-published in the News-Press under the caption "Sunbeam Hands Bouquet to Clerk of Court Ives" needs some comment.

Mr. Hunt questions my qualifications. He also says that I am an unknown man to the people of the county. As to that I can say that I have lived in this county for thirty-one years, coming here with my parents in 1885, having lived in this county ever since. So I am not so entirely unknown as Mr. Hunt would have it appear. As to my qualifications I can say that I have attended the Thief River Falls high school, I have graduated from the Crookston Business College, I have taught school in this and Red Lake counties for eight years, having a first grade certificate. I have lived on the farm for 28 years, where I have put in many a hard days work. Ican truthfully say that I never shirked my work either on the farm or in the schoolroom. I have been honest and upright in all of my dealings and I am sure nobody ever lost a cent through me. Neither have I wasted time or money on drink, and I pledge myself, if elected, to perform the duties of the office in an able, honest and conscientious manner, and with the utmost care. Now why should I not be qualified? Can Mr. Hunt give any good reason or mention any duties connected with the office that I could not perform? As I have said, I have lived in this county practically all my life and if there is any wrong or dishonest act or incompetency on my part it ought to be an easy matter to bring it out before the people.

Mr. Hunt says that I travel about the country seeing the voters. Havn't I a perfect right to do so? Mr. Ives is doing quite a lot of traveling to attend picnics and auctions and he is not doing it all for pleasure either. As to Mr. Ives being so painstaking I don't think he is any more painstaking or capable than the other officials in the Court House. What remarkable ability or qualification has he got more than the others? The duties of the Clerk of Court are comparatively simple, whereas in some others they are more complicated, as the auditor's office for instance. What Clerk of Court in northern Minnesota is less qualified than Mr. Ives? Can Mr. Hunt name him? Mr. Ives makes his mistakes as well as anybody else and quite a few of them too. Is it not a mistake to charge the court costs against the party in a law suit that wins the case? Mr. Ives made that mistake with Martin Hyland of Deer Park some time ago, causing him trouble and expense to get it corrected. There are many other mistakes that he has made that I could name. This talk about Mr. Ives being so well qualified is all bosh. On the contrary his qualifications are quite ordinary when you only look into them. Now I have nothing against Ives personally, but I know that I can do the work as efficiently as he and I won't make any more mistakes than he either. Why brag Mr. Ives above everybody else and why should he hog the office all the time?

As to his having no deputies or assistants, anybody who has been in the court room when court was in session could see that Mr. Ives was conspicious by his absence. The real court work was done by a deputy while "the best qualified Clerk of Court in Northern Minnesota" was lolling in a chair down stairs smoking cigarettes and reading newspapers.

Respectfully,

ADOLPH ECKLUND

ASKS VOTERS TO SUPPORT HUGHES

Andrew Trovaton, Secretary of County Republican Committee, Discusses Campaign Issues.

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Oct. 10, 1916.

Editor Times and Readers:

Election is approaching and it will be well for every voter to consider the political situation. We have a tariff law now, which is as bad as any tariff law the free traders could wish, and it is always mentioned by the Democrats as one of the "great" reforms brought about by the Wilson administration. They had wheat on the free list in this bill, but through the untiring efforts of Steenerson, Nelson, Gronna and other Republican senators they at last succeeded in retaining a 10c duty as against 25 cents under the Payne law, and this year is a good one to show the farmers what a protective tariff will do on articles subject to foreign competition. Today Winnipeg December wheat is quoted at $1.60⅞. (Winnipeg prices are for Port Arthur delivery, so the comparison will be fair as far as freight is concerned, but the grades are harder in Canada, so Winnipeg wheat should run a couple of cents more than our prices on that account), and Minneapolis December wheat is quoted at $1.72½ and the cash sales of the contract grade (1 degree) selling at a premium of 2 to 6¾ cents. Now, this shows that whenever there is a shortage of milling grade wheat, the farmers get the benefit of the tariff directly. But the big benefit is the indireot gain he gets by reducing the export market for this northwestern wheat to Winnipeg alone, as against both that and our market, if there was no duty. This compels the foreign buyer to pay better prices, just the same as you would have to pay more for horses if you had to go to one certain sale stable to get them than if there were several places to buy horses, even though the aggregate number of horses were the same.

This year I consider the important thing is to get a REPUBLICAN president, otherwise we will be compelled to stand foreign competition on nearly every product of farm and factory, because no matter what we think of Wilson's other policies, we certainly know that he does not believe in protection, and he would therefore have to veto any protective tariff that a Republican Congress might pass. So I trust that every voter who Believes in protection will vote for Hughes, in order to be at all consistent.

Most of the older people can easily remember what the effects of low tariff were under Cleveland's administration, and will take no chances on it, but the idea of inviting imports from foreign countries to compete with ourselves, is so absurd that even the younger people ought to see through the thing, and see that the whole free trade idea is simply what is left of the old southern idea of slavery production without caring at all for free labor.

Very sincerely yours for Republican Success,
ANDREW TROVATON.

NEW CONCERN TO CONDUCT SCHOOL

S. P. Randall, Connected With Business Colleges at Cloquet and Brainerd, Seeks Location

As soon as a suitable location can be secured a high-class business college will be established in Thief River Falls.

S. D. Randall, member of a company now conducting schools of this kind at Brainerd and Cloquet, was in the city last week looking over the situation with a view to opening a college of the same kind here. Mr. Randall's attention has been directed to Thief River Falls through a meeting with Secretary Fred T. Lincoln at Brainerd a short time ago, and he concluded to investigate the situation.

Well Known and Reliable

Mr. Randall has been connected with C. H. Berhorst in the management of business schools at Cloquet, Fairmont and Waseca, besides the institution at Brainerd. A short time ago this firm dissolved parternership, Mr. Randall taking over the schools at Cloquet and Brainerd, while Mr. Berhorst assumes sole control of those located in the Southern Minnesota towns.

The firm is thoroughly well established and enjoys the reputation of being one of the best and most reliable in the state.

Has wide Connection

The new school will adopt the Draughon Practical Business College system, the head offices for which are located at Nashville, Tenn., and which is now being taught in 20 or more of the best schools in the country. Pupils enrolling for the course are provided with free text books and enjoy many other advantages not ordinarily found in business colleges.

Mr. Randall stated while here that he was desirous of starting with 30 pupils, but that he did not expect the Commercial club or any one else to provide them for him. He requires no bonus or guarantee of any kind except the good will of the people. He has a very valuable course to offer at a most moderate price, and believes that when this is thoroughly understood he will have no trouble in enrolling students.

He stated while here that in order to start with as large a class as possible he would give a discount of fifteen per cent from regular prices to all those who sign up at the outset.

Democratic Meeting at Erie.

What may be termed as the first political rally of the campaign will take place at Erie on Saturday evening, when County Attorney Hans O. Kjomme and State Committeeman E. M. Stanton will be the speakers.

The Democrats claim that they have good energetic Wilson clubs established throughout the county and that the demand for speakers is greater than headquarters here is able to supply.

It is likely that Mr. Kjomme and Mr. Stanton will both be heard in different localities between now and election, and it is also said that speakers of national note may fill dates at Thief River Falls.

The Farmers Shipping association will ship their next car of cattle October 21.—O12.

O. Christianson motored over to this city Sunday from Grand Forks on a business trip. Mr. Christianson is an expert automobile painter with twenty years' experience, and arrangements were made with him by Fred Haug to take charge of the auto painting department at the Haug garage about December 1. All those wishing to have their cars repainted during the winter would do well to bring them to Haug's garage, where first-class work will be guaranteed.—O12.

Tuesday afternoon at her home on 116 Markley avenue north, Mrs. R. H. Ross entertained in honor of her mother, Mrs. A. Rathjen, who is here from her home at Luverne. There were fourteen guests. Cards formed the afternoon's entertainment after which refreshments were served.

Next Week is "Edison Week"

Do you know that over 600,000 people are now employed in industries founded by Thomas A. Edison?

Next week is being observed by many of these industries in recognition of Mr. Edison's scientific achievements.

We observe the week by giving an Edison recital every day at our store and also by making it possible for a certain number of people in this community to compete in the

$1,000 PRIZE CONTEST

for the best descriptions of the enjoyment and musical education derived in the home from Mr. Edison's favorite and probably greatest invention

The NEW EDISON

We have set aside a limited number of these wonderful instruments. They have been specially tested and will be placed in homes in this city on an absolutely free three days trial during Edison Week.

Those who secure the benefit of these Edison Week free trials will be eligible to the big $1,000 contest for the best opinions of the value of the New Edison in the home.

These opinions must not be over 200 words in length. Their literary quality does not count. Professional writers and all members of the phonograph trade are barred.

What the Edison company wants are the real heartfelt opinions of the people after they have heard this wonderful new instrument in their own homes.

The first prize is $500.
Second, $200.
Third, $100.

Then there are consolation prizes aggregating $200. In addition, the Edison Company will pay ten cents per word for opinions which, although not winning prizes, are considered suitable for publication.

See us before Monday noon about the prize contest and our free trial offer. Edison owners are eligible. Come to us for an entry blank.

Government Engineer Makes Inspection Trip Along Entire Course of Red Lake River

SOMETHING WILL BE DONE

Now That Work Has Been Properly Started Some Action Looking Toward Relief May be Expected At An Early Date

Unless something is done to control flood conditions along the valley of the Red Lake river the people living there will be forced to move out.

This is the opinion of E. J. Dugan, of the United States engineering departmen, reached after a run down the river from Red Lake. Mr. Dugan addressed a well-attended meeting of business men at the commercial club rooms on Sunday evening, telling of the conditions he found on a trip made for the purpose of gathering data for a report to be submitted to the interior department.

Was Disappointed

"I was disappointed with the situation disclosed at the head of Red Lake river," said Mr. Dugan. "The water is high and it looked to me like an enormous contract to do anything that might afford relief. As we drew nearer to Highlanding, however, I felt better and now I not only believe that something can and should be done, but that it will be."

"The matter has been brought before the engineering corps through the efforts of Congressman Steenerson, who has worked ceaselessly for years to secure some sort of action by congress. He has succeeded now in getting an appropriation for a survey and the matter will receive the proper attention.

Proposition Must Have Merit

"You hear a great deal of talk concerning the pork barrel system of appropriating moneys for rivers and harbors. However much of fact there may have been in this charge in the past, it is a certainty that a proposition must contain a considerable measure of actual merit now days before it can receive any attention at all from congress.

"Work of this kind must be passed on by a number of boards. All the interests benefitted or injured must be taken into consideration. The farmers, the railroads, the water power companies and, most of all, the navigation possibilities of the stream, must be weighed in arriving at any sort of decision with regard to matters of this kind.

No Plan Yet

"No plan for doing the work has even been considered," said Mr. Dugan. "We are simply working to secure the information on which to base a plan. We must know how large a section of country will in any way be affected by the proposed work as well as many other things. When this trip is ended we will have this information and a report will in all likelihood be forthcoming so that a hearing may be held before the end of November.

Senator O'Neill On Trip

State Senator D. P. O'Neill cut short a visit to his old home in Ontario in order to be here to meet Mr. Dugan. He made the entire trip from Bemidji to this city in the company of that gentleman, and on Monday morning both continued the journey as far as Crookston, where they attended the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association.

Senator O'Neill stated that at the All-Minnesota Development meeting held in St. Paul recently the support of those attending had been pledged toward securing some aid for this section of the state. One of the things he was certain of securing at the next session of the legislature was an appropriation for a soil survey of the entire section traversed by the river, which would be of great benefit in dealing with these drainage and flood matters.

Indians Would Pay Their Share

Daniel Shaw, who is perhaps better acquainted with conditions on and about the headwaters of the Red Lake river than any other man in this section, said that it was not a matter of an appropriation from the state or federal governments. The Indians want the outlet of the lake deepened and widened and have asked the government to do the work, charging the cost up to the Indians themselves. They offer to pledge the timber now standing on the reservation as security for the payment of the sum. This would take care of the project as far as it extends to the reservation proper, after which it would become a mixed problem. which the government, the state and private parties would have to combine in solving. "The Indians realize that as things now stand," said Mr. Shaw, "much of their land is worthless, while with the proper control of the waters these would be at once worth four or five dollars per acre."

Other Speakers

District Engineer W. E. Monks requested Mr. Dugan to pay particular attention to the possibilities offered by the Red Lake river for power development on his trip down stream.

C. S. Carter, of Beltrami county, candidate for representative, spoke of the importance to the people of his section of the work proposed. He resides near Black Duck and said that anything that would tend to keep an even stage of water in the Red Lakes would be welcomed by the people to the east of Thief River Falls. He also stated that Beltrami county had gone as far with drainage projects as was likely for some years and that therefore additional drainage into the lakes from this source was improbable.

ETHEL BABRYMORE IN A GREAT PLAY

Popular Emotional Star Will Be Seen at Princess Theatre on Sunday Evening.

America's favorite stage star, Ethel Barrymore, now a permanent member of the Metro's staff of stellar artists will next make her bow from the screen here in "The Kiss of Hate," a dramatic story of life. Miss Barrymore, who made her debut in Metro pictures in "The Final Judgment," won such success in this production, duplicating on the screen the countless triumphs which have been hers in the spoken drama, that Metro concluded a contract with her under the terms of which she receives a higher prices per picture than any other stellar artist appearing on the screen.

Miss Barrymore's contract with Metro calls for the production of at least four pictures a year for a term of three years, for each of which she is to receive the sum of $40,000, or $480,000 in all.

"The Kiss of Hate," which was directed by William Nigh of the Columbia Pictures Corporation, who produced "A Yellow Streak" and other Metro masterpieces, is the first of these de luxe photoplays to be released on the Metro program and was written especially for Miss Barrymore my Madame de Grissac. H. Cooper Clife, the eminent English dramatic actor, will be seen in support of the star.

Celebrates Birthday.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Halvorson, 515 LaBree avenue north, was the scene of a pretty reception last Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Halvorson's mother, Mrs. H. M. Downs, celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday. Many visitors called at the Halvorson home to congratulate Mrs. Downs. Light refreshments were served to the guests, and Mrs. Downs was the recipient of many gifts, which went to show the esteem in which she is held by her friends. Mrs. Halvorson was assisted during the afternoon by Mrs. Hans Langseth and Mrs. Harold Miller.

Telephone Hearing Postponed

City Attorney Theodore Quale has received notice to the effect that the telephone hearing which was to have taken place here yesterday has been postponed to a latter date at the request of the companies. It was stated that inasmuch as the Thief River Falls case and that recently heard at Owatonna were identical in practically every feature, the outcome of the action brought by the first named city would have the effect of setting a precedent by which other localities might be guided.

FIGURES TELL STORY OF WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENT

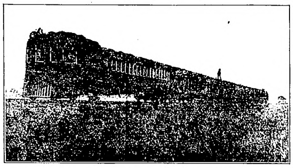
Value of Products Handled by Minnesota Northwestern Electric Railway Reaches Nearly Half a Million Dollars

DAIRY PRODUCTS, LIVE STOCK AND EGGS

The Rapid Transformation From a Grain Producing to a Cattle Raising and Creamery Section is the Most Notable Feature of Report

Farm products to a total value of $433,886.37 were brought in to Thief River Falls for transhipment by the Minnesota Northwestern Electric railroad during the year ending September 30.

Twelve years ago the section now traversed by this road was an Indian reservation. Eight years ago much of the territory now furnishing the bulk of the products enumerated was a worthless morass. Four years later drainage had somewhat redeemed the region and grain was almost the exclusive commodity produced. The present report shows that live stock and dairy products represent $161,630.75 out of the total.



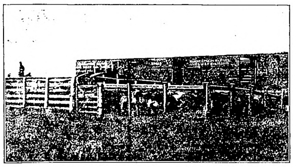
A TYPICAL TRAINLOAD

With Cattle Came Prosperity

As soon as the lands in the eastern part of the county were drained it was demonstrated that they would yield as good crops of grain as any in the northwest. The production of wheat, barley, oats and flax was therefore the most natural pursuit for those settling upon them to follow. The rapid increase in farm values, coupled with an occasional season of poor crops, has demonstrated to the farmers, however, that they cannot afford to devote their entire acreage to the production of cerials. They will never abandon the raising of wheat, but will adopt the system which makes it possible for them to secure a larger yield from less land. Coupling the raising of live stock with their grain growing will do this.

The Live Stock Shipments

During the year for which this report is issued the books of General Manager H. W. Protzeller show that a total of 1,989 head of live stock were carried over the line from the farms for the purpose of marketing. The greater part of these shipments came from the stock yards maintained by the road at Goodridge, the eastern terminus, this being the assembling point for a large section. These shipments were divided among the different classes as follows:



LIVE STOCK YARDS AT GOODRIDGE.

Steers and Oxen	943
Cows	505
Calves and heifers	297
Bulls	244
Hogs	436
Sheep	202
Total	1,989

The total weight of these animals was 1,474,700 pounds. Mr. Protzeller estimates that a fair average price for these would be $4.75 per hundred, thus aggregating a total of $70,048.25.

Butter and Eggs

The butter, cream and eggs carried by the line represented a value of $91,682.50, as follows:

Butter, pounds	197,345
Eggs, dozen	56.460
Cream, gallons	21,187

If the butter is taken at a year around average of 30 cents per pound this item would represent a value of $59,203.50; the eggs at 20 cents per dozen would amount to $11,292, while one dollar per gallon is a low estimate to place on the cream. These three items would thus represent a total of $91,682.50.

Ninety per cent of the butter shipped over the road is billed directly to New York, where it commands the highest price. Minnesota butter generally brings a premium at any of the big markets, and the demand for the output of the creameries in this section far exceeds the supply.

A fair estimate of the value of the grain shipped over the road during the year places this at a total of $274,978.62. For the purpose of this report Mr. Protzeller has averaged the value of the different varieties as follows:

Wheat, 202,290 bus	$182,061.00
Flax, 22,569 bus	40,624.20
Oats, 63,504 bus	20,321.28
Rye, 21,251 bus	15,938.25
Barley, 26,547 bus	15,808.20

These totals are bases on the following conservative prices: Wheat, 90 cents; flax, $1.80; rye, 75 cents; barley, 60 cents; oats, 32 cents.

Want High Grade Cattle

Some of the items shipped into the section are quite as important as those shipped out. The railroad has carried 32 registered bulls for the farmers around Grygla during the past year, while high grade cattle have been brought in by the car load. The farmers who have taken up stock raising are fully alive to the fact that it does not pay to maintain scrub herds and are securing sires from some of the best strain in the country.

Scientific Feeding

The entire eastern end of Pennington county is becoming a region of clover and alfalfa. These highly valuable fodder crops attain their highest perfection in this latitude and it is for this reason that dairying and stock raising is advancing with such phenominal strides. Some of the farmers have installed alfalfa mills by which they grind the stalk of this plant into a meal which is given to the cattle in combination with other feeds, a balanced ration being thus arrived at. This matter of scientific feeding is being given a great deal of attention by the farmers of this section. Not only is it applied to the milch cows, but beef cattle, hogs, and chickens are likewise being studied with a view to discovering under just what conditions they thrive best.

Saturday is shipping day at Goodridge, the cattle train leaving the village at noon. Close connections are made with the Soo railway at Thief River Falls and the shipments are at the stockyards in South St. Paul within 24 hours after having been placed on board the cars.

Greater Growth Expected

The section around Goodridge is rapidly becoming known as one of the best in the northwest for dairying, stock raising and diversified farming. Markets are convenient and the Minnesota Northwestern makes provision for rapid and frequent shipments. It is one of the most rapidly developing neighborhoods in the Northwest and this fact is largely due to the fact that the farmers are getting away from the all-grain error and are devoting more attention to the vastly more profitable, sensible and interesting pursuits of cattle raising and dairying.

D. C. Biddick, of the Thief River Produce company, spent the latter part of last week at Greenbush, where he had a crew of men busy loading a carload of chickens. The car was shipped direct to Chicago and is the first to be shipped by the local produce company.

THIEF RIVER BOY IN BRITISH ARMY

Frank Grundy Tries For Position in Line But Injury to Eye Prevents His Acceptance

BATTALIONRECORDKEEPER

Is Given This Position at "Old Bailey" in London—Enlists With Man Formerly With W. B. Fuller in Phillipines

The Times last week contained a short notice telling of the death of Roy L. Stevens, son of G. A. Stevens of this county, while fighting in the British army "somewhere in France." The announcement has brought to light the fact that others, well known here, are now serving under the British flag in the European war, the case of Frank Grundy, son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Grundy, earlier residents of Thief River Falls, being of particular interest.

Now Reside in Toronto

Dr. Grundy came to this section about twenty-five years ago and continued to reside here until 1911, when the family moved to Toronto. Frank was born in Thief River Falls, and is well remembered by everyone who lived here during the time he was growing up.

Injured Eye Bars Him

When about ten or eleven years of age the boy received a severe injury to one of his eyes while at play. The sight was not entirely destroyed and the matter did not cause him any trouble until he attempted to enlist in the Canadian army. Here the defect was discovered but it was not deemed of sufficient importance to disqualify him.

Instructor in Bomb Throwing

Upon his arrival in England, young Grundy was given a two-weeks course in bomb making and throwing, with the understanding that he was to become an instructor in this department of warfare when camp was reached. He evidently rose fast in the estimation of his superiors, because when next heard from he was trying for a lieutenant's commission. Here, however, his imperfect eye proved a drawback and he was taken out of the line entirely. Upon his return to England he was placed in charge of the batallion records with offices in the building known as "Old Bailey" in London.

Had a Mutual Friend

While learning the art of bomb throwing Mr. Grundys side partner was a man named Frank Hinds. It developed that both of these men had a mutual friend residing at Thief River Falls in the person of W. B. Fuller. Grundy had, of course, known Mr. Fuller while he was a resident of this town, while Mr. Hinds had served with the local man in the Phillipine war.

Fuller and Hinds were members of Company K, Thirteenth Minnesota regiment, according to the first-named gentleman, who remembers the boy very well. Hinds enlisted at Stillwater and was the youngest member of the regiment. Upon being mustered out of the service he again returned to Stillwater, but later moved to Edmonton, after which time Mr. Fuller lost track of him for awhile. When next heard of some years later, this young soldier had acquired considerable property, was married and rearing a family. Again he dropped out of sight as far as Mr. Fuller was concerned, until after the outbreak of the war two years ago, when the Thief River Falls man heard that his erstwhile partner had been very unfortunate. His wife had died, and in common with many others who had pinned their faith to the Canadian Northwest, he had "gone broke." Hinds thereupon enlisted in the Ninety-seventh battalion and was sent to Europe. Since that time Mr. Fuller has not heard from him.

Indicates Canadian Attitude

The story of young Grundy as well as that of Hinds goes to show how the Canadians feel about this war. The case of the former is particularly interesting. Coming from a well-to-do family and with a physical disability which would have excused him from military service had he cared to call attention to it, he nevertheless persisted in his determination to be a soldier until a place was found for him. This is the spirit which seems to permeate the entire Canadian dominion and which seems to be growing stronger as the war is prolonged.

SERVES AS MODEL FOR SCHOOL WORK

Success of Market Day Arrangements Here Are Heard of in the Far Southland

The fame of the market days held at Thief River Falls seems to have penetrated to the farthermost corners of the country. Right here at home it is likely that many people considered the event as a matter of comparatively small importance, but persons interested in matters of this kind in other places took particular note of it. Secretary Lincoln of the Commercial club, has received a number of inquiries asking for an outline of the plan pursued. This was by reason of an article written by him and published in "The American City," a magazine dealing with civic affairs and which has a national circulation. Even in the far southwest the people know something about Thief River Falls because of the advertising the market day was responsible for disseminating, as the following letter, received by Mr. Lincoln will show. The communication is from a high school girl, and it is needless to state that the secretary supplied all the information at his disposal without delay:

"Waxahachie, Texas, Oct 3, 1916. Mr. Fred T. Lincoln, Secretary Commercial Club, Thief River Falls, Minn. Dear Sir: Our civics teacher has appointed some members of our class to bring up special topics on different subjects pertaining to government. My topic is on 'Market Day' and I see in the American City magazine your account of your market lay. If you could send me some bulletins or some information on this subject I would be very much obliged.

Sincerely, Katherine Herring,
309 Brown Street."

GRAIN SHIPMENTS SMALL; OTHER PRODUCTS BETTER

Railroads Are Feeling the Effects of Poor Grain Crop—Cattle and Butter Good.

While farmers very generally have been able to adjust their affairs so as not to be greatly embarrassed by the practical failure of the wheat crop, the railroads feel the lack of traffic most keenly. P. J. Keating, grain inspector in the local yards of the Soo railroad, states that at the present time the receipts of wheat averages about 25 cars per day. A year ago at this time between 200 and 250 cars were being received. The quality of the present crop is also far below that of a year ago, according to Mr. Keating. Other grains, however, are better, rye, barley and oats being far in advance of wheat, although these also are below the average of same last season. The flax received is very good, but the amount is in no wise record breaking.

The railroads traversing this section are to some extent making up the loss of revenue through the increased shipments of cattle and dairy products. This can, however, in no wise compensate for the loss in the grain traffic. The business is steadily on the increase and forms an important item, but the grain carrying roads are not faring particularly well this year.

H. August Larson of Aspelin, Opens Negotiations With Thief River River Falls Iron Works

SELF-WORKING SEPARATOR

Inventor and "Hipnotist" Also Has Several Other Contrivances Which Local Concern May Have Chance to Produce For Him

Thief River Falls may become the manufacturing headquarters for the inventions of H. August Larson of Aspelin.

A few days ago the Minneapolis Journal contained a leading article dealing with the inventions, giving the details of a contrivance perfected by him which will put an end to all wars. The inventor stated while in Minneapolis that if the United States did not take over his scheme he would at once offer it to Germany.

A Prolific Inventor

A war-abolishing device, however, is but one of the many things which Mr. Larson is willing to contribute to the future happiness and general welfare of the world. Among the others are a self-working cream separator and a system for teaching music by the simple expedient of listening to the ticking of a watch.

Would Make Them Here

It would seem that one of Mr. Larson's first inventions is the self-working cream separator. This project has advanced to a stage where a manufacturing plant must be provided, and the Thief River Falls Iron Works has been offered the job of making the first machines.

In a letter received by J. J. Richter, manager of the local iron working plant the inventor puts his proposition up to Mr. Richter in such a manner as to leave that gentleman in no doubt as to the value of the contrivance. The inventor not only wrote on both sides of the paper, but also on every available space of the envelope, the address side of which reads as follows:

"10,000,000$ Invention. A self Working Cream Separator. Inventor. H. August Larson, Hipnotist, Aspelin, Minn., Thief River Falls Iron Works, Thief River Falls, Minnesota." On the reverse side the following information is set forth. "A wonderful invention is discovert at Middle River a popatshel formoshin as is worket of itself and valuatet at 10,000,000$. If I can find a Partner or a Iron Work as will make my invention I can Pay for the First Wonder Mashine and I will show my Wonder Mashine and sell it at once. I will be a Agent and I believe I can get it made in Thief River Falls at once. I have a invention out to play Music by a second of a watch, 1915, and now a self working separator. Spirritualist & Hipnotist. Wonder Inventor."

"Works Itself Entirely."

Mr. Larson may be the greatest inventor of the age, but he should take a few lessons in proper business and correspondence forms. He begins as well as ends his communication with the signature, which is not strictly proper. Following is a reproduction of the letter:

Jan. 2 1916. -Inventor H. August Larson, Aspelin, Minn. Dear Sir: I have inventet a waluable cream separator as can work it self intirely. no expense of enny cind. no exploshen. and can take all the cream of the milk in a few minutes. it can be made for ½ the money as is Payd for a Old Cind. I can remove the Cream of 50 galong of milk in a few menuts a child can operate the mashine seftly. Plees wil you Advertise this Contract between me and you. I will send the plan for my invention for you to make for me or if you will go in parternship wit me at once I will give you Big Profeet of all work you do for me. I can operate my invention 3 deferent ways. I will start the chipest way first. My invention is made of sheet iron mostly or bolier iron. but very simpel to make. I have money to make the first all my self. I have money in state Bank of Middle River. just enough to do for one mashine. but I will be glad to get you in partnership or if I can get some cind of work in your shop for a few monts—for a small pay to pai my bord or Batsle (batch?) in a small haus or shante. it dont make no diferent what cind of work I do. I am not patickler. I do all cind of work. I am a carpenter and ship builder of Denmark. I am no drankart. completely sober. I am a camp cook now. I live on a homsted but 30 mils est of Middle River in Beltrami county. I will be a eesy partner for you. you can get every ting as you wis. Now plees tell me at once what cind of iron work you have.

Must Take An Oath

"A boiler maker is a good ting to have to start our work at firat. I will show my Invention how it works altogether. I can do that very chiep. Plees now make a small state ment out and take a oathe to the hole thing and send it to me at once so I have prove for our agreement. will you advertise our agreement and sen Paper to me. it cost you noting. I will allow you more as you tink now. I am yours for cucces.

"My patent is securet the 10 of Dec 1915 in the U. S. patent office. all paid for.

"now sir I will tell you a simpel story of the Hole ting neghst time I writ to you and show you plans to work after. I understand to work after plans my self and can make very good plans for a patent office.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M Hughes

SYNOPSIS

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her one dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau. Doctor Royce warns Freneau that there is another woman besides Gloria; Freneau goes sleighing with Gloria without her father's knowledge. It results in pneumonia for Gloria, whose family becomes incensed at Freneau when they learn the truth. Royce is summoned to alleviate Gloria's suffering. Freneau's finances being low he approaches Pierpont Stafford for a loan. Doctor Royce again warns Freneau of his conduct. But Lois, learning of Freneau's betrothal to Gloria, threatens him with dire punishment. Her husband, Gloria's brother David, becomes suspicious; he plans a trap for his wife.

SEVENTH EPISODE

Freneau in his office going over the morning's mail was in a beastly temper. He snapped at his clerk when that cheery young man wished him a bright "Good morning." He made short work of the mildly flirtatious stenographer's attempt to begin the day breezily for him.

The air of the office was clouded with Freneau's gloom when his partner, Mulry, entered gayly and slapped him on the back. The clerk and stenographer paused expectant, but before he spoke to Mulry, Freneau snarled to them:

"Get out and stay out till I send for you."

They got out.

Mulry was amused at his friend's bad temper. He chuckled: "Wrong side of the bed this morning, old bear? What seems to be your little trouble now?"

Freneau told him that Lois Stafford, whom he was attempting to get rid of, had learned of his engagement to her sister-in-law, Gloria, and had become unmanageable.

"She threatened that, unless I gave up my proposed marriage, she will confess the whole affair and then kill herself."

Principally this meant to Mulry that the firm would have to refund the large sum of money Freneau had just borrowed from Gloria's father on the strength of the engagement. Mulry began pacing the floor also, chewing his cigar. At last he chewed out an idea that pleased him.

"You make the trip to the branch offices in my place, and take your fair tormentor along. Perhaps you can appease her and get her into a reasonable state of mind."

Freneau did not care for the scheme. He shook his head in derision. Mulry urged.

"At least it would gain time for us."

"No, it's out of the question; try again," Freneau snapped. "She is going to the Catskills for a week and she insists on my tagging along."

Mulry rubbed his head. His massage seemed to conjure up another idea, for he began to rummage through his desk. He beckoned Freneau to come over to him and held up delightedly a handful of miscellaneous papers. Freeman looked and saw merely a number of sheets of writing paper and envelopes from various big hotels about the country. They meant nothing to him.

"When I stop at a hotel I always annex a lot of its paper and envelopes."

"Yes? And what have your parsimonious habits to do with our present trouble?" queried Freneau patiently.

Mulry was disgusted. "Why, don't you see, you poor Don Juan? You take these letterheads and write love letters on them to your sick fiancee. I take them with me and mail them from the different towns I make. Then Miss Stafford will think you are there. Meanwhile you can go away to the Catskills and meet your troublesome Lois. If you can't rig up some story to get your letters back from her and keep her quiet until after your marriage, why you're not the little bright eyes I always took you for. See now?"

Freneau did see. He was not enthusiastic, but this seemed the only possible way to tide over the present reef in his way to the harbor of matrimony.

Freneau was dishonorable. Freneau was unmistakably an adventurer and what the world calls a cad, but he was born of gentle people; he had good blood in his veins, as his worldly graces showed. He truly adored Gloria and wanted only her. There was sharp torment in the agonies he endured fearing the loss of her through his previous sins. His punishment was not far off and he was to meet it with neither peaceful thoughts nor clear conscience. He had enmeshed himself in so complex a web of intrigue and wrongdoing that the problem of escape was ever more complex.

"Who knows? If Gloria had been a woman when he first saw her, the woman she now was, instead of the child then, she might have saved his soul and his life. But he had to take the present as the past gave it to him, and hope for a future of more straightforward life.

Late that night in his apartment Freneau started the batch of love letters and telegrams for Gloria. He became interested in them, and so carried away by the fervor he infused into them that early dawn and his valet found him asleep at last with his head resting on sheets of paper that bore such messages as:

"My darling Gloria: As I telegraphed you, I arrived safely, but missed you terribly. This week of absence will seem an eternity."

This was on a letterhead of the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany. Others were from other hotels. The last one he had written was on the paper of the Fort Pitt hotel, Pittsburgh. In it he said:

"The eternity of this long week is over. I return tomorrow to your arms."

He sealed the letters, wondering what would be the answer to them. He took them to the office, and the next day when Mulry took his train to Albany he carried with him these letters. He was well pleased with the network of lies that he and Freneau had woven to deceive Gloria. But it is much easier to carry out plots in fiction than in fact.

* * * * * * *

David, Lois, and her father, Judge Freeman, were going to the opera that night and they stopped to see Gloria on their way. Gloria was sitting up on her chaise longue, still pale and somewhat weak. She submitted, rather than invited, the in-law kiss that Lois brushed over her cheek. Then she turned to David and pouted:

"Oh, dear, some people have all the luck. You are going to hear Geraldine Farrar in 'Madame Butterfly,' while I must lie here doing nothing. They won't even let me read, the stingy old things!" she made a moue at her nurse. "And I do despise to be read to. Just wait until I get out of their clutches, I'll make up for this; I'll be Madame Butterfly all over the place."

David smiled at her innocence in the allusion to Butterfly, but neither he nor Gloria knew that Lieutenant Pinkerton was a white woolly lamb compared to Gloria's own lover, Freneau.

Lois had moved away from Gloria toward the bedside table, where a framed photograph of Freneau looked tauntingly at her. A jealous desire for possession came over her. She longed to take the image of the man from Gloria as well as the man himself. The whim became immediately a necessity to her. She glanced across at the group about Gloria. No one was looking her way. A smile curled at the corners of her lips and a triumphant gleam shot for a moment into her handsome, sullen eyes as she slipped the picture into her opera bag.

Lois was utterly maddened and desperate in her passion for Freneau now for the knowledge that she was to lose him made her utterly ruthless to herself as to all who might stand in the way of her last days with him.

She must be alone with Freneau uninterrupted to plead with him to give up Gloria and to run away with her—or, failing that, to get back her letters and gain time to reconstruct her life and recover from her loss.

She carried the stolen photograph with her to the opera and laughed as she imagined Gloria's frantic search for it.

The next morning, as she was going over Freneau's letters, her father dropped in unexpectedly. One of Freneau's envelopes had fallen to the floor unnoticed by Lois. The judge stooped to pick it up for her. He saw Freneau's name and, trained as he was in the wiles of criminals, he suspected Lois at once and flatly accused her of an intrigue with Freneau. She merely flounced away in a temper, saying:

"I am old enough to take care of myself. If you want to believe evil of your own daughter—why, believe it."

She left Judge Freeman dumbfounded and distracted. In the afternoon, while David was at his office, the worried father again visited Lois to try softer words. In the hall he met her houseman carrying a trunkdownstairs for the express. Freneau had advised Lois to send her baggage by train and motor up with him to the Catskills.

Judge Freeman took the liberty of reading the tag on that trunk. He saw that it was checked to Blendike, a village in the Catskills.

Going to Lois' room, he questioned her. She answered that as David was going away that evening she thought she would run out to Lenox to visit Aunt Kate.

"Aunt Kate has gone to Florida, as you know," her father answered sternly.

"I forgot, but anyway, I have to get off by myself for a few days; my nerves are in ribbons. Please leave me alone," Lois said, and burst into tears.

When Doctor Royce made his morning call on his beloved patient, Gloria, he found her still progressing toward complete recovery from her illness. But her spirits did not seem joyous as they should be. He thought bitterly that this might be due to his orders that she should not be allowed to see Freneau. He told her that he withdrew the embargo and her rapture confirmed his fears.

That afternoon he chanced to be passing David Stafford's home just as David stepped from his car. David greeted him warmly and insisted on his coming into the house. Royce was out of his coat and hat before David had finished glancing at some letters the butler gave him. As he felt thoroughly at home here, Royce went ahead to the living room. He thought he heard a murmur of voices. Parting the curtains, he saw something that made the blood pound in his temples. Lois' arms were about Freneau and his around her. Royce heard her saying:

"At midnight by the pavilion, near the soldiers' monument. I'll be there. Don't fail me."

Royce dropped the curtains noiselessly and stepped back as David approached, talking briskly. Royce was thankful for the sound; it would give the guilty pair time to separate and spare David a hideous knowledge, at least for the time being.

Royce and David entered, and Lois greeted her husband warmly. Royce sickened at the sight. He would not speak, but he refused Freneau's hand. Freneau, a trifle jolted, said that he had dropped in to inquire about Gloria. After a few minutes he left. Royce said that he would go along, as he had something to discuss with Freneau.

He told David that he would see him later, and for very pity did not look him in the eye.

But he gave Lois a meaning look of wonder at her evil recklessness. Then he followed Freneau with wrath boiling in his heart.

Without waiting for an invitation he jumped into Freneau's car, and as soon as it was under way Royce burst forth:

"You infernal hound! You could't play fair if you tried, could you? And you wouldn't, would you? But now you've got to give up Gloria and get on the other side of the globe or you'll wish you had never been born. I know what you are up to and I advise you not to undertake it. I mean it. I warn you that I will stop at nothing to prevent you from wrecking both of those homes."

A spark of manhood flickered yet in Freneau's soul, and he attempted to explain in some part his own helplessness, but Royce cut him short. The facts as he had seen them permitted no explanation.

"Of course you won't listen; you want Gloria yourself. You are only too anxious to get me out of the way. But don't let your jealousy drive you absolutely insane."

Royce stopped the car and got out.

"I've warned you," was his parting shot.

All the rest of the day Royce pondered over where his own duty in the matter lay. He could not tell Gloria what he had seen. The shock might have thrown her back into a fever. He could never bring himself to smirch her love and young faith in his rival's honor. He could not put the responsibility and the horror of full knowledge on his friend David, nor cast the burden on David's old father. It was not Royce's nature to shift responsibility on other shoulders.

He tried to clear his brain by forgetting. He took up a medical book for study, but between his eyes and the page came a vision of Freneau as a leering satan. It laughed and mocked at him, seeming to say:

"I will destroy Gloria and Lois and David, and you cannot stop me."

Royce jumped up and closed his book, a look of set purpose coming to his grim face. It was nearly midnight when he took from the drawer of his desk table a revolver and slipped it into his pocket.

When Royce had met David, David had not told him that he was leaving town for a week. David was not sure what would happen, and Lois was the only one he wanted to deceive. She was so badly duping him that she had no thought of his returning the compliment. It was difficult for him to play the part he had assumed, and if she had been more on the alert she would have seen the constraint in his manner.

She played her own role with the ease of long practice. There was nothing sincere about her except her joy in David's departure. She thought that nothing in the world could have been more opportune. But she wanted to make sure that no accident befell him. She did not want him to miss that train.

She went to the Pennsylvania station with him, acting the heartbroken, deserted wife with all her art. She bade him good-by at the gate and when he went down the stairs to the train underground she still would not leave till she saw the roofs of the cars move off into the tunnel and the porter who carried David's baggage come back. Then she felt it safe and she departed from the station with a sigh of deep relief.

If she had been a little less impatient she would have seen David return through the gate after the train had pulled out. David, making sure that she had not caught sight of him, took his miserable doubts with him to one of his clubs.

Judge Freeman found him there, and, noting his expression, asked him what had kept him from taking his train. When David saw his father-in-law the smoldering of his trouble burst into flame. He snatched the anonymous letter from his pocket and was on the verge of showing it. But he withheld it, though he could not check the bitter words: "If this letter is true I may have to kill a man."

An icy hand seemed to grip at the judge's heart. He knew without seeing it what that letter said. He put his hand on David's arm and was about to speak, when a man slapped him on the back. He turned to face the club's most notorious bore, nicknamed the "White Man's Burden." The fellow was fat and even more impervious to snubs than usual, as he had been drinking heavily. Judge Freeman tried to escape him, but as the Burden had him clasped by the lapel of his coat it was impossible to get away at once without knocking him down. So the judge stood the repetition of an ancient story as well as he could, waiting only for the loosening of the grip on his coat, which came with the roar of laughter the Burden emitted at the end of his yarn.

The judge turned to rejoin David, but found him gone. He started at once in terrified pursuit.

David meanwhile had fled to his own house, where he watched on the outside, eavesdropping on his own property. Presently he saw Lois silhouetted against the light in her own room. She was taking off her hat and coat. The poor young man felt calmed of his fears. She was home. She was taking off her things and she was alone. It was bitter cold in the street, so he returned to his club in chastened mood, calling himself names and glad that he owed Lois an apology. He did not quite dare to face her with it just yet. He would watch her another day.

David had seen Lois divest herself of hat and coat, but had been too easily reassured, for she exchanged them for a fur hat and coat, in the pocket of which she had slipped Freneau's letters.

Judge Freeman, arriving fifteen minutes after David had gone, rang the bell and was admitted by Lois' butler, who told him that she had left the house on foot a few moments before. The butler did not know where she had gone or when she would return. The judge dashed off, leaving the butler to shake his head over the scandalous proceedings of his household.

Gideon Trask, the bargeman, had infinite patience in pursuit of his revenge, but so far he had been unrewarded. Unable to run down Freneau elsewhere, he picked on the Pierpont Stafford home as the most likely and also the most fitting place to accost him. It was there that he had first seen Freneau in New York. He stood by the iron-barred gate, watching, until a policeman drove him away. Then he crossed Riverside drive to the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument and resumed a more distant watch over the house.

Freneau was indeed there; he had come to bid Gloria good-by. He told her he was leaving on a midnight train.

Gloria was reclining on the chaise longue, exquisitely attired in an ivory-colored lace peignoir, the bands of white swansdown which trimmed it no whiter than her own fair skin. Her beautiful hair, drawn lightly into a knot at the top of her little head, made her look more like a child playing at being grown-up than she had a right to look with all her twenty-one years.

Freneau had paused a moment at the door when he entered to enjoy the charm of her, then he crossed to her side with all a lover's eagerness. Her eyes beamed on him with tenderness as she welcomed him and gave him her lips.

"How much do you love me?" she queried, measuring an infinitesimal space with her tiny hands, "that much?" then, stretching her two arms wide and purring forth her musical laugh—"or that much?"

Freneau came within the circle of her arms and, holding her to him, exclaimed: "The width of the whole world is not big enough to measure my love for you." And he meant it.

Releasing her tenderly to her pillows on the couch, he continued: "I've had such a wonderful day on the market, Gloria. I cleared up a pile. By Jove, it was thrilling. If I can only keep this up you won't have to be ashamed of your poor husband. And, thank God, I shall have you to work for. Just see what I've brought my little mascot with the first spoils of war." He tossed a leather case into her lap.

Opening two shrinelike doors, Gloria gurgled in delight at the string of pearls within. She made him clasp them about her throat. Then she leaned forward to thank him with a kiss; she saw the corner of a large sealed envelope in his inner pocket.

"What's this? More business, or love letters?"

A dull mottled red began to surge up Freneau's face. She spoke so much truer than she knew. It was the packet of letters he was taking to Lois. He had pocketed them to make sure that he should not leave them behind.

"Just business documents connected with my trip," he said, as naturally as he could. Gloria accepted the explanation in perfect faith. It did not occur to her to suspect him of any deceit. She put the envelope back in his pocket, making a little gesture of disgust: "Ugh! I hate your old business! How long must you be away?"

"One whole week, dearest little love," he murmured brokenly. "I'm afraid it will never pass for me, but take good care of your precious self, and get those wonderful roses back in your cheeks. I will write and telegraph you every day."

Then his face darkened and he hung his head before her as he added: "I can't give you any address to write to me, as I shall be jumping about so, but I'll telephone you."

When the hour grew late and the nurse began to frown he told her he must leave. She stood up sadly and they clung together for a last embrace.

Freneau went to his rooms in a new mood. Gloria's trust had touched him more than Royce's threats. He was furious at himself and at Lois. He started to the telephone to call her up and tell her to do her worst, he would not go away with her. As he was about to take the receiver off the hook he looked at his watch. It was too late; she would have started for their trysting place by now. He caught a glimpse of himself in a mirror and loathed the face he saw. He vowed that he would redeem his soul. He would begin at once. He would meet Lois at the pavilion and tell her that he would carry no further the chains of intrigue.

On his way to the little classic stone pavilion near the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, where Lois had agreed to meet him, his car broke down. He took that as a further reason for not making the journey. He left the chauffeur to correct the trouble and went ahead on foot.

Gloria had retired after Freneau left her, but lay tossing about on her pillows unable to sleep. The moon was pouring white glamour in her window. The night nurse, sitting upright by her bed, was sleeping soundly. She had won Morpheus because she was spurning him instead of courting him. Gloria determined to try the same method herself.

Doctor Royce, who seemed to think of everything, had, during her illness, made her a present of a pair of binoculars. She had been able to while away many tedious hours with them watching the traffic on the drive and boats on the river.

Now she slipped into a negligee and slippers quietly, not to disturb her sleeping sentinel. She took up the binoculars and moved to the window. The moon cast such a glow on the river that she drew in deep breaths of delight. The columns of the monument stood in the foreground like marble trees clustered about a little temple.

Suddenly her attention was caught by the curious behavior of a man who seemed to be skulking about the monument. He had his hat pulled down and his overcoat collar pulled up and she could not see his face. He was apparently waiting for someone. She saw him take from his pocket something that looked to her like a revolver. Gloria was greatly excited. Before she could decide what to do the skulker walked away. She saw another man come around the column and crouch down for a moment.

She put up the glasses to see more clearly. The figure moved forward beneath a street lamp and Gloria could see distinctly a wild and bearded face. A shudder went through her; unconsciously she drew her robe closer about her.

Turning her glasses down the drive, she saw a third man approaching. He looked vaguely familiar. Coming closer, he stopped to light a cigar. It was Freneau!

She realized it with astonishment. She wondered if he had missed his train. He saw that she looked out of her window. Before she could wave to him a figure sprang from the shadows and leaped upon Freneau, long hands clutching his throat.

Gloria tried to cry out. She could not make a sound. Subconsciously her hands kept their grip on the binoculars and held them to her eyes that she might see the whole of the tragic spectacle.

The struggle that ensued seemed impossibly unreal. Surely she was in some hideous nightmare. But the fight went on. No policeman arrived to interfere. Then suddenly it was over. She saw Freneau's limp body fall to the ground, saw his enemy raise his hands toward the sky and then hurry away.

And still Gloria could not give vent to her terror, she could only watch helplessly. Now the first man she had seen came back along the drive, saw Freneau's body, knelt down quickly, and listened to his heart. Gloria was sure that he would help her lover. She continued to gaze, though her strength was ebbing away.

Instead of rendering aid, the shadowy figure began to ransack Freneau's pockets. He found the envelope of letters and put them in his own pocket. Then, startled by the approach of a third man, he also vanished.

The third man came on openly. Gloria felt sure that she would either waken from her nightmare or that aid was at hand. She used all her will to control her reeling senses.

The newcomer did not even see Freneau till he stumbled over the prostrate form. He knelt down by it, seemed to be aghast at recognition. Then he, too, began to search through Freneau's pockets. Then Gloria screamed. Shriek after shriek burst through the silence of the Stafford home.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE OF FILING REPORT IN CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

State of Minnesota,
County of Pennington,
District Court, 14th Judicial District.

In the mater of the petition of the Minnesota Northwestern Electric Railway Company, to condemn certain real estate, easements, rights and interests in the City of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, for the uses and purposes of a right of way for said company.

To:

The Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company, a corporation, The Minnesota Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, a religious corporation, H. B. Hanson, Peter Eberhardt, Emil Eberhardt, Gilbert K. Temanson, C. M. Buoen, Clara Buoen, Geo. G. Boe, John R. Bane, John P. Hagen, Ingri Hagen, George Wagner, Farmers State Bank of Holt, Minnesota:

YOU, AND EACH OF YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That the undersigned, Commissioners appointed by the above named Court by its Order, bearing date the 31st day of August, A. D. 1916, to ascertain and determine the amount to be paid by the said Minnesota Northwestern Electric Railway Company to the owner or owners respectively, and to all tenants, encumbrancers and others interested in the taking or injuriously affecting the land, property, and estate described in the Petition in the above entitled matter, and the maps and plats accompanying the same, and the several parts and parcels thereof proposed to be appropriated, taken and used by the said railway company for the purposes in said Petition set forth, as compensation for his, her or their damages by reason of the taking or injuriously affecting any and all lands, property, estates or interests in the lands and real estate described in said Petition, did meet as required by said Order appointing Commissioners and, in pursuance of said Order Appointing Commissioners, did assess, ascertain, determine, appraise and award to the several owners of, encumbrancers and other persons interested in said land, property, estates, rights and interests proposed to be taken or injuriously affected, the amount of damages arising to them respectively from the taking or injuriously affecting said lands, property, estates or interests for the purpose of said enterprise, as described in said Petition in said matter, as follows, to-wit:

1. That the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company, a corporation, is the owner of the land abutting upon the West side of said Davis Avenue, extending from said Third Street North, to the City limits, and having filed a written waiver of all damages by reason of the appropriation of said West fifteen feet of Davis Avenue for the purposes specified in the Petition herein to all that portion of the said Right of Way of said Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company, no damages are found and none awarded.
2. That the Minnesota Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, (a religious corporation), is the owner of Record, subject to a contract of sale with H. B. Hanson of Lot 4, in Block 11 of Meehan's Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, and having filed a written waiver of all damages by reason of the taking of said fifteen feet of Davis Avenue for the purposes set forth in the Petition, no damages are awarded to said property, and no damages to said property are found.
3. That Peter Eberhardt and Emil Eberhardt are the owners of lots 1, 2 and 3 in Block 11 of Meehan's Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, and that they having filed a written waiver of damages, no damages are found to said property, and no damages are awarded.
4. To Geo. G. Johnson, the owner of Lot 7 in Block 8 of Meehan's Addition to the City of Thief River Falls and the Working Men's Building and Loan Association of Crookston, an encumbrancer by mortgage upon said lot, no damages are allowed for the reason that said parties have filed a written waiver of all damages.
5. To Gilbert K. Temanson, the owner of the west half of Lots 5 and 6 in Block 8 of Meehan's Addition to the City of Thief River Falls, for all damages sustained by reason of the taking and appropriating of the strip, piece or parcel of land above described, the sum of one dollar ($1.00), and to C. Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

WHEREAS default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage, made, executed, and delivered by the Kratka Co-Operative Creamery Association, a corporation of the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to the Peoples State Bank of Thief River Falls, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Minnesota, upon and covering the following described real estate situated in the county of Pennington, State of Minnesota, to-wit:

Commencing at a point on North bank of the Red Lake river at an iron monument, said point being seven hundred thirty eight (738) feet and three (3) inches North, 82 degrees east from a ten (10) inch oak bearing tree; said bearing tree according to U. S. Survey is a witness to a quarter post between Sections Twenty-one (21) and Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three, (153), north of Range Forty-one (41), West, thence two hundred fifty-three (253) feet due north to Iron monument, thence due east two hundred sixty-four (264) feet, thence due south one hundred sixty-five (165) feet to the north bank of the Red Lake river, said point being marked by a large live oak tree, thence following along north bank of the Red Lake river in a southwesterly direction to the point of beginning. Said tract of land containing one and four-tenths (01.4) acres, all of which is in Lot Eleven, (11), Section Twenty-two (22), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), Range Forty-one (41) West.

And which said mortgage bears date, the twelfth (12) day of June, A.D. 1913, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county on the twenty-third (23) day of June, A. D. 1913 at 4 o'clock p.m., in Book 7 of Mortgages on Page 257, and which said mortgage, together with the debts secured thereby, was, by an instrument in writing dated on the 25th day of August, 1916, duly assigned to Archibald B. Kent and which said assignment was duly filed for record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said Pennington county of the State of Minnesota, on the 23rd day of August, 1916, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. and recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages on page 193 and that said Archibald B. Kent is now the owner and holder of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby, and

WHEREAS, the said default consists in the failure of the said mortgagor to pay the sum of seven hundred ($700) dollars according to the conditions of a certain promissory note secured by said mortgage bearing date the 12th day of June, 1913, and due and payable on the 12th day of June, 1916, with interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum thereon until paid, and

WHEREAS, there is due and claimed to be due upon the said note and mortgage at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of eight hundred fourteen and forty-four one-hundredths ($814.44) Dollars, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to the power of sale in said mortgage contained and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the real property therein described will be sold at Public Auction to highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of said Pennington County, State of Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Thief River Falls, in said Pennington county on Friday, the 13th day of October, 1916, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to pay the amount which shall then be due upon the said mortgage and the cost of foreclosure thereof, including the sum of fifty ($50.00) dollars, attorney's fees, as provided by Statute, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale.

Fourteenth Judicial District.

In the Matter of the Establishment of a Judicial Road under the provisions of Sections 24 to 29, both inclusive, of Chapter 235 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1913.

PETITION.

We, the undersigned, legal voters and taxpayers resident in the counties of Polk and Pennington hereinafter named, do hereby petition the above named court to locate and establish a public highway under the provisions of Sections 24 to 29, both inclusive, of Chapter 235 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1913, along and upon the following route, to-wit:

Commencing at a point where the Judicial road heretofore established and known as the Pembina Trail Judicial Road intersects the north line of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section 20 in the Township of Polk Center (152 North of Range 45 West) in said Pennington County; running thence in a northwesterly direction upon and along the gravel ridge upon which said intersection lies, and following as near as practicable the main traveled road as it now exists upon said gravel ridge, and which is known as the Pembina Trail upon said ridge, through the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said Section 20, through Sections 19 and 18 in said Township of Polk Center, and through Sections 13, 12 and 1 in the Township of Belgian (153 North of Range 46 West) in the County of Polk in said State, thence through Sections 31, 30, 19 and 20, 17, 8 and 5 in the Township of Bray (153 North of Range 45 West) in Pennington County, thence in a northerly direction through Sections 32, 33, 28 and 29, 21 and 20, 16 and 17 in the township of Numedal, Pennington county to the point where said old Pembina trail on said ridge intersects the north line of sections 16 or 17, or if the public interests is best observed that said road be terminated where it crosses the North line of Section 28 or Section 29, and your petitioners further pray that if in the judgment of the commissioners appointed by the Court in these proceedings, the public interests will be best observed thereby, that said commissioners be authorized to change the starting point, the terminus or the route of said public highway.

And your petitioners further represent that the establishment of said public highway is a public necessity and is entirely without the corporate limits of any City or Village.

THEREFORE, Your petitioners pray that the above named Court and that the Honorable Andrew Grindeland, judge thereof, appoint three commissioners in conformity with the provisions of said section 24 of Chapter 235 of the Laws of 1913, and that such commissioners meet at such times and places as may be necessary and immediately proceed to lay out, locate and establish the road hereinbefore described and that said commissioners be authorized and directed by the Court and the said judge thereof to appoint a surveyor, ax-man and chainman for the purpose of surveying said road, and that said commissioners and surveyors be authorized to deviate from the course herein described wherever the public interest may best be sub-served by such deviation;

Your petitioners further pray that this petition be presented to the Court above named and to the Honorable Andrew Grindeland, judge of said Court, on the 27th day of November, 1916, at the chambers of said judge at the court house in the City of Warren, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of said day and that the clerk of said court give three weeks' published and posted notice of the presentation of such petition in each of the counties affected at least thirty (30) days in advance of such a presentation and that such clerk cause such notice to be served in the same manner as the service of a summons in a civil action upon each county and organized township in which or along the boundary of which said proposed road is sought to be established, and have proof of such service of such notice on said counties and said townships filed in the office of said Clerk prior to the day of said hearing; and that all further proceedings herein be had in conformance with said Chapter 235 of the Laws of 1913.

Quality First

After Nov. 30, it will cost you just $70 more to buy a 7-22 Chalmers. But the price on the 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers remains (for the time being) $1090 Detroit

Until midnight of Nov. 30 you can get a 7-22 Chalmers for $1280 Detroit—a car of rare ability, fascinating in body equipment, and, like a beautiful woman, of exquisite charm.

After that date the price becomes $1350 Detroit—$70 more. The $70 is just a few dollars less than the increase in cost of manufacture of this car since its appearance in June.

To those who have longed for the 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers—and have not yet possessed one, just a word of warning: the price remains unchanged just now—$1090 Detroit; we do not know how long this low price will continue. We reserve the right to increase the price without notice.

Only those who are buying materials such as go into high-grade automobiles can begin to realize the steady, upward trend of the materials market.

Just one condition today prevents a rise in price of the 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers—the fact that these cars are being made on a factory "work order" dating back several months.

Since the "work order" went through materials have jumped in cost again. When the current "work order" is completed and if materials remain at their present level or rise higher, only one course will be possible, an increased price.

Those who have been driving Chalmers cars know how diligent has been the Chalmers effort to set down cars of the quality kind.

They will understand how impossible it would be for Chalmers to dodge the increase-in-materials issue and maintain the prevailing price on the 7-22 Chalmers.

Lower the quality of the Chalmers car? Never. The Chalmers men take great pride, not only in the money the car makes for them, but in the car itself. And pride, as everyone knows, is a thing that can never be compromised.

As long as there's a name "Chalmers", there will be a quality car, and as long as there's a quality car there'll be a price fixed—not by the Sales Department—but by cost accountants.

And there'll be a fair deal. Chalmers says these two 3400 r. p. m. models will be continued into next season. You can bank on that. So that a Chalmers car you might buy now will be exactly like the one you would buy next spring.

Remember the $70 you can save now by anticipating the rise in price. There's an old Scotch proverb that says "A dollar saved is a dollar earned". $70 buys a good suit of clothes, a good pair of shoes, a good hat and some good gloves. Also it just about pays your dues at the club for a year.

Or, if it's a 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers you want, our advice is to get one now.

We are not sure the price is going up and we are not sure that it isn't.

STOCK REDUCING SALE

Too Heavy Fall and Winter Buying Now Calls for a Reaction.

Never in the history of Merchandising does a merchant like to lose money—but it is not always that a merchant can follow his own best interest, but must submit to the inevitable. Everybody knows the leading reliable clothing house of Lieberman Brothers of Thief River Falls, for years the recognized high class merchandise dealers, whose word is always as good as a bond. But all humans err—and we are but human. Too heavy Fall and Winter buying now calls for a reaction, and our immense stock must be reduced, regardless of prices. Stocks will be arranged, marked down and ready for the opening crowds

Saturday, October 14, 1916

Be on hand and reap the benefits. This is no ordinary affair, but a sacrifice of high grade, seasonable merchandise. You cannot afford to miss any of these bargains during this sale. The stock must be reduced and the temptingly low prices will sell the goods. You will be the gainers. You will do your neighbors a favor by telling them to be on hand Saturday, this week. Remember the prices quoted here are but a few of the thousands of great bargains.

ALL ARE READY FOR A BIG DAY

Tomorrow Will See Farmers From Every Nearby Section in Town After Bargains.

DINNER HOUR EXTENDED

Provisions Made For Serving Meal Until 2:30 O'clock and There Will be No Shortage—Where to Get Your Tickets

Preparations for the handling of an extra large crowd on Market Day—tomorrow—are under way by the Commercial club, for the inquries that have been made by the merchants and farmers indicate that the number of people coming to this city will be larger than last month.

The Best So Far

The spirit of co-operation among the merchants is much more prevalent this month for they fully realize what it means to Thief River Falls to entertain right royally those who come to the city on the various occasions that hold forth inducements for trading here. The Commercial club has been so successful in the past with these undertakings that now everyone is willing to get back of the load and do their share of pushing ahead the wheels of progress.

LaBree on The Job

Jesse La Bree will be right on hand to dispose of the various articles that are brought in on Friday, and that they will bring top prices goes without saying. The reputation of this noted auctioneer has spread far and wide, and each time there is an auction with which his name is connected, the public may rest assured that everyone gets a fair shake.

Stocks Are Ready

The merchants have been more than busy the past few days arranging their stocks, and bargains of every description are to be found in nearly every store of the city. The following stores last week advertised various bargains that should make it an object for outsiders to come at least fifty miles on account of the savings that they can take advantage of.

Mulry's Bazaar, Laing Hardware company, Spink Hardware Co., Anton Langseth, Wallace Watson, L. Gill, (successor to Korstad Bros). Thief River Produce company, Hanson & Barzen Milling company, Mac's Sweet Shop, Cronstrom Grocery, Theo. Salverson, E. O. Mogensen, M. Giller, Loken Bros., Sapero company, Oen Mercantile company, Jung Brothers, F. C. Niclai, Nielsen Meat Market, L. DeCremer Meat Market, J. P. Curtis, Roy Lambert, Princess theatre, Lyceum theatre, Mrs. B. E. Dalquist, Peter Neste, Thief River Grocery company, The News-Press, The Times, The New Fair Store.

Free Eats For All

A Free Dinner is offered by these various merchants and arrangements have been completed at the Commercial club rooms to feed twice as many as last time. The dining room will be open for business at half past eleven and will be kept open till three if it is necessary, for it is desired that no one go away without dinner this time.

ROAD TO LAKES IS AIM OF BOOSTERS

Commercial Clubs Along Route Will Ask Congressional Aid in Building Highway

Representatives of cities and villages in Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater counties met at Red Lake Falls last week for the purpose of taking the first steps toward securing a better highway to the Red Lake Indian Agency. Besides Red Lake Falls, the following places were represented: Trail, Gonvick, Clearbrook, St. Hilaire, and Thief River Falls. An organization was formed comprising the commercial clubs of the cities and villages named, of which P. B. Gaas, of Red Lake Falls, was elected president, and V. M. Higginbottom of the same city, secretary.

To Ask Congressional Aid

It was decided to have all commercial clubs interested in the matter write to the Minnesota senators and representatives requesting them to use their efforts in securing an appropriation for the building of that part of the road which crosses the reservation.

The distance from Windsor, which is the nearest point on the Jefferson highway, to the lake is about 20 miles, it being nine miles farther to the agency at Red Lake postoffice. The road running to the reservation line is in good shape for the greater part of the distance. It is the understood that the Indians are anxious and willing that the road shall be built across their reservation and that favorable action by congress would meet with no opposition from them.

Want Highlanding Bridge

George C. Johnson, W. J. LaBree, John Bratrud and J. H. McKinney, the Thief River Falls delegates at the meeting, said upon their return that the road from Windsor eastward was the only one considered. There had been some talk of adopting the state road past Goodridge in Pennington county as the most feasible, but as the other delegates seemed to favor the Windsor route the matter was not brought up.

In connection with this project it is certain that the Thief River Falls Commercial club will take some steps to have a bridge built across to the direct reservation road, by way of Rhoda, and Deer Park.

Some Potato Pickers

There are three very good little potato pickers in Thief River Falls. They are Charles Warner, age 13, Helen Warner, 12, and Genell Warner, 10, all three being the children of Mr. and Mrs. William Warner. Saturday they were employed on the M. C. Burns farm, northwest of the city, and made a record for themselves as pickers of spuds. When the day closed 166 bushels were credited to the youngsters.

GOVERNMENT HELP ASKED FOR DITCH

About Seven Miles Between Star Township and Reservation Would Help Indians

The federal government will be asked to aid in the construction of seven miles of ditch along the division line between Pennington county and the Red Lake Indian reservation. This ditch would follow the eastern edge of Star township for a distance of seven miles and would cost in the neighborhood of $9,000.

County Auditor T. P. Anderson has written Indian Agent W. F. Dickens concerning the matter and asked him to take some steps to bring the project to the attention of the interior department. The construction of this ditch would mean the drainage of a large area of lands on the reservation and the Indians are fully as much interested as are the people residing farther west. The ditch, if constructed, will empty into Ditch No. 43.

Will Haul Gravel Themselves

A committee of farmers from east of the city presented a petition for having the old reservation line road improved. They proposed that the townships of North and Rocksbury and the county of Pennington each appropriate $200 for the purpose of grading, pledging themselves to haul the gravel for surfacing free of charge.

The district engineer was requested to make an estimate of the cost for the repair of ditch No. 21. The commissioners have also inspected ditch No. 64 and found the same to be in good order.

ANOTHER BURGLAR MAKES SMALL HAUL

Enters Back Window of Minnesota Candy Kitchen and Steals Money and Cigars

George Christo, proprietor of the Minnesota Candy Kitchen, is out five or six dollars in cash, a couple of boxes of cigars and some candy because he did not have his back window securely fastened.

A burglar broke into the place after one o'clock on Sunday night, gaining entrance through a rear window. A broken pane of glass made it an easy matter for him to reach his arm through and remove the stick used for holding down the bottom sash. After this his work was a snap. The door between the rear room and store is never locked and he simply went in and helped himself. There was five or six dollars in change in the till and this he took possession of, together with some high priced cigars and a couple of pounds of the best candy in the place. Mr. Christo says that he is out probably $15 because of the visit.

This is the second theft of this kind within a short time. About ten days ago the shoe shining parlor of William Dres was entered and all the jewelry on the punch boards in the place stolen. The police have certain parties under suspicion, but as yet have no positive proof against them.

CATHOLIC FAIR TO BE HELD DEC. 5-6-7

Preparations are already under way for the big fair and fancy goods sale which is annually given under the patronage of the ladies of the church. Mrs. Daniel Shaw has been chosen as general director and has appointed the following ladies from different sections of the city as her aids:

East Side—Mrs. Frank Protz; North Side—Mrs J. J. Richter, South Side—Mrs. M. A. Schmitt.

The supper for each of the three days will be served by different squads. On Tuesday evening, the first day of the fair, the East Side ladies serve a New England supper; a chicken repast will be forthcoming under the auspices of the ladies from the North side on Wednesof the series the South side ladies will be hostesses at a German supper.

There will be booths, candy stands, fancy goods counters and all the other accessories necessary to the successful prosecution of an affair of this kind.

FAVOR ONE STORY SCHOOL BUILDING

Board, However, Will Also Request Architects to Submit Plans For Two Story Structure

MUST BE IN BY NOVEMBER 6

Ground Floor and Basement Plan is Gaining in Favor All Over the Country Because of Convenience and Saving in Cost

Architects will be asked to submit plans for one and two story school buildings to be ready for consideration by the board at the regular meeting on Monday, Nov. 6. This was the decision reached at a special meeting held in the office of Clerk C. A. Pitkin on Monday evening.

Will Consider Both

The usual two-story style of school house was not entirely abandoned but the board was of unanimous opinion that the single floor and basement structure possesses advantages that are worth giving the most weighty consideration. A communication from A. S. Payson of the firm of Owen & Payson, Kansas City, called the attention of the board to the school house recently erected under their supervision at Great Bend, Kansas. This building is an eight room affair, with a basement sufficiently high to meet the requirements of the state board as to class rooms. The cost of the building was $29,250, which is somewhat less than the board expected to pay for the new structure here.

Has Many Advantages

In describing this style of school construction, Mr. Payson states that it has many advantages, chief of which is the entire elimination of the usual second story. There are eight rooms on the first floor and the basement can be built of a sufficient height to provide at least three more, besides leaving space for the heating plant and lavatories.

A newspaper writeup of the Great Bend school accompanied Mr. Payson's letter, which gives the following general idea of the structure:

"The building is what is known as the ground floor plan, with eight rooms in the first floor. There will be a basement under the building and no second story. The rooms are arranged in a rectangle with a court roofed over, as is the rest of the building makinga large assemblyroom The eight class rooms are ideal and will contain all modern accessories. In the basement there will be three rooms, which, if needed, can be used for class rooms."

Modern and Beautiful

"From the standpoint of the educator this building is most modern and while there are a few similar structures in the country, it is a pioneer and of a design that will soon be adopted whereever new schools are built for the smaller students.

"From an architectural standpoint the community has been given a building that will be an ornament to the town and one of the most attractive in the country."

Suited to Topography

Superintendent J. H. Hay said that he believed a building of this kind was particularly suited to landscapes with a tendency to flatness. The taller, two story structures would seem more in place among generally rugged surroundings, and while this could not perhaps be urged as an argument against them, it should be taken into consideration, particularly when another type of architecture is available and even to be preferred for other reasons.

Architects Will Compete

Clerk Pitkin has sent the notices out to the architects in different parts of the state and a notice of the requirements of the board will also be published in a journal circulating among men of this profession, so it is expected that a number of plans will be received.

Material to be Used

The instructions will call for an eight room and basement building, constructed of cement, brick and terra cotta, with Bedford stone trimmings.

BOARD TO LET GENERAL CONTRACT OCTOBER 27

Bids For Erection of Tri-County Sanatarium Building Considered on That Date

Bids for the construction of the sanitarium building to be erected at Thief River Falls for the counties of Pennington, Marshall and Roseau will be opened on October 26. Because of the lateness of the season it is not likely that any actual building operations will be commenced upon the awarding of the job, but it is the intention to get everything in readiness for an early start in the spring.

The building will be placed on the highest point of the site selected in Rocksbury township a short distance south of the city. It is an ideal location and the selection has been commended by the officers of the state board of control. The completed building will cost $35,000 and will be one of the most modern institutions of its kind in the state.

COUNTY BANKERS ANNUAL BANQUET

All Banking Houses Are Represented at Meeting and Active Organization Formed

WILL HELP BUY CATTLE

Opinion is Unanimous That Dairying and Cattle-Raising Should Receive Every Encouragement—Officers Elected For Year.

The organization meeting and first yearly banquet of the Pennington County Bankers association was held at the Hotel Brumund in this city on Tuesday evening. The ten banking houses of the county were all represented, eighteen officials sitting down to the banquet.

Will Encourage Cows.

As this gathering was simply intended as a get-together meeting, no set addresses were made, the discussion being informal throughout. Crop conditions and the general outlook for the coming year were gone over and the conclusion reached that matters are in very good shape throughout the entire section and that Pennington county is fully as favorably situated as its neighbors.

The banking heads present went on record as favoring the helping of farmers in the securing of cattle. The opinion was unanimous that the growth and prosperity of this section of the state is dependent upon the maintenance of a greater number of cattle on the farms and the devoting of a greater share of time on the part of the farmer to beef or cream. The bankers pledged themselves to aid people wishing to engage in this business to any reasonable extent and will work with them in every possible way to bring the undertaking to a success.

Will Prove Wise Move.

This action on the part of the bankers should prove the biggest development factor noted in the county for many years. It means that they will stand back of any move toward better farming, when this is pursued inteligently. They realize that the period of the single grain crop is at an end as far as Northwestern Minnesota is concerned and that farmers must devote their energies toward securing a larger and more certain return from their acres. The steadily increasing price of farm lands makes the single crop a losing proposition even in the years when large yields are obtained, while in the lean seasons the result often spells disaster for the farmer and consequent loss to the banks.

The Officers Elected.

This county organization is affiliated with the Ninth District group of the Minnesota Bankers association, and through this affiliation becomes a unit in that organization.

After the close of the banquet the regular election of officers was held, the following being chosen: President, T. L. Melgaard, Citizens State bank, vice president, George G. Johnson, First State bank; secretary-treasurer, W. W. Prichard, Jr., First National bank, all of Thief River Falls.

Following are the names of those present, together with the banks represented: C. L. Hansen, W. W. Prichard, Jr., Willis Akre, H. L. Anderson, A. F. LaBudde, First National; T. L. Melgaard, C. W. Vorachek, Ed. Brevik, Citizens State; H. S. Dahlen, Oscar Sponheim, Peoples State; George G. Johnson, Ole Granum, H. W. Miller, First State, all of Thief River Falls; H. S. Dahlen, Farmers State, St. Hilaire; B. E. Burkee and son, Merchants State, St. Hilaire; E. Karwand, Citizens, Hazel; T. H. Smith, Farmers State, Mavie; Nick Bundhund, Farmers State, Goodridge; J. S. Jensen, Goodridge State. Besides these Secretary G. H. Rickards of the State Bankers organization, was present as a guest of the association.

Democrats Have Good Meeting

The Democrats thus far have shown the most energy during the present campaign. The first meeting in the country districts by the adherents of the party was held at Erie last Saturday evening. There were between fify and sixty men present who listened to vry good addresses by E. M. Stanton, and County Attorney Hans O. Kjomme.

Reports are to the effect that both speakers put up a good talk. The same gentlemen will be heard at the Brunkeberg school house next Saturday.

FINDS WELL WATER OF GOOD QUALITY

Iron Content in Second Well Causes Some Discoloration But is Not Injurious

J. A. Childs, sanitary engineer connected with the state board of health, was in the city on Friday for the purpose of taking samples of the water at the new well on the Lincoln high school grounds.

In speaking of the water recently sent to the University chemists from the city wells for analysis, he said that the sample taken from the first well— that at Duluth avenue and First street—was of fine quality in every way and contained no objectionable matter. The iron content was only one per cent, and this is very small for this section.

The water taken from the well at the power house, however, contained about three per cent iron, and this is high. It does not in the least effect the healthfulness of the water, but it gives it a reddish color which is objectionable. Mr. Childs said that water containing this high percentage of iron would have a tendency to leave a reddish tinge when used for washing fine fabrics, but that this was practically the only objection to be placed against it.

This difficulty is overcome in places where a like trouble exists, said Mr. Childs, by the construction of ripples over which the water is allowed to trickle before going into the reservoir. This aeration releases the gases holding the iron in solution and the mineral precipitates and gathers on the bottom. There are no plants for treating water in this manner in the state of Minnesota, but in numerous places in the east the scheme is resorted to. The cost of installation is not very great.

The water sampled is of fair degree of softness, tastes well and is clear when the iron is not present.

REQUEST CALL FOR SPECIAL SESSION

Commercial Club Wants Governor to Give the Soldiers on the Border a Chance to Vote

The Thief River Falls Commercial club, in common with nearly all similar bodies in the state, has passed resolutions asking Gov. Burnquist to call a special session of the legislature for the purpose of providing means for permitting the soldiers of the state now in camp to cast their votes. At a special meeting held yesterday morning the following resolutions were accepted and telegraphed to the governor:

"Whereas, there is now gathered on the southern border of the United States militiamen from the various parts of this great and glorious state of Minnesota, and,

"Whereas these men, under existing laws of the state of Minnesota, are deprived of their right to vote at the forthcoming election, and,

"Whereas there is a sentiment abroad throughout the state that a special session of the legislature be called by Governor J. A. A. Burnquist to enfranchise the Minnesota soldiers now on the Texas border, therefore,

"Be it resolved that the Commercial club of Thief River Falls go on record as favoring a special session of the legislature for the purpose above set forth, and,

"Be it further resolved that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the governor of this state, and also that they be spread upon the miuntes of the club."

The resolutions were passed unanimously, signed by President Johnson and Secretary Laird and sent to the commercial clubs of the Twin Cities.

MAY BRING BUTTER EXHIBITS UP HERE

Some of the Samples at the National Buttermakers' Convention May Be Shown

Special interest attaches to the forthcoming Thirteenth annual convention of the Red River Valley Dairyman's association, Wednesday and Thursday Dec. 6 and 7, because of the nineteenth annual convention of the National Buttermakers' association which will be held at Minneapolis, Nov. 14-16, at which time a silken banner representing the state dairy championship, $3,000 in cash premiums and several hundred dollars worth of merchandise prizes will be awarded.

At the last convention at Mason City, Iowa, Minnesota won first place and the state banner from twenty-three other states, with an average of 95.55. Wisconsin and Iowa are expected to be leading contenders for the state prize this year.

There are a large number of butter makers in this part of the state and no doubt several of them will have exhibits at the convention at Minneapolis and are likely to carry off some glory in the way of high scores.

It will only be three weeks after the Minneapolis convention till the one held here and efforts will be made by Commercial club members and dairymen in charge of the local convention to have some of the fine exhibits at Minneapolis brought to this city, to be used in conjunction with the exhibit of buttermakers at the dairymen's stock show.

Last year at Fergus Falls there was a special prize offered to the creamery that had the largest number of its patrons attending the convention, the local creamery there being barred. Similar plans are being talked of here and it is believed that the record of eighty patrons established can be easily beaten here.

TRAINS WILL RUN TO THIRD STREET

First Train on Electric Line Since November, 1915, Will Run Up-Town Today.

JUDGMENT IS MODIFIED

Court Holds That Railway Company is Entitled to Use of West Fifteen Feet of Davis Avenue Granted by Franchise

For the first time since November, 1915, the trains of the Minnesota Northwestern Electric Line will run to the original terminus of the road at the Soo depot on Third street this afternoon.

At the time above mentioned a perpetual injunction was issued against the company at the request of George Larson, representing a number of property owners living along Davis avenue between Third and Eighth streets. The case was heard in district court and carried to the supreme court by the company, where the judgment in favor of the complainants was sustained. The trains thereafter were forced to stop at Eighth street. This has proven inconvenient and the company has been untiring in its efforts to have the injunction modified.

Franchise Granted

About two months ago the city of Thief River Falls sold to the company a franchise permitting the use of the west side of Davis avenue for the laying of tracks. Suit was brought to prevent this, but Judge Grindeland held that the city was within its rights in granting the franchise. Commissioners were appointed to appraise the damage to the abutting property. These a short time ago filed their report and the damages assessed were paid by the company. The final order of the court modifying the injunction against running to Third street clears away the last obstacle and the road will hereafter use the Soo depot as its western terminus.

Everybody Pleased

The stopping of the trains at Eighth street has proven a hardship on the people from the eastern end of the county who have been forced to make a long walk up town after leaving the car. The people of the city generally have been on the side of the railway company during the controversy and the outcome is highly satisfactory to them.

WRITES FROM LAND OF THE UKELELE

Arthur Loken is Having a Fine Time Among the Strange Scenes in Hawaii.

While a young snow storm is reminding his old neighbors of what they may shortly expect, Arthur Loken is basking in the perpetual sunshine of the Hawaiian islands. Letters received by relatives here state that he is in a section where the temperature never gets below 65 degrees nor above 85. He has been making a trip of the islands during the past two months, but expects to return to Thief River Falls sometime during the latter part of November.

Mr. Loken states that the merchants in the islands are mostly Chinamen and Japanese. He attended a band concert in the city of Honolulu at which there were over 500 people present, but he and a young lady whom he met on shipboard were the only white persons at the gathering. He has made trips into the mountains, at times climbing to an altitude of six and seven thousand feet. At this height there are lakes containing fish of many different species.

A visit to the largest pineapple plantation in the world is spoken of in the letter, as well as a trip through one of the largest sugar refineries.

GREATEST PHOTO DRAMA OF YEAR AT THE PRINCESS

What is heralded as the greatest photo drama ever filmed is coming to Thief River Falls on November 7 and 8. It is the great problem play: "Where Are My Children?" Perhaps the most widely discussed production ever attempted in this country.

When this picture was shown in New York and Chicago the newspapers devoted as much space to it as to a high society wedding. It was discussed everywhere—from the pulpit and in debating societies. Nothing quite so daring had ever been sprung on the public and there was much speculation as to its effect.

With all this notoriety, however, not even the most carping critic suggested its suppression. The situations are forceful but clean, and there is nothing that any sensible person should object to in the production.

The play has just finished its run in the larger cities and Mr. Seitzler managed to secure it while the interest is at the highest.

A Comprehensive Platform

John A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls, Candidate for the legislature from the district composed of the counties of Pennington, Red Lake and Clearwater, in another column of The Times this week sets forth the platform upon which he will go before the voters. The document is to be commended for its briefness and at the same time for the thorough manner in which it touches upon matters that will be issues when the legislature next meets. The voters of the Sixty-fifth district should read what Mr. Duffy has to say. He offers himself as their servant, and they should make themselves acquainted with his qualifications. The platform, in short, is as follows:

Favors Retaining the present County Option Law.

It has been stated in some quarters that Mr. Duffy's views on this subject were not definite enough to make his attitude certain. He comes out flat footed and tells everyone where he stands. He not only believes in the present law, but has gone farther and stated that he will support any measure having state-wide prohibition for its purpose.

For Stricter Economy.

In common with practically all other residents of the state, Mr. Duffy believes that a halt should be called in unnecessary appropriations. This does not mean that he favors a niggardly policy, but believes that in every direction of government unnecessary expenditures are permitted and these should be cut off. Any proposition looking to a reduction of the tax burden will have Mr. Duffy's unconditional support.

For Fairer Taxation.

Mr. Duffy believes that the present system of assessing taxes is unfair in that it places a penalty on enterprise. If a man improves his property he is immediately assessed for taxes in a ratio corresponding exactly to the value of those improvements. His neighbor, who allows his property to grow up to weeds while holding it for an increase in value, is not taxed to the same extent. Mr. Duffy submits that this is wrong and that the land itself should bear the greater part of the tax burden.

Against Manipulation of Product Prices.

The controlling of farm products by promoters and speculators is something Mr. Duffy would prevent. He therefore favors a free and open market for the sale of these commodities, thus bringing the producer and consumer closer together.

Mr. Duffy is sound upon every one of those subjects, all of which are of the utmost importance to the people of the district. His attitude should appeal alike to the farmer, the business man and the laborer. There is no fault-finding, no accusations—nothing but the plain statement of a business man who understands the needs of the people the would serve.

The South And The Administration

(From the Chicago Trbiune)

Mr. Vance McCormick, Democratic national chairman, confines his latest daily effort to be interesting, at whatever cost of accuracy, to a denial that the south has been especially favored in the division of pork by the Democracy. He makes the error of specifying too precisely and names the good roads grab as a sample of fairness.

Opportunely there arrives the Danville Commercial-News, which has made an analysis of the good roads grab, and is aware that Mr. Wilson is soon to make one of his famous nonpolitical speeches in Indianapolis before a good roads congress. The Danville paper is sure that Mr. Wilson will discuss the good roads bill "with real emotion." Accordingly it presents him with material for his speech, pointing out how the initial $5,000,000 is divided.

"Of this sum Indiana will receive $135,747," says the Commercial-News. "Indiana has a popuation of 2,700,000. Being an enterprising state, her total valuation is $5,194,000,000. Because of her enterprise Indiana has become a shining mark for the Democratic taxgatherer, and last year she paid into the federal treasury—in ordinary internal revenue taxes, in 'emergency' taxes and in corporation and personal income taxes—the not inconsiderable sum of $30,974,000.

"By way of comparison it is interesting to note that the state of Georgia has a population of 2,609,000, almost the same as Indiana's. The valuation of Georgia is, however, only $2,382,000,000, a little less than half of Indiana, because Georgia is not so enterprising by half as Indiana. Georgia is also more niggardly in her contributions to the federal treasury, for in the last year she paid only $1,370,000 to Uncle Sam as against the more than thirty millions paid by Indiana.

"Yet Georgia will get from Mr. Wilson's lavish hand $134,329 of federal road money, or only $1,418 less than Indiana gets. Mr. Wilson and his Democratic congress have mulcted Indiana about thirty times as hard as they did Georgia, yet they have given Georgia practically the same sum from the public roads money."

"It is mentioned that Illinois has double Georgia's population and a valuation seven times as great. It pays fifty times as much to the government and obtains less than twice as much. Ohio has twice Georgia's population and four times its valuation. It pays thirty times as much and in return receives less than twice as much. .

"We think that the president, with his well known felicity of expression, can take these figures and make a mighty interesting speech out of them," continues the genial Commercial-News. "We are sure the people of Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio would be interested in the sermon which Mr. Wilson could preach from his text. We supply this material and we make this suggestion to the president wholly out of the goodness of our hearts."

That Drainage Project

The Minneapolis Journal has fallen for the All-Minnesota Development association pipe dream of draining the Red Lakes southward into the Minnesota river. The reason this should be done, according to the Journal, is that the lack of outlet causes the silt to accumulate in the channel of the stream, thus forming dams which, in turn, cause the water to back up and overflow along the banks. This surplus water is to be diverted, about twenty-five million dollars worth, into the Minnesota river, where it will serve to keep the channel open. In other words, the same water that causes silt to accumulate in the Red Lake river is to be sent down to keep silt out of the Minnesota.

In order to further prove that it does not know what it is talking about the Journal goes on to say: "Hundreds of townships of Government and State land in Northern Minnesota, now inaccessible to settlers, can be made accessible and productive by such a system."

The aforesaid land has already been made accessible and a very large part of it productive without the aid of this scheme. And hundreds of townships make quite a sizeable chunk of land. If there is any such amount of territory lying about up here subject to drainage it should be pointed out. There can't be more than that affected if you count all that has already been drained and which is at present bearing some of the finest crops in the Northwest.

The channel of the Red Lake river needs to be straightened and deepened, and this work the government has already started by making the appropriation for a survey. Controlling works should be built at the outlet of Red Lake, and this is a part of the same project.

The channel of the Minnesota river may need scouring out, but the silt in the Red Lake river cannot be used for the purpose.

A Business Proposition

The state owns 2,000,000 acres of land. In its present state the land produces nothing. It pays no taxes and is not being improved. When it is sold the proceeds will go into the permanent school fund, there to draw interest for the support of the school system; the land itself will go on the tax rolls and the taxable wealth will be increased; the land will be improved and add to the farm production of the state.

Under Amendment No. 1, the state will be empowered to use temporarily $250,000 as a revolving fund partially to improve the remaining state land and make it more attractive to purchasers, the cost of improvements to be added to the appraised minimum price of the land and returned to the state by the purchaser.

The amendment will permit the state to make an investment that promises rich returns, without a chance of loss.

Failure to vote for an amendment is same as a vote against it. Don't fail to vote for Amendment No. 1.

A Saving Hint

Did you ever stop to think that the merchant who advertises must have something special to offer, either in the way of a price inducement or in the quality of the goods handled? The advertiser must back up his offerings with the merchandise or his advertising outlay will, in a very short time, prove a waste of money. Merchants know this and are careful to see that their offerings meet all the claims made for them.

The Wadena Pioneer-Journal last week put this same argument in just a little different language. The paragraph is worth reading:

"Do you want to make a clear saving of $25 to $50 on you expenses between now and the first of next January? You can do it and this is the way you can do it. You will be making many purchases for yourself and your family for fall and winter purposes and for the Christmas time. There is always some merchant in town who will do a little better by you than anybody else. When a merchant is able to do this he is keen to advertise and let the people know just what he can and will do. Your own cue is to read carefully each week the advertisements in this paper. They tell the story and the name of the merchant who makes the story. Read the ads."

◆

Paul Marschalk, candidate for the legislature from Roseau county, has addressed an open letter to the people of his district, urging them to vote for Amendment No. 3 at the coming election. This amendment provides that the money received from the sale of iron on the lands belonging to the state shall constitute a fund to be loaned or invested as is the permanent school fund, the income from such investment to be used in the construction and maintenance of public roads. The state owns the iron ore under the lakes and rivers, and former State Auditor Iverson has estimated that at least one hundred million dollars can be realized from marketing of this ore. The income from this vast sum, if made available for road purposes, would give many of the northern counties the funds necessary to meet the demands for more highways. This amendment should be endorsed by the voters as it will prove an excellent companion to Amendment No. 1.

◆

The setting aside of a part of the profits from one sale for the purpose of making improvements on property from which a much greater profit can be made would look like a good business proposition. That is exactly what is proposed to by Amendment No. 1, to be voted on at the coming election. If this amendment is passed it will simply mean that a revolving fund of $250,000 will be set apart from the funds derived from the sales of state lands and devoted to the improvement of the tracts remaining unsold. The building of roads, construction of fire breaks and draining would be some of the purposes for which this money would be used. This would bring thousands of acres of land now valueless into the market and prove one of the best investments the people of Minnesota ever made. Voters in this section should remember that this is a proposition in which the entire state is interested—not only the people of the northeastern counties.

◆

If Section 2635 of the General Statutes of the State of Minnesota is strictly enforced in Thief River Falls for a short time the lockup will have to be enlarged and the police force doubled. It would seem that very few people have ever heard of this statute, so The Times will give its import, which is as follows: No motor vehicle shall run at a speed greater than ten miles an hour through the closely built portions of any city, and this speed shall shall not exceed fifteen miles in any part of an incorporated village. Further, the law provides that no such vehicle shall be run at a speed greater than twenty-five miles an hour on any road anywhere within the state. Disregarding this law is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars or a jail sentence of not more than ninety days.

CHILDREN'S FAIR HELD SATURDAY

Corn, Potatoes, Calves and Pigs Raised by School Pupils Attract Much Attention

BIG EXHIBIT OF POTATOES

Corn is Also Very Fine, While the Live Stock Shows Good Breeding as Well as Care in Handling and Feeding

The industrial fair held by the boys and girls of the Pennington county schools at the high school on Saturday afternoon proved conclusively that advantage is being taken of the instructions afforded by the agricultural division.

Nearly every township in the county was represented by some kind of an exhibit. These were limited to corn, calves, potatoes, pigs, bread and fancy work, and the number of exhibits showed that much interest had been taken in the matter.

Under Government Auspices

The contest has been conducted under the direction of the department of agriculture at Washington and the agricultural extension division of the university of Minnesota. The Pennington County Fair association appropriated $200 to be divided in prizes, and the work has been carried on under the direction of Prof. T. A. Erickson, state rural school inspector; Supt. J. H. Hay of the Thief River Falls schools and Prof. Henry Werner of the agricultural department of the same schools. The judging was done by Prof. J. A. Donovan of the state agricultural college.

Corn Exhibit Good

Prof. Donovan found the corn display particularly good. Most of the samples were of the "Minnesota 23" variety, but there were also a number of entries of Northwestern Dent and Squaw corn.

Prof. Werner himself brought the first Minnesota 23 corn to this section about five years ago, and the larger part of that exhibited at this fair had been propagated from this seed. It was given to Mr. Werner by one of the instructors at the agricultural college and proved so satisfactory that seed was saved from the succeeding crops, this in turn being distributed throughout the district in the usual way. Nearly all corn of this variety now produced here is from seed that has been thoroughly acclimated.

Prof. Donovan gave the boys an interesting talk on the way in which to grow and judge corn, advising them to exercise great care in the kind of ears saved for seed. He explained that the points in marking for competition were judged as follows: Maturity, 50; shape, 10; luster, 10; depth, 10; tip, 5; butt, 5; straightness, 5; spacing, 5.

Many Potatoes Shown

There were 40 exhibits of potatoes shown, including eight Carmen samples, 12 early Ohios, three splendid showing of Burbanks, and a general display of Rural New Yorkers, Maggie Murphies and Irish Cobblers. Prof. Donovan also told his hearers what to avoid in potato raising. He pointed out that in scoring the item of size counted for less than any other feature, and that it was a mistake to strive for large potatoes. He also showed by some of the samples at hand just under what defects they would be reduced by the judges. The chart of percentages for potato exhibits is as follows: Uniformity, 20 points; freedom from imperfections, 20; Quality, 20; color, 10; shape, 15; size, 10.

Calves and Chickens

There were six calves entered, all showing the result of intelligent care and good ancestry. The chickens shown numbered 13 coops, and some of them were very good. Almost every known strain, both of the egg-producing kind and the table fowl, were shown.

The Girl's Division

This consisted of samples of bread and fancy work. The display was not as large and varied as that in which the boys were interested, but was interesting and very good. The fancy work articles particularly attracted the attention of the ladies present.

WOULD YOU ACCEPT A HALF MILLION?

It is Probable, But Circumstances Might Have More or Less to Do With It.

"The Half Million Bribe," a gripping five part wonderplay starring Hamilton Revelle, the eminent dramatic and romantic actor, and Marguerite Snow, one of the most popular stellar artists appearing on the screen. They are surrounded by an exceptionally strong cast including Walter Hitchcock, Fred Brickert, F. C. Williams, Fred Heck, John Smiley, Fred Tidmarsh, Carol Seymour and Diane d' Aubrey. It was produced under the direction of Edgar Jones and was adapted for the screen by Harry O. Hoyt, from the novel and successful stage play, "The Red Mouse," by William Hamilton Osborne. It will be shown here at the Princess theatre on Sunday, Oct. 22.

The story deals with the finding of the body of a well-known sportsman in a notorious gambling room. The district attorney, who knowingly arrests an innocent man for the crime of killing the sportsman, is the principal character in the production. In spite of the fact that he causes a whole lot of misery and trouble, the end proves that the district attorney is the best friend the accused man possesses.

The story is gripping throughout and staged by the best artists of the Metro Pictures corporation.

Band Pleased Fosston People.

The Minnesota State band, of this city, under the directorship of Joe Greenfield, returned Sunday morning by auto from Fosston, where a concert and dance were given Saturday evening. The concert was not attended by such a large crowd as the dance. The music rendered was of the highest order and all those present enjoyed it thoroughly, judging from the spirited applause given at the close of each number. The fact that a story had been circulated around that the band would not appear in the evening is undoubtedly the cause for many not attending. Halvor Steenerson was also billed for Fosston the same evening and as a matter of courtesy the members rendered several selections before the congressman's speech. The boys were assured, however, that if they came again a larger crowd would be on hand to greet them.

Arm Saved From Amputation.

Harry Fry, Soo brakeman, who was seriously injured at Bemidji about two months ago when he was knocked off a flat car and thrown in such a way that the car wheels passed over one of his arms, arrived in Thief River Falls Monday evening from the Bemidji hospital. It was though at first that Mr. Fry would lose his arm, but fortunately he escaped amputation. Mr. Fry is still compelled to carry his arm in a sling and it will be some time before he can report for duty. At the time of the accident Mr. Fry was holding a run on the freight train running out of this city to Bemidji.

The Orchestra Dance

On Friday evening, Oct. 27, Angell's seven-piece orchestra will give a dance at the Auditorium. This orchestra is regarded as one of the very best musical organizations in the Northwest and is much in demand for dancing parties. This affair under their own auspices should be well patronized as there is sure to be a good crowd and a good time.

Caught Up With Submarine

From now on the episodes of the "Secret of the Submarine," running at the Princess theatre on Wednesday evenigs, will be entirely new. Those appearing here so far were run on a previous occasion at another house, but the picture was never finished because of a change in the management. The next episode, however, has never been seen here and all to follow will be entirely new to our theatre patrons. The interesting and exciting parts are yet to come and those who started the series before will no doubt avail themselves of this opportunity to finish it.

Notice.

On June 1st a penalty of 10 per cent is added to all unpaid Real Estate Tax, but in case one-half the amount of the tax on any real estate be paid before June 1st of each year then no penalty is added, providing that the remaining half of said tax shall be paid before the 1st day of November of each year, if said remaining one-half of said tax is not paid before November 1st of each year, then a penalty of 10 per cent is added to the one-half of said tax remaining unpaid. Taxes becoming delinquent on the 1st day of January next, when an additional penalty of 5 per cent is added. Tax sales take place on the first Monday of May following and the amount of sale draws interest at the rate of one per cent a month until redeemed. If not redeemed within three years from the date of sale, all lands become the absolute property of the state or purchaser.

Barth-Aga

This afternoon at 3 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Ida C. Aga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Aga, and Clemence Andrew Barth, of Buffalo county, Wisconsin. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the United church, 933 Arnold avenue north, Rev. O. P. Staavas officiating. Hilmer Aga, brother of the bride and Miss Virginia Aga, a cousin of the bride acted as witnesses.

The newly married couple left on the Great Northern at 4:05 p. m. for Billings, Montana, after they had partaken of a light lunch at the home of the bride's parents and sprung their surprise. They will reside in Billings.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Aga, and came to Pennington county with her parents from Bridgeway, Iowa, locating on the P. Meehan farm southeast of here. Later the family moved into town. During her residence here Miss Aga has made a large number of friends and is one of the most popular young ladies in the city. Mr. Barth, who is now employed by the Diebold Safe company as traveling salesman, formerly resided here, having charge of the Western Union Telegraph company's office. The Times joins with the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Barth in extending best wishes for a prosperous and happy life.

Johnson-Vorlicky

On Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Vorlicky, occurred the marriage ceremony which united Martin Johnson and Marie Vorlicky, Rev. R. L. Barackman officiating. The wedding was a quiet home affair, only the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties being present.

The bride was gowned in white silk crepe de chine and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. The ring ceremony was used and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Rose Vorlicky and Arthur Schwartz acted as best man.

The guests were: Mrs. Elsie Davidson, grandmother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Dostal, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cernousek, and Mr. and Mrs. Manther.

The newlyweds have gone to housekeeping at 219 Duluth avenue north, where the groom has already provided a residence. Mr. Johnson is employed here by the Great Northern railway and has resided here for a good many years, while the bride has also lived here a number of years and both are well known. The cordial good wishes of the community are extended to the worthy young people.

Stanton-Berg.

Sunday afternoon at 4:30 at the Methodist parsonage occurred the marriage of Duncan Stanton, of Thief River Falls, and Miss Ellen Berg, of Grygla, Rev. G. O. Parish officiating. They were attended by Hal Stanton, who acted as best man and Miss Bertha Gangsness, bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Stanton expect to make Thief River Falls their home this winter at least and in the spring contemplate on moving to their claim near Grygla. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy married life.

The opening social meeting of the Woman's club was held Monday afternoon at the Commercial club rooms under the supervision of Mrs. H. O. Loken. An excellent musical program was rendered, after which delicious refreshments were served by the executive committee. There was a good attndance at the meet and prospects are bright for an enjoyable social season. The next meeting will be held October 30.

Miss Olga Aous entertained the "Do Drop In" sewing club at her home on Monday evening. The evening was passed in sewing and refreshments were served. Miss Effie Christianson will be hostess to the club next Monday evening at the J. O. Yotter residence, 108 Third street west.

Mrs. Fred T. Lincoln entertained the O. D. C. Club this afternoon at her home on Knight avenue north. Cards formed the afternoon's entertainment, after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ives entertained the "Even Twelve" club at their residence over the First National bank on Monday evening. The club will hold its next meeting two weeks hence.

The Dorcas society of the United church will be entertained by Miss Gulrud at the church basement next Tuesday evening, October 24. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

A marriage license was issued in Crookston last Saturday afternoon by Clerk of Court Waage to W. J. Legge, of Thief River Falls, and Miss Alvina Mina Novak, of Polk county.

Members of the class of 1917 of the Thief River Falls high school will give a reception to the faculty members tomorrow evening. A program has been arranged and refreshments will be served.

Winslow O. E. S. No. 182 will hold its next meeting in the Masonic Temple Wednesday evening, October, 25 at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Henry Halverson had a number of her friends in for luncheon last Thursday afternoon. Cards formed the afternoon's entertainment.

The Junior Christian Endeavor league of the Presbyterian church will hold an entertainment in the church basement tomorrow evening.

Mesdames H. G. Heiber and C. R. Stowell will act as hostesses tomorrow afternoon at an informal party to be given at the home of the latter, 714 Knight avenue north. Invitations have been sent to thirty-two ladies.

Invitations to ninety guests have been sent out by Mesdames Harry Brumund, W. H. Frederick and Edward Dolan, for a party to be given next Wednesday afternoon at the Brumund hotel parlors.

Miss Mabel Loken has returned from Bismarck, N. D., where she has been employed in a bank for the past few months. She has now accepted a position in the Loken Brothers Department store.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. John Jemsen, of Clearbrook, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the hospital Monday. She is doing very nicely.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, of this city, underwent a slight operation at the hospital Sunday afternoon.

John Walhaug, of Oklee, was submitted to an operation for the removal of tonsils and adnoids Sunday afternoon.

Miss Anna Forrest was discharged from the hospital Wednesday morning, after having received medical treatment for a short time.

Mrs. T. A. Torgerson entered her son, Earl, in the hospital Tuesday to undergo an operation for the removal of tonsils and adnoids. Mrs. Torgerson and son reside at Greenbush.

Miss Anna Lane, of Erie, has entered the training department at the hospital. There are now five student nurses in the institution besides the head nurse, Miss Mina Rock.

Municipal Court Pickups.

Judge N. W. Tarrant has settled two cases in his brand new court room. The first came up at a special term Sunday morning when R. Olson was brought in charged with being drunk. He was let off with a fine of $5. Olson was arrested Saturday evening by Soo Line Detective W. Geifort, for tresspassing on railroad property. According to Detective Geifort, Olson and two friends "beat it" up from Plummer on freight train No. 71 and alighted at the Soo stock yards. They were ordered off the company's property, and told to proceed to town by way of Eighth street. The friends obeyed at once but Olson insisted upon flirting with trouble. After the party of three had gone down the street about a block or so Olson went back to the tracks, where he was met by the "dick" and a tussle ensued. He was taken to the freight house and held until Patrolman Alexander arrived and escorted Olson to the municipal rest room.

Yesterday Carl Benson and Ole Stromme had their trouble aired in the new room. Both are farmers residing a short ways from town and it appears that Benson's cattle wandered into Stromme's field, which unfortunately caused trouble. Benson entered a complaint for assault and battery against Stromme, claiming that he was hit on the nose by Stromme. The latter was assessed $10 and costs.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following is a list of the unclaimed letters at the post office of Thief River Falls, Minnesota for the week ending October 14, 1916. If not called for in two weeks from the above date they will be sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington, D. C.: R. C. Caryl, J. Crawford, Miss Helen Cook, Mrs. Eie Grean, W. J. Moran, John Wold. When calling for the above letters please state that they were advertised. John Morgan, P. M.

Mrs. Plummer will leave for Fargo shortly to make her home there with relatives temporarily. Mr. Matern has been engaged in the grain business in North Dakota for several years and he expects to take up the same line of work here.

Messrs. Ed. Wilcox, Mark McFarland, and W. H. Fredericks, motored out about 30 miles east of the city Sunday to enjoy a partridge hunt. When the party returned in the evening they had a whole auto loaded down with game. This came as a result of one nice, big fat Mr. Bruin falling victim to the hunters bullets. When the party arrived at their destination they began scouring the small woods in search of partridges. Ed. Wilcox, old time timber cruiser, ventured out first and came to a bunch of rushes, where he met a large black bear. The bear was full of fight and started in pursuit of Mr. Wilcox. Messrs. McFarland and Fredericks attention was drawn to the scene and the animal was felled in its tracks, one bullet going through the animal's spine and another through its heart. The bear weighed in the neighborhood of 300 pounds and measured tip to tip, 5 feet, 10 inches.

Ned B. Cutter, formerly engaged in newspaper work in this city, who left for Anoka in January, 1913 to take up the practice of law, is now located at Crookston, where he has opened a recruiting office. When President Wilson called out the national guard in June Mr. Cutter was a member of the 3rd regiment and left with them for the Mexican border as lieutenant of company B. He has now been transferred to Crookston in company with Joe Nelson and Chester Wilborn, also of Anoka, to conduct the recruiting office for this section of the state. The men who enlist will be entered in any part of the Third they desire. They go to Fort Snelling where they are vaccinated for typhoid fever and small pox and in three weeks are sent to the border to join their company. The men enlist for a term of three years active service and three years on the reserve, with the understanding that they are to be discharged from active service as soon as the troops are recalled from the Mexican line. Before being transferred to Crookston, Lieutenant Cutter and the balance of the detail were stationed at Brainerd.

A Man After Our Own Heart
A young business man opened an account, walked over to the cashier, introduced himself and laid a complete financial statement on the desk. "I am going to do business here," he said. "This is my business story. I don't want a loan, may never want one. But I do want you to know me and my business CALIBER."
That man is a real business man and a success. We like him and we believe in him. We wish more would do as he did.

HOW THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION HAS PENALIZED PATRIOTISM.

"Having in view the possibility of further aggression upon the territory of the United States from Mexico and the necessity for the proper protection of that frontier," President Wilson on June 18 called out the mobile arms of the national guard for federal service.

He did not call them out at their existing peace strength, but at war strength, which is practically double. Lacking a system of reserves, the national guard organizations immediately had to start a campaign of recruiting to bring about the desired increase in their numbers.

Patriotic young citizens under the urge of the cry, "Your country needs you!" volunteered for service in gratifying numbers. According to Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, the result is that about 135,000 citizen soldiers have been mustered into the federal service and are now on the Mexican border or in camp in their home states. There may be more, but the administration refuses to make known the exact figures.

The movement is costing the public treasury many millions of dollars; it is costing the individual citizen soldiers many millions more. They went to the front believing the cry, "Your country needs you," for war service. They sacrificed advancement in their civil occupations, severed home ties, suffered in thousands of instances great financial loss. The less patriotic, who did not believe the cry or, believing, declined to make sacrifices, fatten at home on these losses.

The real purposes of the call are slowly developing. They are two in number:

First.—A patrol of the border to do the work which President Wilson's friend, Carranza, finds it impossible to do. Because the recognized government in Mexico is too ineffective to keep its own citizens in check and prevent them murdering Americans on American soil the American government undertakes the costly task of doing that work for them. The murder of American citizens on Mexican soil is another matter. Carranza may go as far as he likes in that direction.

Second.—A purpose of the mobilization on the border and in the camps is to train citizens to perform effective military service. The regular military establishment of the nation is manifestly too small for the actual military needs. To this extent the cry, "Your country needs you," was correct.

But these facts were not made clear when the call was issued. The idea was promulgated that men were needed for actual war service, not for military training. Deceit was practiced.

Opposing in the open legislation for universal military service, the administration by its acts has established what in essence is a system of compulsory military service. It is a system all the more vicious because it operates only against the patriotic, whereas a legalized universal training system equalizes the burden of military service among all men and all classes of men.

When in 1914 Europe plunged into the greatest war of all history and conditions in Mexico grew intolerable intelligent men realized the fact that it was incumbent on this nation to build up its tiny regular army and put its other military resources in condition for use. National safety demanded this. And yet in December of that year, four months after the European war began, President Wilson went before congress and declared that all agitation for military preparedness was hysterical; that we were adequately prepared.

After awhile the administration changed its mind and professed to believe in the necessity for preparedness. First came an enactment to increase the regular army by 20,000. But the body of the country, and even all parts of the Democratic administration, could not change front so quickly as the head. Recruiting for the regular army lagged. Not yet have the 20,000 been secured.

The need pressed. A new national defense act, providing for still more men in the regular army, was enacted. But still the men were not forthcoming.

Suddenly and without warning the administration issued its call for mobilization of the citizen soldiers. It seemed still obsessed with the Bryan notion that an army could be created by presidential ukase.

When the call went out the government did not own enough uniforms, shoes, socks, blankets, hats, wagons, trucks, horses, mules and other things essential to equip the men called. It had made no provision for transporting the troops called to the points where they were required.

Who suffered most by this amazing lack of foresight, this leaping before looking?

Only the 135,000 patriots who believed that their country needed them for national defense; only the men who are making the great sacrifices.

The whole disgraceful story may be summed up in the phrase, the administration has penalized patriotism.

True, it is accumulating by subterfuge a reserve of trained soldiers, but events have demonstrated that it cried "wolf" when there was no wolf. Should it be forced to cry "wolf" again, when the wolf is at the door, what will be the result?

from Mr. McCormick will be subjected to the closest scrutiny. The errors in his first effort are inexcusable and can only arouse resentment among labor men and social workers. No class is more instant than labor to condemn and punish those who without foundation lay claim to its gratitude.

"Will Mr. McCormick explain his padding of the Record?"

Ex-Commissioner of Labor, New York State.

AN UNBIASED VIEW.

From Washington correspondence New York Evening Post:

It is idle even for the Democrats to claim that Mr. Hughes' speeches have not been effective. Whether or not they have seemed so to the voters in the west and northwest is something very difficult to judge at this distance, but it is not to be denied that right here in Washington Mr. Hughes' utterances have had a very concrete effect. It is an ill wind that blows no good. The rumpus that Mr. Hughes has stirred up about civil service reform has really got under the skin of the administration. It is something which the president and his political advisers carelessly ignored. So it is with a portion of Mr. Hughes' criticism of the Mexican policy. When he argues that the paramount duty of the United States is to protect its citizens abroad in their lives and property he is standing on unimpeachable ground. And the administration knows it. The effect certainly of Mr. Hughes' remarks will be to stiffen the hand of the administration in dealing with a question of protection for Americans abroad.

HUGHES' LABOR RECORD.

When Mr. Gompers, remembering only that he is a Democrat and forgetting that he is a leader of organized labor, ventured to assert that Mr. Hughes is unfriendly to labor because he concurred in the unanimous decision in the Danbury hatters' case, he ventured on very thin ice. The Chicago Tribune promptly reminds him that an honest judge must apply the law as he thinks it is, not as he thinks it ought to be, and asks him to tell those who look to him for political advice something about the record of Mr. Hughes as governor. Read what the Legislative Labor News, the official organ of the New York Federation of Labor, said editorially when Mr. Hughes left the governor's chair at Albany for his place on the supreme court. Here it is:

"Now that Governor Hughes has retired from politics and ascended to a place on the highest judicial tribunal in the world, the fact can be acknowledged without hurting anybody's political corns that he was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany. During his two terms he has signed fifty-six labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any state.

"He also urged the enactment of labor laws in his messages to the legislature, even going so far as to place the demand for a labor law in one of his messages to an extra session of the legislature.

"Only 162 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 133 years. One-third of these, exceeding in quality all of the others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term of three years and nine months."

Let organized labor take to heart what the Chicago Tribune says on this point: "Mr. Hughes is no demagogue and no visionary. He is a man of courage and conscience, and if labor cannot confide its cause to his rock bottom Americanism there is something wrong with its cause."—Boston Herald.

THE GREATEST OF READJUSTERS

[From the New York Evening Post.]

We do not see why there should have been any stir in the senate over the discovery that President Wilson has completely reversed himself in the matter of the proposed child labor law. Senator Borah was able to show that Mr. Wilson described this legislation in his "Constitutional Government" as unconstitutional and "obviously absurd extravagance," carrying the congressional power to regulate commerce beyond the "utmost boundaries of reasonable and honest inference," and making it possible, if sustained, for congress to legislate over "every particular of the industrial organization and action of the country." That, we must confess, has also been the Evening Post's view. But the Evening Post and Senator Borah are old fogies, dating back to the time when it was the custom to have fixed beliefs and principles and stick to them.

The senator has evidently not read Mr. Wilson's letter in explaining his change of front on the tariff commission—that it is only a narrow man whose mind is stupidly closed to new ideas, who does not alter his opinions. By this test Mr. Wilson is obviously one of the broadest minded men this country has ever produced, for he has changed his mind to date on the initiative, referendum, recall, woman suffrage, the tariff commission, tariffs for revenue only, a permanent diplomatic service beyond politics, the merit system in the civil service, the proper place of Tammany Hall in the scheme of the universe, child labor legislation, preparedness, Bryan, a continental army—but why continue? It is a long enough list to prove that Mr. Wilson's political views are not fossilized by any fear of inconsistency.

The Rural Teachers

Three or four thousand girls and a few boys are starting this fall to teach in rural schools—about the hardest work there is for a beginner.

Everywhere else there is someone to coach the beginner—the head clerk or proprietor in a store, the manager in an office, the foreman in a factory, the chief in a telephone exchange—only in the rural schools the beginner must paddle her own canoe from the start.

It is not so in city schools where the new teacher has a principal to go to at any time and the superintendent whenever necessary. Only in the rural school, there is nobody to help along the teacher who was never in charge of a schoolroom before.

It is a wonder how well they do. Here and there one takes to it like a duck, once in a while a school goes to pieces for want of supervision; usually the new teacher rubs along pretty well by native intelligence and enthusiasm.

Of course she is not absolutely alone in the world. There are the trustees who may visit the school once a year, there are parents who come on special occasions, or when there is something wrong—which does not always help matters. And there is the county superintendent who gets around something less than twice a year. He helps the teacher all he can, but his visit next February or perhaps not until May is not the same thing as a steady coaching in a new position.

In Koochiching county, a way has been found to give the teacher in the country school the same kind of help that is offered every other worker. Three traveling principals are employed to look after ten schools each. These schools have real supervision and are helped immensely by it. Now Koochiching county is far from the richest in the state, but supervision has proven so valuable that the county officers do not question the wisdom of this expenditure.

The rural school committee believes there is a better way. It recommends that county superintendents be authorized to employ a limited number of supervisors to be paid by the state. Then it will be possible to give this help to every teacher who needs it.

Official Proceedings of the Board of County Commissioners of Pennington County, Minn., at Meetings Held Friday and Saturday, Oct. 13th and 14th, 1916.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 13th, 1916.

The County Board of Pennington County met in special session in the office of the County Auditor at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. All members were present.

A delegation of Farmers residing in Towns of North and Rocksbury met before the Board asking for County aid in repairing the road bed and also perfecting a better outlet for water along the Road line known as the Reservation line East of the City. The property owners along this line agree to assist in graveling this during the early winter. The county board agreed to appropriate the sum not to exceed $200.00 with the understanding that the Townships of North and Rocksbury raise a similar amount each, for the preparation of the road bed before gravel is put on. The Engineer was instructed to make such survey as may be needed and to start the work on next Monday.

The County Board proceeded to inspect the work of excavation and placing of culverts on County Ditch No. 64 as completed by Charley Glenn and fully report their findings as per report filed in the office of the County Auditor.

The County Board adjourned until Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

T. P. ANDERSON, Auditor. PETER C. WOLD, Chairman.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 14th, 1916.

As per adjournment the County Board met at 9 o'clock, a. m. All members present.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Aubol who moved its adoption duly seconded by Commissioner Larson:

Resolved that the Sum of $3,000 be and hereby is transferred from the Tax collection fund to the County Revenue fund and the County Auditor and the County Treasurer are hereby instructed to make the proper transfers on their books in their respective offices. Resolution so declared approved.

On motion duly carried the County Board authorized Commissioner Peter C. Wold to sign application for specifications for Bridge across the Red Lake river at Highlanding.

Mr. C. C. McElwee, attorney for the Bankers' Surety Bonding Company appeared before the Board in order to get proper settlement of the unfinished work on County Ditch No. 42.

Commissioner Peterson offered the following resolution:

Whereas, the engineer in charge of County Ditch No. 42, has reported that the road work on said ditch has been completed, but that approximately 1,512 yards must be excavated between stations 107 and 171 at an estimated cost of 25 cents per yard, amounting to $378.07, and,

Whereas, it is impracticable to do said work at the present time because of the height of the water in said ditch, and,

Whereas, The Bankers Surety company, through C. C. McElwee, its attorney, has offered to pay into the County Treasury an amount equal to the cost of cleaning out said ditch, plus the additional expense which the County has incurred by reason of the delay in completing said work and of the reletting of a portion of said work, and,

Whereas, the County, by reason of the delay in completing said ditch and of the re-letting of a portion of said work, has been put to an additional expense of Two Hundred forty nine and 55-100 dollars ($249.55) as more fully appears by Auditor's Warrants Nos. 5121, 5296, 5760, 5954, 6184, 6187, 8269, 8267, 6474, 6476, 6468, 8777, 8778, 8781, 8786, 8798, 8712, 8815, 8856, 8861, 9099, 9405, 10371, 10573, 10575, 10580, and,

Whereas, the sum of One Hundred ninety-two and 34-100 dollars ($192.34) of the original contract price of said ditch remains in the County Treasury;

Resolved, that upon the payment of the sum of Four Hundred thirty-five and 28-100 dollars ($435.28) by said Surety company to the County treasurer, which sum shall be credited to said ditch No. 42, and shall be used for the purpose of cleaning out said ditch and the payment of said additional expense, the said Bankers Surety company shall be, and it is hereby released and discharged from further liability to the County on account of the bond furnished said county in connection with the contract of Jerry Sherwood for the construction of said ditch.

Peter C. Wold, R. McGinn, Olof Larson, Ed. A. Aubol, Oscar J. Peterson.

On motion duly carried Commissioner Peterson was appointed as a committee of one to inspect and to take such steps as he may find necessary to clean out and repair certain places on county ditch No. 42. Petition of O. J. Snetting and others for the repair and cleaning of county ditch No. 21 was presented to the County Board and the following orders were made.

Order Appointing Engineer to Repair Ditch

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, ss.

In the matter of the Repair of County ditch No. 21.

Whereas there has been filed with this board a petition signed by O. J. Snetting and others whose lands have heretofore been assessed for the construction of county ditch, No. 21, of Pennington County, representing, among other things, that said ditch is in need of repair and praying that a civil engineer be appointed by us to ascertain and report the cost thereof, and that such other and further proceedings may be had as may be found necessary and expedient.

Therefore, ordered, that Glenn H. Martz, a competent civil engineer, be, and he is hereby appointed to ascertain and report to us the cost of such repairs, such report to be made and filed on or before the 26th day of October, A. D. 1916.

It is further ordered, that a meeting be held by this Board on the 26th day of October, A. D. 1916, at two o'clock p. m., at the office of the County Auditor of said Pennington County, for the consideration of said report and petition and to determine the necessity of such repairs and to apportion and assess the cost thereof, and that the County Auditor be, and is, directed to cause notice of such hearing to be given and served as by law required.

Dated this 14th day of October, A. D. 1916.

By order of the County Board, PETER C. WOLD, Chairman.

Attest: T. P. ANDERSON, County Auditor.

Order Appointing Viewers

In the matter of the petition of Pennington and others for repair County Ditch No. 21 in the county of Pennington State of Minnesota:

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, ss.

Whereas, a petition bearing date the 14th day of September A. D. 1916, signed O. J. Snetting and others praying for the repair of a ditch in said county, designated and numbered by the County Auditor as County Ditch No. 21, the route of which is fully described in said petition, together with a proper bond accompanying the same, has been filed with the County Auditor of said County; and said County Auditor has given due notice of the pendency of said petition, and the said notice has been published and served as by law required; and hearing had on said petition pursuant to said notice; and the said County Board of said County have heretofore duly appointed a competent engineer, to-wit: Glenn H. Martz to make survey of said ditch.

Now, therefore, We, the County Board of said County, at a special session held this day, do hereby appoint Gust Naplin and Elof Aakre and R. M. Johnson, three resident freeholders of said County, who are not interested in the construction of said proposed work, and not of kin to any of the parties known to be interested therein, to be viewers of said proposed work and of the route thereof. The said viewers shall first take an oath to faithfully perform their duties as such viewers; and thereafter, having received a certified copy of the petition for said ditch and of the order appointing them such viewers and of the order of the County Auditor of said County designating the time and place of the first meeting of said viewers, shall meet at the time and place specified in the order of the County Auditor aforesaid and shall proceed to view said proposed work, and the land damaged or benefitd thereby; and, having completed said view and examination of said work, shall make and file their report thereof with said County Auditor of said County within thirty days from the date of their first meeting. In said report they shall in tabular form give the names of the owners of each tract of land to be benefited or damaged by said proposed work the description of each tract of land so benefited or damaged (said names of owners to be the same as appear on the County tax duplicates of said County, and the description to be given in legal form), and the total number of acres in each of said tracts, the estimated number of acres in each tract of land to be benefited or damaged (as the case may be), the number of acres added to any tract by the total or partial drainage of any meandered lake, or the change of any water course and the location and value of such added land; the damage, if any, to riparian rights pertaining to any tract, and the amount that each tract of land will be benefited or damaged by the construction of said work. In case said ditch drains, either in whole or in part, any public or corporate road or railroad, or benefits any such road so that the roadbed or traveled track of any such road will be made better by the construction of said ditch, said viewers shall estimate the benefits arising therefrom to said road, roadbeds or railroads, and report said benefits, together with the names of roads and other particulars necessary to identify the corporations, private or public, to be benefited thereby, and amounts of benefits to each; they shall report as part of such tabular statement the damages awarded to each municipal or other corporation for injury to any road or roadbed, and from the necessary construction and maintenance of any bridge, culverts or other works rendered necessary by the establishment of such ditch, stating the same separately. They shall also report the total estimated benefits in respect to said ditch entire, and branches thereof, if any, and also whether or not, in their opinion, the estimated expense of the construction of said ditch, including the damages assessed therefor, is greater than the utility of said proposed ditch; and whether or not said proposed ditch is impracticable for any reason, and if so, stating the reason why it should not be constructed. In making said view and survey of said work and their report thereon, the said viewers shall proceed according to Chapter 230 of the General Laws of 1905 as amended.

Dated this 14th day of October, A. D. 1916.

The County Board of Pennington County, Minnesota.
By PETER C. WOLD, Chairman.

Attest: T. P. ANDERSON, County Auditor.

The folowing resolution was offered by Commisioner Larson who moved its adoption, duly seconded by Commissioner McGinn:

Be it resolved that we accept the proposal of C. O. Kalman & Co., of St. Paul, for the sale of the $11,000 drainage ditch bonds covering the repairs on County Ditches Nos. 16 and 55 respectively, bonds to be twenty year serial bonds and interest at the rate of five and three fourths per cent paid semi-annually.

All members present voting for the resolution it was so declared approved.

There being no further business the County Board adjourned sine die.

Attest: T. P ANDERSON, County Auditor, Rx-Officio Clerk of the Board.
PETER C. WOLD, Chairman, County Board, Pennington County Minn.

Moved by Dahlen and seconded by Gambell that the matter of contracts for transportation be left with the president and clerk. Carried.

Moved by Dahlen, seconded by Backe that the meeting adjourn until Tuesday, Oct. 10th, at 8 o'clock p. m.

CHARLES A. PITKIN, Clerk.

Adjourned regular meeting of the Board of Education Independent School District No. 18 held at the office of the clerk on October 10th, 1916 at 8 o'clock p. m. pursuant to adjourned meeting. All members were present.

Supt. Hay made report of his investigations as to the advisibility of establishing a night school. The subject was referred for further discussion at the next regular meeting of the Board to be held November 6th.

It was moved by Dahlen, seconded by Backe that arrangements be made to erect a ten-room building on the Oakland Addition grounds, and that plans be made so that contracts can be let not later than January 1917. Motion unanimously carried. An informal discussion of the situation followed the passage of this motion, it being the sense of the meeting that plans for such building be left to competitive bidding on the part of architects, and that the Board constitute itself a committee of a whole to secure data to be presented at a adjourned meeting to be held October 16th, at which time the Board shall decide upon the character of the building to be erected and formulate sufficiently comprehensive statement upon which to solicit bids.

The meeting adjourned to meet at the office of the clerk on November 6th at 8 o'clock p. m.

CHARLES A. PITKIN, Clerk.

State of Minnesota,
County of Pennington,
In District Court,
Fourteenth Judicial District.

In the Matter of the Establishment of a Judicial Road under the provisions of Sections 24 to 29, both inclusive, of Chapter 235 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1913.

PETITION.

We, the undersigned, legal voters and taxpayers resident in the counties of Polk and Pennington hereinafter named, do hereby petition the above named court to locate and establish a public highway under the provisions of Sections 24 to 29, both inclusive, of Chapter 235 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1913, along and upon the following route, to-wit:

Commencing at a point where the Judicial road heretofore established and known as the Pembina Trail Judicial Road intersects the north line of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section 20 in the Township of Polk Center (152 North of Range 45 West) in said Pennington County; running thence in a northwesterly direction upon and along the gravel ridge upon which said intersection lies, and following as near as practicable the main traveled road as it now exists upon said gravel ridge, and which is known as the Pembina Trail upon said ridge, through the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said Section 20, through Sections 19 and 18 in said Township of Polk Center, and through Sections 13, 12 and 1 in the Township of Belgian (153 North of Range 46 West) in the County of Polk in said State, thence through Sections 31, 30, 19 and 20, 17, 8 and 5 in the Township of Bray (153 North of Range 45 West) in Pennington County, thence in a northerly direction through Sections 32, 33, 28 and 29, 21 and 20, 16 and 17 in the township of Numedal, Pennington county to the point where said old Pembina trail on said ridge intersects the north line of sections 16 or 17, or if the public interests is best observed that said road be terminated where it crosses the North line of Section 28 or Section 29, and your petitioners further pray that if in the judgment of the commissioners appointed by the Court in these proceedings, the public interests will be best observed thereby, that said commissioners be authorized to change the starting point, the terminus or the route of said public highway.

And your petitioners further represent that the establishment of said public highway is a public necessity and is entirely without the corporate limits of any City or Village.

THEREFORE, Your petitioners pray that the above named Court and that the Honorable Andrew Grindeland, judge thereof, appoint three commissioners in conformity with the provisions of said section 24 of Chapter 235 of the Laws of 1913, and that such commissioners meet at such times and places as may be necessary and immediately proceed to lay out, locate and establish the road hereinbefore described and that said commissioners be authorized and directed by the Court and the said judge thereof to appoint a surveyor, ax-man and chainman for the purpose of surveying said road, and that said commissioners and surveyors be authorized to deviate from the course herein described wherever the public interest may best be sub-served by such deviation;

Your petitioners further pray that this petition be presented to the Court above named and to the Honorable Andrew Grindeland, judge of said Court, on the 27th day of November, 1916, at the chambers of said judge at the court house in the City of Warren, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of said day and that the clerk of said court give three weeks' published and posted notice of the presentation of such petition in each of the counties affected at least thirty (30) days in advance of such a presentation and that such clerk cause such notice to be served in the same manner as the service of a summons in a civil action upon each county and organized township in which or along the boundary of which said proposed road is sought to be established, and have proof of such service of such notice on said counties and said townships filed in the office of said Clerk prior to the day of said hearing; and that all further proceedings herein be had in conformance with said Chapter 235 of the Laws of 1913.

Dated September 22, 1916.

At The Princess.

Kitty Gordon, for years a noted beauty of the stage, will be seen for the first time on the screen in the new World Film production, "As in a Looking Glass," at the Princess Theatre, Thursday, Oct. 26. Miss Gordon's statuesque type of beauty proved to be admirably adapted to the requirements of motion pictures, and the directors of the World Film Corporation unhesitatingly announce that with her first appearance as a film actress Miss Gordon will become instantly recognized as the loveliest of screen stars.

The story of "As in a Looking Glass." adapted from the novel of the same name, by F. C. Phillips, provides Miss Gordon with opportunities for remarkable emotional acting, as well as for the display of a succession of the most dazzling creations of the modiste's and milliner's art. The greater part of the action occurs in Washington, D. C., in diplomatic circles, affording splendid chances for brilliant costuming and scenic embellishment.

New Books at Library.

Miss Emma Backe, librarian, stated yesterday that a new book of particular value had been received at the library in the form of an "Index to Short Stories." Whenever a short story is desired it can easily be looked up in this book, and if it can not be found on the library's shelves the book will be sent for. Miss Backe also stated that the books on "the easy reading shelf" are most popular in the institution. Another interesting fact is that there are only ten students out of the 330 in high school not having library cards on file, but will undoubtedly be patrons of the Carnegie library before school closes. The book committee is at work at present and expect to spend several hundred dollars for reading material before the month closes. During the month of October thirty-six numbers of latest fiction have been placed on the library shelves. The book and its author follow: Lea, "Chloe Malone;" Forman, "Justus, Me Twin Sisters;" Olmstead, "Father Bernard's Parish;" Brown, "The Prisoner;" Tarkington, "Seventeen;" Lagerlof, "Jerusalem;" Taggart, "Hollyhock House;" Canfield, "Real Motive;" Tompkin, "Seed of the Righteous;" Grayson, "Hempfield;" Richardson, "Adventures in Thrift;" Porter, "Just David;" Allen, "Cathederal Singer;" Gasgon, "Life and Gabriells;" King, "Slide of the Angel;" Grey, "Heritage of the Desert;" Burroughs, "Under the Apple Tree;" Van Dyke, "The Mountain Stoddard Making Good in the Village;" Kirby, "Aunt Martha's Corner Cupboard;" Lindsay, "Story Teller;" Blaisdoll, "Cherry Tree Children;" Tryer, "Mary Frances Garden Book;" Payson, "Boy Scouts at Panama Canal;" Seton, "Wild Animal Ways;" Bergess, "Tommy and the Lion;" Repplier, "Counter Current;" Post, "Boys Motor to Golden Gate;" Espey, "Leader of Girls;" Rinehart, "Through Glacier Park;" Roosevelt, "Book Lovers Holiday in the Open;" Long, "Lilac Fairy Book;" Bain, "Cossack Fairy Tales;" Long, "Red Story Book;" Asbjornson, "Fairy Tales from the Far North;" Firkins, "Index to Short Stories."

HE KEPT US OUT OF WHAT WAR?

Disingenuous to Boast That It's Through Any Act of Wilson We Are Out of the European Contest.

RATHER SHOULD BE BLAMED FOR MEXICO BELLIGERENCY

During the Present Administration We Have Seized a Mexican Port and Sent Our Entire Army and Militia to Fight Mexicans While Armed Mexican Forces Have Invaded American Soil and Fought Battles Against Our People.

Sometimes you hear men, sensible men, too, say, "I'm going to vote for Wilson this year because he kept us out of war."

Ask such men a short question. Ask them, "Out of what war?"

Did Mr. Wilson keep us out of the European war? No. He has himself in a formal address to congress spoken of the European war as "a war with which we have nothing to do, a war whose causes do not touch us." How could Mr. Wilson keep us out of a war with which we have nothing to do and whose causes do not touch us?

Did he keep the rest of the western hemisphere out of the European war? No independent nation on this side of the world is involved in it; the only people in it are the colonies of European powers and they had no voice in their fate, for they were automatically at war when their mother governments went to war. Who kept Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, out of the European war? Did Mr. Wilson?

Did Mr. Wilson keep us out of war with Mexico? No. In his term more Americans have been killed by Mexicans and more American property has been destroyed by Mexicans than by Spaniards during the whole Spanish war. In his term we have seized a Mexican port and have sent our entire regular army and militia to fight Mexicans. In his term Mexican armed forces have invaded American soil and fought battles against our people within our boundaries.

President Taft went through two Mexican revolutions during his term, the revolution against Diaz and the revolution against Madero. American lives were safe in Mexico during that time. No Mexican cities were seized by Americans and no armed Mexicans invaded the United States while Mr. Taft was in the White House. Yet Mr. Taft never thought of asking the American people to vote for him because he kept us out of war with Mexico. He put an embargo on arms so that American weapons would not be sent across the boundary, and he refused to interfere in Mexican affairs. When he left office Mexicans liked Americans, and Americans were safe in Mexico. Since he left office Mexicans hate Americans and Americans dare not remain in Mexico. Did Mr. Wilson keep us out of war with Mexico? Not if words mean anything.

Mr. Wilson did not keep us out of the European war, and he did not keep us out of war with Mexico.

Out of what war, then? —Detroit Free Press.

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT MEET

Shake Hands at Union Club Reception for Hughes.

New York, Oct. 5.—Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft clasped hands for a moment at the Union League club reception to Charles E. Hughes.

Each bowed and Mr. Roosevelt passed on to shake hands with other guests, leaving Mr. Taft to greet those who followed.

A few moments later Mr. Roosevelt took his place in the receiving line. He stood between Mr. Hughes and Chauncey M. Depew. Just the other side of Mr. Depew stood Mr. Taft.

NOTICE OF MORTAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Take notice that default exists in the conditions of that mortage given by Swan Englund, a single man, Mortgagor, to Hoag Security Company, Mortgagee, Minneapolis, Minnesota, (a Minnesota Corporation) dated December 5th, 1914, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, on December 18th, 1914, at 1:30 o'clock p. m. in Book 53 of Mortgages on page 153. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage is $142.10 and for interest paid on prior mortgage by this mortgagee $87.78, a total of $229.88 claimed to be due this date by virtue of said mortgage indebtedness. The premises described in said mortgage and situated in Pennington County, Minnesota, are to-wit: The south half of the northeast one quarter of section thirty-five and the south half of the northwest one quarter of section thirty six, in township one hundred fifty-three, north of range forty west 5 degrees P. M. By virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute and no action in law or otherwise having been instituted thereon, same will be foreclosed by the sale of the said premises at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash by the sheriff of Pennington County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on Monday the twenty-third day of October 1916 at 10 o'clock a. m., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage with the interest and taxes if any, and costs of this action including $25 attorney fees as stipulated in said mortgage.

JOHN A. DUFFY'S PLATFORM

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 65th LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

I am in favor of retaining the present county option law.

For the strictest economy. Opposed to all unnecessary appropriations. For lower taxes. Whereever the Legislature can curtail expenses of state, county, town, village or school government and not impair the efficiency, the movement will have my support to the end that the burden of taxation may be reduced.

For a fairer system of distributing the burden of taxation. Changes should include the assessment of buildings and improvements at a less percentage of their value than the land—a shifting of more of the burden onto the land off the improvements on the land.

For a fair and open market for all farm products, absolutely free from monoply or from manipulation, by promoters and speculators.

For responding to the wishes and the sentiments of the people and carrying out their will, where ever it can be ascertained.

JOHN A. DUFFY.

SOUTH IS BOSS; NORTH MUST PAY

Republican Committee Charges Dixie Domination of All Governmental Activities At This Time

CHAIRMEN FROM SOUTH

Wealth and Soldier-Producing States Are Discriminated Againt, According to Ohio Congressman, Who Gives Figures to Prove His Claim

A formal charge that the United States is ruled by a small coterie of southerners was made by the republican congressional campaign committee, in a statement issued by Congressman Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, one of the members.

"The south is in the saddle," said Mr. Fess. "The president and his family are southern in birth and sympathies.

"His cabinet is also southern, the five controlling heads are from states that have less than one-fifth of the population and bear less than one half of the taxation.

Points To Chairmanships

"The senate in leadership and working committees is southern. The house from speaker to doorkeeper is southern. Seventeen out of 18 great committees are headed by southern men, as follows:

"Ways and means, Kitchen, North Carolina:

"Appropriations, Fitzgerald, New York:

"Banking and currency, Glass, Virginia:

"Judiciary, Webb, North Carolina:

"Interstate and foreign commerce, Adamson, Georgia.

"Rivers and harbors, Sparkman, Missouri:

"Agriculture, Lever, South Carolina:

"Foregin affairs, Flood, Virginia:

"Naval affairs, Padget, Tennessee:

"Military affairs, Hay, Virginia:

"Postoffices, Moon, Tennessee:

"Indians, Stephens, Texas.

"Insular affairs, Jones, Virginia:

"Railways and canals, Dies, Texas:

"Public buildings, Clark, Florida:

"Roads, Shackelford, Missouri:

"Rules, Henry, Texas:

"Here are 18 committees whose heads control nine states—one northern and eight southern. Of these the ways and means, judiciary, banking and currency, interstate and foreign affairs, merchant marine, insular affairs, and rules all have to do with governmental attitude on questions of policy; in a word, their function is policy determining. The heads of these come from southern states, North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Missouri and Texas. These states determine the government's attitude in policy.

Handles Nation's Purse

"On the other hand, the appropriations, military affairs, naval buildings agriculture, and rivers and harbors, have to do with not only policy, but appropriations of public money; very largely the latter function. All these except the first is controlled by the south. The other large committees are more generally administrative.

"It will be noticed that the state of Virginia controls four committees of the most significant possibilities. This state, with a population in 1910 of 8,062,000, and wealth in 1912 of $2,890,000,000, with 10 representatives upon the floor of the house, has four times the importance in congress, if committee chairmanships have any meaning, than all the New England states, the middle Atlantic states, the east and west states, the north central states and the mountain and Pacific states combined, with a population in 1910 of 60,000,000 and wealth in 1912 amounting nearly $148,000,000,000. This state with 10 representatives, by virtue of the organization of the 64th congress, exerts more influence, four times over, if chairmanship of committees have any significance, than all of New England with 32 representatives; New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, with 86 representatives; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, with 86 representatives; Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas, with 41 representatives; and all the states west of the Rocky mountains, making a total of 31 states with 382 representatives.

Big States Overlooked

"The revenues of the eight southern states that control 17 committees amounted in the fiscal year of 1913, according to the government reports, to $53,000,000. That is a trifle over one-half of the receipts in the single state of New York in the same year, that amount reaching $101,000,000. The receipts of Virginia, which controls four of the greatest committees, are $9,330,000, while states which show receipts to the amount of $315,000,000, or 35 times as much, have control of no important committee."

Mr. Fess cited the Underwood tariff law as a sample of southern legislation.

"Sectional in policy," he said, "the Underwood bill removed duties from 20 products of the north: corn potatoes, oats wheat, wool, meats, dairy products, hay and the like. The bill left duties on southern products: rice cotton, tobacco and angora goat hair.

"Imports increased, revenues decreased.

"Import duty collected last republican year, $320,000,000; last democratic year, 1915, $198,000,000, or a loss of $128,000,000.

"Money spent last republican year, $1,000,000,000.

"Money spent first democratic year, $1,129,000,000, or $128,000,000 more than collected.

"Last year four southern states paid $1,000,000.

"Last year four northern states paid $42,000,000.

"Under the present estimates next year all southern states will pay $10,000,000, and all northern states will pay $200,000,000.

Mobilization Figures Cited

Mr. Fess also quoted statistics on the national guard moblization to prove that the south, though championing the volunteer system, refused to furnish volunteers.

"When the country needs defense," he asked, "who responds? On August 1, 1916, militia on the border was as follows:

"From New York, 16,000; from Massachusetts, 7,000; from Pennsylvania, 9,000; from Illinois, 11,000; from South Carolina, 3,000; from North Carolina, the home of House Leader Kitchen and Josephus Daniels, head of the navy department, none; from Georgia, the home of the senate leader, none; from Florida, the home of the chairman of the rivers and harbors, and public buildings committees, none; from Kentucky, none; Tennessee, none; Arkansas, none; Mississippi, the home of the chairman of flood control, none; from Alabama, the home of the Underwood bill, none; from Louisiana, 500."

In conclusion, Mr. Fess pointed out that the south governs appropriations and spends.

"The north," he said, "obeys, pays and defends. It is the meaning of democratic control."

BANQUETED BY CLUB DIRECTORS

Fred T. Lincoln Guest of Honor at Delightful Affair Thursday Night at the Brumund.

REPORTS CLUB STANDING

Activities in Which Organization Has Been Interested During the Past Eighteen Months Are Recounted—New Secretary Present

The members of the executive committee of the Commercial club were the hosts at a banquet at the Brumund hotel on Thursday evening, the affair being in the nature of both a farewell and welcoming party. Fred T. Lincoln, who left on Monday to take up his duties as secretary of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, practically said his final adieus to club activities in this city, submitting at the same time his report of the work attempted and accomplished during the 15 months of his incumbency.

Full Membership Present

President George G. Johnson, Treasurer Thomas A. Way, J. B. Conner, E. M. Korstad, M. C. Cutter, F. H. Herrick, C. W. McDaniel and C. A. Pitkin, members of the executive committee, were all present. President Johnson presided, and all present made short addresses expressing their regret at Mr. Lincoln's leaving at this time, and wishing him every success in his new field.

At the close of the addresses the departing secretary was presented with a beautiful Masonic emblem ring by the members of the committee. In replying to the presentation speech of President Johnson, Mr. Lincoln said that while he believed he was making the proper move by accepting another situation, yet he never expected to get into a community where the work was more pleasant or the people more helpful. He bespoke for his successor the same enthusiastic co-operation that had existed during his stay here.

Mr. Laird, who succeeds Mr. Lincoln as secretary, was also called upon. He said that being a stranger here he would have to be guided to a great extent by the executive committee in his work. He hoped and felt assured that the same helpfulness as that which had characterized the official career of his predecessor would continue to be extended. Mr. Laird made a very favorable impression on those present, impressing all with his evident sincerity of purpose as well as with the directness of his few remarks.

Submits His Report

Mr. Lincoln submitted a genral report of his stewardship. This showed that there is now an actual indebtedness of $501.78 outstanding against the organization. Off-setting this, however, there are dues collectable amounting to $315, while the cash is $29. The stationery, stamps and booklets in the secretary's office will amount to about $100 more, so that the club is practically out of debt.

Equipment to the amount of $1,904.68 has been purchased since Mr. Lincoln took charge. On this there is now due but $15. The income outside of dues have brought the club $836.99. The principal sources of this revenue have been market days, club lunches, the midwinter fair and the Fourth of July celebration.

Where Some of it Went

Local organizations have been the beneficiaries of the club to the extent of $450, the sum being divided as follows: Base ball team, $200; band, $200; hockey club, $25; woman's club, $25.

Conventions Secured

Five large conventions were held in the city since Mr. Lincoln took charge. These were taken care of by the club at a cost averaging less than $10 apiece. The woman's club co-operated with the men's organization in the financing of certain of these.

Other Activities

The location of a general produce house here is one of the direct results of the Commercial club's activities. There is every indication now that a new business college will be located here before spring. The Jefferson highway project was encouraged to such an extent that the city was made one of the principal stations on the line. In recounting the work on this project, Mr. Lincoln gave great credit to the chairman and general committee having the matter in charge.

The Banquet

Those present are unanimous in saying that the banquet was the most carefully planned and successfully carried out affair of its kind ever attempeted in the city. For this they very generally give most of the credit to Mrs. Harry Brumund, who had taken particular pains to see that all arrangements as well as the viands were of the highest order.

The guests found the room dark upon entering, except for a candelabra of lighted tapers, which shed their glow over the banquet table. Mr. Lincoln was placed at the right of the toastmaster in a chair decorated with purple silk ribbons. The service was excellent and everything was most tastefully conceived.

BUYS FIFTH FARM; PRESENTED TO SON

Osten Hanson of Twin Valley, Settles Last of Five Boys on Pennington Lands

One of the highest compliments ever paid to Pennington county as a farming community was tendered last week when Osten Hanson of Twin Valley, purchased the Macak and Knadle farm of 160 acres in Section 16 of Silverton township, and presented the same to his youngest son, Ingvald.

This latest addition makes five members of this family who are now land owners in Pennington county, the others being, Henry Albert Julius and Sivert. The first named is secretary of the Thief River Creamery association, and one of the most widely known and successful farmers in the county. Albert and Sivert are also prominently known as progressive citizens of their township, while Julius is at the home of the parents near Twin Valley.

Were it not for the fact that the opportunities here loom larger than in any other section of the Northwest, Pennington county would not have been chosen as a permanent residence place by these men. The first to arrive made a success of the venture and their recommendations were responsible for the arrival of the others. It is an unusual situation and one that speaks particularly well not only for the section but for the judgment displayed on the part of those making the selection.

PROHIBITION AN ISSUE

The word has gone out over the state that booze is out of politics in Minnesota for 1916. A few people and newspapers who ought to know better, pretend to believe that the liquor interests are sincere. Now of all times, the enemy of the traffic should be on their guard. For the temperance element to slack up their efforts now would destroy the pro- progress of years.

That the liquor interests are still in politics and in there with a firmer determination than ever to win, is evidenced from the fact that nearly all the strong temperance advocates of the last legislature have opposing them for re-election, strong and able liquor candidates. For examples, Tom Davis is opposing Gunnar Bjornson, of Lyon county for re-election; Hans Birkhoefer, a brewer, and president of the Minnesota Country Brewers association is opposing Carl A. Wold of Douglas county.

Hon. Theo. Christensen, representative from Lac qui Parle county, and editor of the Dawson Sentinel says of the situation:

"The question of state-wide prohibition is going to be one of the most important questions to confront the 'brewers (pretended) willingness to stay out of politics.' No question is settled until it is settled right. The county option law is not a solution of the liquor problem."

Frank Day of the Sentinel (Fairmont, Minn.) in his comments upon the above said:

"There are tens of thousands of the best men in Minnesota who are going to fight saloons till the last one is driven in disgrace from our state. And it will be no pillowsham affair. Men who are half hearted better stay in the rear because the fighting will be hard and wounds will be inflicted on both sides. John Barley corn has his back to the wall and he will not scruple to use dumdum bullets if they will perpetuate his reign. There will be no white flag in the ranks of the antis and the question of compromise will not be given a thought. From now on it is state-wide prohibition and those who are not for it are against it."

The liquor traffic is still with us; it is the same enemy of home and humanity that it has always been. If its abolition is not an issue this year it will be because those who should be on the firing line are loafing in their tents. It is playing politics harder than ever. If the drys can be persuaded to let up, so much the better for the wets; they will make good use of the time strengthening their defenses, while the drys will be weakened by waiting. If the drys can be convinced that the cause is safe they will lessen their vigilance and the wets will gain control. If the laws thus far secured are repealed—and who can deny that is the intention of the liquor interests—they will be repealed by the votes of those who have slipped in while the temperance people were off their guard. If dry candidates are defeated in doubtful districts it will be because the voters have been persuaded that liquor is not an issue in this campaign. This truce talk is dangerous. Now is no time to run up a white flag.

SHORT TIME LEFT FOR PAYING TAXES

Second Half of Real Estate Assessment Must be in by Oct. 31 to Avoid Penalty

Only 10 business days remain in which the last half of real estate taxes may be paid, according to the statement of County Treasurer Theo. Liden. The taxes must be paid on or before Oct. 31 to avoid the penalty which is 10 per cent of the amount of the tax. If the first half is still unpaid, no additional penalty will be charged until the first Monday in January, as 10 per cent is charged on the entire tax for failure to pay the first half before June 1. Taxes become delinquent on the first Monday in January, when the new tax is due.

Thus, if no payment was made before June 1, payment may be made in full any time before Jan. 1 and 10 per cent will be charged as penalty. Half payments cannot be accepted after May 31, but if the first half was paid on or before May 31, the last half may be paid any time on or beofre October 31, without incurring a penalty. An additional penalty of five per cent is added after the taxes become delinquent January 1 and other fees and items are added from time to time after that until the taxes still unpaid are collected by the sheriff or judgment is entered against the property.

County Treasurer Liden gives warning that the penalty will be charged promptly on the first day of November and that no payments will be accepted after October 31 without the penalty added. In making this rule he is acting as the state law compels him to do and the public examiners holds treasurers accountable for infringements of this law, even if the offical himself were disposed to make allowances.

The county treasurer urges citizens to make their payments early instead of waiting until the last day of grace as on these there is always a rush at the office.

TROUBLE IN SIGHT IN ROSEAU COUNTY

Commissioners Are Charged With Neglect in Not Requiring Filing of Bond

Another near scandal has developed in Northern Minnesota. This time it is in Roseau county.

John McLeod, Graceton, filed a complaint with Gov. Burnquist on Saturday alleging that F. E. Norman, contractor, had failed to file the required bond with the county auditor on the contract for construction of a state road.

The contract, Mr. McLeod says, was awarded by the county board, July 11, for $828. He alleges the county officials neglected to do their duty in not compelling Mr. Norman to file his bond before beginning work.

The governor probably will take the matter up with the county attorney.

This is the third Northern Minnesota county in which difficulties have arisen between taxpayers and county officials recently. The other counties are Koochiching and Cass, which are now being investigated.

FARM MOVEMENT IS EARLY UNDER WAY

Iowa and The Dakotas as Well as Other Sections of Minnesota Contributing.

The farm land movement for the 1917 season has started and indications are it will be by far the most important in the history of the county. Already a number of farms have been sold to people from other sections who expect to come here and begin their cultivation next spring, while in some cases land heretofore secured, but which for one reason or another has not been farmed, will be put under cultivation in the spring.

John Bratrud, the real estate man, has this week been busy showing customers and prospective buyers over the country. F. A. Hoyt, who secured a quarter-section near Viking through the Bratrud agency some time ago, will arrive as soon as things open up in the spring and go into the cattle industry. B. E. Ostrum of Minneapolis, was here this week and purchased 160 acres in the same neighborhood. He will also be among the early arrivals when the winter months are over. He had his holdings in crop this past summer, and, although he did not fare any better than his neighbors, still has as much faith in the section as ever and will proceed to justify it.

J. P. O'Brien of Whapeton, N. D., Mr. Giere of Spring Valley, and Oliver Welsh of Chester, Iowa, were in the city this week and looked over several offerings in Silverton and Goodridge townships. They were well pleased with what they observed and practically made up their minds to settle in the section. All are practical men having the live stock idea of farming and will make valuable additions to our citizenry. Mr. Bratrud says that there will be a dozen more here before the first of November to look over the situation.

FIRST SUBSCRIBER TO TIMES RENEWS

Nels A. Nelson Received First Receipt Issued When Paper Was Established

Nels A. Nelson, mail clerk on the Soo line, this week renewed his subscription to The Times, this being the sixth yearly trip he has made to the office of publication for this purpose.

Many others have done the same thing, but Mr. Nelson holds an unusual interest for the publisher inasmuch as his was the first paid subscription received when Volume 1, Number 1, was issued on March 10, 1911. Mr. Nelson has been a continuous subscriber to the paper since that time and says he will continue to be the "Original Times Man" as long as possible.

There was considerable rivalry as to who should be the first to get his name on the list when H. E. Mussey and H. F. Mussey, the founders of The Times, took the initial copy of the press, but Mr. Nelson was the first to get his money down.

HIS GERMAN NAME RAISED SUSPICION

But C. L. Diffenbacher is Finally Accepted in British Army and Made a Sergeant

The last letters received by Thief River Falls friends of C. L. Diffenbacher, formerly a resident here, state that he would sail from Canada for England on Sept. 11. He had been made a sergeant of his company and expected to put in a month in an officer's school upon his arrival. A similar period will have to be spent in training, after which he will go to the front. Mr. Diffenbacher has joined an Alberta regiment sent home on furlough and which has again been recruited up and returned to the front.

That German name has caused some inconvenience to its possessor. The Canadians passed him along without much trouble, but when he came directly under the observation of the English he was looked on with suspicion and it was some time before they ceased to keep watch over his movements. He seems to have allayed all suspicions now, however and is probably by this time in the thick of it "somewhere in France."

STRAW VOTE GIVES WILSON THE LEAD

Gets 119 Ballots to 85 For Hughes, 38 for Benson, and Five For Hanly.

A straw vote on the candidates for president was taken among the patrons of the Furan & Benson barber shop last week. President Wilson had a considerable lead in the balloting, receiving 119 votes to 85 for Hughes, 38 for Benson and five for Hanly.

This shop is patronized quite extensively by railroad men and the result was about as expected. There were not many farmers at the shop as is usual on Saturdays, which no doubt affected the Hughes vote adversely. The big surprise of the balloting was the comparatively small number favoring the Socialist candidate, it being expected that he would be strong in that particular locality.

DAKOTA PERMITTED TO BRING ITS SUIT

Billion and a Half is Claimed as Damage Caused by Uncontrolled Flood Waters

The supreme court of the United States has granted permission to North Dakota to file its original complaint in the $1,500,000,000 damage suit against Minnesota alleged to have been caused by the flood waters of Minnesota to farm lands in North Dakota and South Dakota.

All the counties of Northwestern Minnesota, and those drained by the Red Lake river, the Clearwater and the Red River of the North particularly, are interested in this suit. The states of North and South Dakota claim that Minnesota is guilty of turning its surplus water onto their lands, this resulting in a vast amount of damage.

One state cannot bring suit against another without first securing the permission from the supreme court of the United States. North Dakota applied for this permsision and it has been granted.

Mrs. Louise Pawling and three children have returned from a months visit with friends and relatives at Fairbault, Minneapolis and Rochester. Mrs. Pawling has rented the building east of The Times office, where she will again conduct a private boarding house.

Recovering From Operation

Dr. F. H. Gambell is in receipt of a letter from J. T. Lattimore, written at the State University hospital, in which he states that he will return to Thief River Falls about the 20th. Mr. Lattimore has undergone a serious operation at Minneapolis, having been under an anesthetic for more than four hours at one time. He is much improved and believes that a complete cure has been wrought. It will be some time before he is completely recovered, but the doctors believe that he is on a fair way.

Sure We're Pleased

Sunbeam—"Thief River Falls is so well pleased with the success of their last market day, that they will hold another one on Friday October 20th. This is a good opportunity for any farmer to dispose of any stock he wants to sell and convert into cash. W. J. LaBree auctions off all property offered by the farmers free of charge.

A big new discovery in cigarette blending

The big thing about Chesterfields is their unique blend. The Chesterfield blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos. This blend is the most important new development in cigarette making in 20 years.

As a result, Chesterfields produce a totally new kind of cigarette enjoyment—they satisfy! Just like a "bite" before bedtime satisfies when you're hungry.

But with all that, Chesterfields are MILD, too!

This new enjoyment (satisfy, yet mild) comes ONLY in Chesterfields because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend.

ROCKSBURY

Affirmative Side Wins

The principal business of the meeting last Thursday evening of the Rocksbury Farmers club was a joint debate on the following subject: "Resolved, That Stock Raising is More Profitable Than Grain Growing." The affirmative side was taken by Paul, Louise and Ole Engelstad, while the negative was handled by S. O. Lee, Arthur Erickson and Helmer Finstad. The judges were Ernest O'Neill, Ben Odegaard and Walter Quist, and were unanimous in their opinion that the affirmative side had the better of the argument.

The debaters were all young people residing in the township and their handling of the subject showed that they had given the matter considerable study. It is an encouraging sign when debates on subjects of this kind are engaged in by the men and women of the county and the older folks should do everything in their power to help keep this interest awake.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Aldrich were Sunday guests at the T. J. Sumpter home.

Grygla is a Hummer

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mussey and Mrs. Frank Effinger and children, autoed out to Grygla on Sunday, where they were the guests of Mr. Mussey's parents. They found the section about Grygla booming, with everybody optimistic concerning the future. This community is one of the most energetic little burgs in this section and with a few needed improvements will become a substantial city. The people there need a railroad and they are doing everything in their power to secure one. They are not placing much faith, however, in the project to build a line from Bemidji to the Red Lakes, which would naturally tap their section, but still entertain the hope the Minnesota Northwestern will soon extend out from Goodridge, as has been intended. The roads are very good between Thief River Falls and Grygla and there is much traffic.

Three banks, a number of big, high grade mercantile establishments, one of the best creameries in the state, the Grygla Eagle and Dr. Adkin's hospital are among the substantial institutions of the town, which is growing at a rapid rate.

CRUSH FOSSTON IN LAST TRENCH

Johnson's Colts Fight Like Trojans and Score Two Times in Last 10 Minutes of Play

OPPONENTS ARE SHUT OUT

Rogers, Holzknecht and Borry Make Appreciable Gains While Line Holds Like A Stonewall

Varying smashing line attacks with brilliant open field play, the Thief River Falls high school football team, past, present and coming champions of Northwestern Minnesota, on Saturday met and defeated the Fosston crew by the score of 13 to0.

Up to the final quarter the score stood 0 to 0 with both teams fighting like Trojans to break the deadlock When the fourth quarter opened Johnson's men made good their attempt and showed a versatility of attack that nearly swept the Fosston warriors off their feet. The boys struck hard and left a mark each time, puncturing Fosston's line which allowed the ball to be brought down the field in a rush. In less than five minutes the first touchdown had been made and when another five had passed the ball was again brought across the chalk line. When the chance came Johnson's crew fought desperately and the only signs of yellow connected with the team was the stripes on Holzknecht's jersey. This victory is an important one in the race for the championship.

The Game By Play

Captain Erickson for Fosston won the toss and chose to defend the north goal, Fosston facing the sun and a strong westerly wind blowing. Thief River Falls kicked off at 2 p. m. from the 40 yard line and the ball sailed to Fosston's 90 yard line, where it was caught by Movald, who advanced it 30 yads. On the first play Fosston's left half went around left end for a 25 yard gain. Three line plunges netted 6 yards and were forced to punt on the fourth down. The ball went 15 yards and was caught by Holzknecht, who carried it 10 yards. Time was taken out for Holzknecht owing to an injury to his ankle. Borry was called upon two times and made 10 yards through the line, Rogers slamed away for an additional 10 on first down. Little "Dutch" Zeh circled left enr for one yard followed by Holzknecht, who got away with 9 more. Borry gained 3 yards around end on first down, but Zeh failed to advance. Going around end agin Holzknecht made a yard and lost one yard around end on next play. Ball was lost on downs. Fosston gained 4 yards on an end run. Two forward passes netted 30 yards. Thief River then "stonewalled" Fosston and held them to three straight downs. Finding themselves in pretty hot water, a drop kick was put into play on the 90 yard line, but the kick proved unsuccessful. The ball went to Thief River and Borry squirmed through the line for a yard and Rogers made 5 more. n the next play Borry cleared right end for 3 yards and Rogers hit the line for 3 yards. Holzknecht then carried the ball for an end run but failed to gain. A forward pass was intercepted. On a shift play Holzknecht aided with good interference made 6 yards and Steen on a tackle play failed to get away. Fosston obtained possession of the oval and fired off a forward pass good for 12 yards A Fosston half attempted to get through the line on next play and fumbled the ball, Rogers of Thief River, falling on the pigskin. Thief River backs then crashed through for 33 inches on three downs and the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

The second quarter opened with Thief River on its fourth down and 3 inches to go. A center rush netted them 2 yards. Borry and Rogers on next two plays made 11 yards and Holzknecht then started a procession off and ,raced down the field for 22 yards. Rogers plunged through the line for 10 more. By this time the way was paved for the first touchdown, the ball resting on Fosston's 90 yard line. Borry came through for 5 yards, but in some manner the ball was fumbled. Fosston recovered and on the first play made 1 yard, half around end. A forward pass was attempted but was intercepted by a Thief River man. On the third down Fosston punted 30 yards. Holzknecht caught the ball and went 5 yards. Two end runs by Holzknecht and Borry netted 2 yards and Rogers failed to gain through the line. Time was taken out for Fosston. To gain the necessary points a forward pass was attempted, but proved to be incomplete. Ball lost to Fosston on fifty yard line. Two forward passes by Fosston advanced the ball 24 yards, and quarterback Movald carried it 6 around end. Fullback went 3 yards through the line. Another forward pass by Fosston was a failure. McDaniel was "johnny on the spot" and picked the ball out of the ozone and carried it 10 yards. Fosston was at this time 20 yards from Thief River's goal. A series of 3 line and end plays netted the necessary ground. On first down Zeh hit the line for one yard and Holzknecht rallied on a "hip" play for 18 yards. Thief River's backs then crashed by for 10 yards through the line. Rogers and Borry gained 6 yards on the next two downs. Then Borry whizzed around right end for 22 yards placing the ball on Fosston's 30 yard line. The second period closed.

Third Quarter

Fosston kicked off to Thief River Falls at the beginning of the third quarter Lane caught the ball on the 65 yard line and got away with 5 yards. Rogers, Zeh and Borry tore away for 13 yards on three downs. Fosston intercepted a forward pass on first down. Borry brought the ball forward 5 yards around end and Holzknecht was good for 5 more on a shift. Thief River was set back 5 yards for off side. Zeh failed to circle right end while Holzknecht lost 2 yards when a play was spilled. A forward pass on the third down was unsuccessful and the ball was lost. Fosston passed the oval, Zeh, for Thief River getting the ball and went 5 yards. Rogers muffed the ball on the next play, but recovered. Thief River failed to get around right end and a forward pass was incomplete. Thief River was penalized 5 yards for offside, and the ball went to Fosston on downs. Thief River was again penalized for offside. Fosston sent their half against the line with no gain. Time was again taken out for Fosston. On next play Tandberg intercepted a forward pass and Zeh again grabbed the ball from the air on the next play advancing it 5 yards.

Rogers sprinted through guard for a 6 yard gain and the ball was lost on downs. Fosston after getting the ball attempted a forward pass, which was intercepted by Tandberg, who carried it 10 yards. Rogers crashed by for 5 yards, but it was set back 15 yards for hurdling. Borry gained 4 yards through the line but fumbled, the ball going to Fosston. Two end plays were used, netting Fosston 2 yards. This closed the third quarter. Score 0 to 0.

Fourth Quarter

Fosston's halfback made 5 yards on third down and then punted 30 yards. Tandberg caught the spheroid. Holzknecht gained 25 yards in a "drive" for the goal. All the boys were playing for blood in an attempt to break the deadlock. Rogers tore away irresistibly for 30 yards. A forward pass was incomplete. Holzknecht gained 5 yards on a "hip" play and Borry brought in 5 more through the line. Two line plunges netted 3 yards as Fosston's line grew compact. Another shift gave Holzknecht a chance to gain 10 yards, and Rogers gained 5 through the line, bringing the ball within scoring distance. On the next play Holzknecht carried the ball over the line.

Fosston received the kickoff and advanced it 10 yards. 5 yards were gained through the line and the ball was taken away when Borry nailed a beautiful forward pass and sprinted 35 yqards. Borry failed to gain on the next play, but a forward pass, Holzknecht to McDaniel netted 6 yards. Holzknecht again rallied when he advanced the pigskin 5 yards around right end aided by splendid interference. The ball was now 8 yards from Fosston's goal. Borry gained 2 yards by hitting the line, and Holzknecht made 1 yard through center. Lane was injured and taken out of the game. Holzknecht in an attempt to score made 2 yards, bringing the ball within 3 yards from the final chalk line Time was taken out for Fosston. Rogers was called upon to make the touchdown and hit the line with such force that he landed 2 feet over the goal line. Borry kicked goal. Score 13 to 0.

Thief River kicked off to Fosston from the 40 yard line. The oval landed on the 75 yard line and was carried 12 yards. A forward pass was declared incomplete, and Fosston then punted 25 yards, the ball landing out of bounds. Thief River on first down attempted a pass, Holzknecht to Tandberg, which also resulted in being incomplete Zeh raced for 8 yards on a fake forward pass Thief River punted 20 yards and Fosston received the ball when the final quarter ended, with the ball resting on Fosston's 60 yard line Score 13 to 0.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Novelized from the Motion Picture Play of the same name by George Kleine.

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her one dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau. Doctor Royce warns Freneau that there is another woman besides Gloria; Freneau goes sleighing with Gloria without her father's knowledge. It results in pneumonia for Gloria, whose family becomes incensed at Freneau when they learn the truth. Royce is summoned to alleviate Gloria's suffering. Freneau's finances being low he approaches Pierpont Stafford for a loan. Doctor Royce again warns Freneau of his conduct. But Lois, learning of Freneau's betrothal to Gloria, threatens him with dire punishment. Her husband, Gloria's brother David, becomes suspicious; he plans a trap for his wife. Freneau driven to desperation by Lois' threats agrees to spend a week with her in the Catskills. He plans to have Mulry send Gloria a bunch of telegrams. Lois' husband threatens to kill a man. After Freneau takes leave of Gloria she sees from her window an attack made upon him when he goes to meet Lois.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT

The Mesh of Mystery.

Was it delirium or was it truth? Or part truth and part delirium? If part of both, where did truth leave off and delirium begin?

This was the problem that confronted Miss Emily Richards, night nurse to Gloria Stafford. Miss Richards sat quivering in her chair by the night lamp and watched the exquisite girl who, though quieted now by drugs, was conscious enough to be troubled. Her eyes, still filled with something of the horror they had seen or thought they had seen, turned every now and again towards the door. She was waiting for the doctor to appear there. He was searching for the body of her lover, whom she had seen—or said she had seen—murdered.

Before this unhappy moment Gloria had been progressing swiftly towards recovery from the attack of pneumonia that had struck her down on the very threshold of her marriage to Dick Freneau.

Nurse Richards' heart had already troubled her in this affair, and her heart was an organ she made a point of ignoring; at least she had cased it in such iron determination that she seldom felt it throb. But this particular patient had been so beautifully favored by the gods otherwise that her untimely illness seemed incongruously cruel.

Some day Richards might congratulate Gloria upon this disaster and realize that the gods had been cruel to be kind; but just now the knowledge could not come to sustain her. All she could see was a young girl of great beauty, great patience in the face of trying and tedious disease, one who had all to live for—wealth, a devoted father and brother, and an extraordinary handsome bridegroom who furnished the final touch to the picture.

It was really the insouciance and diablerie of the dashing Freneau, with his charming manners and somewhat wicked glances cast her way that wilted Nurse Richards' starch—though she would not have acknowledged this, heaven knows, and bless us, never!

Richards had arrived as usual to relieve the day nurse. She buckled on her armor of white linen in the room next to Gloria's own and as she looked from the window facing Riverside drive, she thought she had never beheld so beautiful a night or so beautiful a scene. Already the young moon was up and gleaming softly but purely on the noble beauty of the soldiers' and sailors' monument opposite the Stafford house. The white marble columns of that magnificent tribute to the heroes dead and gone stirred her strangely.

Richards sighed her last tribute to sentiment, romance and the beauty of the night, and, moving towards her patient's room, assumed her usual crisp and cheerful manner. As Richards came in Gloria turned to her with a wan little smile of welcome and put her hand out towards her.

She looked like a small child lying there, and the color scheme of her room—soft grays and powder blue—made an exquisite setting for the girl's own colorful type. The blue of her eyes contrasting with the delicate red of her hair, her peach-blossom skin, a baby chin, a girl's mouth, and a woman's soul, made up a total of irresistible appeal.

Just now a heavy splash of scarlet on either cheek told the nurse of unusual fever, but with her newly awakened sense of romance she attributed the condition to Gloria's probable disinclination to parting with her lover. For Freneau had told her that he must leave town on business for a whole week. When he came to bid farewell the nurse left the room, returning when Freneau had gone. He left Gloria in a lonely gloom.

Gloria was fretful and restless, complaining that she did not feel ready for sleep. It was the nurse who was drowsy after the long strain of Gloria's illness.

Richards put out all the lights save the one shaded lamp by the bedside, and then she must have dozed, for the next thing she knew was that her ears were throbbing and her nerves jangling with the wild clamor of Gloria's screams.

For an instant the nurse was too horrified to move, then as her wits returned to her the fact that the voice was Gloria's penetrated to her consciousness. Gloria, indeed, was tugging at her and crying to her incoherently. Then she fainted as her father rushed in in his dressing gown. He and Miss Richards lifted the girl's body to the bed. Then Richards reached for the telephone to call Doctor Royce, blaming herself bitterly the while for having slept at her post. Doctor Royce was not at home. His secretary promised to send him the moment he returned. The nurse did what she could.

Turning to the bed she was clutched by the groping hands of Gloria. She heard her cry:

"Save him, save him, father; they've murdered him! Let me go to him! Oh, Dick, Dick!"

Richards held the frantic girl tight in her arms and tried to soothe her as she struggled to rise from the bed again. But the eyes that looked into hers were almost those of a maniac and the nurse signed to the distracted father to help her. Gloria was shrieking now as she found renewed strength:

"There, there, look! Look down by the steps of the monument! Dick is lying there. I tell you they've killed him. Oh, my God, why don't you go to him instead of holding me here?"

With one supreme effort she wrenched herself free from the two, only to be mercifully seized with another fainting spell. Swooning forward, her face would have been dashed against the footboard of her bed had not Richards recaptured her in her arms. At last Doctor Royce appeared in the doorway. His foot struck the binoculars, which still lay on the floor where they had fallen from Gloria's hand. He started back from them, looked towards the prostrate Gloria, and, stooping swiftly, thrust the glasses into his pocket with what sounded to Richards much like an oath. Then he came forward to Gloria, taking her from her father's arms.

Gloria opened her eyes again and stared into the doctor's own with another outcry:

"You will believe me and go to him, won't you?"

Reason seemed to return to her now, and her eyes were overflowing with tears. Her father had to turn his own away, for Gloria's made him think of a child torn from its mother and beaten and pleading. When Doctor Royce spoke his voice was hoarse with emotion:

"Gloria, you know that I would give my life to spare you any pain or to do you any service, but remember that you are still very ill, that any further excitement might be fatal to you. You have a high fever and are not yourself. You are a very sick child. Tell me what is troubling you and what frightened you and I will do anything I can to help you."

Gloria seemed to be holding herself under extreme control as if to convince them of her sanity.

"Oh, Stephen, you must believe. I tell you I saw it all—from the window here. But there is no time to lose. You must go to him. Dick Freneau is dead! Murdered! His body is down there at the base of the monument.

"Miss Richards was sleeping. I couldn't. I looked through my glasses on the drive. I turned them towards the monument. I saw a man in evening dress loitering about. I couldn't see his face. He seemed to be waiting for someone. A policeman went by. The man stepped behind the monument till the officer had gone. Then he came out again. He took a revolver from his pocket. Then he walked away as a tramp came along.

"I saw the tramp—a slouching creature with a hideous face—a face I shall never forget. I saw it plainly under the light of the lamps as he dropped on a bench. But I thought nothing of him and turned my glasses down the drive.

"I saw a man stop to light a cigar. It was Dick. I was surprised. I thought he would have been on the train. He seemed to look up at my windows. Then he walked on. I turned my glasses back to the tramp. I saw a terrific look come over his face, under the lamp-post—as he saw Dick approaching. I wanted to scream a warning, but he was too far away. I saw the tramp skulk behind a tree.

"As Dick passed him the tramp leaped on him from behind. There was a struggle in the shadows. I tried to scream—not a sound came from my throat. I could only hold the glasses to my eyes and watch. The tramp was like a mad gorilla. Dick hadn't a chance with him. The fiend either choked him to death or stabbed him, I don't know which. But I know that I saw these things. I know it's true, and I saw his body thrown down lifeless.

"The man in evening dress came back again. I thought he was going to save Dick. The tramp ran away at sight of him. The man knelt down by Dick's body. I couldn't see very well, but he seemed to be listening to his heart. I thought surely he would help Dick. Then I could hardly believe my eyes, for he began to search Dick's coat. He pulled out from the pocket a long envelope with seals on the back.

"It was the very envelope that I saw in Dick's pocket tonight as he said good-by to me. I recognized it perfectly, for I laughingly asked him what important business it contained and he grabbed it from my hand so quickly that it startled me. I know it was the same—this man held up the envelope to the light to make sure of it, then put it in his pocket. Then I found my voice and screamed and screamed. And then I don't know what happened.

"But, oh, Stephen, go over there now at once. Bring him back here dead or alive and tell me the truth! I promise to be brave, but tell me the truth—tell me the truth!"

Her sobs choked her now so that she fell back exhausted on the pillows.

Doctor Royce did not go to her. He was at the window, staring through the binoculars. He seemed to be greatly astounded, then he said: "I can see the place perfectly; there is nothing there."

Gloria screamed: "But I saw him killed; I tell you! He must be there!"

Doctor Royce handed the binoculars to Mr. Stafford.

"Mr. Stafford, do you see anything?"

Pierpont stared through the glasses and shook his head:

"Nothing."

He passed the glasses to Miss Richards. She also shook her head, then exclaimed: "A policeman is coming up the drive—he is passing right across the spot—he didn't stop!!"

Gloria saw this herself and wondered if she were truly mad. Doctor Royce turned to Gloria, stroked her hand, and spoke to her gently.

"There, there, Gloria, child, don't torture yourself so. You have simply been delirious and imagined these things. But to satisfy you I will go over there at once—if you will promise to lie quietly here on your bed. And try to believe that it is all a hideous nightmare—until I come back to assure you that it is—will you?"

Gloria nodded her head to him, unable to speak, but it seemed to Richards that the doctor's assurance had no effect upon her and that she held herself in leash only until she could get him out of the room.

Then she turned to Miss Richards, sobbing: "Hold me, Miss Richards, hold me up quickly to the window—first give me the glasses. I must look again."

Together they strained their eyes towards the monument. She felt every nerve and muscle of Gloria's body taut strung beneath her hands. And she likened it to a bow. Gloria's soul was the arrow and it was ready at any moment to speed on its swift and terrible journey.

She felt the agony as if it had been her own. The not knowing was the most terrible part of it, for Richards seemed to feel more bewilderment than the girl herself. Her instinct and the girl's conviction seemed to point to the truth of Gloria's vision; yet her common sense told her that such a thing was almost impossible, and that Gloria's fever would fully account for it all.

They watched the monument. The doctor appeared there shortly and walked about the empty spot, signaling to the window what he had said before.

"There is nothing here—nothing."

And then Gloria began to mutter:

"Lay him down there."

She raised her arm and pointed toward the chaise longue. Then her arm dropped. Richards put her hand on Gloria's head, only to have it thrown off by the girl as she shrilled in a weak voice: "Loosen his collar—he's choking. Dick—Dick—it's all right now, dear; they shan't touch you again!"

Richards felt a thrill of joy mingled with pity go through her. This was something she could understand at last—this was delirium. Then the rest must have been delirium, too?

The sound of the doctor's step on the landing brought her grateful relief. He came in with a smile on his face. Going at once to the bed, he took Gloria's hand to feel her pulse.

Richards said: "She is delirious now, doctor, completely so. Did you find anything?"

"There was nothing there," but the doctor drawled the words with strange listlessness, and, sinking into a chair, covered his eyes wearily with his hand, though Gloria babbled faintly:

"Has the mail come yet? Why don't you give me Dick's letter?"

* * * * * * * * * * *

On the following morning Gloria awoke from her drugged sleep with a feeling of hovering calamity. Presently realization came. Her lover had been murdered. She hid her face in the pillows and moaned: "It can't be true; it can't be true."

The day nurse tried to soothe her, bathing her face and hands, arranging her hair. Then the butler arrived with a telegram for Gloria, who took it from him with trembling hands.

A glad cry escaped the girl's lips as she read it.

"Arrived safely. Miss you terribly. Hope you slept well and dreamed of me. Am writing. Devoted love.
DICK."

Gloria passed her hand across her brow in a daze. She read the telegram again and called to Miss Armstrong and Doctor Royce, who had just entered.

She showed them the telegram, trying to hold her fingers over the words to let them see only "Arrived safely" and "Am writing."

Doctor Royce started, but recovering himself, expressed great delight.

"I told you it was a delirium." Yet the nurse, glancing from the telegram to the doctor, noted a puzzled look on his face that belied his words.

At last the doctor was able to place the thermometer in Gloria's mouth. She tried to speak, but he ordered her to keep silence, and stood in a brown study. Gloria indicated by crude and impatient pantomime that she wanted paper and pencil. She proceeded to compose a telegram, shifting her position that the doctor might not see what she wrote.

Doctor Royce took the thermometer from her lips, and she went on writing, without noticing him. He nodded his head, apparently satisfied, and the nurse entered the temperature on the chart. Then bidding Gloria good-by, the doctor left the room, still musing.

Gloria continued her task, apparently a difficult one, and chewed the end of her pencil to bits. At last the result, much underscored and scratched out, read:

"Your angelic telegram received. It was terribly welcome. I did not sleep, but I dreamed a horrible dream about you. Overjoyed to know you are safe. Please take care of yourself and telegraph on receipt of this that you are still all right. Much love.
GLORIA."

Dispatching her telegram by a servant, Gloria gave her attention to the breakfast tray her nurse placed on the bed. The invalid turned up her little nose as she uncovered the plate of gruel, but ate it greedily, nevertheless and then, worn out by her emotions of the night before, but in a peaceful frame of mind at last, she settled herself for a long, refreshing sleep.

A few hours later when she awoke it was to receive another message.

The telegraph company notified her that her telegram to Freneau at his hotel was not delivered: "Party not known there."

Before she could recover from her bewilderment, close on the heels of this message came a special delivery love letter from her lover written on the hotel paper and postmarked Albany.

Gloria was completely dazed, her brain in a whirl of contradictions. What could she do? Where could she find her lover? Was he alive or dead?

At this time, in the boudoir of her home, Lois Stafford paced the floor, staring at the photograph of Freneau which she had stolen from Gloria. Despair tore at her heartstrings. She sobbed and beat her breast. A knock at the door brought her to herself and she called: "Who's there?" The voice of her husband came through the door. She cast a look of anger at the door, then hid the photograph and dried her eyes hastily. Then she forced a smile and admitted David.

He carried an offering of flowers in his hands.

"I thought you were on your way South," Lois exclaimed as she embraced him with apparent fervor.

"I decided not to go and turned back. Are you sorry?" he asked hungrily.

She answered: "My love!" and clasped him close.

She was afraid to ask him any questions lest he ask questions of her.

The following morning Gloria, still see-sawing between joy and anguish, received a telegram from Freneau at Buffalo. She telegraphed to him at his address there. Later the message was reported undelivered. Yet in due time a letter came from Freneau on the hotel paper.

The next day a message of love from Cleveland. Now she called the hotel on the long-distance telephone. The clerk insisted that Freneau was not there and had not been there.

It was the same with messages from Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, and Pittsburgh. Gloria felt that she was being slowly driven insane. But her bodily health improved throughout the week in spite of her mental distress and Doctor Royce told her that she might go down to the dining room for her breakfast. She was glad of this because Dick's letter from Pittsburgh had promised that he would call on her that morning. She wanted to welcome him in state.

She herself had a royal reception from the servants. She was dressed in a trailing breakfast gown of orchid chiffon, and she bent to the bowing old butler as if he were her prime minister. Her father escorted her to her place, then whipped open his paper to the financial page and vanished behind it.

Gloria turned to the page of social gossip in another paper. She had pretty well lost track of the world. She laughed as she turned to the front page and only now saw the big headlines announcing: "Freneau Dead. Body of Well-Known Clubman Found in Lowe Bay. Mystery as to Death. Suicide Hinted. Financial Affairs Known to Have Been in Disorder."

Gloria's eyes widened. Her fingers clenched and crumpled the paper in anguish. Her father, looking up from his paper, saw the wild terror in her eyes. He hurried to her. She handed him the paper, and while he read, she rose to her feet unsteadily, leaning on the table for support.

As soon as her father understood the news he put his arms about her. But she gently thrust him from her and stood gazing great-eyed into space. She was seeing again what she saw that night beneath the monument. All her girlhood seemed to drop from her. Her small figure grew terrible with agony, her little white mouth was drawn with determination to have revenge.

She lifted her hands to heaven in solemn consecration and made her vow:

"I will not rest until I discover the murderer of Richard Freneau and bring him to justice."

Then, waving her father aside, she marched out into the hall and up the great staircase like a young queen going to the guillotine.

THE EIGHT Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of the STATE OF MINNESOTA

Submitted by the Legislature at Its General Session, 1915, Together With a Statement of the

PURPOSES AND EFFECTS,

Prepared by Hon. Lyndon A. Smith, Attorney General of Minnesota.

Addressed to Julius A. Schmahl Secretary of State

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, ST. PAUL.

April 7, 1916.

Honorable Julius A. Schmahl,
Secretary of State,
Capitol.

DEAR SIR: Pursuant to your request and in accordance with the provisions of Section 46, Statutes 1913, I herewith hand you statement of the purposes and effect of all amendments to the Constitution proposed by the legislature of 1915 and to be submitted to the electors at the next general election; such statement also shows the reading of the existing sections and the way the same will read if the amendments are adopted.

Yours truly,
LYNDON A. SMITH,
Attorney General.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By Chapter 379, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Two (2) of Article Eight of the Constitution, by adding to said Section Two a new paragraph.

Section Two as it now stands reads as follows:

Section 2. "SCHOOL AND SWAMP LANDS—SCHOOL FUNDS FROM SALE OF—The proceeds of such lands as are or hereafter may be granted by the United States for the use of schools within each township in this state shall remain a perpetual school fund to the state; and not more than one-third of said lands may be sold in two years, one-third in five years, and one-third in ten years; but the lands of the greatest valuation shall be sold first: Provided, that no portion of said lands shall be sold otherwise than at public sale. The principal of all funds arising from sales or other disposition of lands or other property, granted or intrusted to this state in each township for educational purposes, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished; and the income arising from the lease or sale of said school land shall be distributed to the different townships throughout the state, in proportion to the number of scholars in each township, between the ages of five and twenty-one years; and shall be faithfully applied to the specific objects of the original grants or appropriations. Suitable laws shall be enacted by the legislature for the safe investment of the principal of all funds which have heretofore arisen or which may hereafter arise from the sale or other disposition of such lands, or the income from such lands accruing in any way before the sale or disposition thereof in interest-bearing bonds of the United States, or of the State of Minnesota issued after the year 1860, or of such other state as the legislature may by law from time to time direct. All swamp lands now held by the state, or that may hereafter accrue to the state, shall be appraised and sold in the same manner and by the same officers, and the minimum price shall be the same less one-third, as is provided by law for the appraisement and sale of the school lands under the provisions of title one of chapter thirty-eight of the General Statutes. The principal of all funds derived from sales of swamp lands as aforesaid shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished. One-half of the proceeds of said principal shall be appropriated to the common school fund of the state; the remaining one-half shall be appropriated to the educational and charitable institutions of the state in the relative ratio of cost to support said institutions."

The paragraph which it is proposed to add to said Section Two reads as follows:

> "A revolving fund of not over two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) may be set apart from the fund derived from the sale of school and swamp lands, to be used in constructing roads, ditches and fire breaks in, through and around unsold school and swamp lands and in clearing such lands, such fund to be replenished as long as needed from the enhanced value realized from the sale of such lands so benefited."

Under Section Two as it now stands the proceeds of the sale of school and swamp lands constitute the principal of a trust fund, the income of which is used for the support of the schools, educational and charitable institutions of the state. Section Two as it now stands provides that the principal of such fund "shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished."

THE EFFECT of the proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to modify the provision last quoted to the extent of permitting the legislature to set aside not to exceed $250,000 of the principal of the trust fund as a revolving fund to be used for the purposes stated in the amendment proposed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2.

By Chapter 380, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Six (6), of Article Eight (8) of the Constitution.

Section Six as it now stands reads as follows:

"Section 6. INVESTMENT OF SCHOOL FUNDS — The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, but no such investment shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed fifteen per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable real property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall such loans or indebtedness be made at a lower rate of interest than three per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than twenty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of the issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds."

If the proposed amendment is adopted it will then read as follows:

> "The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, and in first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands of this state. But no such investment or loan shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed 15 per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall any farm loan, or investment be made when such investment or loan would exceed 30 per cent of the actual cash value of the farm land mortgage to secure said investment; nor shall such investments or loans be made at a lower rate of interest than 3 per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than thirty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds."

THE PURPOSE of the amendment is to authorize the investment of the permanent school and university funds in "first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands where the amount of the loans so secured does not exceed 30 per cent of the value of the land mortgaged.

THE EFFECT of the adoption of the proposed amendment will be to permit the legislature to authorize the investment of the permanent school and university funds in farm mortgages as above stated, as well as in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state. Under Section Six as it now reads bonds cannot be purchased unless they mature at least five and not more than twenty years after purchase. If the amendment is adopted, bonds and mortgages may be purchased if they mature not less than five nor more than thirty years after purchase.

By Chapter 381, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Article Nine (9) of the Constitution by adding thereto a new section, which reads as follows:

> "Section 17. The legislature is hereby authorized to provide by law for the mining and sale of any iron ore or other minerals which the state owns, in its sovereign capacity, and as trustee for the people of the state, which are situate under the waters or bed of any meandered public lake or river, and for that purpose may provide for the drainage of any such lake or river, or the diversion of the waters thereof to a new bed or channel, provided, however, that the vested riparian rights of private persons or corporations owning land adjoining such lakes shall not be destroyed or damaged without their consent, unless compensation therefor shall be first paid or secured. The principal of all funds arising from the sale of such iron ore, or other minerals, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished, but the income therefrom shall be used for the construction, improvement and maintenance of the public roads of the state. The principal of such funds shall be loaned or invested in the same manner, by the same officers and upon the same terms as is, or from time to time hereafter may be authorized by the constitution and laws, for the loaning or investment of the permanent school and university funds of the state."

THE PURPOSE of the proposed amendment cannot be more clearly stated than is expressed therein.

THE EFFECT of the amendment, if adopted, would be to confer power on the legislature to provide by law for the mining of iron ore and other minerals, which the state owns in its sovereign capacity and situate under the bed of any meandered public lake or river, subject to the restriction that the rights of riparian owners on any such lake or river, shall not be destroyed or injured without compensation. If the legislature exercises the power, in case it is conferred, it could also provide for the drainage or diversion of the waters of the lake or river with reference to which it so legislates; it could also prescribe by whom such minerals could be mined and the compensation to be paid to the state therefor. The proceeds of the sale of any such minerals would constitute a fund to be loaned and invested the same as the permanent school and university funds, the income of such fund to be used in the construction, improvement and maintenance of public roads.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4.

By Chapter 382, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed an amendment to Section Two (2) of Article Six of the Constitution.

Said Section 2 now reads as follows:

"Section 2. SUPREME COURT—The supreme court shall consist of one chief justice and two associate justices, but the number of associate justices may be increased to a number not exceeding four, by the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, when it shall be deemed necessary. It shall have original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there shall be no trial by jury in said court. It shall hold one or more terms in each year, as the legislature may direct, at the seat of government, and the legislature may provide, by a two-thirds vote, that one term in each year shall be held in each or any judicial district. It shall be the duty of such court to appoint a reporter of its decisions. There shall be chosen, by the qualified electors of the state, one clerk of the supreme court, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor is duly elected and qualified; and the judges of the supreme court, or a majority of them, shall have the power to fill any vacancy in the office of clerk of the supreme court until an election can be regularly had."

If the proposed amendment is adopted the section will then read as follows:

> "Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of one chief justice and six associate justices. Five shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of at least four shall be necessary to a decision. It shall have original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there shall be no trial by jury in said court. It shall hold one or more terms in each year, as the legislature may direct, at the seat of government, and the legislature may provide, by a two-thirds vote, that one term in each year shall be held in each or any judicial district. It shall be the duty of such court to appoint a reporter of its decisions and a clerk of the supreme court."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: The Supreme Court as now constituted consists of a chief justice and four associate justices. The clerk of said court is now elected. If the amendment is adopted, two associate justices will be added to the court and the clerk will be appointed by the court instead of being elected by the voters.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5.

By Chapter 383, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Eleven (11) of Article Four (4) of the Constitution.

Said section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. APPROVAL OF BILLS BY GOVERNOR — VETO POWER—Every bill which shall have passed the senate and house of representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the state. If he approves he shall sign and deposit it in the office of the secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by adjournment within that time, prevents its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case, he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money."

It is proposed to amend that section so that it shall read as follows:

"Section 11. Every bill which shall have passed the senate and house of representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the state. If he approves he shall sign and deposit it in the office of the secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature by adjournment within that time, prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of such items in whole or in part, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items and parts of items to which he objects, and the part of any appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to in whole or in part shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval in whole or in part from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: Under the Constitution as it now is, the governor may veto any item in an appropriation bill, but he cannot cut down the amount appropriated for any specific purpose. The amendment, if adopted, will give the governor power to reduce the amount of an appropriation for any given purpose, unless upon transmittal to the legislature of a statement of the part of an item of an appropriation bill to which he objects, the two houses, each by a two-thirds vote, approve the item as it was originally passed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 6.

By Chapter 384, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed an amendment of Section Thirteen (13) of Article One (1) of the Constitution.

The section as it now stands reads as follows:

"Section 13. PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR PUBLIC USE — Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use, without just compensation therefor first paid or secured."

If the amendment is adopted the section will read as follows:

> "Section 13. Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use, without just compensation therefor first paid or secured, and such private property may be taken, destroyed or damaged for the purpose of private as well as public drainage upon just compensation therefor being first paid or secured."

THE PURPOSE of the proposed amendment is to permit the taking of private lands for the purpose of drainage purposes where the drain or ditch will be of no public benefit, but on the contrary will only benefit the land or lands of the person or persons constructing the drainage ditch.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 7.

By Chapter 385, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section One (1) of Article Four (4) of the Constitution.

Section One as it now stands, reads as follows:

"Section 1. TWO HOUSES — SESSIONS — The legislature shall consist of the senate and house of representatives, which shall meet biennially at the seat of government of the state, at such time as shall be prescribed by law, but no session shall exceed the term of ninety legislative days, and no new bill shall be introduced in either branch except on the written request of the governor, during the last twenty days of such session, except the attention of the legislature shall be called to some important matter of general interest by a special message from the governor."

If the amendment is adopted, the section will then read as follows:

> Sec. 1. TWO HOUSES—SESSIONS. — The legislature shall consist of the senate and house of representatives, which shall meet biennially at the seat of government of the state, at such time as shall be prescribed by law, but no session shall exceed the term of ninety (90) legislative days, and no bill shall be introduced in either branch, except on the written request of the governor, during the last twenty days of such session, except the attention of the legislature shall be called to some important matter of general interest by a special message from the governor; but the people reserve to themselves direct power as follows:
>
> (a) CONSTITUTIONAL INITIATIVE.—When at any time prior to the commencement of any session of the legislature, there shall have been filed with the secretary of state a petition proposing an amendment to the constitution, signed by two per centum of the electors of the state, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the legislature not later than ten (10) days after the commencement of the session. If the amendment so proposed be not submitted to the electors by the legislature at such session, or if it be submitted in an amended form, then, upon a further petition or petitions, each signed by eight per centum of the electors of the state, filed with the secretary of state within six months after the adjournment of the legislature, the amendment proposed in the first petition, or one or more amended forms thereof, shall be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection at the next general or special state-wide election occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of any such further petition. Any amendment proposed by initiative petition and, in its original or in an amended form, submitted to the electors by the legislature or by a further petition, shall become a part of the constitution, if approved by a majority of the electors voting at such election, or by four-sevenths of the electors voting on the proposed amendment; provided, not less than three-sevenths of the electors voting at said election voted for the proposed amendment. This section shall be construed as a means in addition to Section 1, Article 14, of the state constitution, for amending the same.
>
> (b) STATUTORY INITIATIVE.—When at any time prior to the commencement of any session of the legislature there shall have been filed with the secretary of state, a petition proposing a law, signed by two per centum of the electors of the state, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the legislature not later than ten (10) days after the commencement of the session. If the law so proposed be not passed by the legislature at such session, or if it be passed in an amended form, then upon a further petition or petitions, each signed by six per centum of the electors of the state, filed with the secretary of state within six months after the adjournment of the legislature, the law proposed in the first petition or one or more amended forms thereof, shall be submitted to the electors at the next general or special state-wide election, occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of any such further petition or petitions, and if approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, provided the vote in favor of the proposed law be not less than thirty-three per centum of the total number of votes cast at such election, the same shall become a law and go into effect thirty days after such election, and shall supersede any amended form of such law which may have been passed by the legislature. No law passed by the initiative petition and approved by the electors shall be subject to the veto of the governor. The authority of the people to enact laws, as provided in this subdivision, shall extend only to laws authorized by the provisions of the constitution.
>
> (c) THE REFERENDUM. — If within ninety days after the final adjournment of any session of the legislature, a referendum petition, signed by six per centum of the electors of the state, shall be filed with the secretary of state against any law or any part of a law, passed by the legislature at such session, such law, or such part of a law shall be submitted to the electors at the next general or special state-wide election, occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of said petition. If a majority of the votes cast thereon be in the negative, provided such negative vote be not less than thirty-three per centum of the total number of votes cast at such election, such law or such part of a law shall thereby be repealed. Provided, that if a referendum petition is signed by fifteen per centum of the electors of the state, the law, or part of a law, against which such petition is filed shall be suspended pending the referendum vote thereon. Provided the same shall equal 33 per cent of the votes at such election.
>
> Any law providing for a tax levy or appropriating money for the current expenses of the state government or state institutions, any act of the legislature submitting a constitutional amendment or other question to the electors of the state, or any emergency law necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, shall go into effect immediately upon its passage and approval by the governor, and such laws, except emergency laws, shall not be subject to a referendum vote. All other laws shall go into effect ninety days after the adjournment of the legislature. A bill proposing an emergency law shall contain a preamble briefly setting forth the facts constituting the emergency. A separate vote shall be taken upon the preamble of such bill by a call of the yeas and nays, and if the preamble be adopted by a two-thirds vote of all the members of each house, it shall be an emergency law.
>
> (d) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—All petitions provided for in this section shall contain a title indicating the subject and purpose of the proposed law or constitutional amendment, or the law, or part of a law to be referred, and if a change is proposed in an existing constitutional provision or statute, in addition to referring to the same, it shall state the general effect of the proposed change and also the full text of the proposed law or amendment to the constitution, or of the law or part of a law, to be referred. Any initiative or referendum petition may be signed in separate parts but each part shall conform to the provisions herein contained. All petitions shall be signed and verified before a person authorized to administer an oath, and shall be in such form that a person signing a petition thereby states under oath, the date of his signature, his residence, that he is a qualified elector, that he has not previously signed any part of such petition, and that he has signed the petition with knowledge of the contents thereof. To each part of such petition shall be attached the affidavit of the person before whom the same was signed, which affidavit shall contain a statement of the number of signers thereon, that each of the signatures attached to such part was made in the presence of the affiant, that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be, that he believes the persons who have signed such petition to be electors, that they signed such petition with knowledge of the contents thereof, and that each person signed the same on the date stated opposite his name. The circulation of the petition provided for herein, or the prohibition of the circulation thereof, may be regulated by law, and in case the circulation of any petition is prohibited by law, the percentage of signers required on any petition provided for in this section shall be one-half of the percentage specified in subdivisions a, b and c of this section.
>
> The percentage in any case shall be based upon the total number of votes cast for governor at the next preceding election. All petitions provided for in this section shall contain the signature of not less than one-half of the designated percentage of the electors in not less than one-fourth of the counties of the state. In initiating a law or constitutional amendment, electors who have signed the first shall be qualified to sign the second petition.
>
> The sufficiency of all petitions shall be decided by the secretary of state subject to review by the court. If the secretary of state decides that any petition is insufficient, he shall permit a reasonable time for making corrections or for filing additional signatures. In the event of legal proceedings in court to prevent giving effect to any such petition on account of insufficiency, or any other ground, the burden of proof shall be upon the person attacking the petition. No law or amendment to the constitution initiated and approved by the electors as herein provided, shall be held unconstitutional or void on account of the insufficiency of any initiative petition: nor shall the repeal of any law submitted by referendum petition be held invalid for such insufficiency.
>
> All initiative laws and constitutional amendments shall be so submitted to the electors as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each measure submitted. If conflicting proposed laws or conflicting proposed amendments to the constitution be approved at the same election, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall prevail as to conflicting provisions.
>
> The style of all legislative measures and amendments to the constitution initiated by the people under this section shall be: "Be it enacted by the People of the State of Minnesota."
>
> The provisions of this section may be enforced by appropriate legislation, but until such legislation has been enacted, this section shall be self executing.

THE PURPOSE AND EFFECT of this amendment, if adopted, will be three-fold.

(a) It will permit the voters to propose amendments to the state constitution, for adoption, without action by the legislature. Under the constitution as it now stands constitutional amendments can be proposed only by the legislature.

(b) So, too, if adopted, the amendment will permit electors to propose laws for enactment and if not enacted by the legislatures, the voters may by sufficient petition, require the question of the enactment of the proposed law to be submitted to the voters. If approved by a majority of the electors voting, thereon, provided the vote in favor of the proposed law is not less than thirty-three per cent of the total number of votes cast at such election, the same becomes a law with the same force and effect as though passed by the legislature. The governor will have no power to veto a law so passed, but the people cannot so pass any law which is prohibited by the constitution.

(c) So too, if adopted, the amendment will permit the voters by proper petition to require a vote on the question of whether or not any law or part thereof, of certain classes of laws, passed by the legislature shall be repealed. If the petition asking for the referendum is signed by fifteen per cent of the voters of the state, the number of whom is to be determined by the number of votes cast for Governor at the preceding election, the law so referred to the voters will not take effect pending the referendum vote thereon. The vote required to repeal a law passed by the legislature and the classes of laws which cannot be so repealed are specified in Subdivision "C" of the proposed amendment as above printed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 8.

By Chapter 386, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors an amendment of Section 7, Article 6, of the constitution.

The section now reads as follows:

"Section 7. PROBATE COURTS—There shall be established in each organized county in the state a probate court, which shall be a court of record, and be held at such times and places as may be prescribed by law. It shall be held by one judge, who shall be elected by the voters of the county for the term of two years. He shall be a resident of such county at the time of his election, and reside therein during his continuance in office; and his compensation shall be provided by law. He may appoint his own clerk where none has been elected; but the legislature may authorize the election, by the electors of any county, of one clerk of register of probate for such county, whose powers, duties, term of office and compensation shall be prescribed by law. A probate court shall have jurisdiction over the estates of deceased persons and persons under guardianship, but no other jurisdiction, except as prescribed by this constitution."

The amendment simply proposes to substitute the word "four" for the word "two" so that the sentence prescribing the duration of the term of office will, if the amendment is adopted, read as follows:

> "It shall be held by one judge, who shall be elected by the voters of the county for the term of four years."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: The amendment, if adopted will make the term of office of the Judge of Probate four years instead of two.

Visited by the Catacombs.

"Did I understand you to say you were in Europe?" he asked of the man who was talking to a drummer across the aisle.

"Yes, sir."

"Were you in Rome?"

"I was there for a month, sir."

"Ah, I am glad to have met you. I wanted to ask about Rome. You visited the catacombs, of course?"

"Didn't have to. They visited me."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, I never stirred out of the hotel that they weren't striking me for alms. Never saw such an infernal set in all my born days."

"Don't you mean the lazzaroni?"

"Of course. The catacombs and the lazzaroni are the same thing, only 'catacombs' is the Italian of it and the other is 'he English. If you haven't been over I'd advise you to go—if you can raise the dudads. You don't know how much a trip abroad will broaden and liberalize your mind."

And the other sank back and hid himself in a corner, and he did not get over looking pale for the next 30 miles.

Real Academic Dignity.

Max Muller tells a story of one of Dr. Strachan Davidson's predecessors as master of Balliol. "Once, when returning from a solitary walk, Doctor Jenkins, whose regard for his own dignity was very great, slipped and fell. Two undergraduates, seeing the accident, ran to assist him, and were just laying hands on him to lift him up when he descried a master of arts coming. 'Stop!' he cried. 'I see a master of arts coming down the street,' and he dismissed the undergraduates with many thanks, and was helped on his legs by the M. A."—London Chronicle.

The Clever Wasp.

Wasps appear to be well-nigh as industrious as ants or bees. One authority has declared that the cardinal doctrine of the wasp is: "If any wasp will not work, neither shall he eat."

Division of labor is clearly seen in the wasp's nest. Some of the workers seem to be specially employed as foragers and soldiers, others appear to be told off as nurses and guardians, while yet others are engaged as paper makers and masons.

Hill Road Fiscal Year Reports Shows A Surplus Account Of $2,287.027

The best year in the history of the Great Northern railway was the year ending June 30, 1916, according to the reports presented to the stockholders at their annual meeting in St. Paul the latter part of last week. Several lines have been extended and considerable equipment added.

$79,832,612 is shown as the total operating revenue as compared with $65,947,970 in 1915. The freight revenues for the year were $60,177 249, and the passenger $13,661,644. In 1915 the respective revenues of these two departments were $47,147, 313 and $13,164,857, showing an increase in freight revenues of approximately $13,000,000 and in the passenger revenue of $500,000.

Revenue from dining and buffet cars, storage, privileges and other sources was $1,429,866, making the total revenues $81,262,478, as compared with $67,162,857 in 1915.

Operating expenses for the year, $43,914,076 as compared with $36,828, 274 in 1915.

Total appropriations were $25,313, 586, leaving a balance to the surplus account of $2,287.027.

The appropriations included four quarterly dividends of one and three fourths per cent, a total of 7 per cent.

Piper is New Director

George F. Piper of Minneapolis, was elected a member of the board of directors of the Wisconsin Central Railway company to succeed the late W. S. Fitch, president of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad company at a meeting in Minneapolis on Monday.

The Wisconsin Central was taken over by the Soo Line several years ago and is now a part of the Soo. At the same time President Edmund Pennington and all other officers of the road were re-elected.

C. P. R. RAIL MEN VOTE FOR STRIKE

Ninety Eight Per Cent of Ballots Cast Favor Recommendations of Committee.

At a meeting of the unions of conductors and trainmen of the Canadian Pacific railway Tuesday it was announced that the count of ballots disclosed Ninety eight and seven tenths per cent in favor of the proposals of the joint committee, which is tantamount to a strike order, unless direct negotiations with the company reach an adjustment satisfactory to both sides. Grant Hall, vice president and general manager for the west, who has full authority to negotiate with the men, met with the union committee yesterday.

"We don't use the word strike," said James Murdoch, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, though he acknowledged that the resrult of the vote authorized the committee to proceed to that extreme.

Orm From Detroit.—Soo Fireman T. Orm returned Tuesday evening from Detroit, where he had passed a short time visiting with friends.

What Do You Expect of Your Chickens This Winter?

Are you looking for any profit from them, or just merely a feed bill?

Haven't you ever wished you could get enough winter eggs to be able to sell a few and make a little money out of them?

On a great many farms chickens are considered as one of the money-makers because they produce in the winter time when eggs are high.

And on such farms you will almost invariably find a well built chicken house—dry, warm, sunny and carefully ventilated.

Are your chickens housed so they can produce? If not, we can help you plan improvements. They won't cost much.

MEETS DEATH IN BURNING HOUSE

Charles Westby, Aged Sixty-five Unable to Escape When Building Catches Fire

OVERTURNED LAMP CAUSE

Unfortunate Man and Companion Had Been Drinking and Were Asleep When Fire Started—Inquest Deemed Unnecessary

Charles Westby, about 65 years of age, a plasterer and cement worker, was burned to death when an overturned lamp set fire to his shack in the southwestern portion of the city on Saturday evening. Eric Holstrom, whose home is at Strandquist, was with the unfortunate man at the time and barely escaped with his life.

Had Been Drinking.

The two men were seen about the shack during the entire afternoon by neighbors. They evidently had a supply of whiskey, as Holstrom was still intoxicated when he was found by the firemen and officers after his escape from the burning building.

Overturned Lamp.

It is thought that the fire started either by the overturning or exploding of the lamp. When questioned by the officers, Holstrom said that he and Westby had fallen asleep sometime during the late afternoon and that he had been awakened by the latter to find the room in flames. He made for the door, at the same time calling to Westby to follow.

Was Badly Burned.

The body of Westby was found partly under a table near one of the two windows in the room, according to James Farr and Sheriff LaBree, who were the first to enter the place after the fire was under control. One side of the body was so badly burned that the flesh came away when an attempt was made to move the body.

Tried For The Window.

It is thought that because of his condition Westby was unable to follow Holstrom out of the building. There were two doors to the shack, but against one of these a bedstead was placed and it was never used. Because of the fire in the direction of the other door, it is thought that Westby found it impossible to reach that means of egress and that he made an attempt to get out of the window. He must have been overcome just as he reached the window as he had evidently been unable to raise it.

After having awakened Holstrom it seems as if Westby must have stopped to pull on his shoes, as he had one of these on when found.

Postmortem Ordered

Coroner H. R. Halverson decided that no inquest was necessary, but requested Dr. Froehlich, county physician, to make a post mortem examination. This disclosed nothing that would indicate an injury of any kind other than those caused by the fire and disposed of any suspicion of foul play. The physicians verdict was death by burning and suffocation.

Was Well Known.

Westby was a well-known character about town. He owned the house in which he met his death and also some other property. He had lately been employed at cement work by Lars Backe and had a sum of money coming to him for labor which will about cover the expense connected with his funeral. When found he had also 18.82 in his pockets, besides a cheap watch, a jacknife and some pool room checks.

In spite of his long residence in this neighborhood no one seems to know anything about the man. He is said to have relatives living in the state but Coroner Halverson has been unable to reach them.

The funeral was held from the undertaking rooms Tuesday forenoon.

WON THEIR MONEY; ORDERED 'EM OUT

This Charge Brought Against Arnt Auli and Ole Torgerson, Pool Room Owners.

On a warrant charging them with gambling, Arnt Auli and Ole Torgerson were brought before Judge N. W. Tarrant and fined fifteen dollars and costs each Monday. The complaining witness was Casper Sandstrom, claiming Cloquet as his home, and who had just returned from the harvest fields of Dakota.

Sandstrom, who seems to be a pretty decent sort of a chap, gives his version of the activities through which he lost his roll about as follows: He and a companion got into a poker game in the bowling alley conducted by Auli and Torgerson, playing there for a number of sessions. The partner proved a consistent loser and Sandstrom also was getting rid of his wad when both the men were notified that the game in the future would be closed to them. Getting thus fired out without a chance to win back their money did not suit the pair and they swore out a warrant against Auli and Torgerson for running a gambling joint. When the case came up for hearing County Attorney Kjomme suggested that the charge be changed to plain gambling, being doubtful of securing a conviction for the graver offense. The men pleaded guilty and were fined $15 and costs, amounting to $18 in all, which was paid.

Trouble Continues

That did not end the matter, however. The next day Sandstrom was met at the corner of Third street and Horace avenue by one Arthur Williams, who without any previous introduction, proceeded to alter the contour of Sandstrom's face, employing fists and feet in the operation. Williams pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and five dollars and costs were assessed by Judge Tarrant in this case.

Ordered Out.

As soon as notice of these proceedings reached the officials of the Citizens State bank, in the basement of which building the bowling alley was located, Cashier T. L. Melgaard at once ordered Auli and Torgerson to pack up and get out. In addition to this, County Attorney Kjomme notified Judge Grindeland that Auli, who is out on parole issued by the district court, was not living up to the orders of the court. A thirty day sentence for bootlegging hangs over him and can be put into effect any time the court so orders.

REST ROOM AND VISITING NURSE

Local Organizations Now Formulating Plans to Provide Proper Place and Attendant.

The matter of a public rest room for this city is being considered by several social organizations and it is likely that definite plans for the establishment of such a place will be formulated in the very near future.

The need of a public rest room was called to the attention of the public by The Times several weeks ago and since that time the matter has been quite thoroughly discussed by the citizens and it now seems certain that some feasible plan will be carried out. Sentiment seems to favor securing a visiting nurse for the county and place her in charge of the rest room where she would be of valuable assistance to the people of the entire county. This is a most excellent plan and it is to be hoped that it can be carried out.

It is certain that whatever plan is adopted by those behind the movement it will have the hearty support of the public.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO HOLD CONVENTION

District Meeting of All Churches Will Be Held Here on Saturday and Sunday.

A district Sunday school convention will be held in the Zion Lutheran church in this city on Saturday and Sunday next at which all the churches in the county are expected to have delegates.

A. M. Locker, field secretary of the state association, will be in attendance and will deliver a number of addresses dealing with the progress of the work and outlining suggestions for its more effective prosecution. Mr. Locker is one of the best known men in the country in this field of endeavor and is in much demand at these meetings. Addresses will also be made by the local people interested in Sunday school advancement and the delegates from the outlying districts will be invited to take avtive part.

The convention will open on Saturday morning at ten o'clock, and continue throughout the day. There will be no meeting Sunday morning and all the churches will hold their usual services at that time. In the afternoon there will be a rally for all workers and Sunday school attendants. The plan includes the holding of a big union meeting in the evening to which the people of all churches and Sunday schools are urged to attend. Mr. Locker will be the speaker for this occasion.

WHITE WAY IS DIMMED DURING WINTER MONTHS

Superintendent Leonard Peterson of the water and light department, has warned the city council that with the coming on of the longer nights the power equipment at the plant is going to be unable to carry the load. The equipment is already being taxed beyond its rated capacity and the superintendent fears that the result of attempting to carry more might prove disastrous. About 1,200 amperes are now being developed, which is at least 100 more than the plant ought to carry.

At the council meeting Tuesday evening Mr. Peterson asked permission to cut off four of the lights on all the down-town street standards, leaving only the one at the top. He also suggested that some of the lights in the outlying districts might be dispensed with for awhile. The council ordered the superintendent to use his own judgment in handling the light situation until such time as sufficient power for all purposes is again available.

REVOKE LICENSE OF ARNT AULI

Bowling Alley Proprietor Deprived of Permit For Allowing Gambling on His Premises.

THIRD VOTE ON BAND LEVY

Must Get Along Without Regular Place in the Budget—Railroad Will Consider Matter of Reimbursment for Sewer Work

No bowling alleys will hereafter be permitted in basements or other places where police surveilance is a matter of inconvenience. This order was issued by the city council at the request of Mayor F. H. Gambell at the regular meeting on Tuesday evening.

The mayor was present to suggest that the bowling alley license of Arnt Auli be revoked. Auli had been arrested and fined for gambling earlier in the week and had been ordered out of the building occupied by him. The council by a unanimous vote declared the license forfeited.

Band Request Again Denied

For the third time the request of the Minnesota State band, asking that the sum of $500 be provided for the maintenance of the city's musical organization by having provision made for it in the regular tax levy, was turned down. The sum involved was in reality $200, as it has been the custom to appropriate $300 to pay for the services of the band on Memorial day. The vote stood as at the former meetings when the matter was up for consideration, with the exception of Tobias Reep, who for the first time occupying his seat as the successor of Henry Amble, voted against the proposition. He said he believed the support of the band had better be a matter of private subscription.

The motion to grant the request was made by Councilman Froseth and seconded by Councilman Ihle. On roll call President Ackerman and Councilmen Benson and Froseth voted yes, while Councilmen Bakken and Reep voted in the negative. Ihle did not vote.

The Pool Room Ordinance

Frank Effinger was present and asked the council to grant him permission to use a curtain instead of a partition between his cigar stand and the pool room operated in the rear of the same building. Mayor Gambell was asked his opinion on the subject and stated that he believed that the ordinance covering the matter should be lived up to. If it was found that the regulation was working a hardship against anyone, it should be changed so as to apply to all alike. The council also seemed to take this view, and nothing was done with the request.

Local Contractors Get Job

The contract for the construction of a sewer in District No. 4 was let to the Holt & George Heating and Plumbing company for $2,504. One other bid was presented but was not in the hands of the city clerk within the time specified and could therefore not be considered.

Reported on Municipal Meeting

President Ackerman and Councilman Bakken submitted a general report of the proceedings of the meetings of the League of Minnesota Municipalities at Red Wing a short time ago. Many subjects of general interest came up, chief among which was a program of legislation to be suggested to the lawmakers at the next winter's session.

President Ackerman stated that he had approached the proper officials of the Soo railway at Minneapolis on the subject of sharing the cost of sewer construction along Atlantic avenue. The railroad is greatly benefitted by this improvement and there seems some hope that the matter will in some manner be adjusted satisfactorily.

CHOICE BUSINESS CORNER ACQUIRED

Bernhard Knudsen Purchases Soo Cafe Property on Third Street From Dennis Cavanaugh

A real estate transfer of considerable importance was completed this week when Bernhard Knudsen purchased the Soo Cafe property at the corner of Third street and Horace avenue from Dennis Cavanaugh. The consideration is understood to have been $15,000.

The lot, which is 54 feet on the Third street side and 100 feet along Horace avenue, is one of the best business locations in the city. The present lesee, Joseph Strubeck, holds the property under lease from Mr. Cavanaugh for another year, and as he has not been notified of any change in his status he expects that the new owners will carry out the agreement now existing. Nothing can be learned of Mr. Knudsen's intention as concerns the property at the end of that time but an improvement of more than ordinary interest and importance is hinted at.

PHANTOMS LEAD FOR TITLE RUN

Thief River High To Stage Second Game With Red Lake Falls Saturday.

2 GAMES LEFT ON CARD

Team is Confident of Winning Contest—Johnson Forces Will Uncork Plays to Mystify Red Lake Crew.

The Thief River Falls high school football team, 1915 "champs" of Northwestern Minnesota, and contenders for the 1916 title, will be called upon Saturday to defend its interscholastic football fort against the bombardment of the Red Lake Falls crew. The game was scheduled for last week, but was cancelled on account of snow covering the field.

Team Double Ribbed.

With Coach Johnson's machine doubled ribbed and triple riveted, so that it is airtight and puncture proof, the members of the Thief River Falls high school team are at attention, awaiting the referee's whistle, which will start them ripping and tearing at Red Lake's line Saturday afternoon. The local team looms up stronger than ever before as the favorite to win Northwestern Minnesota football honors. Johnson's men defeated Fosston by a 13 to 0 score and are conceded a victory over Red Lake Falls. A number of local football followers think the boys faced their hardest game with Fosston, while others are of the opinion that Saturday's contest will try their real strength. Red Lake Falls was defeated by Johnson's men early in the season by 19 to 0, and on their home grounds at that. Since that time, however, Red Lake Falls is reported to have improved considerably and has handed East Grand Forks 12 to 0 beating. This victory blasts the Forker's chance for winning the title.

Will Be Big Battle

Little is being given out regarding the preparations for what will surely prove to be one of the greatest gridiron contests of the present season. It is known, however, that Red Lake Falls is framing from every conceiveable angle and is concentrating all its forces for the accomplishment of the defeat of Johnson's Colts. On this side of the county line, the members of the local team are being drilled harder than ever before. Despite the snow, the boys have been out and all the knowledge of football which Coach Johnson possesses and the versatility of Captain Holzknecht are being instilled into the members of the Johnson moleskin army.

To Uncork New Plays

New plays which Holzknecht is uncorking for use in the coming engagement will undoubtedly tend to throw the Red Lake forces off the trail of many a Thief River player who will be given the ball. The can-

NO NEW QUARTERS FOR POSTOFFICE

Five Year Lease is Entered Into With Owners of Building Now Used—No Changes

Postmaster John Morgan has this week been informed by the department at Washington that an agreemen has been entered into with E. J. Pfiffner, owner of the building in which the postoffice is now located, whereby the lease of the premises is continued for a period of five years. M. C. Burns, the local agent of the Pfiffner and Meehan properties, has also received word from his principals to the same effect.

It is stated that no enlargement or alterations enter into the contract, the government agreeing to use the building as it now stands. This is a keen disappointment to the local postoffice crew who have been struggling along for a long time in quarters entirely inadequate to their needs.

"Somewhere In France."

The European war has again come very close to a Thief River Falls family. Mrs. J. Bollis has just received word from her son, Rufus, J., formerly a resident of this city but now living in Three Hills, Alta., Can., stating that his brother-in-law, Wesley Addest, had been slain in France. Mr. Addest was but 20 years of age and must have just begun his career as a soldier, as a letter received from him dated Sept. 17, stated that he had not yet reached the trenches.

CLUB COMPLIMENTS LOKEN ENTERPRISE

Resolutions Passed Also Extend Congratulations on Success of Recent Style Show.

At the regular meeting of the executice committee of the Commercial club held last evening a resolution was passed extending the congratulations and voicing the appreciation of the club on the success of the style show recently conducted under the auspices of these merchants. The resolutions are as follows:

Whereas: The firm of Loken Brother's recently conducted a Style show in the Auditorium of this city by reason of which the careful arrangement of details and elaborate display of fashionable garments, attracted a capacity audience of ladies and gentlemen from this city and from a large number of outside cities. And said show was conducted upon an elaborate basis without reference to cost or expense; and,

Whereas: Said Style show proved a substantial and desirable advertisement for Thief River Falls as a trade center, reflecting credit upon the merchants responsible for it, and upon other merchants of the city, and put the city on a high plane as a trade center and helped materially the standard of merchandising in our city; therefore,

Be it Resolved: That the Commercial club extend to the firm of Loken Brothers its congratulations upon their success and cordial appreciation of the value of their efforts in advertising the city as a trade center and the high standard of its business firms engaged in retail trade; and,

Be it Further Resolved: That this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the club and a copy of the same be forwarded to Loken Brothers with the compliments of the club.

SPECIAL SESSION FOR SATURDAY

Legislature Will Meet for Purpose of Passing Soldier Vote Bill For Men in Service.

St. Paul, Oct. 26—(Special to The Times).—Governor Burnquist today issued a call convening the Minnesota legislature in extra session for Saturday morning.

The purpose of this session is to provide some means whereby the soldiers now doing active duty on the Mexican border will be allowed to vote at the coming election.

Senator D. P. O'Neill has expressed himself as being strongly in favor of the session. He expects that a bill will be introduced and hurried through both houses in order that an early adjournment may be had.

REPORT RECEIVED REGARDING SCHOOL

One-Story Plan May Present Difficulties in Meeting Requirements of State Authorities.

Clerk Charles A. Pitkin of the school board, is in receipt of a communication from the state inspector of schools which will cause some changes in the plans for a building entertained by the board members. According to the state official a one-story building is more expensive than the other style of construction as well as more costly to operate. This is not the chief objection, however. It was the intention to construct the basement of the new building in such manner that it could be divided into class rooms in case necessity for such action ever arose. This cannot be done under the Minnesota regulations as these require that not more than one of any class room shall be below the level of the surrounding grounds. A basement may, however, be used for departmental purposes, such as manual training, agricultural instruction, etc., but no such departments would be provided for in the new structure.

The board expects to meet this afternoon and talk the matter over. It will probably be decided that it will be impossible to secure architects' plans by the sixth of November as at first intended, and the time will likely be extended.

EX-GOV. JOHN LIND MAY SPEAK HERE

Possibility of Ex-Governor Coming to Thief River Falls Cheers Local Democrats.

There has not been an outside political speaker in the city of Thief River Falls for the purpose of delivering an address thus far during this campaign, and the time is getting pretty short now. The Democrats, however, are planning on a big rally. E. M. Stanton, state committeeman for Pennington county, has received a letter from Chairman Fred E. Wheaton of the state organization, in which he states that there is a possibility that Ex-Gov. John Lind may be in the city for the purpose of delivering an address before the campaign closes.

In his communication Mr. Wheaton says that in a letter received from Mr. Lind on October 17, the ex-governor expresses himself as follows: "If I can make any speeches in this state I do not know where I could do more good than at Thief River Falls." Mr. Wheaton continues: "You will thus see that the governor already has your city in mind and I would therefore suggest that you immediately get in touch with him.

The local chairman has acted upon the suggestion and it now looks as if Mr. Lind would be here toward the end of the campaign.

FLAX STRAW MAY PROVIDE PAPER

Government Agent In Thief River Falls Looking After Supply of Raw Material

DEPARTMENT MAKES TESTS

Machines For Converting Straw Into Pulp Have Already Been Constructed—Experimentation is Being Carried on Continually

A new use for flax straw has been found and the discovery may prove of the greatest importance to Northwestern Minnesota. Not only will it mean a practically unlimited demand for the product itself and a consequent advance in price, but it will also in all probability make advisable the locating of a manufacturing plant for the product in this neighborhood.

Paper From Flax Straw

The department of plant industry at Washington has for some time been searching for a fibrus material that will take the place of pulp in the manufacture of paper. Their experiments have demonstrated that flax straw is the commodity best suited to the purpose and samples from practically all the flax-growing sections of the country are being tried out.

Government Agent Here

George A. Stuart, representative of the bureau, has been here during the past week securing sample shipments of flax straw grown in this neighborhood. These have been shipped to Washington where further experiments as to the product's availability will be carried out.

Paper Shortage Alarming

The paper situation in the country is causing much alarm. The spruce from which the greater amount of the pulp used is ground is rapidily being depleted and the government has for some time been carrying on experiments with a view to finding a substitute. Corn stalks, ordinary straw and other similar products were tried out, but it appears that nothing answers the purpose so well as flax straw.

Local Flax Best

It is known that Northern Minnesota flax possesses in a marked degree the tough, fibrous qualities sought, and it understood to have been the favored material with the experimenters. In order to get straw thoroughly representative of the section Mr. Stuart secured four huge sacks full in the eastern part of the county and sent them to the capital by express. As every development of manufacture will be carefully watched and noted it will be some time before any report on the result can be obtained. The machinery for breaking and reducing the straw has already been constructed and the work will be carried forward at once.

May Mean Factory

If it shall be found that the flax grown in the vicinity of Thief River Falls is particularly well adapted to the making of pulp it may mean that a pulp mill for its manufacture will be erected here. It is understood that the shipping facilities of this city have already been looked into with this idea in mind and that the city will be most favorably recommended when the project shall have reached the producing stage.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR CHURCH DEDICATION

Minnesota Northwestern Will Run Car to Goodridge Sunday For Accommodation of Patrons.

The recently completed Norwegian Lutheran church at Goodridge will be dedicated next Sunday, the service beginning at 10:30. The Rt. Rev. K. Bjorge, president of the Minnesota district of the Synod, will preach the sermon and dedicate the church. The following ministers will be present and lend their aid to the ceremony: Rev. I. T. Aastad, Thief River Falls; Rev. O. E. Sabo, Grygla; Rev. M. B. Ordahl, Holt; Rev. Schultz, Goodridge, and the pastor of the new church, Rev. H. Bjornson.

The assembled pastors will deliver short addresses in the afternoon, and dinner will be served by the Ladies' Aid society.

The Minnesota Northwestern railway will run a special car from Thief River Falls to Goodridge, leaving this city at nine o'clock. Stops will be made at all points along the line where there are passengers to be picked up. Returning, the car will leave immediately upon the conclusion of the exercises, probably about five o'clock.

The members of the church at Goodridge extend a cordial invitation to all to attend this dedication.

Billie Burke Has Baby Girl

A baby girl was born to Billie Burke, the well known theatrical star in New York city on Monday. "Billie" whose off-stage name is Mrs. Florence Seigfield, wife of the theatrical manager, is appearing at the Princess theatre in this city every Saturday in "Gloria's Romance," one of the most delightful photo dramas ever filmed.

Your Duty As A Citizen

One week from next Tuesday the people of the United States will decide who shall be their president during the next four years. Minnesota will also elect a governor and other officials, but the big interest naturally centers in the national outcome.

The campaign just closing has been perhaps the least exciting in the history of the country. Up to a short time ago it was practically impossible to get the people to take any interest in the matter. Both sides argue that this augurs well for their candidates. The Democrats profess to think that it proves people are satisfied with Wilson, while on the other hand Republicans claim that it shows the peoplt are only waiting for a chance to make a change and saying nothing in the meantime.

Minnesota is claimed for Wilson by the Democrats, but there is no very well founded argument presented to show that there is anything on which to base such a claim. The fact that the people are not getting excited probably indicates that they have not changed greatly in the last four years and are still faithful to the party rule under which the state has grown great. Wilson received more than the normal Democratic vote in the state four years ago, but fell short of the combined vote of Roosevelt and Taft. If the Progressives have returned to the Republican fold Wilson will have to overcome a lead of 83,764 votes, and even if a number of the third party voters should cast their ballots for the Democratic candidate this year it would be almost an unheard of change that would make the state anything but safely Republican. One thing is certain: If Hughes cannot carry Minnesota there is but slight hope to hold out for his election.

The vote for president in Pennington county four years ago was as follows: Taft, 244; Wilson 423; Debs, 343; Roosevelt, 784; Chaffin, 67; Reimer, 11. The result in the county this year therefore depends on how the Roosevelt vote will split. It seems certain that the Socialists have lost ground and that the defection is largely in favor of Wilson. That the county is debatable ground is admitted by the Republicans themselves, but that the change is sufficient to take it out of the Republican column is highly improbable.

The Republican candidates for state offices will get better than the usual majorities in Pennington county. As far as these are concerned there is practically no contest.

As regards the congressional ticket it is also simply a matter of majorities. About nine-tenths of the people in the district, and particularly in Pennington county, will not know that there is any opposition to Halvor Steenerson until they see the other names on the ticket.

Whether John A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls, or Oscar T. Stenvick of Clearbrook, represents the Sixty-fifth district in the next legislature will depend upon the voters of Pennington, as each one of these candidates will carry his home county by big majorities. Indications are that Duffy will receive a big vote in the city of Thief River Falls while a large portion of the country districts are friendly to him. He has made a thorough campaign, and as his acquaintanceship extends to every portion of the county, his chances for being chosen are considered rather better than those of his opponent. The people here feel as if they are more closely allied in every way with their neighbors to the south than with those on the east. The impression also prevails that inasmuch as Red Lake and Pennington counties must before long be detached as one district it will be better for all concerned if the legislative member hails from one or the other. The state senator is a citizen of Thief River Falls and it seems to the people here only right and proper that the house member should be accorded to Red Lake county.

There are but two county offices, outside of the commissionerships, to be filled—Judge of probate and clerk of court. For the first named position the present incumbent, Wilhelm Michelet, is opposed by Ira C. Richardson, who is developing elements of strength with which he was not credited early in the campaign. He is one of the old-timers in the section and has a host of personal friends. This contest bids fair to be much closer than any one thought possible.

Clerk of Court H. E. Ives has as his opponent Adolph Eklund, who is making a quiet but thorough campaign. In this contest also the interest increases as election day draws near, the early calculations having been somewhat upset by later developments. Both are good men and the office will be well taken care of which ever one is elected.

For county commissioner from the second district Robert McGinn has no opposition for re-election. In the fourth there are two candidates—J. S. Roy and Eric Kittleson. Because of his long residence and the interest he has always shown in the upbuilding of the district and county Mr. Roy seems to be the candidate favored by the voters down that way.

Here they are. Take your choice. The Times does not presume to urge or advise you. But do your duty as an American citizen. Go to the polls and vote.

Should Include All

A Commercial club is a place where men come together for the purpose of discussing ways and means of helping one another. These organizations are generally composed of persons connected with business enterprises in some capacity, and during working hours the rivalry between them is keen and continuous. In the club councils this spirit is held in check and everybody plans and works for the common good, realizing that what helps one must help all.

A campaign having as its aim and purpose the increasing of the membership of the Thief River Falls Commercial club will soon be inaugurated. There are still some of our business men who remain on the outside, although everything done by the club for the purpose of improving conditions in the city, county and section benefits them to the same extent that it benefits the men who do the planning and perform the work. To accept these without any expenditure of time, thought or money is like getting the fruits from something your neighbor has worked to produce. No one can blame the non-member for taking what comes to him, but everyone would think more of him if he did a little something to make things "come."

The cost of membership in the Commercial club is not very great and the ordeal of initiation not trying in the least. There is no secret work and you subscribe to no obligations except the implied one of doing everything in your power to make Thief River Falls, Pennington county and Northwestern Minnesota better places in which to live. The club is organized for the sole purpose of giving you a more extended opportunity to be of value to yourself, your neighbor and your community than you can possibly be through your own individual efforts, no matter how well directed or well-meant these may be.

It is not expected that every project coming up for consideration in the Commercial club will be unanimously agreed upon. It is not best for the organization or the community that such should be the case. A little open opposition is a good thing. It may prove the means of making you respect the other fellow's viewpoint, although you may not entirely agree with him. But good will come out of the discussions—even if these sometimes take on the nature of disputations. If you do not intend to belong to any organization except those in which the entire membership is entirely in accord on every proposition, you are doomed to a decidedly lonely existence.

The Times has on occasion found it necessary to disagree with the attitude taken by the steering committee of the Commercial club on propositions of very great importance to the city and the people residing therein. This was not so much because of things done as of those left undone. The paper voiced its sentiments and this created talk, which was a good thing. The talkers did not all agree with The Times, which was also perfectly all right. We do not expect everyone to agree with us—a large majority is all we can reasonably hope for. What is more, this paper does not guarantee to agree always with whatever proceedings the club may see fit to take in the future, but this will in no wise lessen the value of the organization as such. It will simply prove that a mistake has been made. And the best way to find out WHERE it was made is to get together and discuss the matter.

If you are not already a member of the club you will shortly be approached by Secretary Scott Laird with the proposition that you become one. Don't get in your own light by telling him about the things done by some member of the club whom you do not like. Perhaps the other fellow is in no danger of breaking out in a prickly rash because of his admiration for you. You are both living in the same community, however, and it will be a better community if you both work together to make it so.

Vote For Amendment No. 1

Failure to vote for an amendment to the State Constitution is the same as voting against it.

That is why the voters of Minnesota should inform themselves on the amendments to be voted on at the election November 7th. The man who passes the amendments by because he does not understand them is blindly voting against them and he may be doing himself and others an injustice.

Amendment No. 1 is of vital importance to every citizen in the state, for it involves the development of state lands and the building up of the permanent school fund of the state. It provides that a revolving fund of $250,000 shall be set aside for the building of roads and ditches and the clearing of state lands.

Under its operation it will be possible for the state which still owns 2,000,000 acres of land in Northern Minnesota, to partially develop tracts of its lands and put them on the market for purchase by actual settlers. The cost of the improvements will be charged against the lands and added to the minimum price, so they will be paid for by the purchaser. The sale of state lands will thus be hastened and additional funds added to the permanent school fund; the lands partially improved will bring better prices and the permanent school fund will benefit.

The amendment does not contemplate any ultimate expenditure by the state. When the need for the revolving fund exists no longer it will be turned into the permanent school fund intact. Only $250,000 can be used; it will be returned by the purchasers of the land, and will be used only until the state land is sold.

The clean straightforward campaign being carried on by John A. Duffy, candidate for the legislature, is making him many friends. He has not been afraid to declare the platform upon which he will make the race. The planks out of whcih it is built are few, but sound and substantial. He pledges himself to work for a reduction of the tax burden by the cutting out of every unnecessary expense in the state government. His declaration that landholders who fail to improve their property shall be compelled to pay their fair share of taxes is calling the attention of people from other sections to his candidacy. There is no doubt but that a bill looking to a more equitable distribution of taxation in the state will come up before the next legislature and it is well that the people should know where their candidates stand on the subject before hand. Pennington county people are particularly interested in anything the state may undertake with reference to the remedying of flood conditions in this section, and Mr. Duffy is one of the best posted men on this subject in the state. The next session of the Minnesota legislature will be a business session and the Sixty-fifth district should be represented by a business man.

The second market day in Thief River Falls was even a greater success than the first one. In spite of the fact that the weather was far from ideal and that the event was scheduled for Friday the number of farmers in the city was greater than on the previous occasion a month ago. This proves that these market days are proving of interest to the very people for whose benefit they were established. A man might come in from the country the first time just to see what was going on, but unless he was well used and found something to interest him he would not come again. One feature that is certainly surprising everyone by its success is the free-for-all auction. On Friday there were over $1,200 worth of goods sold under the hammer. Everything from a draft horse to a hand mirror was placed on sale and ready buyers were found for it all. The merchants offered some exceptional bargains and as a result report one of the best days thus far this year. The success of the Thief River Falls market days is drawing the attention of the entire country and the plan employed is being extensively copied. The idea is a good one for everybody and should be encouraged.

A business man who buys advertising space is as much entitled to know what he is getting for his money as is the man who goes into a store to buy a suit of clothes or the one who has a porch built onto his house. Newspapers with no regard for the truth and no concern over whether or not a merchant gets fair value for the money expended are constantly claiming circulations outrageously in excess of that number of papers actually printed. They do not very often deceive anyone, but the intention is there just the same. The Times has issued a standing invitation to any advertiser who chooses to do so to come to the office and examine the circulation books. All postoffice receipts are also saved and may be used as a varification of the figures found. This is not done as a favor to the advertiser. He is entitled to know what he is paying out his good money for and this paper will do everything to aid him in his search. Any newspaper that does not permit this is not honest.

The Pennington County Bankers association has taken the first step in what will probably prove the most important development move ever innaugurated in this section. The members have decided to encourage stock-breeding and dairying by every means within their power and will not be content to say so and then forget it. A general survey of the situation is to be made and the results reported at the next meeting in January. The farmers already here are to be encouraged to go more heavily into stock, while those arriving with the intention of settling will be accorded every facility for securing the funds necessary to start them right. This is constructive work of the highest order and the bankers are entitled to much credit for their farsightedness. Their action proves that they not only have an abundant faith in the section, but also that they are willing to take a chance on men in the main being honest and dependable. The returns from such investment will prove ample and continuous.

City Carriers Handle Many More Than Are Delivered on the Rural Routes—Parcels Sent Out of City Weigh One Ton.

The parcels post department of the Thief River Falls post office is a busy institution. Postmaster John Morgan has just completed the record for the thirteen working days from the second of October up to and including the 12th, and the record discloses some highly interesting figures.

Most In the City.

One of the surprising features in connection with this report is the number of parcels delivered by the carriers within the city limits. When the bill establishing this branch of the postal service was under discussion in congress the most telling argument in its favor was that it would prove a boon to the farmer and other rural residents. While it is doubtless a fact that the farmer is taking advantage of the service, the figures of the Thief River Falls office would indicate that the city dweller is far in the lead when it comes to getting bundles by mail. In fact, there are almost as many packages called for at the general delivery window alone as are sent out on the routes.

The following table shows the different channels through which the parcels were passed out and the number credited to each:

Parcels delivered through the general delivery	326
Parcels delivered to box holders	861
Parcels delivered by city carriers	565
Parcels delivered by rural carriers	365
Total delivered	2117

Perhaps even more surprising is the amount of business done in outgoing parcels. The figures presented constitute the best proof yet adduced to show that Thief River Falls is the trading center for a compact area. The fact that the parcels sent out from the office here aggregated in weight over one ton while the postage only amounted to $68.89 is proof that the immediate territory was the destination of the greater number of them. This is at the rate of approximately three and three-quarter cents per pound on the average, and indicates that no great distances were covered.

This part of the report, together with other matters connected with their handling of this class of matter, is as follows:

Parcels mailed at this office	728
Postage on parcels mailed	68.89
Weight of parcels mailed, lbs...	2,315
Insured parcels mailed	161
Fees on insured parcels mailed..	$ 6.85
C. O. D. parcels mailed............	26
Estimated cost of clerk hire for handling parcel post mail during this period	$35.00
Increase over same period of 1915	25 per cent

SCHOOL NOTES

As a matter of information and in reply to numerous inquiries, it might be stated that the plan under consideration for housing the school children when the proposed grade building is constructed in the Oakland addition is about as follows: All seventh and eighth grade pupils will be located in the Central, and the beginning children in the neighborhood of that school will remain there. The grade pupils south of Third street, or thereabouts, will attend the Washington, and all north of Third street, except those already mentioned as Central pupils, will attend the new north building. All east side pupils will attend the Knox. The overflow high school rooms will recite in the Washington.

All graduates of the normal training departments are teaching this fall. Their wages run from $50 to $75, the average being approximately $55.

The Satre district, adjoining town on the southwest, voted last week to associate with the local school. Association involves no expense to the rural school, but on the other hand, secures it an annual grant from the state of $50 and also supervision of the city school industrial teachers and the superintendent. The Central school is paid $200 each year by the state to carry on the association work.

There is little tardiness or absence among the pupils operating under the Washington plan. Where any exists, it is always found repeating itself in the same families. The truth is that parents are more to blame for delinquences than are their offspring.

The last written tests in the high school show that the freshmen are making the poorest record of the four classes. The Seniors wrote 286 papers and only one was marked below passing; the juniors had 289 papers with 14 below grade; the sophmores, 335 and 6 below; the freshmen 438 papers and 58 were failures.

There is no regulation which prohibits high school students from carrying more than four subjects. Experience proves that four solid subjects are about all a pupil can prepare, but several students in high school are making excellent records in more than four. At the same time, there are a few who are failing in one to three subjects.

There are too many boys and girls under sixteen years of age not enrolled in school. This is almost a crime against the child and a future menace to society as well as financial loss to the district. Notices are being sent this week to the parents of the children and unless they appear in school Nov. 1st the proper legal steps will be taken to secure their attendance at school. No school room is now crowded under the plan in operation and there is room for all. The law is now plain as to the course which the school authorities must observe in the matter.

Paul Medderigh, deputy sheriff, jailer, court house janitor, fire chief and fire warden, doesn't believe in taking any chances with the vacillating weatherman. The weather handed out last week, which was of a wintry nature, caused Paul to dig out the storm door for the city bastile and promptly put it where it belonged.

Miss Laura Carney, employed in the offices of the Thief River Grocery company, returned last Friday morning from East Grand Forks, where she had spent several days visiting with friends and relatives. While in East Grand Forks Miss Carney acted as bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Elvina Novak and W. J. Legge on Wednesday of last week.

Emil Pladsen, former resident of this city, now located at Milaca, Minn., writes to his friends in this city stating that he has disposed of his farming interests near that place. Mr. Pladsen left Thief River Falls about three years ago and has been engaged in truck farming for the past three years besides doing some auctioneering. Mr. Pladsen was formerly president of the city council under the Socialist regime.

C. W. Ackerman, president of the city council, returned Saturday morning from Red Wing, where he had been in attendance at the meeting of the league of Minnesota Municipalitits. Enroute to this city he stopped off at St. Paul and Crookston to transact business matters for the Thief River Falls Manufacturing company, which firm he is manager. Mr. Ackerman reports the meet was a decided success.

The entertainment furnished by the Thief River Falls "Booster" band Saturday evening reached beyond expectation. Their music was of high order, evincing capable leadership coupled with genuine talent among the members of the organization. Both concert and dancing were thoroughly enjoyed by the appreciative patrons. It was unfortunate that the political meeting and concert were both scheduled for the same evening, otherwise the attendance at the concert would have been much larger.—Fosston Thirteen towns.

SEASON'S PROGRAM OF LOCAL WOMAN'S CLUB.

The Thief River Falls Woman's club has begun the regular bi-weekly meetings for the winter season. The first of these was held on the 16th, when a musical program arranged by Mrs. H. O. Loken was presented and in which the following ladies took part: Mrs. Oscar Sponheim, Mrs. Nathan Harris, Mrs. O. F. Mellby, and Mrs. Harold Miller. Dr. J. N. Nesse also favored the ladies with a much-appreciated vocal solo.

On October 30, the principal feature will be a reading on the subject of "The Other Unit," by Mrs. Charles A. Pitkin. The subjects to be taken up on the remaining dates of the season are:

November 13th—"Midsummer Night's Dream"—F. H. Koch, Head of Dramatic Department, University of North Dakota.

November 27th—"Prison Reform"—Mrs. Daniel Shaw.

December 11th—"The Sign in the Christmas Fire"—Mrs. Albert Johnson.

Reception For Faculty

Members of the high school faculty were pleasantly entertained by the class of 1917, at an informal reception held in the commercial rooms. Following the gathering of the guests and students at eight o'clock, the program was rendered. Frappe was served throughout the evening and refreshments at ten o'clock, the Sophmore girls officiating at this end. The reception rooms were artistically decorated with Hallowen decorations. The following program was rendered:

Address of Welcome—Coleman Linde.

Vocal Solo—Miss Dora Holmes.

Reading—Miss Dorothy Bottleson.

Piano Solo—Doris Halvorson.

Response to Welcome Address—Miss Antonette Johnson.

Song—Boys Quartette.

Dance Date Changed

Because it conflicted with another function, the date of the orchestra dance has been postponed to Hallowe'en, Oct. 31. The boys had all their advertising matter out and were going ahead with the their preparations when the doubling up of the two important events on the same evening was called to their attention. Nothing will be lost by the delay, however. Hallowe'en is a very appropriate evening for a harvest dance and the crowd will be all the larger for having to wait the extra few days.

In commemoration of their fifth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Mussey entertained informally Monday evening at their home on Cenley avenue. The evening was passed at cards, after which refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schuster, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mussey, of Grygla, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Effinger, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Zeh, Miss Glynn Sinclair, and Arthur Diebel.

Mrs. G. A. Penney, 115 St. Paul avenue north, had a number of her neighbors in last Friday afternoon. The time was spent in sewing, after which refreshments were served.

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the parsonage of the United Lutheran church, occurred the marriage of Selmer M. Berg and Miss Elsia Larson, both of Pennington county, Rev. O. P. Staavas officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Larson, residing east of Thief River Falls. The contracting parties were attended by Miss Gunelie Berg, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, and Olaf Bolstad, best man. They were also attended by Miss Nellie Bolstad and Richard Olson. On Wednesday morning they took their departure for Viscount, Sask., Canada, to visit with relatives, after which they will return to Thief River Falls to make their future home.

The Eastern Star Thimble Bee will be entertained next Wednesday afternoon, November 1, at the J. J. Borry home. Mesdames J. J. Borry, T. B. Stauff, J. L. Stitt, Wallace Watson, Theo. Quale and Harry Miller will act as hostesses to the club.

Mrs. Louis Lonson, 207 Conely avenue south, will entertain the Rebekah Social club at her home next Tuesday afternoon, October 31. All members are requested to be present.

Mesdames H. G. Hieber and C. R. Stowell gave the first of a series of parties last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Stowell, 714 Knight avenue north. There were thirty-two guests present. Cards formed the afternoon's entertainment, seven tables being played. Mrs. Nathan Harris won the head prize and Mrs. W. J. LaBree won second. The table decorations were in green. Mesdames Heiber and Stowell will entertain again Saturday afteroon at the home of the former. Invitations have been extended to thirty-two ladies.

The Junior Christian Endeavor league of the Presbyterian church gave their social in the church basement last Friday evening. Games were played and refreshments were served. The object of the affair was to secure more members to the league. There were about twice as many non-members present as members.

Miss Glynn Sinclair's class of girls and Mr. Ackerman's class of boys, of the Presbyterian church, met last evening in the church basement for a social gathering. The evening was passed in a very enjoyable manner and light refreshments were served.

Winslow Chapter O. E. S. No. 182 met last evening at the Masonic Temple. It was one of the regular meetings.

Miss Effie Christianson, who makes her home at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Yotter, 108 Third street west, entertained the "Do Drop In" sewing club Monday evening. Refreshments were served to a large number.

Another Hallowe'en social event of more than ordinary importance will be held to-morrow evening at the Brumund hotel parlors, Misses Myrtle Rasmusson and Doris Brumund acting as hostesses. Invitations have been extended to over fifty young people.

One of the prettiest and most elaborate events of the fall social season took place yesterday afternoon at the Brumund hotel parlors, Mesdames H. A. Brumund, W. H. Fredericks and Edward Dolan being the hostesses. Approximately ninety guests were present to spend the afternoon at cards, after which a delicious luncheon was served in the hotel dining room. Cards were played at nineteen tables, four being seated at each. There were also a number of elderly ladies present as the guests of Mrs. Brumund's mother, who is here to spend the winter. The latter guests were seated in a room off from the main reception parlor. Hallowe'en decorations were used profusively and made a very pretty sight. Orange and black streamers were strung from the center of the ceiling to the corners in the room. Paper pumpkins encased the electric lights and paper witches, cats, and other Hallowe'en novelties were used for wall decorations.

Mrs. O. F. Mellby won first prize at cards and Mrs. Sapero consolation prize.

THE LOCAL PERISCOPE

James Connelly left this morning for Roseau to be employed for some time.

Mrs. J. Mahoney arrived this morning from Crookston for a visit with friends.

J. B. Carter, of Grygla, passed Wednesday in Thief River Falls on a business trip.

James O'Brien, farmer residing near Kratka, was a business visitor in the city yesterday.

B. Olson, residing at Goodridge, spent Wednesday in the city attending to business matters.

Mrs. S. A. Kennison left for Red Lake Falls Wednesday afternoon for a visit with her friends.

Mrs. Hofto returned last evening from McIntosh, after a pleasant visit with friends and relatives.

J. A. Balfaour, of Crookston, spent the first of the week in the city attending to business matters.

Rev. Albin Larson left this morning for Strathcona to conduct religious services in the evening.

Peter Myer, who resides on a farm near Erie, passed Wednesday in Thief River Falls transacting business.

Mrs. E. O. Mogensen left last evening for Minneapolis to spend several weeks visiting with friends and relatives.

C. H. Nordby came down from Strathcona Tuesday afternoon to visit with friends. . He returned this morning.

The orchestra dance at the Auditorium promises to be one of the most delightful parties of the year. You are invited.

Rev. G. O. Parish returned Wednesday evening from Cass Lake, where he had enjoyed a visit at the home of his wife's parents.

Miss Lillian Steward, waitress at the Stockholm restaurant, left this morning for the home of her parents at Gatzke for a visit.

S. H. Windness returned to his home at Gonvick Monday morning after having spent Saturday in the city on a business trip.

Charles Glen, former resident of this city, now residing at Badger, came down Monday afternoon for a visit with friends and also to transact business.

The orchestra boys are giving a dance at the Auditorium on Tuesday evening and you are invited to attend. It is an old-fashioned Hallowe'en party.

Miss Blanche Johnson, piano instructor, passed Wednesday at Oklee giving a class in piano their weekly lesson. She went over in the morning and returned in the evening.

Contractor C. M. Carlson left for St. Paul last evening to be present at the letting of bids for the erection of the Tri-County Sanitarium on Friday, October 27. Mr. Carlson will return Saturday.

J. L. Inman, who has conducted a grocery store in the Dobner-Meehan block for the past six years, this week moved his grocery stock and fixtures to Mentor, where he will engage in business in the future. The store room vacated by Mr. Inman will be occupied shortly by Eli Robertson, who contemplates opening a bazaar store.

LOST: Ladies' gold watch, last Wednesday, between German Lutheran church and the Hugh Dean residence. Hunting case watch and fob with name, Tilda Klevine, engraved in case. Finder please return to Hugh Dean residence.—O26-tf.

Judge Quinn, of Fairmont, Minn., candidate for judge of the supreme bench, was in the city Tuesday evening shaking hands with a number of his acquaintances. Judge Quinn was enroute to Fairmont after a trip to North Dakota on business.

Andrew Peterson, a farmer residing a short distance east of the city, left yesterday afternoon for Grand Forks, where he will consult a specialist concerning an ailment that has bothered him a great deal of late. He expects to be gone about three weeks.

E. A. Mostue, county superintendent of schools, left Wednesday afternoon for St. Paul to attend a state conference of the county superintendents, and a meeting of the Minnesota Teacher's association, which is to to be held November 1. Enroute to the Capitol city, Mr. Mostue expected to stop off in St. Cloud to visit at the normal school until Sunday evening. He will return November 6. Miss Katie Dahl, who holds a first grade teacher's certificate, is taking charge of Mr. Mostue's office.

Casper Myrom, son of A. Myrom, residing a short distance from the city, returned this week from Amber, Iowa, where he recently resigned his position as manager of a large creamery. Mr. Myrom left today for Virginia, Minn., where he has been appointed creamery superintendent. People in this neighborhood are in the habit of thinking of Virginia as being in a section where nothing but iron ore is produced, but this is a mistake. Agriculture, and particularly stock raising and dairying, are receiving a vast deal ot attention in the northeastern corner of the state and Mr. Myrom will find the people very much interested in his work.

F. T. Satre, one of the prominent farmers of Rocksbury township, was in the city yesterday. He says that he will have 25 cows on his place next year and will increase this number as fast as possible. He has never depended wholly on grain and henceforth will do so less than ever. Mr. Satre has been doing his fall plowing, but the weather has caused a halt to be called in the proceedings. He has about 50 acres left to turn over and rather expects some of it will have to lay as it is until spring. Rocksbury township, according to Mr. Satre, is fast becoming the banner dairying region of the entire section. Not only are more cows being steadily added, but the trend is toward a higher grade. There are many thoroughbreds already on the farms, and more are coming.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Sapero of Chisholm, arrived Tuesday for a week's visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sapero. Mr. Sapero, senior, besides being interested in the store of the corporation in this city, is the active head of the branch at Chisholm. He says that the iron mining section of the state received a severe setback through the strike this past summer and it is recovering but slowly. The winter months are never particularly brisk in that region even under the best of conditions, but Mr. Sapero believes that the spring will open with a rush, owing to the curtailment forced upon the mines the past season. The visitor expressed himself as highly pleased with the business done by the store of the concern in this city, this having exceeded his most sanguine expectations.

Paul Jones arrived in Thief River Falls the latter part of last week from Wadena. Mr. Jones is an employee of the Peterson-Biddick Produce company and will take a car of poultry to Chicago tomorrow for the local produce firm. The company also shipped a car of poultry the first of the week, it being taken to the Windy City in charge of W. H. Wikel. Mr. Biddick, manager of the Thief River Produce company, stated today that poultry is coming in so rapidly that his crew has been augmented to take charge of the problem. Turkeys, chickens, ducks, and geese are unloaded at the establishment by the wagonload from sunset to darkness. The gobble-gobble of the Thanksgiving turkey is daily permeating the erstwhile peaceable and quiet atmosphere of the freight departments at both the Soo and Great Northern depots. Consignments from points north of here and from farms in Dakota come in daily for shipment to Chicago.

Perry Johnson, son of M. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, residing south of the city, is responsible for two of Minnesota's touchdowns this fall. In the North Dakota game two weeks ago, Perry scored for the Gophers, and repeated his performance last Saturday when Minnesota clashed with the Coyotes from South Dakota. During the second half in Saturday's contest, the Thief River boy officiated at quarterback, relieving "Shorty" Long. As to the touchdown the Minneapolis Journal says: "At the start of the period Johnson was at quarter for the Gophers and Carlson and Andersen were at halfback positions. Carlson returned the Coyote kickoff to his 30 yard line. Dakota switched its lineup. Duncan going to end, Mc Kinnon to quarterback and Sprague to fullback. On the first play Johnson ran around left end for 70 yards for a touchdown. It was a clever, dodging run. Baston kicked goal." During the balance of the game Perry played a stellar game according to the Journal sport man. It is also interesting to know that Guy Johnson, who is attending the "U" won a place for himself on the Freshmen eleven and is holding down the fullback job.

Commercial Club Notes

A regular meeting of the directors of the Commercial club was held on Wednesday evening in the club rooms at which time considerable business was disposed of.

The report of the secretary on the recent Market Day was read and was most gratifying, the same being ordered placed on file. The effort on the part of the sports committee to bring to Thief River Falls one of the marching clubs of the St. Paul Outdoor Sports Carnival association was also brought to the attention of the directors, who wish to see outdoor sports given such attention as they deserve.

A copy of the resolution as passed at the recent meeting in Red Lake Falls of representatives of commercial clubs in cities along the Jefferson Highway was read to the directors, in which the Commercial club was asked to pass a resolution favoring the proposed improvement of the old Indian "tote" road or trail through the reservation toward the old post office known as Winsor, and also to write the congressman from this district asking his co-operation, and further the appointment of a representative from this city to act permanently with others from the various towns. All of which received the necessary approval of those present.

The secretary also reported that he had written to the Jefferson Highway association at Des Moines asking for detailed mileage along the route from the Twin cities to Winnipeg for use of the members that desire such information. A report of the effort to secure the improvement of the road through the reservation was also sent to the Highway association.

A report of the committee on election returns was received and showed that favorable progress was being made.

The condition of the billiard and pool tables was discussed and it was decided to put them in first class condition.

A resolution commending the recent Style show given at the Auditorium under the auspices of Loken Bros., and others was passed.

The Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association's letter thanking the Commercial club for its assistance in the effort to get the governor to call an extra session of the legislature to enfranchise the soldiers now on duty at the border, was read and ordered filed.

The matter of a club play in the near future was also discussed and the committee thereon was instructed to proceed at once with active preparations and to present an entertainment at the earliest possible date.

The matter of serving the customary club suppers was thought best to be left to the approval of club members at the regular meeting, which occurs this, Thursday, evening.

"Where Are My Children?" an elaborate photo-play, which is to be shown at the Princess Nov. 8 and 9, has received more flattering endorsements from metropolitan newspapers than any production shown before the public for years.

The New York American describes it as "A smashing, daring subject done in a smashing, daring way— a wonderfully dramatic story amid surroundings of luxury and wealth."

Other comments are:

"A dignified, worthy and impressive presentment of a tragdey that should be near the heart of the universe."—New York Mail.

"It will make women think, and think hard. It will make men look before they leap. It will act as a warning to young girls." New York Journal.

Card Of Thanks

We hereby wish to express our heary thanks to neighbors and friends for sympathy and help rendered us in our recent loss through fire. May God reward you all.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Liden.

Miss Gulrud entertained the Dorcas society of the United church in the church basement Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in sewing and refreshments were served.

CHARLIE BROWN IS AN IMPARTIAL CHAP

A short time ago The Times contained an account of the check-issuing operations of a certain party calling himself "Charlie Brown." At that time there was but one complaint recorded against him, but more are steadily coming to light. In fact Brown, which is undoubtedly not his right name, left his souvenirs with a number of the city's business men before leaving for parts unknown.

E. O. Mogensen, the clothier, was the first to sound the warning against the spurious checks, but before this could be heeded Brown had managed to leave his autograph for differing sums in quite a number of places. Among these are Dr. H. B. Newell, the druggist; Carl Christofferson & Co., grocers, and the Oen Mercantile company, besides Mr. Mogensen.

All the checks were drawn on either the First National bank or the First State bank of Warren. The officials of that institution claim that no such party has ever had an account there and that they are as anxious to get their hands on him as anyone. The matter has been brought to the attention of County Attorney Kjomme who will make an effort to locate the slippery customer.

LARSON FAMILY TO BE HIGHLY HONORED

Mrs. L. G. Larson of this city will leave tomorrow to be one of the honor guests at the home-coming day of the alumni of the university of North Dakota.

In company with two brothers and one sister Mrs. Larson will receive a mark of special distinction. A penant will be raised on the campus in honor of the members of the Robinson family, all of whom distingushed themselves in athletic pursuits while students at the university. Each one is the possessor of one or more letters as a mark of their excellence in this department.

Mrs. Larson was on the ladies' basketball team for three years, being captain during the last season, while her sister, Mrs. J. D. Paupst, of Emerado, N. D., also received her letters for her work on this team. Harris Robinson, now state engineer of North Dakota, and located at Bismarck, won his letters through proficiency in base ball, basketball, football and track, while his brother, W. H. Robinson, was particularly conspicuous for his football work. The latter is well known here, being a member of the firm of Robinson, Van-Alstine & Co., engineering contractors.

Tips On the Best Pictures

Take in the whole "smash" from one end of the week to the other is my advice, as there is not any one day that you can well afford to let go by. This sounds like stretching things, but it is the truth, come to the New Princess and see for yourself. Figurtively speaking I have taken off my coat and rolled up my sleeves in a determined effort that you shall see the m st interesting photo-plays that can be secured, not for this one week, but for the weeks to follow as well. It's a task but "by Hooky" I don't mean to book any picture that "smells" in the slightest. They must be good. Cut this out and frame it. See if there isn't some Washington in me.

Messrs. Holt & George left for St. Paul Tuesday evening to be present at the opening of bids for the water and heating job for the Tri-County Sanitarium. Bids will be opened tomorrow.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church will be entertained in the church basement next Wednesday afternoon, November 1, by Mesdames Louis Rayson, V. C. Noper. All are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Leial Schafer, former employee at Mac's Sweet Shop, who has been employed at Red Lake Falls for the past few months, arrvied last Saturday morning for a visit with her friends. She left Saturday evening for the home of her parents at Hazel. Miss Schafer expects to leave Hazel shortly to accept a position in Minneapolis at one of the large confectionery stores.

C. L. Dobner, former banker of this city, now located at St. Paul, returned last Friday evening to his home after having spent several days in the city attending to business matters.

Miss Olga Furr, of Holt, who has been making her home in Thief River Falls while taking sewing lessons, took her departure on Monday afternoon for Fargo, N. D., where she has accepted a position as alterer in one of the large ladies ready-to-wear stores.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Aabye, Miss Freda Ness and Johan Ness, were over-night guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson last Thursday evening. They were enroute to their home at Perley, after a visit at the A. J. Anderson home in Grygla.

Mrs. A. L. Neurauter and baby son, Vincent, and Mrs. Mary Golliet, of Thief River Falls, Minn., who have spent several days in the city, left today for St. Paul. Mrs. Neurauter will join her husband in that city, where they will make their future home.—Grand Forks Daily Herald.

Roy Lambert, proprietor of Lambert's Drug Store, has arranged a window display that is causing considerable attention. The showing is entirely in keeping with the season, and reminds one of Hallowen, the last night in October being the eve or vigil of All-Hallows, or All-Saints day.

Mrs. Thomas A. Way returned on Tuesday morning from Doland, S. D., where she had passed a short time visiting at the home of her daughter. On the trip to South Dakota, Mrs. Way was accompanied by Mr. Way's mother, who had been visiting in this city. The latter stopped off at Watertown to visit with her son.

Roy Lambert, proprietor of Lambert's Drug store, has purchased a large electric sign for his place of business, and it was hung up last Tuesday. The letters in the word "drugs" are fifteen inches in height. Third street is rapidly becoming the street of electric lights and this new sign adds much to its metropolitan appearance.

Mrs. Albert Lonson arrived in the city Tuesday from Callaway for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Harry Brumund. Mrs. Lonson was accompanied by her mother, who had been spending the summer at Callaway, and who will pass the winter in Thief River Falls with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Brumund.

Rev. F. J. Barackman, synodical superintendent of the Presbyterian church at Duluth, spent a short time in Thief River Falls Tuesday while enroute to his home after a trip to points north of Thief River Falls. While in the city he was a guest at the home of his brother, Rev. R. L. Barackman.

Lars M. Lindwick, farmer residing near Germantown, spent Monday in Thief River Falls on a business trip. Mr. Lindwick while in the city paid The Times office a pleasant call. He is a firm believer that this section of the country is meant for dairying and expects to go into stock raising shortly.

Walter Quists' colts indulged in a spirited run-away Monday morning at about 10:30 o'clock. The team was standing by the Great Northern depot with a weight attached to the halter, when a passing switch engine frightened them. They ran north half a block close to the sidewalk and in some manner the buggy was thrown against a telephone pole, damaging it considerably. The colts continued their run, and did not stop until one of the animals slipped on a piece of ice, and lunged forward striking a telephone pole with force sufficient to lay the animal out. Mr Quist was in the depot when the colts started their run.

Mrs. G. B. Plummer, accompanied by her son, Merrill, left this afternoon over the Great Northern for Great Falls, Montana, to join Mr. Plummer, who is engaged in the grain business near that place. Mr. Plummer left for Montana last July. Mrs. Plummer was also accompanied by her daughter, Irene, who has been attending the local high school, and will stop off at Fargo, to make her home with her sister, Winnifred who is employed in a photograph studio. After completing her school year at Fargo, Miss Irene will go to Montana in the spring. Mr. and Mrs. Plummer were active members of the Methodist church and their departure will be greatly regretted.

Peter Lovly of Erie, was in the city on Saturday and was one of those who renewed his subscription to The Times. Mr. Lovly, in common with the rest of his neighbors, did not get rich off his crops during the past season, but says things might have been a great deal worse. Farmers around Erie are getting more and more into the stock business and will soon be where a short grain crop cannot embarass them much. The eastern end of the county is rapidily settling up, says Mr. Lovly, and the development is expected to be even greater during the coming year.

By a business transaction consumated Tuesday, Mrs. Cecil Hanson sold the Stockholm restraurant to Alex Beaton, of Minneapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Beaton arrived in the city the latter part of last week from North Dakota, where they have resided during the summer. The new proprietor formerly had charge of a restraurant in Minneapolis and is thoroughly versed in the business. Mr. Beaton stated today that he contemplates on making several changes at the eating establishment, and will keep up the high grade service as heretofore.

opener will be applied to these plays Saturday and Coach Johnson also has a few to spring. It would be impossible to inject any more spirit into the crew without hazarding combustion.

Rooting Club

Another added attraction which will lend spirit to the great gridiron battle will be the rooting club of high school students, who will be all dolled out in school colors of red and blue. They will carry megaphones and pennants. Yells and songs will be sprung under the direction of Rooter King Art Bryant and the enthusiasm which this merry throng will furnish when cut loose should cause the grand stand to shake.

The Players

While the high school team is in great shape and going better every evening in stiff workouts that are being held, it is very doubtful if the Red Lake crew will have a look-in against the all-star machine which will be assembled to once more demonstrate their ability to hold the visitors to a scoreless defeat. The master playing of Holzknecht and Borry is so well known that it is unnecessary to make any detailed comment. The way they tear things up is a little less than criminal. For the fullback position Hobson Rogers will be in action for the first time on the home ground. In the Fosston game Rogers proved to be one of the most desperate line plungers and ground gainers ever developed for many years. He is here and there and everywhere and keeps the opposing backfield men guessing which way to go. For one of the halves, Steen will start the game, relieving Stebbins, who was injured in the Grafton game. Zeh played half at Fosston, but has been transferred to one of the ends.

> By Coach Johnson.
>
> "The Red Lake game will probably the hardest battle of the schedule to date, and the team is in the best of condition for the contest. Our line, which has shown wonderfully all season, is now impregnable. We have not the slightest doubt but what we will be returned victors, and intend to keep up our record of not having had our goal line crossed. We will win."

> By Captain Holzknecht
>
> "Thief River Falls has the best football team in years. Our lineup is working like one man and the backfield has everything necessary to bring the ball down the field and place it behind the posts. Our "stonewall" line will again show that Red Lake Falls must bow before our advance. I think we will defeat the visitors by a comfortable margin and I do not think Hackette's men will be able to cross our line. Our men are in good condition and going fine."

Run For Title.

Thief River Falls has to date won every game of the year and not once has its goal been crossed. But two points have been scored by their opponents and these were secured by Grafton, N. D., on a touchback. Johnson's men defeated Grafton, contenders for the championship of North Dakota, by a score of 13 to 0. Grafton won last Saturday from Grand Forks by 6 to 0. East Grand Forks has been eliminated by Red Lake Falls and Fosston is out of the race by its defeat October 14. Following the Red Lake game Crookston will play here November 4.

A MUSICAL TREAT

On the evening of November 3, at the Auditorium will be presented a musical program, the equal of which has never been heard in Thief River Falls. In previous years long guarantees have been subscribed and paid to bring here the Symphony orchestra of Minneapolis and St. Paul, but the Chicago Operatic company, although presenting a different type of program, offers entertainment of a character fully as high as those larger organizations, and at much less expense to its patrons. This organization is brought here by Charles Anderson, manager of the University Extension Course. It is composed of seven artists of national fame. John B. Miller, tenor; Fredericka Gerhardt Downing, contralto; Leonora Antoinette Allen, soprano; G. Magnus Schultz, baritone; Edgar A. Nelson, piano; Amy Emerson Neill, violinist; and Paul Burke, cellist. A galaxy of stars, each one a solo artist, in a varied program of both vocal and instrumental solos and ensemble, which makes one wonder how it can be presented at popular prices. The Extension Department of the University each year is raising the standard of the productions it sends out. This department charges no profit, but rather shares a portion of the expense, for the purpose of affording the outlying districts of the state a chance to obtain the best in entertainment features. It was with great difficulty that the company was induced to contract for this tour, and then only for a limited number of dates.

Manager Anderson announces that for the purpose of enabling the school children to avail themselves of the exceptional opportunity, all pupils will be admitted for twenty-five cents. General admission charges are fixed at 50 cents with 25 cents extra for seat reservations, season ticket holders to be given reservation without extra charge.

Tickets for sale at Lambert's Drug store. All holders of adult course tickets may have seats reserved without extra charge.—Advt.

MARKET DAY IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

By SCOTT LAIRD

Secretary of the Commercial Club

With outstretched and beckoning arms Thief River Falls attracted to itself on Market Day last Friday, people from hamlet and dale from miles around. The hospitality of this thriving city in northwestern Minnesota has become known rather extensively during the past two years, and an invitation to its confines precludes the impossibility of going away without having had a good time.

Not only a good time is assured all those who attend any of the functions staged by the Commercial club—of which the Market Day was one—but pleasure and profit go hand in hand. There is a spirit of co-operation abroad here that is doing much to unite the city and country into one great, big, contented community.

The Commercial club of Thief River Falls believes in keeping in touch with the entire community surrounding the city for many miles, especially the farmers and the farmers' clubs. In many things they are correlative, and in other matters they are as one. The Commercial club helps the farmers to build up the community; the farmers help the Commercial club to build up Thief River Falls.

The many advantages that the Commercial club of this city have held out to the farmers has induced many of them to take out memberships in the club, and on last Friday the invitation of the club and the merchants of the city as a whole was accepted by many from the rural districts.

Special bargains announced by the stores had been heralded abroad for three weeks, the gifted oratory of Sheriff W. J. LaBree as auctioneer had been posted conspicuously, and the invitation for a free dinner at the Commercial club rooms to all visitors had been well advertised by the press.

Result: The stores all did a flourishing business throughout the day; goods to the amount of nearly two thousand dollars changed hands under the hammer; and the craving appetites of over five hundred people were thoroughly satisfied.

FINED FOR GETTING DUCK HE WOUNDED

E. O. Mogensen of This City Gets Into Trouble For Performing Humane Act.

Tuesday evening's Crookston Times contained a report of the arrest by Game Warden William Munch of E. O. Mogensen, the Thief River Falls clothier, on a charge of not having observed all the rules and regulations laid down in the law for the killing of a duck. The alleged offense was committed at Crystal lake, and the clothing man was haled before Judge Mallas at Erskine and fined $12 and costs. Mr. Mogensen was not guilty, he says, but he feared that the judge might not have any more judgment than the warden, so he paid the fine without trying to explain.

The law provides that ducks must not be shot from a boat except on an open lake. Mr. Mogensen shot his bird from the shore but only succeeded in wounding it, and it fell into the fringe of rushes bordering the lake. The hunter started after the "lame duck" in a boat which happened to be convenient and secured it. At this point Mr. Munch took a hand in the proceedings.

Mr. Mogensen did not know that there was a penalty for putting a wounded duck out of misery and paid twelve simoleons for finding out. He has hunted all over this northern section since the season opened and everyone he has been with testifies to his absolute adherence to all regulations prescribed.

Game wardens have known to be over-ambitious.

Princess Service Advanced

Manager W. H. Seitzler has been notified that his Fox Film corporation service has been advanced six weeks. This means that he will get these pictures for the Princess theatre immediately upon their leaving Minneapolis, something unusual for a city the size of Thief River Falls. Mr. Seitzler is constantly on the lookout for a chance to improve his service and as the film distributing concerns find his business very satisfactory and profitable he generally gets what he goes after.

A Sizable Hog

H. Pope, a farmer living near the city, last week shipped to market a hog weighing 590 pounds. This little pig was a Yorkshire and one of the finest in this section. Hogs of this size make even two dollar wheat look small—providing you don't have to feed wheat costing that amount of money to the hog.

JOHN A. DUFFY'S PLATFORM

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 65th LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

I am in favor of retaining the present county option law.

For the strictest economy. Opposed to all unnecessary appropriations. For lower taxes. Where-ever the Legislature can curtail expenses of state, county, town, village or school government and not impair the efficiency, the movement will have my support to the end that the burden of taxation may be reduced.

For a fairer system of distributing the burden of taxation. Changes should include the assessment of buildings and improvements at a less percentage of their value than the land—a shifting of more of the burden onto the land off the improvements on the land.

For a fair and open market for all farm products, absolutely free from monoply or from manipulation, by promoters and speculators.

For responding to the wishes and the sentiments of the people and carrying out their will, where ever it can be ascertained.

JOHN A. DUFFY.

It's Not so Important that WE are for Mr. WILSON As that Mr. Wilson is For US!

PRESIDENT WILSON'S

RECORD OF SERVICE

TO THE FARMER TO THE COUNTRY TO HUMANITY

DEMANDS YOUR SUPPORT

We have never had a man in the White House who so thoroughly represented ALL the people of this country as the man who is there today. Representing no interest or special privilege, he has the interest of ALL at heart. He has been steadily and steadfastly "on the job" for us. Even now, when the Republicans are doing all in their power to befog the issue, criticize and misrepresent his actions, impugn his motives, he has gone steadily on, giving his time to the duties of his office rather than campaigning for re-lection.

President Wilson does not ask for a vindication of his administration by re-election to office. He does not ask for four years more for personal satisfaction; but the country demands it, because the country needs him.

He Stands on His Record, and His Record is Clean---A Record of Service---A Record of Deeds, Not Words

Space is too limited to give it in full, but as an illustration, look at this record of service to you, the farmer. Then remember that the same keen insight into conditions, the same rare courage that has achieved this bettering of conditions for you, has guided the administration's legislation for the benefit of the whole country and humanity. Here is the record:

HE HAS KEPT US OUT OF WAR:

President Wilson Has Maintained Peace with Honor

No greater service was ever rendered to any country by any man in any time. This alone warrants your support of him. But this is not all. On the record of his administration's service to you, see what has been accomplished. In brief, here is the record:

1. Appreciation of the importance of agriculture has been shown through greatly and intelligently increased appropriations for its support.
2. Greatly increased provision has been made, through the enactment of the Co-operative Agricultural Extension Act, for conveying agricultural information to farmers.
3. Through the office of markets and rural organization, systematic provision has, for the first time, been made toward the solution of problems in that important half of agriculture which concerns distribution, marketing, rural finance and rural organization. The appropriations for this office, including those for enforcing new laws designed to promote better marketing, have been increased to $1,200,000.
4. The United States Grain Standards Act will secure uniformity in the grading of grain, and enable the farmer to obtain fairer prices for his product.
5. The United States Warehouse Act will enable the Department of Agriculture to license bonded warehouses in various states. It will lead to better storage facilities for staple crops and make possible the issuance of reliable warehouse receipts which will be easily negotiable.
6. The Federal Aid Road Act will conduce to the establishment of better highways and better marketing.
7. The Federal Reserve Act benefits the farmer by guaranteeing better banking, safeguarding the credit structure of the country and preventing panics, making larger provision for loans through national banks on farm mortgages and by giving farm paper a maturity period of six months.

THE FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

8. It was essential, however, that banking machinery be devised which would reach intimately into the rural districts, that it should operate on terms suited to the farmers' needs, and should be under sympathetic management. The need was for machinery which would introduce business methods into farm finance, bring order out of chaos, reduce the cost of handling farm loans, place upon the market mortages which would be a safe investment for private funds, attract into agricultural operations a fair share of the capital of the nation, and lead to a reduction of interest. These needs and these ideals have been met by the enactment of the Federal Farm Loan Act.

THE POOR RAILROADS!

The Poverty Plea of the Railroads is echoed by Candidate Hughes and his supporters. They will tell you that the Farmer will have to pay higher Freight Rates because of the Eight Hour Day. The Farmer will have to pay if we have Railroad-owned Republican Government—as he has always had to pay under such Government.

But look at the Facts: The Railroads were never as prosperous as now, and during the past two years. Here is the record as they have filed their sworn statements with the Interstate Commerce Commission as required by law.

166 large railroads, having gross earnings of over $1,000,000 per year each, show an increase in Net Earnings for the past Twelve months of $307,536,097. These roads earned in net revenue from July 1 to August 31, 1916, $19,630,601 more than for the same two months last year. Under Democratic government, which has protected and will protect the producer, the railroads cannot rob the farmer under plea of poverty.

The Farmer is Too Sensible to Exchange the Substance for the Shadow---Too Wise to give up Prosperity for Promises---That's Why

The Farmer will vote to retain President Wilson

COWS AND CLOVER SEED PAYING WELL

Two Pennington County Farmers Who Are Not Worrying Over Any Shortage

E. T. Hurst, living near St. Hilaire, was in the city Tuesday on business. While his grain crop did not amount to much for the past season, Mr. Hurst is not worrying much about it. He has 25 head of stock on his place, nine of which are milch cows. These brought him in a total of $73.00 for the month of September, this being the amount of his creamery check. Mr. Hurst has named his farm "Pinehurst," and says that he will devote the greater part of it to cows and clover, raising only what grain he can feed on the place. His clover seed alone this year will prove quite an item. The light snow of the past week stopped business as far as hulling operations were concerned, but these will be resumed as soon as it drys up again.

Another farmer who is doing well with clover seed this year is A. G. Loftness, residing north of the city. He has been busy hulling his crop during the past week and the yield is one of the best reported from northern Minnesota. This seed is worth now 23 cents per pound and at that rate the crop of Mr. Loftness would run nearly to $100 per acre.

ST. PAUL MARCHING CLUBS ARE INVITED

Winter Carnival Association to Send Out Boosters and They Should Come Here

C. A. Nason, chairman of the sports committee of the Commercial club of this city had his attention called recently to the fact that the St. Paul Outdoor Sports Carnival association was considering the advisability of having several members of its marching clubs visit cities throughout the northwest in an endeavor to arouse interest in the forthcoming carnival in St. Paul.

The fact that last year a hockey team from Thief River Falls carried off high honors in St. Paul led Mr. Nason to rightfully believe that this city should be favored by the Saintly City's sport enthusiasts in the nature of a friendly call, and he appealed to them, but with no definite promise as yet.

H. P. Wickham, manager of the St. Paul association wrote that the carnival was to be held Jan. 27 to Feb. 3, and that he would endeavor to have one of the marching clubs visit Thief River Falls if any club went as far away from home as this.

The fact was also brought out in the reply that there had been no decision at St. Paul as yet regarding the formation of a hockey team there this winter, although there was considerable favorable agitation along these lines.

SECOND LYCEUM FEATURE NOV. 3

Chicago Operatic Company to Present Program of Vocal and Instrumental Music.

SEVEN FAMOUS ARTISTS

This Troupe is Composed of Some of the Best Known Musicians in the Country and Present Unrivaled Entertainment.

The second lyceum number of the 1916 winter season will be presented at the Auditorium on Friday evening, Nov. 3.

The attraction is the Chicago Operatic company, one of the very best organizations of its kind in America. The company is composed of seven artists presenting an entertainment of almost unequalled excellence. The program is varied in its scope, containing something that is sure to please every taste in music.

Deserving of Support.

The artistic development and culture of a community is to a great extent gauged by the patronage extended to entertainments of this kind. The company is of a much higher order than are those generally making lyceum circuits which include cities the size of Thief River Falls. The course costs more than any ever seen here and will have to be more liberally patronized than was the first number or the sponsors are going to come away with a heavy financial loss.

The Chicago Operatic company is made up of the following well known performers:

John B. Miller.

Mr. Miller has for years been one of the leading American tenors. He has an extensive repertoire and his artistic standing is vouched for by the leading critics. He has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Appolo Club, the Mendelssohn Club and most of the leading musical clubs of the country.

Edgar A. Nelson

Mr. Nelson is one of the leading pianists and organists of Chicago. He is the official organist of the Apollo Club, organist at the First Presbyterian Church of Oak Park, Organist for the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, Conductor of the Swedish Choral Society of Chicago and assistant director of the Bush Temple Conservatory of Music.

Lenora Antoinette Allen.

This artist has a very high and pure soprano voice which thrills the listener by reason of its sympathetic quality. She is rapidily becoming one of the leading young sopranos in America. She has appeared as soloist of the Apollo Club and of the Minnepolis Symphony Orchestra.

G. Magnus Schutz.

An artist who has won almost instantaneous recognition in the oratorio and concert field. Mr. Schutz is vocally and temperamentally an ideal oratorio artist. His style is broad and dignified, while his perfect tone production gives him that beautiful legato sostenuto which is so requsite in this field.

Amy Emerson Neill.

Few, if any, American violinists have scored such individual success in every public appearance both in this country and in the European music centers as has Miss Amy Emerson Neill. She has fulfilled every promise of her budding genius, and has developed into the strong, noble artist to whom nothing but the highest praise can be given.

Frederica Gerhardt Downing.

Madam Downing is known in Chicago and throughout the middle west as one of the leading contraltos. She has appeared before many of the leading musical clubs and has attained an enviable musical position.

Paul Burke, Cellist.

Mr. Burke is a student of Bruck, of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and gives promise of splendid musicianship in this chosen field of musical art. His engagement with the Chicago Operatic company last season was so successful that he was at once engaged for the coming season and will be welcomed back wherever he has appeared.

The seats for this entertainment will be reserved and placed on sale at Lambert's drug store.

AUXILAIRY COMMITTEE FOR DAIRYMEN IS NAMED

Will Aid Arrangements Committee in The Work of Preparing For Big Convention

C. W. McDaniel, W. J. LaBree, John Bratrud, F. F. Haines and C. A. Pitkin have been named by President George G. Johnson of the Commercial club as an auxiliary committee to aid the arrangement committee recently appointed at the meeting held with representatives of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association in furthering plans for the big convention in Thief River Falls Dec. 6 and 7.

Henry Hanson, president, and Henry Werner, secretary, of the Pennington County Live Stock Breeder's association, together with Albert Johnson, R. L. Muzzy and Hans Anton, each representing one of the auxiliary associations, compose the committee recently appointed.

A joint meeting of these two committees is expected shortly, when active plans will be made to carry the convention through to a successful close.

W. C. T. U. Notes

What the Women Want.

What the women of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Minnesota want in this coming election is men elected to the Legislature who will submit and vote for a bill providing for the vote of the people of this state to amend the constitution so as to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors within the borders of the state. They also want men elected to congress who will vote for the measure to submit to the states of the Union to amend the federal constitution to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liqours within the borders of the United States. As far as women are concerned they care less as to the political party to which the candidate belongs than the measures for which he pledges himself to work for if elected. The liquor men want to know how every candidate stands on prohibition. So do the women. In many of the legislative districts the women are finding out just how the candidates stand and then use their influence to elect the man who stands squarely for a constitutional amendment submitted to the people. The women believe this measure is the most important one before the people. It will save more money for the building of homes and the support of the women and children than any other financial measure which will come before the legislature. Happy homes means a prosperous state. The women also favor men who will vote for the enfranchisement of women so they can do their own voting.

CATTLE ESTIMATE IS 15,000 HEAD

Great Northern Railway's Publicity Booklet Credits Pennington With This Number

MORE IN HAY THAN WHEAT

The Transition From Grain Growing to Cattle Raising and Dairying is Made Apparent by Figures and Facts Presented

Tht Great Northern Railway has just issued a booklet dealing with the resources and advantages of Northern Minnesota in which Pennington county occupies a prominent position. The material for the booklet has evidently been gathered with a great deal of care and is perhaps the most authenic work of its kind of the year.

Cattle Are Featured

One very noticeable feature of the work is the fact that the success attained by people following the cattle industry is prominently set forth. The number of cattle in Pennington county is given as in the neighborhood of 15,000, while the horses number 5,000.

The following are some of the facts set forth in the booklet:

Pennington County

Pennington county was created from about the northern half of old Red Lake County in 1910. It contains 291,341 acres divided into about 1,244 farms. The county is typical of the eastern portion of the Red River Valley with a number of large areas of the very finest land, particularly in the western portions and tributary to the Red Lake and Thief Rivers. These farms as a rule are highly improved and in an advanced state of cultivation. Natural groves of comparatively small area with the native trees bordering the streams lend variety to an otherwise even landscape and make many excellent building sites.

Big Population Increase

The 1910 population of the county was 9,376 but has increased a great deal since the census was taken through increased immigration and additional farm development. A considerable portion of the county was embraced within the Indian lands which were opened to settlement in 1904 and sold at auction. These lands sold to settlers at from $5 to as high as $25 per acre. Some of the farms developed out of this land today have a value of about $75 per acre and are among the best improved and most productive farms of northwestern Minnesota.

Land Prices Still Low

The eastern portion of the county still presents good opportunities for securing at low prices good land which is now provided with drainage systems and requires but little clearing for converting it to good farms. These lands can be bought as low as $15 to $25 per acre.

Best Farms in North

Thief River Falls with an estimated population of about 6,000 is the county seat. St. Hilaire, a town of about 500 people in the south central portion of the county, is surrounded by an excellent scope of the very finest land in the entire county. The Red Lake river running through Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire affords building sites for the farms which front on it. Here will be found a number of the best improved farms in northwestern Minnesota. The soil is well adapted to corn growing as well as small grain and this county holds the record for the highest yield for the northern half of the state.

Crop Acreage

Crop acreage: Wheat 26,163, hay 34,497, oats 18,437, flax 10,206, barley 6,715, corn 1,816, potatoes 689. A large percentage of the hay crop was of tame hay, such as timothy, clover, alsike and alfalfa. While exact figures are not available the county at this date probably has over 15,000 cattle and 5,000 horses.

School Facilities

The county has sixty-two rural schools, one agricultural high school and one graded school, numerous churches both in towns and country and five newspapers. Country roads have been well improved in most all parts of the county and markets are comparatively easy of access to all farms. Improved farms in the central and western portion of the county range in value from $35 to $75 per acre. The Great Northern's Warroad Line crosses the county.

Are Well Satisfied

The pamphlet contains a number of testimonials from farmers who have settled in this neighborhood, the following of which are representative:

No Poor Crop Yet

Gust Kirby, Thief River Falls, Minn. "I paid $60 an acre for my land here in 1912, coming in that year from Taylor Falls, Minn. I have not yet raised a poor crop. I plow deep and aim to get my crops in early in the spring and think that counts for more than anything else for success. While we have good drainage, deep cultivation will turn a poor crop to a good one on this land.

"The past season I secured 175 bushels of Marquis wheat from 3½ acres and from 48 acres threshed 1,438 bushels of Bluestem. On twenty acres of oats we threshed 1,266 bushels machine measure. Last year I had over 20 bushels of wheat to the acre and it graded No. 1 northern, and brought about $30 per acre.

"Land is worth $45 to $55 for unimproved or poorly improved places and from $60 upward for well improved places. We like the climate and it agrees with all of us. Water is good on all farms here.

"The opportunities are good. I am approaching sixty years of age, but if I were a young man I could make lots of money here. Land is still cheap considering what it will produce."

Big Yield in Dry Year

Oscar N. Anderson, Thief River Falls, Minn. "Five years ago when we had the dry year I raised 21 bushels of wheat per acre, four years ago when we had so much rain I had over 31 bushels per acre and in 1914 my 45 acres of Marquis wheat averaged 35 bushels per acre, oats 65 per acre, 6½ acres of barley threshed 375 bushels and 22 acres of timothy cut between 35 and 40 good big loads of hay. The land is well drained now, but before we had the ditches it was so wet we could do but little. My farm is worth $75 per acre, but is not for sale. Land can be bought here all the way from $40 to $75 per acre."

"J. H." COMMITTEE WANTS TO PAY UP

Indebtedness Outstanding Against Commercial Club Should be Cleared Away At Once

The Jefferson Highway was landed for Thief River Falls and the other cities in this part of the state by hard work on the part of a few interested citizens, and in doing so, considerable expense was incurred. This has to be met and the Jefferson Highway committee of the Commercial club will again start out in a few days in an endeavor to clean up the indebtedness. Nearly everyone is now thoroughly acquainted with the benefits that are resultant therefrom and it should be an easy matter for the committee to raise the necessary sum. There are several who have not been seen by the committee as yet, and then there are some who have failed to make any contribution but have promised to do so.

JURY IS SELECTED FOR WINTER TERM

Clerk of Court H. E. Ives, Sheriff W. J. LaBree and Justice of the Peace Tobias Steene of Smiley township, on Saturday drew the jury for the January term of the district court which will convene on the 22nd of the month. The following were selected:

M. C. Harlow, F. J. Stebbins, C. W. McDaniel, Oscar Sponheim, John Aos, Peter Eberhart, Thief River Falls; Orlander Uglum, Reiner; T. O. Loyland, John Tofteland, Star; Gust Kirby, North; J. R. Hesby, Kratka; N. E. Beebe, S. O. Lee, Rocksbury; R. Wallen, Martin Bjerkê, Ed. Peterson, St. Hilaire; Martin Johnson, Deer Park; Eugene Becanson, Christ Urdahl, Goodridge; Joseph Joringdal, Alfred Forslund, Numedal; Oscar Carlson, Black River; Julius Olson, Hickory.

Notice.

On June 1st a penalty of 10 per cent is added to all unpaid Real Estate Tax, but in case one-half the amount of the tax on any real estate be paid before June 1st of each year then no penalty is added, providing that the remaining half of said tax shall be paid before the 1st day of November of each year, if said remaining one-half of said tax is not paid before November 1st of each year, then a penalty of 10 per cent is added to the one-half of said tax remaining unpaid. Taxes becoming delinquent on the 1st day of January next, when an additional penalty of 5 per cent is added. Tax sales take place on the first Monday of May following and the amount of sale draws interest at the rate of one per cent a month until redeemed. If not redeemed within three years from the date of sale, all lands become the absolute property of the state or purchaser.

NON-PARTISAN NOMINEE FOR

Clerk of the District Court
For Pennington County

TO THE VOTERS OF PENNINGTON COUNTY:—

I have been the Clerk of the District Court for Pennington County since the start of the County, November 23rd, 1910, and during that time I have tried to the best of my ability to master the many intricate details of the office and do the work in a capable, impartial and painstaking manner. I have attended to the work of the office in person, giving ALL OF MY TIME to the affairs of the office and employ a deputy only when Court is in session, less than thirty days a year. I have been elected once and feel that a second election would be an endorsement of my work and I frankly ask you for your vote and support on November 7th.

If re-elected I wish to pledge that I will continue to try to be efficient, obliging and impartial and will continue to do the work in person whenever possible. Respectfully yours,

H. E. IVES.

Gloria's Romance

by MR. and MRS. RUPERT HUGHES

Novelized From the Motion Picture Play of the Same Name by George Kleine

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her one dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau. Doctor Royce warns Freneau that there is another woman besides Gloria: Freneau goes sleighing with Gloria without her father's knowledge. It results in pneumonia for Gloria, whose family becomes incensed at Freneau when they learn the truth. Royce is summoned to alleviate Gloria's suffering. Freneau's finances being low he approaches Pierpont Stafford for a loan. Doctor Royce again warns Freneau of his conduct. But Lois, learning of Freneau's betrothal to Gloria, threatens him with dire punishment. Her husband, Gloria's brother David, becomes suspicious; he plans a trap for his wife. Freneau driven to desperation by Lois' threats agrees to spend a week with her in the Catskills. He plans to have Mulry send Gloria a bunch of telegrams. Lois' husband threatens to kill a man. After Freneau takes leave of Gloria she sees him when he goes to meet Lois. Doctor Royce convinces her that what she has seen is the result of delirium. Later a telegram, followed by a letter, comes from Freneau. She replies, but her telegrams are returned. The first morning she is allowed from her room, she accidently sees the supposed suicide of Freneau reported in the paper.

NINTH EPISODE

The Shadow of Scandal

Pitiful fate played on Gloria. She had ordered her wedding gown while she was dangerously ill. But now her bridegroom would not appear. The newspapers said that he was drowned in the lower bay. She believed she had seen him throttled to death on Riverside drive, and her mourning was embittered with doubt.

At such an incongruous moment the little bridal gown came home from the dressmaker's to torture her with its beauty and its futile intent. Gloria was in her bedroom, looking out of her window at the fateful monument below, living over again the scene of the murder.

With the pathetic droop of her head, and her arms hanging at her sides, and the long lines of her gown sweeping about her inert, almost lifeless form, she stood like a Tanagra figure of grief. Poor little soul, she was just entering the real world of womanhood when the grim arms of tragedy infolded her! It was her first great sorrow.

Her old nurse came toward her. Gloria moved, gave a little moan of horror, and ran to put her head on the nurse's breast, sobbing out her pent-up agony.

"It can't be true! I can't bear it! It's too horrible. A week ago he was alive and happy. Now he—oh, I'll go mad if I think about what he is now!"

"There, there, Miss Gloria," the nurse importuned her. "Try to keep your mind off your loss as much as you can. Think of your father and your brother and how much they need you. That will help you."

A knock was heard at the door and the nurse went to it to admit Doctor Royce. His heart contracted with quick pain at sight of his idolized patient's distress. Gloria sank into a chair and made a brave effort to stifle her cries, gritting her teeth together and wringing her hands, but in vain. The doctor prepared a sedative and held it out to her.

"Take this, dear child; it will quiet your nerves."

But before the words were finished she had brushed the glass from his hand.

"I don't want your opiates, Stephen; there is only one medicine for my pain, and that is revenge. Will you help me to that?"

He shook his head sadly. Struck with a sudden memory, Gloria pulled him toward the window.

"I saw him murdered and you told me it was delirium. Why?"

"You admitted it yourself when you received his letters and telegrams," Royce answered hastily.

"But I don't believe that now. And I don't believe that you do either."

Royce winced at this.

"It was too much of a coincidence," continued Gloria. "I am not a child any longer, Stephen, and though this tragedy has nearly unbalanced my mind, I am still able to think and reason. Why, if this had happened a little later I would have been his wife."

Her lips trembled like a hurt child's and Royce turned his head away in pity.

"If I were his wife I should not sit idly by and let the demon who took his precious life go scot free, should I? Should I, Stephen?"

Royce was silent. Gloria went on:

"I am going to act as though I were his widow in reality, as I am in heart. I shall go to the police." Royce started. "And tell them everything. Will you help me?"

"I will do anything I can, Gloria, but first we must consult your father."

Doctor Royce was dumbfounded at the new Gloria he had to face, and to save from monsters she knew nothing of—the juggernauts of scandal and publicity. He determined to confer with Mr. Stafford at once, and descended the stairs to find Pierpont in his library.

Royce told Mr. Stafford things which amazed and horrified him, and when he had finished he said: "I did not want you to know any of this as long as I could keep it from you, Mr. Stafford. There seemed to be nothing for you to do and I felt that you had enough on your shoulders as it was. I do not know if I acted wisely in keeping you in the dark so long, but now that Gloria wants to go to the police with the matter I had to tell you so that we could keep her from it and save an investigation that would ruin your son's wife and bring horrible notoriety to our innocent Gloria. Whoever it was that killed Freneau, he must have had his reasons. He has made good his escape. Incidentally he has saved Gloria from marrying a scoundrel. I could almost thank him for that. But we must never let Gloria know Freneau's unworthiness; it would leave too deep a scar on her fresh young heart, ruin all her ideals and kill her faith in humanity."

Stafford gave Royce his hand. "How right you are, Stephen. You are a great and a noble friend to her and to my children. Gloria will get over her lover's death. She would never recover from the knowledge of his treachery. Yes, we must save her from that. May God help me to save David, too."

After Royce had left her Gloria went to her dressing room. Her maid and the nurse were unpacking a large box. They tried to conceal it as she came in, but she commanded them to give it to her. It was her wedding gown.

Clasping the soft shining robe to her heart with a little cry, she motioned them to leave her alone with it. Then she sank to the floor, clutching it in her arms. She pressed her lips to the satin folds and cuddled its beauty to her cheek. As she fondled the precious lace in her fingers, she visioned herself in the gown. She was standing at the altar with Freneau by her side; all the friends of her world were sitting in their pews behind her. To her rapt ears came the organ music swelling into the wedding march, as with her head erect and her heart high she came back up the aisle on her husband's arms.

The dream crumbled and the girl woke to the truth with nothing left of her dream but the gown in her arms. She kissed it reverently, and laid it away in its box, as in a coffin. Then her tears vanished and her eyes hardened with resolution. She went down to the library, where she found her father pacing the floor in deep meditation. Gloria ran to him and put her arms about his neck.

"Daddy," she spoke determinedly. "Have you notified the police yet?"

Pierpont was fully prepared for this. He shook his head.

"Why not, father? You must, or I will, at once."

"Gloria, we can't tell the police anything. If they learned that you were engaged to Freneau, the house would be besieged by detectives and reporters. What evidence have you? Nothing but the imagination of a delirious girl. If you told them of your delirium you would only stir up a scandal. It would have no value in court."

Gloria stared at him incredulously but he went on vividly to convince her.

"We should be laid open to enormous publicity at once. There would be headlines in all the papers about you every day. 'Gloria Stafford Involved in Freneau Mystery'; 'Secret Engagement of Heiress Just Discovered'; 'Gloria Stafford Claims She Saw Freneau Murdered'; 'The Beautiful Daughter of Pierpont Stafford—'"

She groaned. "Oh, don't, father; I can't bear it."

But Stafford continued inexorably: "You could never leave the house nor enter it without a dozen cameras being focused on you. The police would swarm the house, demand all your private correspondence with Freneau. If you refused them anything they would use force and I should be powerless to help you. And what the police get the reporters get. Do you want your love and your sorrow given over to the gossips? Now do you see why we cannot set the machine in motion? I have only one desire, to protect your reputation. If you want to protect Freneau's, you will keep silence. Promise?"

Gloria was convinced, at least for the moment. She nodded her head in obedience, kissed her father's cheek, patted him absent-mindedly, and left him. But once alone again she burned with resentment at the plan to shield the murderer of her lover. She respected her father's dread of publicity and she shared his hatred of publicity, but she would not relinquish her demand for justice. She realized, however, that she would have no help now in her hunt for the murderer. But this only strengthened her determination. Alone she would unravel the secret knot and bring the guilty to punishment.

Meanwhile Lois, in her own passionate way, was suffering also, but her suffering was tinged with a certain amount of horrible satisfaction. Death, instead of Gloria, had taken Freneau from her. Gloria could not claim one smallest part of him from her now. He had never cared one atom for Gloria; he had told her so. It was for financial reasons alone that he had intended to marry Gloria, but she could not buy him now. Freneau had been struck down in his youth and strength by some fiend, but he was hers, hers in death as he had been in life. Neither Gloria nor her own husband, David, could ever take him from her now.

Lois went to her dressing table, took from a locked drawer her open bag, and drew from it the silver-framed photograph of Freneau that she had stolen from Gloria. Staring at it longingly, she kissed it, then, pausing with anxious jealousy, lifted it from its frame and read the inscription on the back:

"To Gloria, my only love, with all my heart. Dick."

Lois recoiled from the words as if they struck her in the face. Then, turning the photograph toward her again, she gazed at it searchingly. Suddenly she smote it with her clenched fist and threw it from her. But at once, with swift revulsion of feeling, she knelt and clasped it to her bosom again, bursting into dry sobs and misery.

She was interrupted by a knock at the door and the warning voice of her maid: "Miss Stafford is calling, madam."

Lois was startled. She rose and slipped the photograph between two volumes in a book rack on a table and called to her maid: "Show Miss Stafford up here."

Rushing to her dressing table, she hastily ran a powder puff over her face and brushed back her hair.

When she turned it was to confront Gloria clad in heavy mourning. For a moment the sight of the crape stung Lois to jealous frenzy; next she determined to make some excuse to wear black herself. She felt that she had a better right to mourning than Gloria had.

Advancing, she kissed Gloria's cool cheek, mumbling: "How are you, dear? Do you think you ought to be out on such a cold day?"

"Oh, yes," answered Gloria listlessly. "I thought a drive would do me good. I just dropped in on you for a moment."

Putting up her furs, Gloria wandered aimlessly about the room, then sank into a chair by the table. The women eyed each other with constraint. Neither wished to speak first of Freneau. Gloria noted the haggard mien of Lois with wonderment. Casting about for something to say, she fumbled with the books on the rack. The picture of Freneau fell out.

The blood pounded in Gloria's heart and spread a quick flush over her face as she picked it up. She turned it over and read the inscription. She asked bewilderedly: "How did this come here?"

Lois, controlling herself with difficulty, tried to speak.

"Was it you, then, who stole it from my room?" Gloria hurled the question with set lips and glittering eyes.

With a desperate inspiration Lois explained. "Yes, I stole it. I was going to surprise you with it. And then he died."

Gloria was touched, and believed as impulsively as she had suspected.

Throwing her arms about Lois, she embraced her. "Thank you, dear; it was wonderful of you to think of that. You are so very thoughtful. I must go now." She slipped into her coat in spite of the protests of Lois, and left her. She took the photograph with her, and Lois dared not protest.

* * * * * * * *

Far away in a Colorado town lived a woman who after all was most to be affected by Richard Freneau's death, for she had given him more than Gloria with her young girl's heart or Lois with her guilty love. She had given him birth.

In a quaint, old-fashioned sitting room the venerable, sweet woman was sitting in a rocking chair before the fire. On her mantel were portraits of Freneau as a child and as a man. She put down her knitting and rose with some difficulty. Clinging to the mantel, she took down one of the photographs and, turning it, read in the beloved handwriting: "To my darling mother from her adoring son, Dick." She kissed the photograph and carried it back to her chair.

An elderly maid brought in the morning paper and a few letters, which the mother ran through eagerly. Finding none from Dick, she shook her finger reprovingly but affectionately at the photograph; she then leaned back in her chair to glance carelessly over the paper.

Almost immediately her eyes lighted on the headlines announcing her son's death, with a hint of suicide. The shock of the news almost killed the mother; for she was old and Dick was her only child and she knew only the good side of him. The evil that he wrought in the world was mercifully kept from her.

The maid, hearing her moan, ran out of the house and summoned the doctor who was caring for her. He saw that her disease was the incurable one that mothers are often prey to, the loss of their children. There was no remedy for this in the doctor's books and the only help he could give was to answer her one remaining wish that her son's body should be brought home to be buried in the family plot where his father lay and where she hoped soon to rest.

The doctor telegraphed the mother's request to Freneau's partner, Frank Mulry, who took steps at once to comply.

Thus it was that Gloria was deprived even of the sad satisfaction of following her lover to the grave. Her chief enemies were those who loved her best, Stephen Royce and her own father. They would do everything they could to thwart her. When she learned of his mother's wishes her first impulse was to go to Colorado herself, but that impulse she quickly put aside; for her most important duty was to find his murderer, and that search she must start at once.

Pierpont Stafford felt a deep resentment against the world for its treatment of his children. He had won and held a position of power in the financial world. He had made millions of dollars and he controlled more, yet his son was married to a worthless woman and his daughter mourned the death of a blackguard.

He could not buy happiness for his children and his own success was therefore worthless. His whole soul rose in revolt. His son would have to win his own way out of his mesh; he was a man. But his daughter, his Gloria, must be helped out of the shadows and back into the light.

Stafford could hardly think of Freneau without wishing to kill him over again with his own hands. It was unthinkable that his girl should be allowed to wear his engagement ring and mourn for him. Yet it was a delicate matter for a father to handle. He could not bear to blast the fresh innocence of his daughter by a recital of Freneau's wickedness. He felt also that her loyalty would not permit her to believe evil of the dead man who was now unable to defend himself. The whole situation was intolerable.

He went to Gloria's room, finding her as he had expected, brooding by the window. He took her in his arms and clasping her hands found they enfolded a picture of Freneau. Anger mastered him; he took the photograph from her, saying: "I wish you would put that out of my sight and out of your life."

Gloria stared up at him in amazement, tears trembling on her eyelashes. Then she gently disengaged the picture from his grasp and hugged it to her breast.

"Why do you hate him now? What do you know against him? How can you be so cruel, so unjust?"

Pierpont uneasily avoided her gaze and shrugged his shoulders with a sigh.

Gloria put her hands pleadingly on his shoulders and he tried to take her in his arms again, but noting the engagement ring on her hand, he froze. Then, with determination in his tone, he commanded: "Take it off!"

Terrified, Gloria snatched her hand away from his arm and shook her head, moving swiftly away from him. Pierpont followed and clasped her hand. Pointing to the photograph accusingly, he said:

"Everyone will ask who it is you are engaged to. You are not engaged to him any longer. I insist on your removing that ring."

Gloria protested. Pierpont stood firm. She studied him anxiously. He reiterated his demand. She refused. Baffled in his coercion, the old man began to plead. She was all he had. He was old and heartbroken. He could not endure the sight of her in black. He was jealous of the dead man's hold on her heart. Pity moved her as fear could not. To comfort him she yielded. She drew the ring from her finger, dropping it into his outstretched palm.

He clutched it with a sigh of relief and put it in his waistcoat pocket.

At this moment Burroughs entered with a black dinner gown on her arms for Gloria. Pierpont motioned it away.

"No, not that, Burroughs! Bring Miss Gloria a bright gown. Black is not becoming to her at any time. You understand me, Burroughs?"

The maid nodded a respectful "Yes, sir," and withdrew to the dressing room. She presently re-entered bearing a gown of brilliant turquoise blue, festooned with garlands of varicolored flowers. Gloria shuddered. But her father nodded his head approvingly.

"That's it. Now I shall have my own little beautiful girl to dine with me."

Gloria studied the blue gown for a moment, then snatched it from Burroughs, threw it on the floor in wrath and burst into tears.

The maid was at a loss. She pondered, then went again to the dressing room and brought forth another gown. "Here, Miss Gloria, dear, here's your little black tulle dress with the gold and black brocade bodice. Mr. Stafford won't mind that and you'll feel better in it, too."

Gloria patted Burroughs on the shoulder tenderly. "Yes, that will have to do," she murmured sorrowfully, and she let the maid dress her.

Then, she went slowly down the stairway. Her father met her and they entered the dining room together.

The table, laden with its lace and silver, was alight with candles; the butler was waiting; a man stood behind each chair. Seating themselves, Pierpont took up his cocktail glass and lifted it to drink to Gloria, who picked up her own glass with a faraway look.

Suddenly, it was as if Freneau stood beside her. She imagined he was putting his cheek close to hers to sip from the same brim. So vividly did she feel his presence that she gave a startled gasp and put down her glass.

Her father half rose: "What is it, honey? You look as pale as a ghost."

Gloria shivered at the word "ghost," but summoned a smile to reassure him. "It's nothing, dad. I'll be all right in a minute." And raising her glass again, she put it to her lips.

The butler at the serving table handed the soup plates to the second man, who conveyed them to Gloria's side.

Pierpont chatted jovially to entice Gloria to a cheerful mood. She tried to be gay with him, but her heart would not respond. She tried to eat, but food was distasteful to her, and, dropping into a reverie again, she seemed to see Freneau as she had so often seen him, enter the room and greet her.

Again the vision became almost real; it was as if he put his arms about her and embraced her, then her eyes fell to her left hand, which their engagement ring had adorned, and its nakedness rebuked her. She seemed to see the look of anguish and reproach on Freneau's face as he took account of its absence.

She put her hands before her face. Pierpont looked up anxiously, then went to her side. She shivered with a chill. "I'm sorry, daddy, to spoil your dinner. Please let me go to my room. I'll pull myself together after a bit. It's just a fit of nerves. No, don't come with me; I'm all right. Finish your dinner, dear; don't mind at all. I'll be all right."

She dragged herself wearily away from him and on up to her own room. She threw herself down upon the bed moaning: "They've even taken your ring from me. O Dick, Dick, come back and help me."

THE EIGHT Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of the STATE OF MINNESOTA

Submitted by the Legislature at Its General Session, 1915, Together With a Statement of the PURPOSES AND EFFECTS,

Prepared by Hon. Lyndon A. Smith, Attorney General of Minnesota.

Addressed to Julius A. Schmahl Secretary of State

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, ST. PAUL.

April 7, 1916.

Honorable Julius A. Schmahl,
Secretary of State,
Capitol.

DEAR SIR: Pursuant to your request and in accordance with the provisions of Section 46, Statutes 1913, I herewith hand you statement of the purposes and effect of all amendments to the Constitution proposed by the legislature of 1915 and to be submitted to the electors at the next general election; such statement also shows the reading of the existing sections and the way the same will read if the amendments are adopted.

Yours truly,
LYNDON A. SMITH,
Attorney General.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By Chapter 379, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Two (2) of Article Eight of the Constitution, by adding to said Section Two a new paragraph.

Section Two as it now stands reads as follows:

Section 2. "SCHOOL AND SWAMP LANDS—SCHOOL FUNDS FROM SALE OF—The proceeds of such lands as are or hereafter may be granted by the United States for the use of schools within each township in this state shall remain a perpetual school fund to the state; and not more than one-third of said lands may be sold in two years, one-third in five years, and one-third in ten years; but the lands of the greatest valuation shall be sold first: Provided, that no portion of said lands shall be sold otherwise than at public sale. The principal of all funds arising from sales or other disposition of lands or other property granted or intrusted to this state in each township for educational purposes, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished; and the income arising from the lease or sale of said school land shall be distributed to the different townships throughout the state, in proportion to the number of scholars in each township, between the ages of five and twenty-one years; and shall be faithfully applied to the specific objects of the original grants or appropriations. Suitable laws shall be enacted by the legislature for the safe investment of the principal of all funds which have heretofore arisen or which may hereafter arise from the sale or other disposition of such lands, or the income from such lands accruing in any way before the sale or disposition thereof in interest-bearing bonds of the United States, or of the State of Minnesota issued after the year 1860, or of such other state as the legislature may by law from time to time direct. All swamp lands now held by the state, or that may hereafter accrue to the state, shall be appraised and sold in the same manner and by the same officers, and the minimum price shall be the same less one-third, as is provided by law for the appraisement and sale of the school lands under the provisions of title one of chapter thirty-eight of the General Statutes. The principal of all funds derived from sales of swamp lands as aforesaid shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished. One-half of the proceeds of said principal shall be appropriated to the common school fund of the state; the remaining one-half shall be appropriated to the educational and charitable institutions of the state in the relative ratio of cost to support said institutions."

The paragraph which it is proposed to add to said Section Two reads as follows:

"A revolving fund of not over two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) may be set apart from the fund derived from the sale of school and swamp lands, to be used in constructing roads, ditches and fire breaks in, through and around unsold school and swamp lands and in clearing such lands, such fund to be replenished as long as needed from the enhanced value realized from the sale of such lands so benefited."

Under Section Two as it now stands the proceeds of the sale of school and swamp lands constitute the principal of a trust fund, the income of which is used for the support of the schools, educational and charitable institutions of the state. Section Two as it now stands provides that the principal of such fund "shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished."

THE EFFECT of the proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to modify the provision last quoted to the extent of permitting the legislature to set aside not to exceed $250,000 of the principal of the trust fund as a revolving fund to be used for the purposes stated in the amendment proposed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2.

By Chapter 380, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Six (6), of Article Eight (8) of the Constitution.

Section Six as it now stands reads as follows:

"Section 6. INVESTMENT OF SCHOOL FUNDS — The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, but no such investment shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed fifteen per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable real property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall such loans or indebtedness be made at a lower rate of interest than three per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than twenty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of the issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds."

If the proposed amendment is adopted it will then read as follows:

"The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, and in first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands of this state. But no such investment or loan shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed 15 per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall any farm loan, or investment be made when such investment or loan would exceed 30 per cent of the actual cash value of the farm land mortgage to secure said investment; nor shall such investments or loans be made at a lower rate of interest than 3 per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than thirty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds."

THE PURPOSE of the amendment is to authorize the investment of the permanent school and university funds in "first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands where the amount of the loans so secured does not exceed 30 per cent of the value of the land mortgaged.

THE EFFECT of the adoption of the proposed amendment will be to permit the legislature to authorize the investment of the permanent school and university funds in farm mortgages as above stated, as well as in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state. Under Section Six as it now reads bonds cannot be purchased unless they mature at least five and not more than twenty years after purchase. If the amendment is adopted, bonds and mortgages may be purchased if they mature not less than five nor more than thirty years after purchase.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3.

By Chapter 381, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Article Nine (9) of the Constitution by adding thereto a new section, which reads as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature is hereby authorized to provide by law for the mining and sale of any iron ore or other minerals which the state owns, in its sovereign capacity, and as trustee for the people of the state, which are situate under the waters or bed of any meandered public lake or river, and for that purpose may provide for the drainage of any such lake or river, or the diversion of the waters thereof to a new bed or channel, provided, however, that the vested riparian rights of private persons or corporations owning land adjoining such lakes shall not be destroyed or damaged without their consent, unless compensation therefor shall be first paid or secured. The principal of all funds arising from the sale of such iron ore, or other minerals, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished, but the income therefrom shall be used for the construction, improvement and maintenance of the public roads of the state. The principal of such funds shall be loaned or invested in the same manner, by the same officers and upon the same terms as is, or from time to time hereafter may be authorized by the constitution and laws, for the loaning or investment of the permanent school and university funds of the state."

THE PURPOSE of the proposed amendment cannot be more clearly stated than is expressed therein.

THE EFFECT of the amendment, if adopted, would be to confer power on the legislature to provide by law for the mining of iron ore and other minerals, which the state owns in its sovereign capacity and situate under the bed of any meandered public lake or river, subject to the restriction that the rights of riparian owners on any such lake or river, shall not be destroyed or injured without compensation. If the legislature exercises the power, in case it is conferred, it could also provide for the drainage or diversion of the waters of the lake or river with reference to which it so legislates; it could also prescribe by whom such minerals could be mined and the compensation to be paid to the state therefor. The proceeds of the sale of any such minerals would constitute a fund to be loaned and invested the same as the permanent school and university funds, the income of such fund to be used in the construction, improvement and maintenance of public roads.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4.

By Chapter 382, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed an amendment to Section Two (2) of Article Six of the Constitution.

Said Section 2 now reads as follows:

"Section 2. SUPREME COURT—The supreme court shall consist of one chief justice and two associate justices, but the number of associate justices may be increased to a number not exceeding four, by the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, when it shall be deemed necessary. It shall have original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there shall be no trial by jury in said court. It shall hold one or more terms in each year, as the legislature may direct, at the seat of government, and the legislature may provide, by a two-thirds vote, that one term in each year shall be held in each or any judicial district. It shall be the duty of such court to appoint a reporter of its decisions. There shall be chosen, by the qualified electors of the state, one clerk of the supreme court, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor is duly elected and qualified; and the judges of the supreme court, or a majority of them, shall have the power to fill any vacancy in the office of clerk of the supreme court until an election can be regularly had."

If the proposed amendment is adopted the section will then read as follows:

"Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of one chief justice and six associate justices. Five shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of at least four shall be necessary to a decision. It shall have original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there shall be no trial by jury in said court. It shall hold one or more terms in each year, as the legislature may direct, at the seat of government, and the legislature may provide, by a two-thirds vote, that one term in each year shall be held in each or any judicial district. It shall be the duty of such court to appoint a reporter of its decisions and a clerk of the supreme court."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: The Supreme Court as now constituted consists of a chief justice and four associate justices. The clerk of said court is now elected. If the amendment is adopted, two associate justices will be added to the court and the clerk will be appointed by the court instead of being elected by the voters.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5.

By Chapter 383, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Eleven (11) of Article Four (4) of the Constitution.

Said section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. APPROVAL OF BILLS BY GOVERNOR — VETO POWER—Every bill which shall have passed the senate and house of representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the state. If he approves he shall sign and deposit it in the office of the secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by adjournment within that time, prevents its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case, he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money."

It is proposed to amend that section so that it shall read as follows:

"Section 11. Every bill which shall have passed the senate and house of representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the state. If he approves he shall sign and deposit it in the office of the secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature by adjournment within that time, prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of such items in whole or in part, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items and parts of items to which he objects, and the part of any appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to in whole or in part shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval in whole or in part from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: Under the Constitution as it now is, the governor may veto any item in an appropriation bill, but he cannot cut down the amount appropriated for any specific purpose. The amendment, if adopted, will give the governor power to reduce the amount of an appropriation for any given purpose, unless upon transmittal to the legislature of a statement of the part of an item of an appropriation bill to which he objects, the two houses, each by a two-thirds vote, approve the item as it was originally passed.

PROPOSED AMRNDMENT NO. 6.

By Chapter 384, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed an amendment of Section Thirteen (13) of Article One (1) of the Constitution.

The section as it now stands reads as follows:

"Section 13. PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR PUBLIC USE — Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use, without just compensation therefor first paid or secured."

If the amendment is adopted the section will read as follows:

"Section 13. Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use, without just compensation therefor first paid or secured, and such private property may be taken, destroyed or damaged for the purpose of private as well as public drainage upon just compensation therefor being first paid or secured."

THE PURPOSE of the proposed amendment is to permit the taking of private lands for the purpose of drainage purposes where the drain or ditch will be of no public benefit, but on the contrary will only benefit the land or lands of the person or persons constructing the drainage ditch.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 7.

By Chapter 385, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section One (1) of Article Four (4) of the Constitution.

Section One as it now stands, reads as follows:

"Section 1. TWO HOUSES — SESSIONS — The legislature shall consist of the senate and house of representatives, which shall meet biennially at the seat of government of the state, at such time as shall be prescribed by law, but no session shall exceed the term of ninety legislative days, and no new bill shall be introduced in either branch except on the written request of the governor, during the last twenty days of such session, except the attention of the legislature shall be called to some important matter of general interest by a special message from the governor."

If the amendment is adopted, the section will then read as follows:

Sec. 1. TWO HOUSES—SESSIONS. — The legislature shall consist of the senate and house of representatives, which shall meet biennially at the seat of government of the state, at such time as shall be prescribed by law, but no session shall exceed the term of ninety (90) legislative days, and no bill shall be introduced in either branch, except on the written request of the governor, during the last twenty days of such session, except the attention of the legislature shall be called to some important matter of general interest by a special message from the governor; but the people reserve to themselves direct power as follows:

(a) CONSTITUTIONAL INITIATIVE.—When at any time prior to the commencement of any session of the legislature, there shall have been filed with the secretary of state a petition proposing an amendment to the constitution, signed by two per centum of the electors of the state, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the legislature not later than ten (10) days after the commencement of the session. If the amendment so proposed be not submitted to the electors by the legislature at such session, or if it be submitted in an amended form, then, upon a further petition or petitions, each signed by eight per centum of the electors of the state, filed with the secretary of state within six months after the adjournment of the legislature, the amendment proposed in the first petition, or one or more amended forms thereof, shall be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection at the next general or special state-wide election occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of any such further petition. Any amendment proposed by initiative petition and, in its original or in an amended form, submitted to the electors by the legislature or by a further petition, shall become a part of the constitution, if approved by a majority of the electors voting at such election, or by four-sevenths of the electors voting on the proposed amendment; provided, not less than three-sevenths of the electors voting at said election voted for the proposed amendment. This section shall be construed as a means in addition to Section 1, Article 14, of the state constitution, for amending the same.

(b) STATUTORY INITIATIVE.—When at any time prior to the commencement of any session of the legislature there shall have been filed with the secretary of state, a petition proposing a law, signed by two per centum of the electors of the state, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the legislature not later than ten (10) days after the commencement of the session. If the law so proposed be not passed by the legislature at such session, or if it be passed in an amended form, then upon a further petition or petitions, each signed by six per centum of the electors of the state, filed with the secretary of state within six months after the adjournment of the legislature, the law proposed in the first petition or one or more amended forms thereof, shall be submitted to the electors at the next general or special state-wide election, occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of any such further petition or petitions, and if approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, provided the vote in favor of the proposed law be not less than thirty-three per centum of the total number of votes cast at such election, the same shall become a law and go into effect thirty days after such election, and shall supersede any amended form of such law which may have been passed by the legislature. No law passed by the initiative petition and approved by the electors shall be subject to the veto of the governor. The authority of the people to enact laws, as provided in this subdivision, shall extend only to laws authorized by the provisions of the constitution.

(c) THE REFERENDUM. — If within ninety days after the final adjournment of any session of the legislature, a referendum petition, signed by six per centum of the electors of the state, shall be filed with the secretary of state against any law or any part of a law, passed by the legislature at such session, such law, or such part of a law shall be submitted to the electors at the next general or special state-wide election, occurring not less than ninety days after the filing of said petition. If a majority of the votes cast thereon be in the negative, provided such negative vote be not less than thirty-three per centum of the total number of votes cast at such election, such law or such part of a law shall thereby be repealed. Provided, that if a referendum petition is signed by fifteen per centum of the electors of the state, the law, or part of a law, against which such petition is filed shall be suspended pending the referendum vote thereon. Provided the same shall equal 33 per cent of the votes at such election.

Any law providing for a tax levy or appropriating money for the current expenses of the state government or state institutions, any act of the legislature submitting a constitutional amendment or other question to the electors of the state, or any emergency law necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, shall go into effect immediately upon its passage and approval by the governor, and such laws, except emergency laws, shall not be subject to a referendum vote. All other laws shall go into effect ninety days after the adjournment of the legislature. A bill proposing an emergency law shall contain a preamble briefly setting forth the facts constituting the emergency. A separate vote shall be taken upon the preamble of such bill by a call of the yeas and nays, and if the preamble be adopted by a two-thirds vote of all the members of each house, it shall be an emergency law.

(d) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—All petitions provided for in this section shall contain a title indicating the subject and purpose of the proposed law or constitutional amendment, or the law, or part of a law to be referred, and if a change is proposed in an existing constitutional provision or statute, in addition to referring to the same, it shall state the general effect of the proposed change and also the full text of the proposed law or amendment to the constitution, or of the law or part of a law, to be referred. Any initiative or referendum petition may be signed in separate parts but each part shall conform to the provisions herein contained. All petitions shall be signed and verified before a person authorized to administer an oath, and shall be in such form that a person signing a petition thereby states under oath, the date of his signature, his residence, that he is a qualified elector, that he has not previously signed any part of such petition, and that he has signed the petition with knowledge of the contents thereof. To each part of such petition shall be attached the affidavit of the person before whom the same was signed, which affidavit shall contain a statement of the number of signers thereon, that each of the signatures attached to such part was made in the presence of the affiant, that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be, that he believes the persons who have signed such petition to be electors, that they signed such petition with knowledge of the contents thereof, and that each person signed the same on the date stated opposite his name. The circulation of the petition provided for herein, or the prohibition of the circulation thereof, may be regulated by law, and in case the circulation of any petition is prohibited by law, the percentage of signers required on any petition provided for in this section shall be one-half of the percentage specified in subdivisions a, b and c of this section.

The percentage in any case shall be based upon the total number of votes cast for governor at the next preceding election. All petitions provided for in this section shall contain the signature of not less than one-half of the designated percentage of the electors in not less than one-fourth of the counties of the state. In initiating a law or constitutional amendment, electors who have signed the first shall be qualified to sign the second petition.

The sufficiency of all petitions shall be decided by the secretary of state subject to review by the court. If the secretary of state decides that any petition is insufficient, he shall permit a reasonable time for making corrections or for filing additional signatures. In the event of legal proceedings in court to prevent giving effect to any such petition on account of insufficiency, or any other ground, the burden of proof shall be upon the person attacking the petition. No law or amendment to the constitution initiated and approved by the electors as herein provided, shall be held unconstitutional or void on account of the insufficiency of any initiative petition; nor shall the repeal of any law submitted by referendum petition be held invalid for such insufficiency.

All initiative laws and constitutional amendments shall be so submitted to the electors as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each measure submitted. If conflicting proposed laws or conflicting proposed amendments to the constitution be approved at the same election, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall prevail as to conflicting provisions.

The style of all legislative measures and amendments to the constitution initiated by the people under this section shall be: "Be it enacted by the People of the State of Minnesota."

The provisions of this section may be enforced by appropriate legislation, but until such legislation has been enacted, this section shall be self executing.

THE PURPOSE AND EFFECT of this amendment, if adopted, will be three-fold.

(a) It will permit the voters to propose amendments to the state constitution, for adoption, without action by the legislature. Under the constitution as it now stands constitutional amendments can be proposed only by the legislature.

(b) So, too, if adopted, the amendment will permit electors to propose laws for enactment and if not enacted by the legislatures, the voters may by sufficient petition, require the question of the enactment of the proposed law to be submitted to the voters. If approved by a majority of the electors voting, thereon, provided the vote in favor of the proposed law is not less than thirty-three per cent of the total number of votes cast at such election, the same becomes a law with the same force and effect as though passed by the legislature. The governor will have no power to veto a law so passed, but the people cannot so pass any law which is prohibited by the constitution.

(c) So too, if adopted, the amendment will permit the voters by proper petition to require a vote on the question of whether or not any law or part thereof, of certain classes of laws, passed by the legislature shall be repealed. If the petition asking for the referendum is signed by fifteen per cent of the voters of the state, the number of whom is to be determined by the number of votes cast for Governor at the preceding election, the law so referred to the voters will not take effect pending the referendum vote thereon. The vote required to repeal a law passed by the legislature and the classes of laws which cannot be so repealed are specified in Subdivision "C" of the proposed amendment as above printed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 8.

By Chapter 386, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors an amendment of Section 7, Article 6, of the constitution.

The section now reads as follows:

"Section 7. PROBATE COURTS—There shall be established in each organized county in the state a probate court, which shall be a court of record, and be held at such times and places as may be prescribed by law. It shall be held by one judge, who shall be elected by the voters of the county for the term of two years. He shall be a resident of such county at the time of his election, and reside therein during his continuance in office; and his compensation shall be provided by law. He may appoint his own clerk where none has been elected; but the legislature may authorize the election, by the electors of any county, of one clerk of register of probate for such county, whose powers, duties, term of office and compensation shall be prescribed by law. A probate court shall have jurisdiction over the estates of deceased persons and persons under guardianship, but no other jurisdiction, except as prescribed by this constitution."

The amendment simply proposes to substitute the word "four" for the word "two" so that the sentence prescribing the duration of the term of office will, if the amendment is adopted, read as follows:

"It shall be held by one judge, who shall be elected by the voters of the county for the term of four years."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: The amendment, if adopted will make the term of office of the Judge of Probate four years instead of two.

Visited by the Catacombs.

"Did I understand you to say you were in Europe?" he asked of the man who was talking to a drummer across the aisle.

"Yes, sir."

"Were you in Rome?"

"I was there for a month, sir."

"Ah, I am glad to have met you. I wanted to ask about Rome. You visited the catacombs, of course?"

"Didn't have to. They visited me."

"How do you mean?"

"Why, I never stirred out of the hotel that they weren't striking me for alms. Never saw such an infernal set in all my born days."

"Don't you mean the lazzaroni?"

"Of course. The catacombs and the lazzaroni are the same thing, only 'catacombs' is the Italian of it and the other is 'he English. If you haven't been over I'd advise you to go—if you can raise the dudads. You don't know how much a trip abroad will broaden and liberalize your mind."

And the other sank back and hid himself in a corner, and he did not get over looking pale for the next 30 miles.

Real Academic Dignity.

Max Muller tells a story of one of Dr. Strachan Davidson's predecessors as master of Balliol. "Once, when returning from a solitary walk, Doctor Jenkins, whose regard for his own dignity was very great, slipped and fell. Two undergraduates, seeing the accident, ran to assist him, and were just laying hands on him to lift him up when he descried a master of arts coming. 'Stop!' he cried. 'I see a master of arts coming down the street,' and he dismissed the undergraduates with many thanks, and was helped on his legs by the M. A."—London Chronicle.

The Clever Wasp.

Wasps appear to be well-nigh as industrious as ants or bees. One authority has declared that the cardinal doctrine of the wasp is: "If any wasp will not work, neither shall he eat."

Division of labor is clearly seen in the wasp's nest. Some of the workers seem to be specially employed as foragers and soldiers, others appear to be told off as nurses and guardians, while yet others are engaged as paper makers and masons.

Pennington County's

FRIEND

The statement made that J. A. DUFFY, candidate for representative from the 65th legislative district, has been opposed to Thief River Falls' and Pennington County's interests is refuted by an interesting document which has come to light after twelve years, a telegram sent to Congressman Steenerson urging him to use his influence to open the Eleven Towns country east of Thief River Falls. This country was an Indian reservation at the time and the telegram sent from Red Lake Falls was signed by over a hundred citizens at the head of whose names was that of J. A. Duffy. This telegram was sent at the request of Engineer Smiley, Lars Backe, N. W. Tarrant, Phil Zeh, Daniel Shaw, D. B. Bakke, John Morgan and other citizens of the then village of Thief River Falls. That Mr. Duffy's name headed the list is not to be wondered at. He has consistently advocated every movement that has had for its object the development of this part of the state and more especially the counties comprising the 65th district.

MAY NAME BOARD TO SETTLE TROUBLE

Appointment of a board of counciliation by the minister of labor to settle the differences between the Canadian Pacific railway and its conductors and trainmen, last Saturday evening seemed to be the only resort left in an attempt to avert a strike.

It was said last Saturday that the railroad company would request the department of labor to appoint the board as negotiations with representatives of the employees had failed.

Leaders of the railroad workers expressed the opinion that a strike was inevitable. Reports were current that strike orders already are being posted throughout Canada calling out the men for next Wednesday.

Grant Hall, vice president and general manager of the Canadian Pacific, reiterated Saturday that the company is ready to continue negotiations with the employees in the hope that a strike would be averted.

Lund To Glenwood.—Ed. Lund, Soo brakeman, who formerly resided here, and who is now holding a run out of Fordville, N. D., passed through Thief River Falls the latter part of last week enroute to Glenwood for a visit with old friends.

Barnard. Returns.—Supt. W. A. Barnard, Charles Nason and John Mc Kinney returned last Friday evening in Mr. Barnard's private car from the Devils Lake country, where they had spent two days on a goose hunt. The party returned empty handed.

Johnson To Cities.—Joseph Johnson, clerk in Assistant Master J. W. Hendry's office at the round house, left last Friday evening for Minneapolis and St. Paul for a visit with friends. He also intended to visit at the home of his parents at Clear Lake, Wis., before returning.

Huseby. To Flour City.—Gilmore Huseby, clerk at Car Foreman Conklin's office, left for Minneapolis last Friday evening for the purpose of undergoing an operation for stomach trouble.

Robinson Goes On Trip.—B. E. Robinson, Soo Brakeman, who was injured at the railroad switching yards about two months ago, when three pair of trucks passed over his body breaking several ribs and also his left leg in two places, left for Minneapolis and other points last Friday evening for a visit with his friends.

Nyhus To Cities.—A. J. Nyhus, Soo civil engineer, left for St. Paul last Friday evening on a business trip.

Erect Snow Fences.—Section Foreman Arthur Belland has erected the snow fences at the Soo railroads and is prepared for the most severe snowstorm. He had his men busy the latter part of last week and both first and second defenses are up.

Slusher On Engine.—A slusher used on engines to lay waste small snow drifts, was placed on the Soo Wheatline passenger engine Saturday morning. In some of the Dakota "cuts" the slusher comes in handy.

Inspector Resigns.—Oscar Bakken, for many months employed as car inspector at the Soo yards, resigned his position last Friday.

Home Over Sunday.—Chase Mix, clerk at Supt. W. A. Barnard's office, passed Sunday in Crookston as the guest of his parents. He left Saturday afternoon.

Ardoch Agent Here.—A. F. Dalton, Soo station agent at Ardoch, N. D., was a visitor in Thief River Falls on Saturday evening while enroute to Parkers Prairie on a visit.

Returns Over The Soo.—Returns from the election to be held on Nov. 4 will be received over the Soo by a direct wire from Chicago. The Commercial club has made arrangements with the local company for same and a loop will be run from the depot to the club rooms.

Work On Water Tank.—A crew of workmen are at work for the Great Northern making preparations for the erection of a new water tank. The tank, which is located west of the depot, was condemned a few months ago and ordered moved.

Home For Visit.—Miss Ruth Redding, timekeeper at the Soo Line depot upstair office. left last Friday evening for New Richmond for a visit at the home of her parents. Miss Redding returned Monday morning to take up her duties.

Sunday at Grand Forks.—R. T. Lindahl, accountant at Supt. W. A. Barnard's division office, returned Monday morning from Grand Forks, where he had passed Sunday visiting with relatives. He left Saturday afternoon.

Return From Hunt.—"Christy" Christianson, Soo Line conductor, returned Saturday evening from a trip to North Dakota, where he had spent several days hunting ducks. He bagged a good string.

Sunday on Hunting Trip.—Ed. Dolan, train dispatcher at the Soo offices, Mortz Brink, operator, and John Bordewick, of the Thief River Valley Land company, passed Sunday in the vicinity of Highlanding on a hunting trip. They were successful in securing a few birds.

Brown On Visit.—C. C. Brown, Soo Line conductor, who resides at Glenwood, arrived in the city on Monday evening in company with his wife for a visit with friends. Mr. Brown formerly resided in Thief River Falls.

Inspector Here.—George Turgeor, station inspector for the Great Northern railway, was in Thief River Falls Tuesday on an official business trip.

Barnard Goes South.—W. A. Barnard, superintendent of the "Peg" division, passed Tuesday on a trip of inspection on the Minneapolis line.

RAILWAY MEN DENY ADAMSON LAW YARN

W. Jett Lauck, of Washington, D. C., economic expert and chief statistician for the railroad Brotherhoods, has issued a statement disposing of the claim made that passenger train employees will suffer a reduction of pay on account of the Adamson eight-hour law. Referring to the reports published in papers that passenger engineers would be paid by the hour instead of on a mileage basis after January 1, Mr. Lauck said:

"The Adamson law does not substitute hours for distance or miles as a basis of payment. By the terms of the Adamson law, eight is substituted for ten hours in existing agreements between railroads and their employees. This is the express provision of the law, and President Wilson specifically so stated in his address to congress.

"The basis of payment remains entirely unchanged in this latter respect. Employees may take either hours or miles for any trip as has been the custom hitherto. Under the provisions of the Adamson law rates of pay to passenger men cannot be reduced."

Mr. Lauck's statement was supplemented later by A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors and spokesman for all four of the brotherhoods in the eight hour negotiations, and by W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhoods of Railway Firemen and Enginemen. Mr. Garretson telegraphed from Cedar Rapids, Iowa:

"There is no foundation whatever for the statement that passenger conductors oppose the Adamson law on the grounds of fear of a reduction in earnings. Nothing in the law warrants such an attitude."

Gothier Here.—L. A. Gothier, traveling freight agent for the Great Northern was in the city Tuesday attending to matters connected with his position. He paid the local depot a visit.

Kestel To Superior.—George Kestel, night yard clerk at the Soo yards for the past year, left Tuseday morning for Superior, Wis., to take up a position with the company as telegraph operator. Orban Hamry will take Kestel's position.

Hawes On Trip.—G. W. Hawes, traveling freight agent for the Soo Line, who is stationed at Alexandria, came up Tuesday evening on an official business trip.

FAVOR ELECTION OF JOHN A. DUFFY

Enthusiastic Meeting of Citizens of Two County Seats Held at Brumund Hotel.

DESERVING ENDORSEMENT

Voters of Pennington County Have Opportunity to Unite Red Lake and Pennington Counties With Everlasting Bond of Friendship.

About seventy-five representative citizens of Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls gathered at the Brumund hotel on Tuesday evening in the interest of the candidacy of John A. Duffy for representative from this district in the state legislature. The meeting was in the nature of a get-together affair and resulted in cementing more firmly than ever before the ties that bind Red Lake and Pennington counties as one. Mr. Duffy was looked upon by those present as the logical man for representative from this district and because of his extensive knowledge of the needs of the two counties and his excellent business ability it was the opinion of all that his election would result in greater development for the two counties than could possibly be expected from any other source.

Danile Shaw presided at the meeting and a number of the citizens of both places were called upon to express their views. Mr. Duffy was the unanimous choice of all and numerous unanswerable arguments were presented showing why he should be elected. It was pointed out by many that Mr. Duffy had for years been a steadfast friend of Pennington county. Among other things, it was brought out that it was through Mr. Duffy's influence that $5,000 was secured from the then county of Red Lake to aid in the construction of the bridge that now spans Red Lake river at Bridge street. Mr. Duffy took an active part in securing the opening of the Eleven Towns for settlement and also went on record favoring Thief River Falls against Crookston as the place for holding the sale of the lands.

For these and many other reasons every citizen of Thief River Falls present at the meeting declared that Mr. Duffy deserved the enthusiastic support of the voters of the city and Pennington county. As a neighbor, friend, successful business man and one admirably fitted to fill the office for which he seeks election, the voters can make no mistake in casting their ballots for John A. Duffy. This was the sense of the meeting.

Thief River Falls is the home of the senator for this district. Clearwater county is the home of the representative who has held the office for the past two years. Red Lake county is, according to all rules of fairness, entitled to the representative this year. In Mr. Duffy, Red Lake county presents a most excellent candidate. The Times believes that the voters of Pennington county will establish an everlasting bond of friendship between Red Lake and Pennington counties by giving Mr. Duffy a splendid endorsement at the polls next Tuesday.

CAMPAIGNERS IN STRONG WINDUP

Senator Knute Nelson Will Address Pennington County Voters At Auditorium Tonight.

The big Republican rally of the campaign will be held at the Auditorium tonight when Senator Knute Nelson will address the voters of Pennington county on the issues of the day. That a large crowd will greet the popular statesman is certain as he has a host of admirers in this section who will come long distances to hear him. The senator has been one of the most energetic stumpers in the west during the present campaign and has everywhere been greeted by big and appreciative audiences.

Arrived This Morning.

Senator Nelson arrived in town early this morning and started on an automobile tour into the country. He has a large number of personal friends among the farmers of the neighborhood and delights in dropping in unannounced for a friendly chat over old times. He has stood the campaign well and looks hale and hearty. He will handle the case for the Republicans tonight with his usual clearness and vigor and there is no man in the country better equipped or more able to present his party's side of the questions now confronting the American people.

Lind Last Night.

Ex-Governor John Lind spoke last evening at the Auditorium to one of the largest gatherings ever seen at a political rally in this city. Governor Lind has been making a strenuous campaign for the re-election of President Wilson and shows the effects of it. He was listened to with rapt attention throughout his discourse, but the enthusiasm generally evinced at this stage of the campaign was very much lacking.

J. S. Barnett, president of the Pennington County Woodrow Wilson club, introduced the speaker, taking but a very little time in so doing.

Recounted Democrats' Record.

Governor Lind pointed with pride to the record of the Democratic party under the administration of President Wilson, laying particular stress upon the rural credits act, the federal banking law and the revision of the tariff. He made out a fairly good case along these lines, but his most telling points from a party viewpoint, were those dealing directly with the actions of Justice Hughes while governor of New York.

Tells of Mexican Conditions.

Mr. Lind was the personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico during a year of the most troublous times in that harrassed Republic. He drew a picture of the Mexican people not at all in keeping with the general notion of them entertained by most Americans, claiming that they were willing to learn and seemed to possess an unusual capacity for assimilating knowledge. He upheld Wilson for his refusal to recognize Huerta and maintained that Carrenza was a patriot and a statesman.

The City Honored.

The appearance in Thief River Falls of Senator Nelson and Governor Lind is an honor that has fallen to but few Minnesota municipalities. Lind has only appeared at three or four places in the state, while the senator has been putting in his best efforts in states other than his own. It was a very flattering reception that was accorded the former governor last evening, and this will undougtedly be eclipsed by the welcome of the senator tonight.

WILL ASK SLICE OF FEDERAL AID

Commercial Club Wants Pennington County to Get in On That $142,000 Division.

With $142,000 of federal aid for good roads awaiting division by the State Highway commission on Friday of this week, a meeting of the Executive, Good Roads and Jefferson Highway committees of the Commercial club was held at the club rooms on Monday, in an effort to secure such action as is necessary to get a portion of the above sum for Pennington county.

One County Asks Aid.

Up to last Saturday only one county along the whole Highway in this state had applied for federal aid, and that county was Freeborn, which was asking for $53,000 to improve the road from Albert Let north to the county line, Freeborn county having agreed to spend a like sum in the improvement of this road.

Carver county was asking for $15,000 to improve the Yellowstone, trail, while Pine and Chisago counties were each after the lion's share, having petitioned for $80,000 and $25,000 respectively, the money to go toward the improvement of the Twin Cities-Duluth Highway. There were a few other smaller slices sought but nothing of importance.

Wants Small Portion.

Under these circumstances it was thought that the Commercial club should take steps to secure a small portion to be used on the piece of road west fro mthe city to the Pembina trail, which road it was decided by the county board this past summer should be improved.

Will Assist Other Counties

There was considerable discussion of the matter which resulted in a motion being carried that the chair appoint a committee of three to adopt a resolution asking such aid of the federal government as the State Highway commission considered Pennington county entitled to. This committee was further authorized to give assistance to Clearwater and Marshall counties if they were more entitled to aid than Pennington and stood a better chance of receiving assistance. The committee was still further empowered to send a representative to St. Paul to appear before the commission if deemed advisable after further investigation. The chair appointed Daniel Shaw, C. L. Hansen and Scott Laird.

WATER PROBLEM NEARLY SOLVED

Excellent Flow is Struck at a Depth of 239 Feet on Duluth Avenue Property.

500,000 GALLONS PER DAY

This is Estimated Capacity of Two Wells For Which Test Holes Have Been Drilled—Will Begin Reservoir Construction

It is estimated that a water supply of a half million gallons every twenty-four hours will be available for the people of Thief River Falls when the new extension to the water works system is completed.

Two Fine Wells.

At the special meeting of the council on Tuesday evening it was announced that a flow of very good water had been struck at a depth of 239 feet in the Duluth avenue test well. Samples will at once be sent to the laboratories of the stato board of health for analysis and if the quality is found satisfactory bids for the sinking of the well will at once be advertised for.

Superintendent Peterson stated that with a small pump six gallons per minute was being taken from the test well, this resulting in no apparent dimunition of the supply. According to his estimates a twelve or fourteen inch well, such as it is the intention to sink, would provide 175 gallons per minute. This is equivalent to a quarter of a million gallons every 24 hours, and as the well drilled at the power house seems capable of providing fully as great an amount, there is sufficient indicated for all present purposes.

Let Contract This Winter.

The councilmen are unanimous in the opinion that the work of completing the system should now be rushed with all reasonable speed. Bids for the sinking of the wells will be advertised for and the contracts let before the first of March in order that the work may start as soon as weather conditions permit in the spring. A reservoir will have to be constructed and about three blocks of mains laid, besides the drilling work, and considerabel time will be consumed even under the most favorable conditions.

MUST DOUSE LIGHTS OR PAY FOR THEM

Commercial Club Will be Charged For All Power Consumed After 11 O'Clock.

The city water and light department expects to experience considerable difficulty in developing sufficient power to meet the demand for lights when the holiday load is thrown onto the plant, and Manager Peterson has asked that all unnecessary lights be turned off. Complying with this request the council has notified the Commercial club that after 11 o'clock anyone wishing to use the rooms will have to rely on candles or some other mode of illumination. The club is furnished with light free of cost and cannot well object to this necessary provision.

Gravel is Bought.

An acre of land consisting of an excellent gravel bed was leased for a term of three years by the council at the meeting on Tuesday evening. Bids will be asked on a contract for hauling the material onto the streets during the winter months, and it is likely that the number of teams employed will reach twenty-five, as it is the intention to surface as much road as possible.

The price charged for the use of the Auditorium for dances was cut from $35 to $25, the renter to pay for the removal of the chairs.

The east side park ground was rented to Peter Berg for one year at $20.

MOST IMPORTANT DRAINAGE MEET

Federal Engineer Will be Here on November 23, For Purpose of Securing Data.

DELEGATES FROM DAKOTAS

Developments at This Gathering Will be of Greater Weight in Determining Future Action Than Any Thing Yet Done.

Thief River Falls on Nov. 23 will hold the really decisive meeting of the entire Red River Valley when it comes to the matter of drainage, reclamation and flood control, as viewed from the federal point of view. This meeting will even have more influence on the government than the Flood Control congress to be held in Fargo the thirteenth and fourteenth of this month.

Arrangements for this important meeting were concluded by Senator D. P. O'Neill when in St. Paul attending the special session of the state legislature the other day, Col. Schultz, of the federal engineering department, will be present at the meeting here to secure such data as will determine the future course in many matters of the utmost importance, not only to the Red Lake Valley, but also the entire Red River Valley of the North.

People from all sections are generally invited to attend this meeting, which will be held at the Commercial club rooms or in the Auditorium, as later developments will determine. Invitations of a public nature will be sent to cities throughout the northern part of the state, together with those from the two Dakotas, as they are also vitally interested in the action of the government.

Recently Mr. Dugan, one of the federal engineers, made a trip down the Red Lake river from the Red Lakes to the Red River and his report, coupled withthat of Col. Schultz based on information he can gather at the meeting here, will determine just what the federal authorities will do in the way of aiding in this, the greatest of all undertakings for the northwest in the years to come.

Securing Highway Funds

The Jefferson Highway association members have been out this week after funds for the Highway. They have been meeting with quite general success but still have a large sum to raise. They are making the rounds as fast as possible and if anyone should feel inclined to send in their subscription of $5 or more to the fund without waiting to be called upon it will greatly facilitate matters. Not only are people in Thief River Falls eligible to membership in the Jefferson Highway association, but all those in the county who fell that the road is a good thing for this part of the state, are asked to join and send in their contributions. There are many in the rural districts who own autos who should be members. In fact, all others who are good roads enthusiasts should not forget their duty for the advancement of the movement.

VALUE OF TILING TO BE DISCUSSED HERE

J. M. Simmons of Cannon Falls, Will Be Heard on This Subject Next Thursday.

"Drain Tile and its Uses," is the title of a talk that J. M. Simmons of Cannon Falls, will deliver at the next regular meeting of the Commercial club, which will be held on Thursday evening, Nov. 9.

Secretary Laird of the club has been in correspondence with Mr. Simmons for some time and believes that the club will receive much benefit from a talk along these lines.

Tiling has come to the fore in a large part of the country within the past few years and its use is steadily increasing as its value is being learned. There is much land that without proper tiling is useless, or is not highly productive in other cases. Mr. Simmns will endeavor to point out the great importance of this phase of land improvement.

The meeting is to be of general interest to the public at large and for that reason Mr. Simmons suggests that any one having a question on drainage that they would like to have answered should write out the same and mail it to secretary Laird of the Commercial club, so that Mr. Simmons can study the same and give his answer during the meeting.

St. Hilaire has also been after Mr. Simmons and the Commercial club of this city has therefore seen fit to extend an invitation to the club of our neighboring town and no doubt several people from that locality will also be present at the meeting on November 9. While the meeting is to be held on the regular meeting night of the club, the public in general is invited to attend.

MINNEAPOLIS FIRM IS LOWEST BIDDER

J. C. Nelson Offers to Build Sanitarium For $24,900—Holt & George Low On Plumbing.

Bids for the building of the tri-county tuberculosis sanitarium to be maintained by Pennington, Marshall and Roseau counties near Thief River Falls were opened last week by the state board of conrtoll. The lowest proposal on the general contract was that of J. C. Nelson & Son of Minneapolis, whose bid was for $24,900. The Holt & George company of this city was the lowest bidder for the heating and plumbing plant, their figures being $8,113. The low bid for the electrical work was made by the Twin City Electrical company of Minneapolis, their offer being $1,320.

The different contracts will be awarded later upon the recommendation of the State architect.

Dr. O. F. Mellby, of Thief River Falls, V. Gislason, of Badger, and John Sjoberg, of Middle River, members of the tri-county board, have been called to St. Paul for a conference with the officers of the state board. The figures submitted by the contractors are a little higher than the board is warranted in going, and it is likely some modification in the original plans will have to be made.

EXCAVATION WORK FOR DAM IS BEGUN

Temporary Structure is in Place and Excavation Will Begin At Once.

Supt. John A. Hedlund expects to begin the work of excavating for the concrete work on the Kretschmar-Schrieter dam today. The coffer dam was completed the fore part of the week and the crew has been busy chinking up some minor leaks since that time.

There is now a head of eighteen feet nine inches of water on the up-river side of the obstruction and the overflow is being easily taken care of by the apron and flume of the Hanson-Barzen mill.

Mr. Hedlund expects that it will be necessary to dig to a depth of between ten and twelve feet in order to get to hard pan, and it will also be necessary to go about three feet into this substance in order to secure the desired foundation.

The word has been delayed somewhat because of unforseen difficulties, but matters will be rushed from now on.

Hopes Work Will Continue

E. T. Meredith, president of the Jefferson Highway association, with headquarters in Des Moines, Iowa, in a letter to Scott Laird, secretary of the Commercial club, states that he is much encouraged by a report sent in by Mr. Laird as to the work that has been done along the highway in this locality. To quote him: "This is certainly encouraging and we trust that the splendid work will continue."

BIG STOCK FARM NEAR GOODRIDGE

W. D. Mannen of Sterling, Ill., Will Go into Pure-Bred Stock Raising in This County.

CATTLE, HORSES AND HOGS

A Tract of 800 Acres Will be Devoted to the Business Which Will be the Largest of Its Kind in This Section.

A pure-bred stock farm, comprising in the neighborhood of 800 acres, will be started in the spring by W. D. Mannen of Sterling, Ill. Mr. Mannen has been here this week to look the situation over and has concluded the deal for the land.

Near Goodridge.

The location selected for this model farm is a plot of 800 acres between Goodridge and Mavie. Mr. Mannen states that the land in that neighborhood seems to have all the requsites for the business. Good crops are raised and the convenience with which markets can be reached could not be improved upon. A large number of locations were investigated before the decision was finally made, but Pennington county seemed to offer the best field for an enterprise of this kind.

High Grade Horses.

While thoroughbred Holstein cattle will be the big item of the new business, Percheron and Belgian horses will receive a great deal of attention. Fine hogs has also been one of the departments in which Mr. Mannen has specialized, and this will be continued here.

Starts Next Spring.

Mr. Mannen says that his concern will be ready to start business in the spring. As soon as possible the erection of large breeding barns and other buildings will be commenced. These will be of the most approved pattern, arranged with special attention to convenience and sanitary conditions.

Horses, Cattle, Hogs.

Mr. Mannen. who is one of the best known stock breeders in the Middle States, settled upon this location as his future field after carefu investigation of the climatic and marketing conditions. He believes that this is destined to ebcome one of the greatest dairying sections in the country and he is going to do everything in his power to make this fact generally recognized. He is a specialist in cattle, having been connected with testing associations in Illinois for a long time.

"When farmers are educated up to keeping good cows," said Mr. Mannen, "it is impossible to find a scrub in the neighborhood. They simply will not give them room. In my experience I have found that while it is sometimes a little difficult to get the ordinary farmer started on the right track, he invariably comes around to the point where he sees that there is a difference in cattle the same as in anything else, and becomes the best kind of a plre stock booster."

Dairving the Solution.

"Cattle will prove the salvation of all sections where the one-crop idea prevails," continued Mr. Mannen. "The cream check coming in every month has proven more dependable than the field crop, and this will be found to particularly apply to Northwestern Minnesota. Dairying helps the section in which it is carried on more than any other kind of farming. For instance, people believe that the automobile is responsible to a great extent for our good roads. I know that in many sections fine highways have been established primarily for the purpose of enabling the dairy farmer to get his products to market. He cannot be delayed on his journey and he insists on having good roads. And, by the same token, a section of dairy farmers can afford them."

Of Much Importance.

The establishment of this enterprise in Pennington county will mean more for the development of Northwestern Minnesota than almost anything else that could happen at this time. Farmers generally are going into cattle-raising, and if thoroughbreds are to be had without sending to other and dissimilar regions for them, that is the kind of stock they will secure.

Mr. Mannen says that on every hand he has been assured of the most hearty co-operation and he feels assured that the venture will prove a success from the start.

Commercial Club Play.

The annual play of the Thief River Falls Commercial club will probably be put on during the 1st week in December. The particular vehicle for the exposition of the dramatic talent of the club members has not yet been definitely decided upon, but a number are under consideration. Mrs. C. A. Pitkin has again been asked to act as directress of the production and is aiding in the selection.

Florence Lundstrom.

On Tuesday, October 31, occurred the death of Florence Evelyn Lundstrom, the two months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lundstrom, 616 St. Paul avenue north, death being due to spinal meningitis. Funeral services were held from the residence Wednesday and interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES

OFFICIAL PAPER OF PENNINGTON COUNTY.
R. H. ROSS, Editor and Publisher.

An Independent Legal Weekly Newspaper Published Every Thursday at Corner of Main Avenue and First Street, Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Subscription Rate .... $1.50 per year.
Foreign Subscription Rate .... $2.50 per year.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Our First Year.

On the first day of November, 1915, the present publisher of The Times purchased the property from Thomas H. Smith.

The success attending our efforts during the past twelve months has been even greater than we dared to anticipate or our friends predict. The paper has grown and expanded in every direction until today it is admittedly the premier weekly publication of Northwestern Minnesota.

It has been our aim to give the people a paper second to none, and that this is appreciated is evidenced by the patronage with which we have been favored. The Times carries every week a greater amount of advertising matter than do all the other publications in the county combined. The amount of reading matter of a local and general nature has steadily increased until more is now printed every week than is contained in all the other papers of the county put together. While there is no way of making a positive comparison of circulation, it is our belief that The Times goes into more homes in Pennington county than is reached by the combined circulation of the others. Anyone wishing to do so can verify this statement to his own entire satisfaction. Our books are open to advertisers.

Our printing department has been added to during the year until now it ranks among the best in the northern part of the state. The patronage in this department has been very satisfactory and a larger area is steadily being added to the territory using the output of The Times presses.

It is doubtful if the importance of newspapers as commercial factors of the communities in which they appear is fully appreciated by the people generally. During the past year seven thousand dollars have been paid out in salaries of employees alone, while rent, light and fuel represent an outlay of fifteen hundred more. Other incidental disbursements bring the total up to approximately two hundred dollars per week. This money is paid to people making their home right here and practically the entire sum is turned back into the regular business channels.

In its dealings with the public The Times has tried to be square and upright. Everything indicates that the paper's attitude has met with the approval of the people.

The Times during the coming year will be bigger and better than in the past. We shall steadily aim to merit a continuance of the good will and confidence of our neighbors and will use every honorable effort to further the interests of Thief River Falls, Pennington county and Northern Minnesota.

Fill Out The Quartet.

Three men for whom the people of Pennington county have already expressed an unmistakable preference will be elected practically without opposition next Tuesday. They are Frank B. Kellogg, J. A. A. Burnquist and Halvor Steenerson. With each of these it is simply a matter of majorities. And they are wise selections.

Another office of much importance to the people of this state is also to be filled—that of representative in the legislature. For this position the Times favors John A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls.

Mr. Duffy is one of the best known men in this district while his opponent is almost a stranger. The former has been our neighbor for years and has been identified with practically every movement having as its purpose the aiding of those who were the pioneers of the section.

While mayor of Red Lake Falls Mr. Duffy headed a petition sent to Washington urging the opening to settlement of the eleven townships of the Red Lake reservation which now comprises a very important part of Northwestern Minnesota. Making possible the settlement of these lands was the most important move ever made for the development of Pennington county. Mr. Duffy worked to get the bill through congress and was among the most active in securing settlers as soon as settlement was made possible. Among the people in the eastern end of the coutny he is looked upon as a true and tried friend and they will give him a substantial majority on election day.

In Thief River Falls Mr. Duffy is as well known as in his home city. Not only does he possess business connections in every direction, but he has a host of warm personal friends who will be glad to give him the deserved compliment of their vote.

Concerning his qualifications no one ever raises a question. A successful business man and one possessing a thorough knowledge of the needs of the district, he could at all times be depended on to do everything in his power to further the welfare of the people. His acquaintance with the drainage and river conditions alone should be sufficient to make every farmer in Pennington county wish to have him as a representative at any gathering where these matters are liable to be discussed.

Vote for John A. Duffy. He knows your needs and the conditions under which you are laboring. His interests are the same as yours—and have been for many years. He is a heavy property-owner and taxpayer in the county and can be depended upon to do anything in his power to make the tax burden lighter. He has gone on record as favoring a more equal distribution of this burden by making the nonresident speculator pay a greater share than at present, and John A. Duffy never yet went back on his word.

His opponent is a comparative stranger to you personally, without a single interest in the county. You know that he cannot possibly have Mr. Duffy's knowledge of the conditions confronting you.

Vote for your neighbor. His interests and yours are identical.

* * *

The people of Pennington county are strong for fairness. This is one of the reasons why John A. Duffy is going to receive a very heavy vote here. The representative two years ago was elected from Clearwater county, which is the smallest in valuation as well as in the number of votes cast of the three comprising the Sixty-fifth district. Voters here feel that it is the turn of Red Lake to select the representative, and in this they are right. Two years from now an entirely new leglislative contingent is to be elected. Pennington county will wish to retain the senatorship, and the friendship of the people of Red Lake county will be an asset. Besides this, a very positive opposition to Mr. Stenvick has developed right in his own county because of his introduction of the bill known as the House File No. 404. This bill provided that counties having an assessed valuation of more than one million and less than three and one-half millions would be permitted to raise their tax levy to eight mills. This bill applied particularly to Clearwater county and the farmers there sent delegations to St. Paul in order to encompass its defeat. This will tell most severely against him now.

* * *

The people in this section of the state are very favorably disposed toward the candidacy of Judge James H. Quinn for a place on the supreme bench.

This jurist has served as district judge of the Seventeenth Judicial district for the past twenty years, which should be taken as a tribute to his ability. He has been a resident of Minnesota for fifty-three years, and no man in the state stands higher in the estimation of the people. His opponent, W. B. Anderson, while undoubtedly a most excellent gentleman and a good lawyer, has never had any experience on the bench and consequently nothing is known of his capabilities in this direction, while those of Judge Quinn have been open for inspection for the past quarter of a century. Mr. Anderson is not a Scandinavian, although his name implies that such is the case, both candidates being of Scotch ancestry. If you consider a man with twenty years of exceptionally brilliant service as a district judge preferable to one having no judicial experience, you will cast your vote for Judge Quinn on Nov. 7.

* * *

Parents who are keeping children under sixteen years out of school have been notified by the educational authorities that steps will be taken to enforce attendance. The state law covering this subject is very plain, but it should not be necessary to invoke the aid of the statutes. Every day lost from school attendance by a boy or girl constitutes a direct set-back in their studies. They are compelled either to do a much larger amount of work in a short space of time to hold their class standing, or the balance of the pupils must be held back in order to allow the delinquent to catch up gradually. This is unfair to the child in one instance and unfair to the class in the other. The loss of a few days here and there throughout the term may not seem particularly important to some parents, but the chances are that whatever the reasons for keeping the child from school may be, they are much less important.

* * *

Halvor Steenerson will be re-elected by the largest majority he has ever received. That is no reason for your passing him up, however. Pennington was the banner Steenerson county in the primaries and this record should be maintained at the election. The people of Thief River Falls never had a better friend than Halvor Steenerson and in no way can they show their appreciation of the fact so effectively as by voting for him, even at a time when he will not particularly need their votes. Let's make the complimentary demonstration as emphatic as possible anyway.

* * *

The article appearing originally in The Times a couple of weeks ago dealing with the progress made in dairy farming along the line of the Minnesota Northwestern railway has given the section much valuable advertising. The Minneapolis Journal republished it in its Sunday edition and other papers have commented upon the remarkable showing made on lands that a few years ago were considered worthless. Cows, clover and creameries, plus enterprise and common sense, will do wonders in Northwestern Minnesota.

* * *

Don't fall asleep thinking that because Frank B. Kellogg was nominated nothing further will be necessary in order to insure his election. This is likely to prove a year of surprises and the opposition is active. While Mr. Kellogg may not need your vote as badly at this time as he did in the primaries you should not leave a job half done by neglecting to cast it for him.

* * *

During the past week practically every window in the business section of the city has been smeared up with soap or some other substance, causing the proprietors much work and annoyance. Any boy having such a poor conception of what constitutes fun should be laid very carefully over a banister while the argument against the practice is driven home with a hair brush or a trunk strap.

* * *

The selection of a governor for the state of Minnesota this year is rather an uninteresting formality. Burnquist is all there is to it. His handling of the governor's office has been such that he would be a winner against a strong candidate and an organized opposition. As it is he has a walk-away.

A very sensible suggestion from Gunnar B. Bjornson of the Minneota Mascot: "Do your Christmas advertising early, and the the buyers will do their buying early.

Have doctors the right to prevent entrance into this world of beings, marked mentally and physically defective, and bearing the sign of the Serpent?

Have men and women, blessed with health and wealth the right to deny entrance to those fine strong souls that would bear the sign of the cross?

A smashing, daring subject handled in a smashing, daring way, endorsed by hundreds of doctors and social works, also the clergy. It will make women think and think hard. It will make men look before they leap. It will act as a warning to the young. It is the sensation of sensations. It will impress every living soul that sees it. Preaches eloquently the truth. Points out forcefully the warning, pictures vividly the terribly consequences of trifling with NATURE'S RELENTLESS LAW.

Every one of you God's men and women should see this most daring, but truthful, photo classic. Positively no children under 16 years of age admitted.

THE PRINCESS WHERE EVERYBODY GOES

NEW CHURCH IS FINE STRUCTURE

Norwegian Lutheran Edifice at Goodridge is Formally Taken Over by Congregation.

REV. DR. BJORGE IN CHARGE

Appropriate Music Furnished by Choir From Thief River Falls. Many Visiting Pastors Aid In Impressive Ceremony.

The Nazareth Norwegian Lutheran church at Goodridge was dedicated last Sunday, a large concourse of people from the surrounding section as well as from Thief River Falls being present to witness and take part in the ceremonies.

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Bjorge

The Right Rev. K. Bjorge of Red Wing, president of the Minnesota Conference of the Synod, delivered the dedication sermon, taking as his text the gospel for the day: Math. 9,1-8. Rev. Bjorge is considered one of the foremost pulpit orators in the West and is regarded among church men of all denominations as a profound student and high authority. His encouraging and inspiring words were calculated to start the little congregation forward with full confidence and a determination to make their organization do its full share in the work of the church.

Others Pastors Speak.

The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. I. T. Aastad of the Synod church of Thief River Falls, who took for his sermon the 84th psalm, first to sixth verse, "How Amiable Are Thy Tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts."

The Afternoon Session.

The afternoon exercises consisted of short talks by the attending pastors. Rev. M. B. Urdahl of Holt, spoke on "The Diligent Use of the Word of God;" Rev. Schultz of the German Lutheran church at Goodridge, delivered an address in English, taking for his subject: "The Importance of Diligent Church Attendance." Rev. Aastad's subject for the afternoon was "Participation of Women in the Work of Christian Congregations." The closing remarks were made by Dr. Bjorge, who spoke on "The Importance of the Congregation's Taking Part in Central Church Work."

The attendance through out was very good and the interest shown was highly pleasing to those having the success of the work at heart. At the close of the exercises a large offering was received, this going to aid the building fund.

The Synod Church Choir.

The choir of Rev. Aastad's church in this city interspersed the proceedings with choral music throughout the day as well as led in the singing of the congregation. This chorus was made up as follows: Dr. P. L. Vistaunet, leader; Miss Dora Holmes, soloist; Mrs. C. J. Anderson, Miss Ruth Storli, Miss Thora Hanson, Miss Palma Holmes, soprano; Miss Nora Holmes, Miss Agnes P. Aastad, Miss Helen Weeks, Miss Agnes Bakke, alto; Dr. Anderson, Lars Backe, tenor; Hans O. Kjomme, D. B. Bakke, Rheuben Teslow, basso; Miss Emma Backe, organist.

The expenses of this choir at the dedication was shared by the four banking institutions in this city.

A Little History.

Nazareth congregation was organized on the 24th of May, 1906, the meeting for the purpose being held at the home of Ole Hanson, about two miles east of Anstad postoffice. The first officers were Ole Visnet, secretary; and Torkel Olsen, treasurer. At this meeting a call was extended to Rev. H. Bjornson, and he took up the work soon afterward.

Had Rapid Growth.

Quite a number of families associated themselves with the new church at once and in 1911 the congregation was admitted to membership in the Norwegian Synod.

During the summer of 1911 the Minnesota Northwestern Electric railway built its line from Thief River Falls to Goodridge, and the section was given a decided impetus. Many Norwegians came with the opening of improved communications and it was decided to remove the headquarters of the new church to Goodridge and to hold the services there. Among the early members, most of whom are still on the roster of the congregation, were: Theodore Gilbertson, N. G. Thorson, P. C. Halvorson, H. A. Halvorson, Martin Olson, Ole Kjerkelid, Oliver Risan, Ole A. Sand, Oscar Sand, and John Marcussen, with their families. These were followed a short time later by Henry Sand, Casper Lund, Ingvold Lund. Julius Anderson and Andrew Sand. These may be said to have been the pioneers in the establishment of the new congregation, although G. Gunderson, G. Haugan, and Even Gulmoen were early members.

Decided To Build.

Naturally the first difficulty to confront the new organization was the securing of a suitable meeting place, and it was decided to build as soon as possible. A subscription committee was selected consisting of Rev. Bjornson, Theodore Gilbertson, Geo. Vold and Julius Anderson. The building committee membership was made up of H. A. Halvorson, M. Olson and M. G. Thorson. The work was carried on with vigor, and much credit is due these men for the energy they displayed in keeping the importance of the matter continually before all who might in any manner be interested and willing to aid.

As usual, the Ladies' Aid society of the church has been a large factor in the success in the undertaking. The officers of this organization—Mrs. M. G. Thorson, president; Mrs. Theodore Gilbertson, secretary, and Mrs. G. Gunderson, treasurer—have striven unceasingly to keep the good work going, and to their efforts should be credited a large measure of the success which has thus far followed the undertaking.

Many Well-Wishers.

Nearly one hundred passengers were carried on the special train run by the Minnesota Northwestern to accomodate those wishing to attend. Rev. Bjornson and the congregation feel very thankful for the interest in their welfare thus shown them by their neighbors.

The ladies served an excellent dinner in the basement of the church for those present at the dedication.

WELL PLEASED INDEED

NURSE AND REST ROOM WANTED

Woman's Club Goes on Record as Being in Favor of Having Both For This City.

WILL ASK FURTHER HELP

City and County Officials Will be Approached on the Proposition. Nurse Would Have Supervision of New Quarters.

A visiting nurse and a rest room for farmer's wives when they come to Thief River Falls are propositions that are now to be put up squarely to the public, for at its last meeting on Monday afternoon of this week the Woman's Club decided that this city had become metropolitan enough to warrant these two public necessities.

A Matter of Importance

The matter was quite thoroughly discussed by the members present and it was determined that an attempt should be made to secure these two worthy enterprises. Cities of large size as well as small towns have come to recognize the necessity of such institutions and have welcomed them, while Thief River Falls has stood calmly by, not arousing itself sufficiently to attempt to discover the value of such rooms.

Aid Will Be Asked.

The matter will be brought to the attention of the county and city officials and also to those on the school board in the hope that these three bodies will come to the aid of the Woman's Club. If the club is successful in this respect the members feel confident that the funds for the rest room will be readily provided.

Part of Nurse Job.

A portion of the time of the visiting nurse would no doubt spent in the rest room to provide for the smaller children brought into the city on certain days by farmer's wives, and left at the rest room while the women went about their shopping, free from care of their offspring temporarily and knowing that they were in safe hands for the time being.

ONE MAN IN PRISON FROM PENNINGTON

Warden's Report Shows This County to be Among the Most Law-Abiding in State.

Pennington county contributed but one inmate to the population of the Minnesota state prison during the year ending July 31, 1916. There was also one discharged from custody during the same period, so that the average was just maintained. This is one of the best records among the counties of the state, all our neighbors except Clearwater making a worse showing. Marshall county had three prisoners, Beltrami 13, and Polk 28. The good behavior counties are Carver, Clearwater, Fillmore, Houston, Mahnomen, Rice and Swift, there being no prisoners from these at the penitentiary.

The report of Warden C. S. Reed contains some very interesting information. It shows that school teachers and newspaper reporters average alike in their criminal tendencies, there being one of each in confinement. There are three printers at the big correctional institution and, strange as it may seem, but two saloon keepers. Of the total prison population of 996, the males number 971 and the females 25. Two hundred thirty-four of the inmates are married and 478 are single. Some significant figure sare presented as to the habits of the persons serving time. There are 99 rated as total abstainers; 373 are moderate drinkers, while 524 are intemperate in their use of intoxicants.

BRAINERD CHAMBER WELCOMES LINCOLN

Club Officer.. Formally Takes Over Job as Secretary of Chamber of Commerce.

Fred T. Lincoln, formerly secretary of the Commercial club in this city, has been installed in his new position at Brainerd. The daily papers give the following report of the welcome received by him:

"Fred T. Lincoln of Thief River Falls, new secretary of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, was given a formal welcome at the club meeting here tonight. There was a large outpouring of members to meet the new officer. A lap lunch was served at 8 o'olcck, following which there were short talks by the members. President Henry I. Cohen presided. A smoker followed.

Mr. Lincoln served as secretary of the Thief River Falls Commercial club, the directors adopting resolutions praising his energy, diplomacy and good results shown when he left. He was given a banquet shortly before leaving for Brainerd and was also presented with a fine Masonic ring. At Thief River Falls Mr. Lincoln was a power in improving relations between town and country and the "market days" held in Thief River Falls have become a regular institution."

From every section in which they have appeared comes the report that the Chicago Operatic company concert is the finest ever heard. Auditorium Friday night.—N2.

Pennington County's FRIEND

The statement made that J. A. DUFFY, candidate for representative from the 65th legislative district, has been opposed to Thief River Falls' and Pennington County's interests is refuted by an interesting document which has come to light after twelve years, a telegram sent to Congressman Steenerson urging him to use his influence to open the Eleven Towns country east of Thief River Falls. This country was an Indian reservation at the time and the telegram sent from Red Lake Falls was signed by over a hundred citizens at the head of whose names was that of J. A. Duffy. This telegram was sent at the request of Engineer Smiley, Lars Backe, N. W. Tarrant, Phil Zeh, Daniel Shaw, D. B. Bakke, John Morgan and other citizens of the then village of Thief River Falls. That Mr. Duffy's name headed the list is not to be wondered at. He has consistently advocated every movement that has had for its object the development of this part of the state and more especially the counties comprising the 65th district.

The following is the telegram:

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

By Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Novelized from the Motion Picture Play of the same name by George Kleine.

Copyright, 1916, by Adelaide M. Hughes

SYNOPSIS.

Pierpont Stafford, banker and railroad magnate, with his sixteen-year-old daughter, Gloria, is wintering at Palm Beach. Gloria is a vivacious but willful young lady who chafes under the restraining hand of a governess from whom she repeatedly escapes. Her childish capers cause young Doctor Royce to fall in love with her. She steals from her room at night and in an auto plunges into the surf where she leaves the car. Becoming lost in the everglades she falls into the hands of the Seminole Indians. She is rescued and returned to her father who had offered a reward for her return. Gloria falls in love with her rescuer, Freneau. Five years later she leaves school and meets Freneau at the theater; his attention having been occupied with her sister-in-law he has forgotten Gloria. Gloria feels that her one dream is shattered. Later Freneau persuades her to forgive him. Gloria's sister-in-law, Lois, becomes intensely jealous and Doctor Royce discovers in her an ally to assist in thwarting Freneau. Doctor Royce warns Freneau that there is another woman besides Gloria; Freneau goes sleighing with Gloria without her father's knowledge. It results in pneumonia for Gloria, whose family becomes incensed at Freneau when they learn the truth. Royce is summoned to alleviate Gloria's suffering. Freneau's finances being low he approaches Pierpont Stafford for a loan. Doctor Royce again warns Freneau of his conduct. But Lois, learning of Freneau's betrothal to Gloria, threatens him with dire punishment. Her husband, Gloria's brother David, becomes suspicious; he plans a trap for his wife. Freneau driven to desperation by Lois' threats agrees to spend a week with her in the Catskills. He plans to have Mulry send Gloria a bunch of telegrams. Lois' husband threatens to kill a man. After Freneau takes leave of Gloria she sees from her window an attack made upon him when he goes to meet Lois. Doctor Royce convinces her that what she has seen is the result of delirium. Later a telegram, followed by a letter, comes from Freneau. She replies but her telegrams are returned. The first morning she is allowed from her room, she accidently sees the supposed suicide of Freneau reported in the paper. Then Gloria swears to find the murderer of her lover. Royce becomes alarmed and tells what he knows of Freneau to Mr. Stafford. Together they seek to prevent scandal from enveloping Gloria. She accuses them in her mind of conspiracy against her.

TENTH EPISODE

Tangled Threads.

A ring on the finger is a badge of slavery that women are generally proud to wear, especially when it is an engagement ring, with a sparkle of diamonds like the price mark of a princess, saying, "See how much I cost!" or "He must love me a lot to have spent so much money on this diamond advertisement."

When Freneau slipped the gleaming circlet on Gloria's finger she had laughed with joy over it, never dreaming that he had bought it on credit and mentioned her name as security, and still less dreaming that he had not yet freed himself from the ringless engagement to Lois.

When Freneau died the gems that had looked to Gloria like jeweled laughter became teardrops of undying grief. She had taken a dismal pleasure in kissing the ring and talking to it as to her lost lover. When her tender heart yielded to the jealousy of her father and to his authority and she surrendered the ring to him her finger seemed to be suddenly naked and ashamed of itself. Her father's delight in his victory became only selfishness and an abuse of parental control.

Her very finger ached to have its ring back and she determined to go to her father and demand it. She went down the stairway to his library with a resolute step. She marched in upon him. He looked lonesome in his big dark room at his game of solitaire. Her mother had been dead for years and the little girl and boy he had raised had outgrown him. David was married and living in another house. Gloria had planned to leave him. She had as it were packed up her heart for departure. In her loneliness she understood his. The look of determination in her face changed to one of pity. She felt more like her father's mother than like a rebellious daughter. She decided to postpone the quarrel for the ring for a few minutes.

He had not heard her, so she coughed. The look of joy that brightened his eyes when they rested on her filled her with tenderness. He pushed back his cards and opened his arms to her. She ran to him and seated herself on the arm of his chair, embracing him and twisting his white hair into a single spear as she had done from childhood.

"My own little Gloria has come home again!" he groaned in a childish rapture that showed how blue and deserted he had felt. "And you're not going to leave me again, are you?"

"Never, daddy, never!" she sighed. "You poor old widower—you have a little widow for a child. You'll never lose me now."

That did not satisfy him either.

"O, yes, I will!" he answered. "Your smiles will come back and some day a handsome man—"

"Hush," she said, and put her finger across his lips. "Don't say it."

It seemed treachery of the basest sort to discuss such a topic. She bent her head in apology to the memory of her lover. Her downcast eyes caught a sparkle in the depth of her father's waistcoat pocket. She knew that it was the ring he had taken from her. He had not yet put it in the safe or thrown it into the river.

Gloria was startled. Her lips parted to speak the demand she had come to make. But her father was staring into the fire with such a contented look that she could not bear to start such a scene as he would be sure to make. He was a great man for getting what he wanted and for keeping it, once it was got.

The diamond blinked at her and seemed to say: "Steal me. He took me by force; take me back by stealth. I belong to you."

Gloria had had no previous experience as a pickpocket, but she understood how exciting the profession must be. Her father was an unsuspecting and an easy victim. She had only to lay her cheek against his as a blindfold and while her hair got into his eyes and made him squirm she captured the ring. She was afraid at once that he would miss it, speak of it, reach for it, and find it gone. She dared not linger.

"Go back to your cards, you old darling," she said, kissed him half a dozen good-nights and left.

She ran up to her room and set the ring in place again on her finger. She rejoiced in it a moment. Then her heart sunk. Her father would not tolerate a combination of disobedience and robbery. The main thing was to keep the ring. She put it in a little chain and fastened it about her neck. And there she wore it until—until her quest was ended and she had learned the truth. Much time and many adventures lay between this night and that day.

Her father went back to his solitaire and did not miss the ring for hours. Then he raised a mighty pother. He had the old butler on all fours looking everywhere for the ring. He even had the ashes in the fireplace sifted. He suspected everybody but Gloria. She was asleep in a loneliness that was somewhat assuaged by her fidelity and her mission.

* * * * * * *

The next morning Gloria set about her task with an analytical mind. She read in the morning paper that Frank Mulry, the partner of the late Richard Freneau, had decided to incorporate the firm under the name of Frank Mulry, Inc. It made her angry to think of this businesslike haste. But she realized that, after all, she knew nothing of Mulry and that he must know a great deal about her poor Freneau. He was the first man to visit. She was happy in this determination. Her brother David dropped in to say: "Lois and I had a little misunderstanding, but we have made up. We're going to the country house for a new honeymoon. Come along, you two, and have some skating and skiing and toboggan work."

Gloria shook her head. She had other work to do. Her father urged her to make the change of scene. She said she would think it over, but she did not intend to go, as she planned to spend her wits on Frank Mulry. As soon as she could get rid of her father and brother she ordered her own car out for the long voyage downtown.

Frank Mulry was not at his office when she arrived. He had been summoned to Doctor Royce's office by telephone. Thinking that Royce probably wanted a tip on the market, and eager always for a new customer, Mulry lost no time in obeying the summons. He found Royce in a grim humor and not at all polite.

"Mr. Mulry," Royce began, every word as sharp as a surgeon's knife, "you know more about Richard Freneau's affairs than you would like to tell in the open court. Miss Stafford is suspicious of everybody who ever knew Freneau. I imagine that she will look you up. It is the wish of her father and of myself that she shall not find out what a scoundrel the man was. We want to spare her, at least till she grows much stronger and time has healed her wounds a little. It is to your interest as much as ours to keep her in the dark. You know how those letters were mailed and those telegrams sent. You know why Freneau played that horrible trick on the poor girl he was engaged to. I merely wish to warn you that if you see Miss Gloria Stafford coming your way, you get out of her sight, no matter how or when. If you don't you'll be mixed up in a murder trial that may prove disastrous to you and your business."

Mulry's usual smile was twisted into a look of terror. He had more reasons than even Royce suspected for wishing to keep the searchlights of the press and the police out of his office. He was uncertain of the manner of Freneau's death, but the published hints of suicide for financial reasons had put Mulry into new financial difficulties. He had used the money Freneau had borrowed of Gloria's father to save himself from a crash. He was afraid that Stafford would demand it back at any moment, and he could not face such a demand.

Furthermore, his part in the writing of the letters and the sending of them and the telegrams from the various cities was one that he could not pleasantly explain. He could think of no good lie to tell, and the last person on earth he wanted to meet was Gloria Stafford.

Fortunately for him, he was at Royce's office when Gloria arrived at his. She was received by an impertinent young stenographer who seemed unable to spare time from her gum chewing and her appraisal of Gloria's looks and clothes to impart any useful information.

Gloria said she would like to leave a note for Mr. Mulry. The stenographer pointed to a table whereon lay writing materials. Gloria sat down to invite Mr. Mulry to call upon her.

Now Lois Stafford had also an important errand at this office. Her whole future and reputation lay in the packet of letters that Freneau had promised to return to her. She was sure that they were not on his body, for had they been found the newspapers or the police would have mentioned them soon enough. To recover those letters was now her prime purpose in life.

She thought of Mulry as the one most likely to be in possession of Freneau's effects, so she called on Mulry, never dreaming that Freneau had told him of her own interference in his plans to wed Gloria, or that Mulry collaborated with Freneau in his elaborate scheme to trick both women. Least of all did Lois dream that Gloria herself would be at Mulry's office. The stenographer was more impressed by Lois' clothes than by her attempts to be casual in her inquiry as to Mulry and "the papers of poor Mr. Freneau."

The stenographer murmured to the bookkeeper: "Two swell dames campin' on Mr. Mulry's trail the same day! Somethin's goin' on here that ain't gettin' into the letters he dictates to me."

So she did not tell Lois of Gloria's presence, and Lois went away in a turmoil of anxiety as great as that in Gloria's mind when she heard Lois ask about "poor Mr. Freneau." A knife of jealousy went into Gloria's heart and a hideous intuition that her beloved Dick might have bewitched Lois as he had bewitched herself. Those eyes of his had been perhaps a little too winning.

She rebuked herself for allowing the suspicion even to flit through her brain and began her note to Mulry. Her eye fell on the letterhead. The branch offices of the brokerage firm were listed in an upper corner: Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburgh. A new suspicion stabbed Gloria. The telegrams and letters in Dick's writing had been sent from just those cities in just that order Yet he had been dead when they were sent.

The earliest explanation was the true one, and Gloria guessed it immediately. He could have sent them to the branch offices in advance to be sent to her in order or he could have intrusted them to someone traveling the round of offices. Her intuition hit on the truth, without knowing it. The very ease of the trick disgusted her. She felt herself in the shadow of some hateful conspiracy. She began to doubt her own memory as to the letters and telegrams.

Crumpling the letter she had begun and thrusting it into her handbag, she left the office, telling the stenographer that she would telephone to Mr. Mulry. The elevator seemed to drop out beneath her as her whole trust in man and love had fallen from under her. She reached her motor and told the driver to make haste for home.

The crowded traffic, with its delays, maddened her, and when she reached her house at last she was in a frenzy. She ran up to her desk, took from the strong box the letters and telegrams of her lover, and compared them with the letterhead, laying them out date by date. There they were, the same towns in the same order, like a loathsome timetable of deceit. Her love revolted at the very picture of Freneau. She lost all self-control and cried at it:

"Whoever killed you and whatever his reason was, you lied to me, Dick. You never loved me, and I don't love you any more! I won't wear mourning for you any more."

She rang her bell furiously and ordered her startled maid to bring her the brightest gown in her wardrobe. She caught it from the maid's hands and drove the girl out, then flinging the riotous colors about her black gown like a scarf, she broke into a dance, flinging her lithe body into postures of joy and crying out that she was happy and that her heart would never be the fool of love again.

But she was not strong and her hysteria wore out speedily. Her heart swung back to its love again and she fell across the divan sobbing:

"Forgive me, Dick. I believe you in spite of the world. I love you in spite of everything and I'll find out the truth—the truth—the truth!"

* * * * * * *

And now it would have been hard to say whether Gloria's motive was one of loyalty to Freneau or of suspicion of him. She had to acquit him of worse than murder before the court of her own heart as much as to avenge him If he was the victim of some conspiracy, she was the victim of his. The riddle maddened her with its uncertainties.

That visit of Lois to Mulry's office seemed to involve her in Freneau's duplicity. Lois had confessed to the photograph of Freneau. She had said that she planned to have a miniature made for Gloria. But this seemed now to be only a hasty excuse, a desperate lie to hide a discovered theft. She decided to question Lois further. But Lois was going to her country home. Gloria had decided not to go. Now she decided that she would. She went to Lois' house to tell her so.

To her amazement Doctor Royce was there. He was saying to Lois that Gloria was on the hunt and warning her to be both a better wife than she had been and a more discreet woman, just such a warning as he had given Mulry.

Mulry had already taken the doctor's advice. He had invited himself to the country home of a friend of his, a home not far from David Stafford's. In eluding Gloria he had set out for the very region which she was about to visit in her investigation of Lois.

Gloria did not hear what Doctor Royce was saying to Lois when she was shown into the living room. But she saw that they were talking excitedly and that her appearance confused them. Gloria was so disconcerted at this that she could hardly explain her errand.

"I just dropped in to say that I will accept David's invitation to go up to the farm with you."

Lois was so reassured by this that she exclaimed with delight.

Royce said to Gloria: "May I come up, too?"

Gloria answered him icily: "It isn't my farm. Good-by, Lois." Then she walked out.

Royce stared at Lois, then at the spot where Gloria had been. Gloria was angry at him. He could not imagine why. He could not permit her to snub him like that. He had some rights as a physician if not as a lover. He bolted from Lois' presence and caught Gloria just as she was getting into her car.

"I'm going to take you home at once," he said.

She answered with more ice: "I'm not going home. I'm going to my father's office. Good-by."

Royce helped her into the car, hesitated a moment, then jumped in after her. Neither of them spoke all the way downtown. She was too angry. He was too bewildered. Arrived at the Equitable building, she put out her hand to bid him good-by, but he shook his head and went in with her.

Entering her father's suite, she brushed aside a protesting secretary and penetrated with Royce to the luxurious inner office.

Pierpont Stafford rose in amazement.

"Why, my child, what are you doing down here? You're not strong enough for this." And he looked inquiringly at the doctor.

"I tried to take her home, but she would not listen to me," Royce said helplessly.

Gloria advanced to her father with sudden anger.

"My health is all right, father, but what neither you nor Stephen realize is that something must be done for my peace of mind." And drawing the photograph from her breast, she pointed to it with flashing eyes, turning to each of them accusingly. "He was not drowned. He was murdered. You don't care. You want only silence. But I want the truth! I'm going to find it! I'm going to hunt down that man whether you help me or not!"

Royce thought a moment, then beckoned to Gloria and said: "Come with me."

Gloria followed him out wonderingly.

Entering the corridor of the building, Royce pressed the elevator button marked: "Up." He guided Gloria into a car that stopped for them. It was an express and shot them up to the fortieth floor. Alighting, Royce led her out to the roof. It was surrounded by a high wall, but a carpenter's ladder chanced to be there, and Royce set it up that Gloria might mount and see across the parapet.

Wonderingly, Gloria allowed Royce to help her up. She shuddered as she looked down into the depths of the vast canyons. Then, in great seriousness, Royce spoke. He stood on the ladder with her and pointed in a circle, beginning at the east and turning south, then west, then north, as he spoke:

"You say you saw a man kill Freneau! I say it was delirium. If it were true, you don't know his name, his country, or his motive; you would hardly know his face if you saw it again. He may have taken a ship across the ocean yonder. If he is in that city, among those millions, how can you hope to find him? Look!"

The marvelous expanse of the harbor, the rivers and bridges, and finally the enormous city, terrified Gloria, but she pounded her little fist on the parapet and shook it at the infinite sky above her in registration of her vow.

"I'll find him somehow! Somewhere! Some when!"

Royce stared at her and loved her more than ever, hopelessly, helplessly. She leaned on the parapet and gazed off into space.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE

In an article published in the Eleven Towns at Goodridge, Minn., somebody who signs himself as "A Farmer" says that it is up to me to prove that I would make a better officer than Ives. That is just what I want to do Mr. Farmer. Just elect me and give me a chance. How can I prove it otherwise? Our former clerk of Court, C. W. Johnson, who preceded Ives in the office, had been a teacher like myself. Will Mr. Farmer say that Ives is a better clerk of court than Johnson? If so, in what way? It seems that a teacher can qualify very well as clerk of Court.

I am in possession of a letter from the Attorney General of South Dakota, Mr. C. C. Caldwell, in regard to the terms of county officers. He says that South Dakota has a law limiting the county officers to two terms and, mind you, a term there is two years instead of four years as in Minnesota, making four years the greatest length of time an officer can serve in succession. Now if it is a good thing to keep one man in office all the time, why was such a law passed? Does it not stand to reason that there is some evil in perpetual office holding or such a law would not have been thought of. Koochiching county is a late example of what continuous office holding leads to.

That I am worth $25,000.00 as Mr. Farmer says is a low and nefarious campaign lie. I never in my life was worth so many hundreds. I have taught school for eight years and the most I ever earned in any one year was $450.00 and the first years it was much less than that. Out of that sum I had to pay my board and all other expenses. How many thousand dollars could Mr. Farmer have saved out of that? The following letter shows what I got from the Railway company after I was injured. It speaks for itself.

Northern Pacific Railway Co.,
General Claim Department,
St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 9, 1916.

Mr. Adolf Eklund,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of Sept. 30, asking what the records of the company show with reference to an accident and personal injury sustained by you at Cosmopolis, Wash., on April 18, 1903, it having been erroneously stated, as you advise, that you received a large amount of money from the Railway company on account of such injuries.

The records show that the Railway company denied liability for this accident, it appearing that the accident had been caused through no negligence of the railway company; also, that you signed a release in consideration that the company take care of your doctor bill, which amounted to One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars, and furnish you with transportation from Tacoma to Crookston.

Yours Truly,

General Claim Agent.

Mr. Ives has been in public office for nearly eight years. He has drawn a good salary. It has been as high as $3,295.25 a year. This is from the official records in the auditor's office. There is no "reputed" about it. Anybody can find out for himself. Compare that with my highest salary of $450.00. Now in the name of common sense, Mr. Farmer, which one of us should be worth the most? It is evident that Mr. Farmer does not believe himself what he has written and is ashamed of it. So he hides under the anonymous "A Farmer" instead of signing his name like a man. Might there not be some connection between such high salaries and high taxes? Is it not about time for a house-cleaning in the Court House? There is an opportunity next Tuesday, Nov. the 7th.

I have been warned by friends that something injurious to me may be spread out a few days before election.

If that should be the case the voters may be assured that it is false and has no more foundation than Mr. Farmer's $25,000.00 story. There has been ample time to find out, and if there had been anything it would have been dug up and sent out long ago.

The Norwegian Synod church was the scene of a marriage Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, when Anna Marie Hanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hanson, was united in marriage to John Leander Magnuson, Rev. I. T. Aastad, officiating. Miss Thora Hanson acted as bridesmaid, and Nels M. Hanson, of Madison, Minn., was best man.

Following the wedding ceremony a delicious wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, north of the city. The bride is well known here, coming to this city in 1893. The groom has been employed in this city for the past seven years. The newlyweds will go to housekeeping at the corner of tenth street and Duluth avenue, where a house has already been provided by the groom.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Lindgren, of Karlstad, Minn., Mrs. Larson, of Coteau, N. D., Mrs. Hans Larson, of Coteau, Miss Anna C. Hanson, of Madison, Minn., and Nels M. Hanson, of Madison, Minn.

On Monday morning, October 30, at Schaunavon, Sask., Canada, in Sacred Heart church occurred the marriage of Miss Josephine Bourque, daughter of Frank Bourque, of this city, and William H. Fritz, of Schaunavon. The bride is one of Thief River Falls' fairest daughters and has resided here practically all her life. She graduated from the public schools here and then went to Moorhead, where she finished a normal course. For the past eleven years she has been engaged as instructor in schools throughout Minnesota. The newlyweds are expected to arrive in Thief River Falls the latter part of this week from Canada on their honeymoon. They will reside near Schaunavon, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Approximately seventy-five young people were present at the Hallowe'en party given by Misses Myrtle Rasmusson, and Doris Brumund and John Brumund at the Brumund hotel parlors last Friday evening. The evening was spent in dancing, after which a delicious luncheon was served in a side room. The decorations were orange and black, streamers of these colors being strung from the center of the ceiling to the corners of the room. The walls were decorated with paper cats, witches, bats and several other Hallowe'en novelties. Paper pumpkins encased the electric lights, which cast a soft mellow light. In the dining room the guests sat four at a table. Lighted candles were placed on each table, making a very pretty sight.

Monday, November 6, at 7:30 p. m., will occur one of the most delightful banquets ever given in this city, the same being tendered to the members of the Methodist Episcopal Epworth League. No efforts have been spared to make the banquet a success in every particular, and the event promises well to that end. In addition to the elaborate menu to be given a most interesting and entertaining musical and literary program will be rendered. Owing to the fact that the second number of the Lyceum course will be presented on Friday evening, Nov. 3, the League postponed the banquet until November 6.

The second series of parties given by Mesdames Stowell and Heiber was given last Saturday afternoon at the home of the latter. Cards formed the afternoon's entertainment. The prizes were awarded to Mrs. A. Sapero and Mrs. W. BonDurant. Hallowe'en decorations were used and gave the rooms a pretty appearance. Mesdames Stowell and Heiber will entertain again Saturday at the former's home. There will be twenty-four guests.

Misses Kohler and Sorenson, of Grand Forks, appeared in a sacred concert at the Zion church last Friday evening, and made a most favorable impression upon the audience. Miss Sorenson is a clever violinist, and showed great power of tone and interpretation. The pianist, Miss Kohler, displayed well-schooled fingers, and had a most brilliant technique.

Mesdames J. J. Borry, J. L. Stitt, T. B. Stauff, Wallace Watson, Theo. Quale, and Harry Miller entertained the Eastern Star Thimble Bee at the Borry residence yesterday afternoon. There were forty members present. The afternoon was passed in needle work and conversation. Refreshments were served.

The "Do Drop In" club was entertained at the D. B. Bakke home Monday night, Miss Agnes Bakke acting as hostess. The evening was passed in doing fancy work after which light refreshments were served. Misses Bellee and Marie Hermanson will entertain the club next Monday night.

Miss Thora Thoreson was pleasantly surprised by a number of her friends Saturday evening at her apartmnts over the Times building. The evening was passed in doing fancy work. Refreshments were served.

The Dorcas society will be entertained by Miss Gilma Ostvolden at her home Tuesday evening, Nov. 7, 1916. All are welcome.

Mesdames Sether and Tharaldson will entertain the Ladies' Aid of the United Lutheran church in the church basement next Wednesday afternoon, November 8. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A regular meeting of the Woman's club was held Monday afternoon at the Commercial club, Mrs. C. A. Pitikin being in charge of the program. A paper on "The Other Unit" was read by Mrs. Pitkin.

The Winslow Chapter O. E. S. No. 182, will hold its next regular meeting at the Masonic Temple next Wednesday evening, November 8. A large attendance is requested. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Louis Lonson, 207 Conley avenue south, entertained the Rebekah Social club at her home Tuesday afternoon. Refreshments were served and all enjoyed the afternoon thoroughly.

Miss Grace Plummer, instructor in the Grafton public schools, was the week-end guest at the home of Mrs. G. Halvorson. Miss Plummer left for Grafton to again take up her duties.

A number of young people met at the Pat Keating residence on Tuesday evening to celebrate Hallowe'en. Games were played and refreshments served.

SUPPER.

The Ladies Aid of the Swedish Lutheran church on Horace Ave., will serve a chicken supper on Friday evening Nov. 3. All who have attended the suppers given by these good ladies in the past know that they will get more than money's worth. The price is only 35 cents in spite of the high cost of living.

SCHOOL NOTES

The State Educational asosciation is in session this week in St. Paul. The Northwestern association, which includes all counties north of Clay and west of Beltrami, convenes Nov. 23rd and 24th at Crookston. The latter meeting usually has an attendance of 1,000 teachers and school officers. Its program is as broad and expansive as that of the state association of a few years ago. This year, the Crookston meeting will have seventeen round table and sectional gatherings, in addition to the general assemblies, and one number alone of several to be presented, will cost $200. In fact, it rivals the state convention in size and value of program.

It may be of interest to know why school people favor athletics. They create school interest and school spirit; train for quick and decisive mental and physical action; develop iniative and leadership; no student can make the team who smokes, drinks or falls below in his studies; and they furnish an outlet for excess physical energy, which, otherwise, would surely find vent in an undesirable manner. If these can be attained even by a part of the students, athletics are worthy of recognition and support.

The old high school science known as physiology is a half year subject and is modernized and presented in the local school as follows: September—germs, diseases, muscles and bones; October—respiratory diseases, digestive system, lymphatic system; November—intestinal diseases, protozoan diseases, care of the body, teeth, eyes, ears, nails, ect., emergency cases; January—private and public sanitation, disinfection.

Enrollment to date in the various buldings is as follows: Central, 328; Washington, 358; Knox, 331; Auditorium, 48; Lincoln high school, 330; total, 1395. There are 121 more boys than girls in school.

In the high school English History is recommended for Freshmen, Ancient History for Sophmores, Modern History for Juniors and American History and Civil government for Seniors.

A meeting was held at the Berg school last Friday evening to discuss association with the Thief River Falls district. An election will be held on Nov. 10th to determine the proposition.

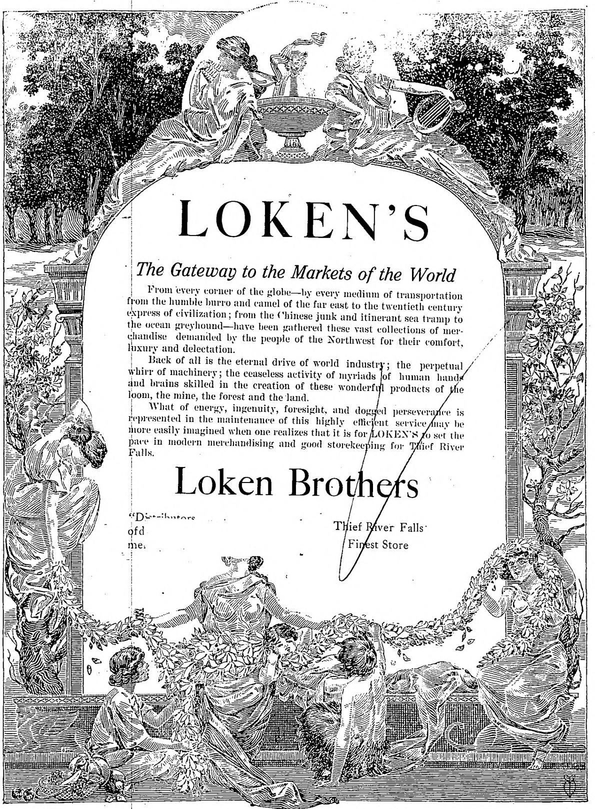
Beginning next week, all waste paper will be saved, pressed into bales and disposed of by sale to paper mills.

Football Night at The Princess.

In the event that the Thief River Falls high school football team cops the game from Crookston Saturday, winning the championship of Northwestern Minnesota and probably North Dakota, the event will be celebrated at the Princess in a good old football night. The sporting editor of The Times has snapped all the "grid" stars and they will in all probability be flashed onto the screen if present plans pan out. Manager Seitzler has arranged to rope off at least one third of the theatre for high school students and will cut the admission price to 5c. Their rooter King will be on hand to lead them through the yells and songs. This dope will be upset, however, if the team fails to "bring home the bacon."

Democratic Meetings.

Hans O. Kjomme returned this morning from Holt, where he addressed the voters from the Democratic standpoint last evening. Mr. Kjomme and E. M. Stanton will deliver the addresses at Goodridge on Friday night, at Hazel on Saturday night, and will wind up the campaign at St. Hilaire on Monday night.



LOKEN'S

The Gateway to the Markets of the World

From every corner of the globe—by every medium of transportation from the humble burro and camel of the far east to the twentieth century express of civilization; from the Chinese junk and itinerant sea tramp to the ocean greyhound—have been gathered these vast collections of merchandise demanded by the people of the Northwest for their comfort, luxury and delectation.

Back of all is the eternal drive of world industry; the perpetual whirr of machinery; the ceaseless activity of myriads of human hands and brains skilled in the creation of these wonderful products of the loom, the mine, the forest and the land.

What of energy, ingenuity, foresight, and dogged perseverance is represented in the maintenance of this highly efficient service may be more easily imagined when one realizes that it is for LOKEN'S to set the pace in modern merchandising and good storekeeping for Thief River Falls.

Duffy Is Endorsed

(Communicated.)

Editor Thief River Falls Times:

The Commercial club of Oklee just recently held a meeting for the purpose of discussing the Representative candidate for the 65th district. The outcome was a unanimous vote for John A. Duffy.

We find that Mr. Duffy has made wondeful gains all over the entire district during the past few months. Two years ago county option was the issue and the people pinned their faith to Stenvick, but that question is settled now and Duffy favors the non-repeal of that law. What the people want now is a man that is interested in the welfare of the rural districts and can and will do something for the good of the county. Mr. Duffy's platform is a message of hope to the ruralist. He stands for the needs of the district and no one knows the needs of the people any better than Mr. Duffy. Vote for him and get the desired results.

W. A. SWANSON.

A Carload of Lubricator.

M. McFarland, the Ford garage man, is going to do all he can to solve the problem of a lighter cost in the operation of automobiles. Last night a whole carload of lubricating oil arrived and he is busy unloading it today. Buying in such quantities not only gives him the edge on the price, but forestalls any possibility of a shortage. These days you cannot tell just what you are going to run out of and it is good policy to keep supplied.

A Remarkable Window.

Olaf Neset, the jeweler, has a display window that is receiving considerable attention these days. It is a "gold display," and the effect is both striking and novel. Everything in the jewelry line is to be seen there, besides some particularly beautiful gold-inlaid Packard china pieces. It will pay you to take a good look at this collection, as you will go far to find another as fine.

Boy wanted to work in store, 16 to 18 years of age, Scandinavian. Address R care of The Times.

Judge Spooner, of Bemidji, was a visitor in Thief River Falls last evening while enroute to St. Paul on a trip to attend to legal affairs.

Geo. Dolan, custodian at the Auditorium, on Tuesday picked a full bloom dandylion on the public library lawn. This particular flower is not considered rare in this section, but finding one on the first of November is a little out of the ordinary.

Fred T. Lincoln, until recently secretary of the Commercial club, is in the city today looking after matters prepatory to the moving of his family to the Crow Wing city. Mr. Lincoln says that he likes his new surroundings first-rate, but that he has hardly had time to get properly settled into the work as yet.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

(Inserted by Theo. Liden in behalf of W. G. Calderwood, and to be paid for at the rate of five cents per line.)

VOTE FOR W. G. CALDERWOOD.

A man who is to be trusted with public duties, should be thoroughly considered before he is placed in office. For this reason I wish to call your attention to the election of the United States Senator. The contest is between D. W. Lawler, F. B. Kellog ,and W. G. Calderwood. We find that the attitude is Kellogg at any price, and money has not been spared in order to elect him to office. A. E. Eberhardt was just as good a man, but Mr. Eberhardt has a record as a pubic servant, which Kellogg has not, and therefore Kellogg could fool the people to cast their vote for him.

Mr. Calderwood is the people's candidate, has devoted most of his time to the service of the people. He is brave and able, and stands alone as serenely as a Lovejoy. He knows and understands the common people as intimately as a Lincoln. Big business and "Special Privilege," wet and dry, will oppose him. The common people, regardless of party affiliations can and should elect him. Calderwood does not need the job, but we need him on the job. He is the peoples' candidate, he knows the people and their wants, he has visited every town and city from 300 population and up, and has touched elbows with all classes of people. His view is the law. He wrote the first non-partisan bill presented the Minnesota Legislature. "This law broke up the court house rings." Mr. Calderwood is the only candidate pledged to Federal grain inspection, public terminal elevators, and against gambling in food stuffs, and also grain militarism. He is a friend of the laboring man, and your vote will help to elect him to the United States Senate on November 7th.

Respectfully,
THEO. H. LIDEN.

Mrs. John McKinney returned last evening from Ottawa, Illinois, where she had spent several weeks visiting at the home of her sister.

Mrs. F. H. Gambell departed last evening for Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where she will spend a short time visiting with friends and relatives.

Arthur Olson, residing with his mother on a farm between this city and St. Hilaire, returned last week from the harvest fields of North Dakota. He reports that he had a very good season, the wages being from $3.25 to $3.50 per day right through harvest. The wheat crop did not turn out particularly well, but other grains were above the average. One man in the neighborhood where Mr. Olson worked threshed a large field of rye which averaged 39 bushels to the acre. Farmers out in that section are devoting a large amount of ground to this crop for next year, he says.

County Attorney H. O. Kjomme spent last evening at Holt, where he appeared on the program of the Wilson rally. Mr. Kjomme states that it was an enthusiastic meeting and well attended.

Miss Emma Backe, librarian, stated this morning that during the month of October there were 177 new patrons added to the library enrollment, and that there are 2,100 patrons all told. Miss Gena Granum has been appointed assistant librarian.

Chief of Police Berge reports a very mild Hallowe'en celebration by the kids on Tuesday evening, there being no mischief of the malicious order. The usual number of extra policemen were added to the force during the evening.

Allan W. Knutson, mechanic at the Rassmusson and Rossmon garage, left for St. Louis, Mo., last evening to spend several months visiting with relatives. He will return March 1 to take up his position.

Another attractive window display is that of the Laing Hardware store. The display is in keeping with the opening of the trapping season, and is causing considerable attention. The window arranger has brough several specimens from the taxidermist into play.

John H. Ley, of St. Cloud, compiler of city directories, is in the city compiling such a book. Mr. Ley was here in 1914, the last edition being gotten out at that time. He expects to have the books ready for distribution about January 1. Mrs. Ley is here also.

Arson Cloutier, wire chief for the Tri-State Telephone company in this city, left for Greenbush Wednesday to superintend the work of removing the telephone exchange to a new building. He was accompanied by Earl Long, an employe.

A saving event that comes only once in a great while. Watch for it.—The Sapero Co.

A carload of iron rods arrived in the city yesterday from Minneapolis to be used in constructing a fence around the Soo express shed. Sliding doors will be used in the fence. The material has been over a year in getting to Thief River Falls, it being necessary to go through the usual amount of red tape.

Three wolves have gotten it behind the ear in Pennington during the past three weeks. On Monday B. A. Strand, farmer residing in Cloverleaf township, was at the court house to collect the $7.50 bounty. He had the skin with him. Frank Rice, of Goodridge, and Norman Nelson, of Highlanding, also were on hand to collect the amount due them. The latter men also bagged one apiece.

Ned Cutter, formerly engaged in newspaper work in this city, who is now serving the U. S. government as lieutenant in the 3rd regiment and who opened a recruiting station at Crookston two weeks ago, left last Friday morning for Fort Snelling, he having received orders to discontinue recruiting for the third regiment and report for duty at once. The order contained no other information and was issued from the central department of the war department of Chicago.

St. Hilaire News

N. E. Beebe was pleasantly surprised at his home last Wednesday evening by a number of his friends, the occasion being his forty-fourth birthday. The evening was spent in talking and playing numerous games. At the close of the evening Mr. Beebe was presented with a set of fine monogram military brushes as a gift. The following participated in the merriment: Mr. and Mrs. G. Roth and son, Burel, Mr. and Mrs. H. Roth, Mr. and Mrs. Hurst and son, John; Mr. and Mrs. D. Patterson and children, Donald and Margaret; Dr. and Mrs. Dan. Mr. and Mrs. Shoopman and son, Mr. and Mrs. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Noper and son, Mrs. C. Bigelow and son, Leslie, and Mrs. O. Gunstad.

Mrs. A. C. Kviness, who came to this village the latter part of the week to attend the funeral services of her brother, M. Hoff, on Friday, returned to her home at Middle River Saturday. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. E. Hoff, and her sister, Ethel, who will make a short visit with her.

Andrew Simonson, who resides south of town and who has been sick for the last six weeks, is improving rapidly and is able to be up and around again.

Fred Gunstad, who has been employed at Terrace, Mont., the past two months, returned to his home in this village recently.

Mrs. C. From, who has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Hanson, at Angeles, for the past six weeks, returned to her home in this village Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Fricker were entertained at a Sunday dinner at the W. R. Wicks home.

Mrs. Hegstrom shopped at Thief River Falls between trains on Friday.

Ann Patterson and Fern Boyle ,who are teaching at Thief River Falls, were visitors at the D. Patterson home on Saturday.

Christ Bjerk, a former resident of this village, spent a few days visiting with his brother, M. Bjerke, last week.

Mrs. D. McAllister and daughter, Muriel, were visitors at Thief River Falls between trains on Saturday.

August Swenson and daughter, Martha, were Thief River Falls visitors between trains on Saturday.

Mrs. Harry Conn of Seattle, Wash., arrived in this village Thursday, to be present the funeral of her brother, M. Hoff, on Friday.

J. A. Duffy, a candidate for representative of the 65th district, passed through this village Thursday, enroute to his home at Red Lake Falls.

Miss Elizabeth Johnson was a guest of Miss Hazel Patten over Thursday.

On Friday, Oct. 27, at the Hoff home, occurred the funeral services of M. Hoff, who died on Monday. Mr. Hoff, who was a highly respected citizen of this village had been suffering from stomach and liver trouble for a number of years, but when death ensued it was a distinct shock to many people. He was a rural mail carrier on route No. 2 out of this village, and has many friends among the young and old of this village as well as the people of the surrounding places. Mr. Hoff leaves a wife and three small children, two boys and one girl, to mourn his loss. He also leaves a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hoff, former residents of this village, two brothers, Abner and Bennie, seven sisters, Mrs. O. Storaali of Toppenish, Wash., Mrs. Harry Conn, of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. A. C. Kviness of Middle River, Emma, Ethel, Alice and Ruth.

An announcement of the marriage of Miss Emma Braaten of Roseau to William Lindahl of this village, at Ross, Minn., last Saturday, has been received by the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. N. Lindahl. "Willie" Lindahl was a former employee at the creamery in this village and also was a member of the St. Hilaire orchestra and of the band. He has been employed at the creamery in Ross for sometime. Congratulations are extended to the newlyweds by their many friends and many wishes for a long and prosperous wedded life.

Mrs. H. Olson was a Thief River Falls visitor between trains on Saturday.

Rev. J. Wilson and G. W. Hooper were Thief River Falls callers on Wednesday.

Misses Harriet Jackson and Coral Hooper and Messrs. Norman Patterson, Sam Hauge and Rolland Trask, autoed to Halstad Saturday. They spent that day and Sunday visiting with Marie Hooper, who is teaching at that place and returned Sunday evening.

A Hallowe'en party which was given at the home of Miss Alta Olson on Tuesday evening for the little folks in her class at Sunday school, proved a great success. Those present were: Gordon Martz, Almer and Bernice Bjerk, Oscar Nelson, Fred Biskey, Gail and Ieona Patterson, May and Blanche Cathileneau, Arleen and Irving McKercher, Dorothy Olson, Clara Lock, Hazel Fricker, Merle Motherhead, Lois Peck, Clarence Bengtson and George Wilson.

The decorations consisted of black Owls, Bats, Cats, and witches, which were attached to the curtains and the walls. Black and yellow streamers were hung from the ceiling. The table was covered with black paper. Large yellow moons with bats placed upon them formed a border for the cloth. Hallowe'en games were played and the witch's well, which contained fortunes tied on to little fish poles proved to be a great amusement. Other games such as the "Peanut Hunt," "Apple Dive," and "Blow" were played. A delicious luncheon was served later in the evening, after which games were again played. At 10 o'clock the little folks departed all saying that they had a very good time, and wishing that Hallowe'en came more than once a year.

Word rached here, the latter part of last week from Mr. and Mrs. O. Stearns, who live at Loma, N. D., that their hotel had burned down. An overheated stove caused the fire, and before help could be summoned the fire had a very good start. The building was completely destroyed. The roomers escaped from the burning building and no one was injured. Only a few things were saved and these proved to be worthless because the fire had already scorched them.

VOTE FOR

H. E. IVES

NON-PARTISAN NOMINEE FOR

Clerk of the District Court For Pennington County

TO THE VOTERS OF PENNINGTON COUNTY:—

I have been the Clerk of the District Court for Pennington County since the start of the County, November 23rd, 1910, and during that time I have tried to the best of my ability to master the many intricate details of the office and do the work in a capable, impartial and painstaking manner. I have attended to the work of the office in person, giving ALL OF MY TIME to the affairs of the office and employ a deputy only when Court is in session, less than thirty days a year. I have been elected once and feel that a second election would be an endorsement of my work and I frankly ask you for your vote and support on November 7th.

If re-elected I wish to pledge that I will continue to try to be efficient, obliging and impartial and will continue to do the work in person whenever possible.

Respectfully yours,
H. E. IVES.

THE EIGHT Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of the STATE OF MINNESOTA

Submitted by the Legislature at Its General Session, 1915, Together With a Statement of the PURPOSES AND EFFECTS,

Prepared by Hon. Lyndon A. Smith, Attorney General of Minnesota.

Addressed to Julius A. Schmahl Secretary of State

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, ST. PAUL.

April 7, 1916.

Honorable Julius A. Schmahl,
Secretary of State,
Capitol.

DEAR SIR: Pursuant to your request and in accordance with the provisions of Section 46, Statutes 1913, I herewith hand you statement of the purposes and effect of all amendments to the Constitution proposed by the legislature of 1915 and to be submitted to the electors at the next general election; such statement also shows the reading of the existing sections and the way the same will read if the amendments are adopted.

Yours truly,
LYNDON A. SMITH,
Attorney General.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1.

By Chapter 379, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Two (2) of Article Eight of the Constitution, by adding to said Section Two a new paragraph.

Section Two as it now stands reads as follows:

Section 2. "SCHOOL AND SWAMP LANDS—SCHOOL FUNDS FROM SALE OF—The proceeds of such lands as are or hereafter may be granted by the United States for the use of schools within each township in this state shall remain a perpetual school fund to the state; and not more than one-third of said lands may be sold in two years, one-third in five years, and one-third in ten years; but the lands of the greatest valuation shall be sold first: Provided, that no portion of said lands shall be sold otherwise than at public sale. The principal of all funds arising from sales or other disposition of lands or other property, granted or intrusted to this state in each township for educational purposes, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished; and the income arising from the lease or sale of said school land shall be distributed to the different townships throughout the state, in proportion to the number of scholars in each township, between the ages of five and twenty-one years; and shall be faithfully applied to the specific objects of the original grants or appropriations. Suitable laws shall be enacted by the legislature for the safe investment of the principal of all funds which have heretofore arisen or which may hereafter arise from the sale or other disposition of such lands, or the income from such lands accruing in any way before the sale or disposition thereof in interest-bearing bonds of the United States, or of the State of Minnesota issued after the year 1860, or of such other state as the legislature may by law from time to time direct. All swamp lands now held by the state, or that may hereafter accrue to the state, shall be appraised and sold in the same manner and by the same officers, and the minimum price shall be the same less one-third, as is provided by law for the appraisement and sale of the school lands under the provisions of title one of chapter thirty-eight of the General Statutes. The principal of all funds derived from sales of swamp lands as aforesaid shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished. One-half of the proceeds of said principal shall be appropriated to the common school fund of the state; the remaining one-half shall be appropriated to the educational and charitable institutions of the state in the relative ratio of cost to support said institutions."

The paragraph which it is proposed to add to said Section Two reads as follows:

"A revolving fund of not over two hundred fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) may be set apart from the fund derived from the sale of school and swamp lands, to be used in constructing roads, ditches and fire breaks in, through and around unsold school and swamp lands and in clearing such lands, such fund to be replenished as long as needed from the enhanced value realized from the sale of such lands so benefited."

Under Section Two as it now stands the proceeds of the sale of school and swamp lands constitute the principal of a trust fund, the income of which is used for the support of the schools, educational and charitable institutions of the state. Section Two as it now stands provides that the principal of such fund "shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished."

THE EFFECT of the proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to modify the provision last quoted to the extent of permitting the legislature to set aside not to exceed $250,000 of the principal of the trust fund as a revolving fund to be used for the purposes stated in the amendment proposed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2.

By Chapter 380, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Six (6), of Article Eight (8) of the Constitution.

Section Six as it now stands reads as follows:

"Section 6. INVESTMENT OF SCHOOL FUNDS — The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, but no such investment shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed fifteen per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable real property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall such loans or indebtedness be made at a lower rate of interest than three per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than twenty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of the issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds."

If the proposed amendment is adopted it will then read as follows:

"The permanent school and university fund of this state may be invested in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state, and in first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands of this state. But no such investment or loan shall be made until approved by the board of commissioners designated by law to regulate the investment of the permanent school fund and the permanent university fund of this state; nor shall such loan or investment be made when the bonds to be issued or purchased would make the entire bonded indebtedness exceed 15 per cent of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the county, school district, city, town or village issuing such bonds; nor shall any farm loan, or investment be made when such investment or loan would exceed 30 per cent of the actual cash value of the farm land mortgage to secure said investment; nor shall such investments or loans be made at a lower rate of interest than 3 per cent per annum, nor for a shorter period than five years, nor for a longer period than thirty years, and no change of the town, school district, city, village or of county lines shall relieve the real property in such town, school district, county, village or city in this state at the time of issuing of such bonds from any liability for taxation to pay such bonds."

THE PURPOSE of the amendment is to authorize the investment of the permanent school and university funds in "first mortgage loans secured upon improved and cultivated farm lands where the amount of the loans so secured does not exceed 30 per cent of the value of the land mortgaged.

THE EFFECT of the adoption of the proposed amendment will be to permit the legislature to authorize the investment of the permanent school and university funds in farm mortgages as above stated, as well as in the bonds of any county, school district, city, town or village of this state. Under Section Six as it now reads bonds cannot be purchased unless they mature at least five and not more than twenty years after purchase. If the amendment is adopted, bonds and mortgages may be purchased if they mature not less than five nor more than thirty years after purchase.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 3.

By Chapter 381, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Article Nine (9) of the Constitution by adding thereto a new section, which reads as follows:

"Section 17. The legislature is hereby authorized to provide by law for the mining and sale of any iron ore or other minerals which the state owns, in its sovereign capacity, and as trustee for the people of the state, which are situate under the waters or bed of any meandered public lake or river, and for that purpose may provide for the drainage of any such lake or river, or the diversion of the waters thereof to a new bed or channel, provided, however, that the vested riparian rights of private persons or corporations owning land adjoining such lakes shall not be destroyed or damaged without their consent, unless compensation therefor shall be first paid or secured. The principal of all funds arising from the sale of such iron ore, or other minerals, shall forever be preserved inviolate and undiminished, but the income therefrom shall be used for the construction, improvement and maintenance of the public roads of the state. The principal of such funds shall be loaned or invested in the same manner, by the same officers and upon the same terms as is, or from time to time hereafter may be authorized by the constitution and laws, for the loaning or investment of the permanent school and university funds of the state."

THE PURPOSE of the proposed amendment cannot be more clearly stated than is expressed therein.

THE EFFECT of the amendment, if adopted, would be to confer power on the legislature to provide by law for the mining of iron ore and other minerals, which the state owns in its sovereign capacity and situate under the bed of any meandered public lake or river, subject to the restriction that the rights of riparian owners on any such lake or river, shall not be destroyed or injured without compensation. If the legislature exercises the power, in case it is conferred, it could also provide for the drainage or diversion of the waters of the lake or river with reference to which it so legislates; it could also prescribe by whom such minerals could be mined and the compensation to be paid to the state therefor. The proceeds of the sale of any such minerals would constitute a fund to be loaned and invested the same as the permanent school and university funds, the income of such fund to be used in the construction, improvement and maintenance of public roads.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 4.

By Chapter 382, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed an amendment to Section Two (2) of Article Six of the Constitution.

Said Section 2 now reads as follows:

"Section 2. SUPREME COURT—The supreme court shall consist of one chief justice and two associate justices, but the number of associate justices may be increased to a number not exceeding four, by the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, when it shall be deemed necessary. It shall have original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there shall be no trial by jury in said court. It shall hold one or more terms in each year, as the legislature may direct, at the seat of government, and the legislature may provide, by a two-thirds vote, that one term in each year shall be held in each or any judicial district. It shall be the duty of such court to appoint a reporter of its decisions. There shall be chosen, by the qualified electors of the state, one clerk of the supreme court, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and until his successor is duly elected and qualified; and the judges of the supreme court, or a majority of them, shall have the power to fill any vacancy in the office of clerk of the supreme court until an election can be regularly had."

If the proposed amendment is adopted the section will then read as follows:

"Section 2. The supreme court shall consist of one chief justice and six associate justices. Five shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of at least four shall be necessary to a decision. It shall have original jurisdiction in such remedial cases as may be prescribed by law, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases, both in law and equity, but there shall be no trial by jury in said court. It shall hold one or more terms in each year, as the legislature may direct, at the seat of government, and the legislature may provide, by a two-thirds vote, that one term in each year shall be held in each or any judicial district. It shall be the duty of such court to appoint a reporter of its decisions and a clerk of the supreme court."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: The Supreme Court as now constituted consists of a chief justice and four associate justices. The clerk of said court is now elected. If the amendment is adopted, two associate justices will be added to the court and the clerk will be appointed by the court instead of being elected by the voters.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 5.

By Chapter 383, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed for adoption by the electors, an amendment of Section Eleven (11) of Article Four (4) of the Constitution.

Said section now reads as follows:

"Section 11. APPROVAL OF BILLS BY GOVERNOR — VETO POWER— Every bill which shall have passed the senate and house of representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the state. If he approves he shall sign and deposit it in the office of the secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature, by adjournment within that time, prevents its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money he may object to one or more of such items, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case, he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items to which he objects, and the appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money."

It is proposed to amend that section so that it shall read as follows:

"Section 11. Every bill which shall have passed the senate and house of representatives, in conformity to the rules of each house and the joint rules of the two houses, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor of the state. If he approves he shall sign and deposit it in the office of the secretary of state for preservation, and notify the house where it originated of the fact. But if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated; when such objections shall be entered at large on the journal of the same, and the house shall proceed to reconsider the bill. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if it be approved by two-thirds of that house it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within three days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the legislature by adjournment within that time, prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law. The governor may approve, sign and file in the office of the secretary of state, within three days after the adjournment of the legislature, any act passed during the last three days of the session, and the same shall become a law. If any bill presented to the governor contains several items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of such items in whole or in part, while approving of the other portion of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill, at the time of signing it, a statement of the items and parts of items to which he objects, and the part of any appropriation so objected to shall not take effect. If the legislature be in session, he shall transmit to the house in which the bill originated a copy of such statement, and the items objected to in whole or in part shall be separately reconsidered. If, on reconsideration, one or more of such items be approved by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, the same shall be a part of the law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. All the provisions of this section, in relation to bills not approved by the governor, shall apply in cases in which he shall withhold his approval in whole or in part from any item or items contained in a bill appropriating money."

PURPOSE AND EFFECT: Under the Constitution as it now is, the governor may veto any item in an appropriation bill, but he cannot cut down the amount appropriated for any specific purpose. The amendment, if adopted, will give the governor power to reduce the amount of an appropriation for any given purpose, unless upon transmittal to the legislature of a statement of the part of an item of an appropriation bill to which he objects, the two houses, each by a two-thirds vote, approve the item as it was originally passed.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 6.

By Chapter 384, Laws 1915, the legislature proposed an amendment of Section Thirteen (13) of Article One (1) of the Constitution.

The section as it now stands reads as follows:

"Section 13. PRIVATE PROPERTY FOR PUBLIC USE — Private property shall not be taken, destroyed or damaged for public use, without just compensation therefor first paid or secured."

If the amendment is adopted the section will read as follows:
